Estrada Gardens

Estrada Gardens was the scene of the September 9 celebration in San Luis Obispo with the new parlor of the Native Sons bearing that name and San Luisita Native Daughters participating. Robert N. Umbertis was the chairman of the committee and Merle A. Mallory, ways and means chairman made the barbecue possible.

Master of Ceremonies was Lloyd Tiernan, president of San Luis Obispo Parlor and many interesting music and dance numbers were featured. Music for dancing was furnished by Homer Reghetti's orchestra. James Hay, eighty-one, oldest member was honored and Mrs. Michael R. Tonini supplied lively accordian numbers. Speeches were made by Mayor Ralph Kennedy, City Attorney George Andre and a new member of the Native Sons, and William B. Black.

Hair-raising is the word for Al Jackson's recent aerial trip to New Orleans in his own plane. Al, member of Stanford Parlor No. 76 NSGW, San Francisco and his wife bought themselves a Stinson Voyager airplane and started off for the Mardi Gras city on a little vacation.

En route they had several pretty exciting experiences: They became lost. They had to make a forced landing in a swamp. They blew a cylinder as they sped over a mountain crest. But, like the mail, they came through intact if not on time!

Race for Progress

The story of the Pony Express, vividly told. This is the first of two parts of the colorful saga.

By Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan

N THE DIM CORRIDORS of mediaeval history there lurks the first mention of an's effort to maintain communication ross desolate and perilous regions by eans of pony couriers.

Marco Polo has recorded the story of the rliest known Pony Express. He relates at Genghis Khan, conqueror of Tartary d China, established a Pony Express in 27 A.D., across the Mongolian plains. The ations were twenty-five miles apart and e riders sped through comparatively endly country.

Six hundred odd years later, in 1860-61, repid horsemen of California and Missuri carried the mails across unfriendly untry, over plains and ranges infested th wild beasts and roving tribes of vages.

For two years the riders of the American ny Express defied sandstorms, cloudrsts, prairie perils, death by starvation, rst, or at the hands of red men. The ring messengers had promised to carry e mails over the wild wastes of the Great nerican desert and they kept their omise.

They kept their promise in face of the t that the Pony Express was a financial lure from its inception. So great a finanl failure that, unless a government subly were forthcoming, it would have to be continued. No subsidy came.

It was at this juncture of the historic erland service that the foremost commerl financial house on the Pacific Coast, ells Fargo and Company, Express and nking, of San Francisco, came to the scue of this most unique institution in stern pioneer history.

At the close of its career, the Pony Exess was on a paying basis. Its span of vice covered nineteen months, from April 1860, to October 26, 1861. It would have ntinued on this profitable basis had it not en for the completion of the transcontintal telegraph.

The Pony Express had provided the first oid transit from the Missouri River to the cific Coast and had brought the Atlantic ast and the Pacific slope ten days nearer each other. The overland stage line conned twenty-one days in getting the mails California, while the Pony Express acnplished their errands in an average of ven days.

The main motive of the Pony Express was to demonstrate to the United States Congress and to the American people that the so-called Great American desert could be traversed every day throughout the year. It was the splendid success of the Overland Pony Express that swept away all objections to government support of projects to link the Atlantic Coast with the Far West by rail.

Due to the indisputable demonstration by the brave riders of the Pony Express that the desert was not impassable and that the Sierra Nevada and Rocky Mountains were not unconquerable barriers, Congress granted extraordinary privileges to the promoters of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific Railroads. The government guaranteed the railroads' bonds and gave them grants of land comprising alternate sections for forty miles each side of the roads for their entire lengths. Thus, assured of financial success from the start, the Union Pacific and Central Pacific began construction of the first far western rail lines in 1866. The former builded from Omaha west and the latter from Sacramento east. In 1869 a gold spike was driven at a point north of Great Salt Lake, uniting the Union and Central Pacific links.

No such advantages as were met by the railroad builders greeted the founders of the Pony Express. Theirs was a herculean task that depended upon patriotism for its life-strength. From the beginning it was clear that the Pony Express would not be a paying enterprise without government subsidy. It was undertaken, however, because William P. Russell, one of the founders, had promised to try. Undoubtedly, Russell and his associates entertained a vague hope that should success meet their efforts, the government would lend its aid. That aid never came. It went, instead, to the promoters of the railroads and telegraph.

The Pony Express was a stupendous financial misadventure, but at the same time it was a colossal factor in the saving of California to the Union cause in the Civil War, and in rendering feasible the spanning of the continent by rail and telegraph lines. While the latter would have come in due sequence their early establishment west of the Missouri River was due solely to the endeavors of Messrs. Russell, Majors and Waddell, founders of the Pony Express.

The urgent need for a weekly letter mail service to and from California became an imperative need in 1859. At that time there were three generally recognized routes of mail traffic, of which the Panama line was by far the most important. The others were the "Butterfield" stage route via St. Louis, El Paso, Fort Yuma and Los Angeles; and the Central Route, via St. Joseph, Missouri, the Platte River to Wyoming and Salt Lake City, thence to Sacramento. The latter, although the most direct route, was the least utilized. It was considered partially impassable during certain periods of the year and perilous to human life. It was this route that was chosen by the founder of the Pony Express.

It was apparent to the powers in Washington that the Central Route was the obvious line of communication whereby the comparatively new state of California could be controlled in a military sense. It was the one certain avenue by which California could be swung into line for the Northern cause in event of war. Yet the government made no move and Congress quashed the only distinct effort made in its body for the establishment of an improved line of communication to California.

The urgent messages despatched by the War Department to General Sumner at the Presidio of San Francisco in the early fall of 1861 were carried overland by the Pony Express while the latter was under the management of Wells Fargo & Co., Express and Banking.

Senator William M. Gwin, first United States Senator from California, was the man who offered the original bill in Congress for the subsidizing of an overland weekly mail service. Southern-born Senator Gwin's strong point in debate on the issue was the saving of California to the cause of anti-slavery! His bill was laid on the table by the Military Affairs Committee and never was acted upon. Senator Gwin introduced his bill in January, 1855, and it is a strange commentary to note that considerably less than a decade later Senator Gwin espoused the cause of the Confederacy, following the secession of his native state, Mississippi.

We Visited Timbuctoo

By Grand Historian Emmett P. Joy

A COLD autumn day in the mining area of Yuba county was November 23, 1935. A friend and I were visiting some of the ghost towns of that region. My companion was extremely interested and asked me to tell what history I knew of each spot as we passed.

We left Marysville late in the afternoon and drove to Park's Bar on the Yuba river. After leaving the river bridge we drove along the wooded highway, each turn unfolding new sights of natural grandeur. There were oaks of golden brown, evergreens and pines. We traveled through a series of beautiful meadows and glens, then came upon several old farm houses located in remote places. They were surrounded by orchards planted by pioneers many years ago. As we continued along for some distance, we passed a small ravine. Suddenly there appeared before us a lone brick building. It stood alongside the road and a wooded knoll filled in the background.

"What is this place?" asked my companion. "Timbuctoo," I replied. We made a survey of the site upon which the mining town of "Timbuctoo" once stood. The sun was lowering in the western sky and sunshine alternated with shadow in the secluded quiet mountain meadow. The feeling of winter was approaching and over the woods, birds in flight seemed to be poised motionless in the clear air.

My friend excitedly exclaimed, "Come here! Look!" He pointed to a plaque on the building and read the inscription, "Old Wells Fargo Office and Stewart Bros. Store —1855. Restored and dedicated to the memory of the Pioneer Men and Women of Timbuctoo, May 10, 1928, by Marysville Parlor No. 6 NSGW. Presented by Wells Fargo and Union Trust Co., San Francisco." The inscription so intrigued him that he asked me to tell him more about the town and as we strolled along the highway which was once the main street, he became more and more enthused and expressed his desire again of knowing the story.

The call of the cattle echoed over the hills as I started to tell of Timbuctoo.

"Gold was responsible for the settlement of the town. William Monegan, who conducted a store at Rose Bar on the Yuba river a few miles north, was one of the first men to mine here in 1850. A negro was working in one of the ravines so William Monegan and L. B. Clark, another miner, named the ravine 'Timbuctoo' after the negro who was from Africa.

"The town started in 1855, and William Gregory built the first house. A hotel and other buildings were erected during the same year. In this period, hydraulic mining flourished and the town continued to grow when in 1859 it became the largest and most thriving town in eastern Yuba county. There were about eight saloons in addition to the bars in the hotels. The miners became rough at times and shooting was not an unusual occurrence.

"I do not know the exact location of the public school which was built in 1862, but continued until 1873 when it was removed to Smartsville. The theatre stood on the north side of the street, close to where we are now standing. It was a wooden structure erected in 1859 with a seating capacity of eight hundred people. Some of the famous actors and actresses of the gold rush days performed in this theatre.

"The town had its own fire department, one company was called the 'Timbuctoo Rescue Hose Company No. 1.' A picture of this organization at one time was on exhibition in the pioneer museum in this old store building.

"There were three shoe shops, as many bakeries, a drug and two general stores. There also were two hotels, one bank and one livery stable. This did not include all the buildings. There were many others including barber shops and tobacco stores.

The main street followed along the course of the present road which passes along here, both sides of which were lined solidly with structures. A picture taken in the early sixties depicts the scene when the town was at its peak. The total permanei population was over 1,200.

"Somewhere near the oaks west of he is the cemetery which was started in 185 the year the town was built. The first to b buried were three men shot by one Ji Webster. What caused the quarrel I ha never been able to learn, though it mu have been a terrible shooting affra About 1870 the town began to decline i population, as mining was on the dow trend and the rich placer beds were we washed out.

"In June 1878 a fire struck the town ar destroyed most of the business district i cluding the first hotel built in 1855 b Jacob Dufford. These structures were nev rebuilt. In 1879 the town's population wa about three hundred and fifty. One hundr and fifty of them were Chinese. A. V Thorp was postmaster and also maintain a saloon. There was a small general sto and about thirty residences. At present, a you can see, there is just this lone buil ing on the main street of Timbuctoo know as the old 'Stewart Bros. Store and Wel Fargo Office.' Several million dollars wor of gold passed through its heavy iron doo during flush times. There are a few sto foundations remaining, probably of t first theatre and hotel. Against the hill a a few fruit trees indicating where hom once stood."

As I concluded, my friend remarked, " seems inconceivable that such a thrivi community existed here, judging from wh is visible now."

Early dusk was creeping over the wood hill. It seemed that all the world was sti A cold autumn evening was setting i Around the old building which marks t place where the town once stood, I cou vision phantoms of the early gold mine reenacting in ghostly pantomime, the sce of the gold rush days. We left the gho town of Timbuctoo and drove toward Rou and Ready.

Vittles Dished

Some mighty tasty "vittles" were dished up for lusty appetites at the annual outdoor picnic October 16 of Stanford Parlor No. 76, San Francisco.

On the bill of fare were such imposing items as Chili Con Carne a la Portola, Donutties Supreme a la Vallejo, Guatemala coffee (robusto) a la Arguello, Peerless Buns Superb a la Peralta, Bordens Creme de Luxe a la Pescadero and Sea Island Sugar Cane a la Carlotta. Chef Carlos Robotsky delighted all with his special dish, frankfurters de luxe, which were reported "doggone good." Later, music and dancing were enjoyed by members and their families. In charge of the successful affair were Harold Meyer, Charley Roberts and Art Poheim.

Ten tables of whist were enjoyed by members of Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, San Francisco, after the meeting September 25. Carl Boegershausen was chairman.

Returning Heroes

Wearing a Bronze Star for heroism in action on the Arno-Florence front, as well as a flock of other ribbons, Staff Sergeant John E. (Jack) Lewis, member of Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, San Francisco, has returned home and will receive his discharge soon.

Five members of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110, NSGW, San Bernardino, who recently received their discharges from the armed forces were: Navy—Bennet I. Thayer, CBM, and Mo M M 1/c Mark L. Murphy. Marine Corps—Sgt. Melvin L. Harbauer. Army—Sgt/S Ben E. Coleman, Jr., and George L. Taylor.

Harry Davis, private first class and past president of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, NSGW was recently honorably discharged from the Army after serving three and a half years in the South Pacific as a member of the famed Twenty-fifth Tropical Lightning Division. He saw action in New Zealand, New Caledonia, the Admiralty Islands and at Luzon.

Davis has been active for years in the Order, and held such positions as secretary of the Inter-parlor committee and Southern California chairman of the Native Sons' Public Speaking Contest Committee.

Past President Bob Dunn, of Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, Los Angeles, who received his discharge from the Navy August 30, paid a visit to the parlor the following evening. He gave an interesting talk on conversion and readjustment of servicemen, and the splendid opportunities for Native Sons to interest servicemen in joining the Order. Also returned to civilian life is Alpha Hartman, who was in the Coast Guard.

November 14, University Parlor No. 272 will hold class initiation.

November 15, Santa Ana Parlor No. 265, Mother Colony No. 281 and Ramona No. 109 will present a Bear Flag to the interesting Ghost Town replica at Buena Park, owned and operated by Walter Knott, member of Mother Colony.

Long Beach Parlor No. 154 held a luncheon meeting at Knott's October 26 with Fred Walker acting as chairman. Joe Smith, president, Fred Curtis, Joseph Sousa were on the committee.

Thursday October 25 was past president's night for Ramona Parlor when a meeting was held honoring Edwin A. Meserve.

Bowling Team

With Matt Soares set to serve as coach, a bowling team is being organized by members of Wilmington Parlor No. 280, NSGW, according to Walter Boerner and Dick Regan, of the parlor's Athletic Committee. Anyone interested in joining the team are asked to contact the committee immediately.

East Los Angeles

A barbecue and dance were enjoyed by East Los Angeles Parlors Native Sons and Daughters, September 15, at the rancho home of Dr. Carmichael in Montebello.

September 30, Edna Restovich gave a party to raise funds for the Homeless Children at Poppy Trail Villa. Mary Tassop, Mary and Frances Kanios, Leola Butler, Pauline Eisenman, Esther Molina and May Belle Evans assisted.

Several members of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 NSGW, San Bernardino, have been celebrating wedding anniversaries which captured attention of Native Sons and Daughters in the area. Among them were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Ollson, September 1, seventeenth anniversary of wedding in Yuma; Dr. and Mrs. Clarence K. Lamb, September 26, fourth anniversary of wedding at Redondo Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Basham, September 28, third anniversary of wedding in Hollywood, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Everett, September 7, fourth anniversary of wedding in Glendale.

University Parlor

November 14 is the date set by University Parlor No. 272, NSGW, for its "Biscailuz" night, when the popular sheriff of Los Angeles County will be honored. District deputies are also invited.

University and Centinela Parlors held a dance October 27 in Elks Temple with many in attendance. An officers' meeting was scheduled for October 24 at the home of Bob King. The October 10 meeting was preceded by a tasty turkey repast with John Haas, past president of Ramona Parlor No. 109 as speaker.

University Parlor No. 272 NSGW, Los Angeles, was honored October 10 by visits from PGP Edward T. Schnarr, recently returned from military service, and James G. Dignan, recording secretary, Piedmont Parlor No. 120, Oakland.

Eight applications for membership were presented, the candidates being initiated at the following meeting, October 18. Walter F. Wells, president, has announced a substantial membership drive as one of his purposes while in office. University Parlor and Centinela Parlor No. 279, Inglewood. held a joint anniversary dance October 27 in the Elks Club, Los Angeles, which was well attended.

Because he is engaged in a business enterprise requiring his attention evenings, Jack Allen Baskerville has stepped down as president of Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, Los Angeles. Rather than accept his resignation, it was decided by members to keep the presidential chair in status quo for the balance of the term, to be occupied by past presidents until a regular successor is nominated this month.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS

Blessings Counted

By Grand President Ethel C. Enos

Surely a more appropriate time for giving thanks could not be found than this Thanksgiving Day, when our hearts should be lifted in joy for the many blessings that are ours.

As the Pilgrims gave heartfelt thanks for the privilege of freedom in a new land, we o, lift up our voices prayerfully for the peace which has come to us and mankind roughout the world.

May this Thanksgiving Day bring to each Native Daughter of the Golden West, a adiness of spirit, calmness of mind and a determination to ever be courageous in facg the problems which still must be solved.

Official Visits

Team Commended

For its snappy participation in the San Francisco parade welcoming General Jonathan Wainwright, the Green Patrol of Sequoia Parlor No. 272 NDGW, Berkeley, and Argonaut Parlor No. 166, Emeryville, has received many high commendations from high ranking military officers.

The precision and perfect marching order of the patrol particularly won the Army men's attention. An active part in the Bay District's Armistice Day program, November 11, also will be taken by the splendid marching organizations.

Membership Tea

A handsome lucite serving tray was presented to Junipero Parlor No. 141 NDGW by Muriel Vanderbilt Adams in recognition of the parlor's faithful service in staffing the American Red Cross Service club for two days a month. Mrs. Adams furnished and has been responsible for the operating of this beautiful club in Monterey which is also the headquarters for the Red Cross Motor corps of which she is captain. Alva Banta is parlor chairman of war activities.

Supervising Deputy Ethel W. Hyde was installing officer when Emma Lee Lippman became third vice-president; Alice S. Bentley, marshal and Dorothy Wilson, outside sentinel, at a formal installation held September 18. All other officers, headed by Anita A. Church, president, held over from the preceding term.

A pre-drive donation was given to the War Chest fund. A Hallowe'en costume party for the benefit of the Seeing Eye Dog fund will be held by the parlor in San Carlos Parish Hall with husbands and friends as guests.

Liberty Parlor No. 213 NDGW, Elk Grove, made a Columbus Day event out of its welcome to Grand President Ethel C. Enos October 12, with Junior NDGW No. 11 participating in the ceremonies.

Doris Gerrish presided over the Liberty Parlor meeting, at which eight candidates were initiated, and Lucinda Price occupied the president's chair for the juniors. A silver march collected $13.41 for the Annie Adair Scholarship fund.

Among those in attendance were Grand Trustee Elizabeth Read, PGPs Mary E. Bell and Edna B. Briggs, and DGP Marie Goodman, Wanda Abele, Alice Carpenter, Blanche Perret, Buddy Bailey and Jeanette Krull Reiff.

Parlors Merge

The twenty-one members of Balboa Parlor No. 249, San Francisco, recently merged with Las Lomas Parlor No. 72, San Francisco, in an impressive ceremony at which Mildred Ehlert, president of Las Lomas who had served as deputy grand president to Balboa, extended a sincere welcome to the arrivals.

Dorothy Soules, president of Balboa, in commenting on the merger, told the meeting, "Our parlor had a great name, which its members always will hold dear. We are certain the merger will be beneficial to us and together we can be of greater service to the Order."

Members of Balboa, who consolidated with Las Lomas are: Mae Beals, Grace Boisson, Marguerite Bopp, Alvina Bortis, Lucille Cacela, Catherine DeRutte, Gertrude Heaney, Elvena Kleckner, Cecille Le Galle, Rose Maggoria, May Moore, Margie Picetti, Lorraine Samson, Caroline Slattery, Dorothy Soules, Doris Valdez, Marcella Villa, Irene Youngs, Hazel Hesney, Gertrude Kirsch and Matilda Panos.

Hospitality House

The four Native Daughters parlors which make the Order's home their home joined as hostesses at San Francisco's Civic Center Hospitality House, October 6, to serve over two thousand service men during the day and evening. Sandwiches, cakes and coffee were provided for their delectation, and dancing provided the evening's entertainment.

General Chairman was PGP Evelyn I. Carlson of Dolores, who states that this work is more important than ever as thousands of returning service men are returning to their homes through San Francisco daily. Others on the committee were PGPs Emily E. Ryan, Las Lomas, and Orinda Giannini of Orinda and Margaret Barrett of Buena Vista Parlor. Each parlor was represented by large groups who assisted in various ways.

Fall Bazaar

With proceeds going to its Homeless Children and Veterans' Welfare committees, the annual Fall Bazaar of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 NDGW, San Francisco was held October 18 at the Native Daughters Home. Ruth Weiman was general chairman of the event. The parlor gives a party once a month at Fort Miley Military hospital for entertainment of returned veterans, according to Leslye Hicks, publicity chairman.

The sum of fifteen dollars was contributed to the Red Cross and Hospital service to assist in the furnishing of a room at Birmingham Hospital.

A Halloween party was planned for October 23. Katie Glavinic is chairman of a committee serving regular dinners for the Compton Chamber of Commerce.

Samuel Brannan and the Golden Fleece

This volume is based entirely on historical fact and is not a novel, but a dependable source book, by Reva Scott; published by MacMillan Publishing Company, New York, price $3.75; reviewed by Fletcher Ford.

Samuel Brannan was born in Saco, Maine, in 1819 and moved to Ohio with his sister and brother-in-law in 1833 where he served an apprenticeship as a printer. Upon the death of his father he received a modest inheritance which he invested in Ohio lands and lost all in the Ohio land frauds of 1837.

From Ohio he made a visit to his old home in Maine to see his mother who gave him her savings and shortly thereafter passed away. From his native state of Maine he worked his way to Boston and New York and eventually to New Orleans by boat on the Mississippi River. With the money given him by his mother he bought a printing press in New Orleans and started a paper which was not a success. He came to dislike the South and its people and especially its institution of slavery which he stoutly opposed later by endeavoring to keep California and its resources for the Union cause.

From New Orleans he went to Indianapolis and started a paper which was also a failure. Returning to Ohio and his sister's home he was converted to Mormonism as also were his sister and brother-in-law. He married a Mormon girl and took an active part in the then new religion. He attracted the attention of Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet, and was appointed by Smith as a missionary and later sent by him to New York to establish a Mormon Church paper called "The Prophet."

When Joseph Smith was killed by a mob at Carthage, Illinois, Brigham Young assumed the Mormon leadership and was endeavoring to escape the persecution which faced the Mormons everywhere. Brigham directed Brannan to gather up as many of the Mormon people as he could in New York and vicinity and to proceed by water to California which was then still Mexican territory. In February, 1846, Brannan and his company of about 300 sailed from New York in the vessel "Brooklyn," bound for California by the way of the Sandwich Islands. While in the islands there were rumors that war was imminent between the United States and Mexico and Brannan hoped to be the first to raise the Stars and Stripes over the village of Yerba Buena at the Golden Gate.

However upon his arrival at the Golden Gate on August 1, 1846 they found the American Flag already flying on the shore of San Francisco Bay. After getting his party settled in Yerba Buena, Brannan proceeded to found a Mormon colony called "New Hope Farms" located on the site of the present Stanislaus City, at the junction of the Stanislaus and San Joaquin rivers. In January, 1847, Brannan published the first weekly paper in San Francisco which he called the "California Star." In April of the same year he was ordered to report to Brigham Young who was proceeding west, overland, to select a location which was to become the present Salt Lake City. Brannan took a part in the rescue of the famous Donner Party and became friendly with Captain Sutter. Upon joining Brigham Young, Brannan endeavored to induce Young to come on out to California instead of stopping at the Great Salt Lake.

Brigham, however, was determined to settle at Salt Lake City, and they had a violent quarrel which was to result later in Brannan's leaving the Mormon Church. Brannan returned to California and divided his activities between San Francisco and Sutter Fort where he operated a hotel and general store in association with Captain Sutter. On May 11, 1848 Brannan brought to San Francisco the first reliable news of the discovery of gold at Coloma on Sutter's property.

Brannan became very prominent in civic and business affairs in San Francisco and at one time was considered the wealthiest man in California, his activities even extending to Southern California and Los Angeles. He was one of the organizers of the 1851 Vigilance Committee in San Francisco. In the Comstock slump of 1875, Brannan lost much of his wealth and in 1880 went to Mexico City to prosecute a claim which he had against the Republic of Mexico for about seventeen thousand dollars he had advanced to help oust Maximillian, but he was unsuccessful in getting any payment and died destitute in San Diego in 1889.

Senator Gwin died in 1866, after service in Mexico under the ill-fated Emperor Maximilian, who gave him the empty title "Duke of Sonora."

In the autumn of 1854, Senator Gwin started for Washington, D. C., to take his oath of office. He traveled by the Central stage route and his companion on the long and hazardous journey chanced to be Mr. B. F. Ficklin, then the general superintendent for the freighting firm of Russell, Majors and Waddell, of Leavenworth. A resourceful man, Ficklin enthusiastically unfolded to Senator Gwin his scheme for establishing an overland semi-weekly mail route with government aid. The plan appealed to the California solon and for years afterwards he championed its cause before a Congress whose interests at the time were wrapped up in the great slavery question.

However, in the winter of 1859, Senator Gwin met William P. Russell in the national capital, and urged the senior member of the firm of Russell, Majors and Waddell, to undertake the titanic task of inaugurating a Pony Express service across the western plains. It was on that occasion that Russell made his history-making promise.

Though cognizant of the financial frailty of his organization insofar as launching unaided so huge a plan was concerned, Russell finally convinced his doubting partners, not only of the efficacy of the scheme but of the potential profit that lay therein. Russell saw a powerful friend in the California senator and believed implicitly in eventual government aid for his company's great undertaking. His partners reluctantly chose to abide by the promise made by the senior member of their firm and on April 3, 1860 the Pony Express became a fact.

To establish so vast an enterprise, Russell, Majors and Waddell purchased 500 horses, most of them fleet, sure-footed California half-breed mustangs, erected 190 stations between Sacramento and St. Joseph, Missouri, and hired eighty expert horsemen to serve as riders of the Pony Express. This enormous venture called for the initial outlay of $100,000. Each letter carried called for a deposit of five dollars by the sender. Two hundred letters were carried by each rider in leather pouches lined with oiled silk.

Henry E. Sundfors

To the Officers and Members of Humboldt Parlor No. 14, NSGW We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect and condolence to the memory of our late Brother, Henry E. Sundfors, submit the following:

Whereas, In the passing of Brother Henry E. Sundfors, Humboldt Parlor No. 14, NSGW, mourns the loss of one of its loyal and faithful members, one who ever held serious the cardinal virtues of our Order, therefore be it

Resolved, That while we miss him, our dear departed Brother, nevertheless the memory of his associations will ever remain fresh in our minds, and that we extend our sincere and deep sympathy to the bereaved family in this their hour of sorrow, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy spread upon the minutes of the Parlor and a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

LOREN M. NELSON,
A. W. McDONALD,
Committee.

Eureka, California, September 24, 1945.

Justus S. Wardell

Death on September 24 claimed Justus S. Wardell, 73, member of Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, San Francisco since 1914, and for years a prominent political figure in this state. A pioneer resident of San Francisco, Wardell began his political career forty years ago as an assemblyman from that city. When taken ill a year ago Wardell was in Washington, D.C., where for the past eight years he had been a bank receiver. He is survived by his widow, a daughter and a son, Benjamin, who also is a member of Stanford Parlor, and one granddaughter.

Leo A. McClatchy

While sitting at his desk at the San Francisco Call-Bulletin office October 1, Leo A. McClatchy, member of Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, San Francisco, and a widely known newspaper editorial writer, died of a heart attack.

For many years McClatchy was Washington, D.C., correspondent for the McClatchy chain of publications in the Great Central Valley. Only a few days before his passing he had written a vibrantly worded editorial complimenting the Native Daughters on their anniversary, and gave a cheery "plug" to the Native Sons.

John Lucas Greer

Death has claimed John Lucas Greer, 93, a charter member of Palo Alto Parlor No. 216, descendent of an early California family which at one time owned the land on which Palo Alto was built. Mr. Greer was born in Woodside, and spent his entire life in Santa Clara Valley. He was the son of Capt. John Greer and Marie Soto Greer. His mother was a member of a Spanish family, which had title to large grants of land in San Mateo and Santa Clara Counties.

Frank M. Ostrander

Frank Merced Ostrander, a member of Yosemite Parlor No. 24 NSGW, Merced, was called to the Grand Parlor on High September 11, 1945. He was born in Merced January 3, 1890.

A past president of the parlor, deceased was a former district attorney of Merced County and was one of the outstanding lawyers of the state.

Katherine Devoto

To the Officers and Members of Presidio Parlor No. 148 NDGW We, your Committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect in fond memory of our departed member, Katherine Devoto, submit the following:

Whereas, Our Divine Father has called our dear sister to her Heavenly Home and the Golden Chain of our Fraternity has been severed.

Therefore, Be it resolved, That we extend our sympathy to her bereaved family; that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor; and that a copy be sent to the Grizzly Bear magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,
JEWEL STREI,
LILLIE BEAR, JENNIE SCHUMACHER,
Committee.

San Francisco, California, August 7, 1945.

Pleasanton, California, September 20, 1945.

Mabel Joy Bert

To the Officers and Members of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181 NDGW—We, your committee, submit the following resolutions of respect and condolence in memory of our departed Sister, Mabel Joy Bert.

Whereas, Our Member has been called from among us; our chain of fraternal friendship has again been severed, and those of us who were privileged to know her will miss her.

Therefore, be it resolved, That we extend our sympathy to her bereaved family; that our profound appreciation be expressed to the Native Daughters Home Committee for the fraternal and material care bestowed upon her by them and residents of the Home; that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor; a copy be sent to her family and a copy sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Fraternally submitted,
PAULINE QUIROLO,
ROSE W. MOHR,
ANNE K. BIGGU,
Committee.

Daly City, California, October 11, 1945.

Florence A. Cook

Florence A. Cook, mother of Harriette Weeks, past president of Verdugo Parlor No. 240, Glendale, died Monday, October 8, at the home of her daughter in that city. Mrs. Cook was born in Santa Ana June 5, 1882.

GRIZZLY BEAR

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC.,
Required by the Acts of Congress of August 24, 1912, and March 3, 1933.
Of The Grizzly Bear, published monthly at Los Angeles, California, for October 1, 1945.

State of California }
County of Los Angeles }

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared Bernard G. Hiss, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Business Manager of The Grizzly Bear Magazine and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management (and if a daily paper, the circulation), etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, as amended by the Act of March 3, 1933, embodied in section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse side of this form, to-wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:
Publisher, Grizzly Bear Publishing Co. (Inc.), Los Angeles 12, California
Editor, Isabel Fages, Los Angeles 12, California
Managing Editor, Isabel Fages, Los Angeles 12, California.
Business Manager, Bernard G. Hiss, Los Angeles 13, California.

2. That the owner is: (If owned by a corporation, its name and address must be stated and also immediately thereunder the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding one per cent or more of total amount of stock. If not owned by a corporation, the names and addresses of the individual owners must be given. If owned by a firm, company, or other unincorporated concern, its name and address, as well as those of each individual member, must be given.) The Grizzly Bear Publishing Co., a Corporation, is the owner. 1259 shares of the 7500 authorized shares of stock have been sold. Names all stockholders, and amount stock held by each, attached hereto. Owner's address. 206 So. Spring St., Rooms 309-15, Los Angeles.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state) None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company, but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stocks, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the 12 months preceding the date shown above is.....(This information is required from daily publications only.)

BERNARD G. HISS,
Business Manager

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 4th day of October, 1945.

Adios Amigos

By Isabel Fages

THIS is my farewell issue of the Grizzly Bear Magazine, which I have edited to the best of my ability under the war time conditions and against great odds for two years.

But this is not "farewell" for your editor as a member of the Native Daughters or as a friend of the Native Sons, I shall always remain a staunch adherent to the principles of both Orders.

May I suggest that members support the new editor, Leonard Scwacofer of Mother Colony Parlor No. 281 NSGW, Anaheim. If the Native Sons will cooperate by sending in their news, pictures of their major events and keep their circulation lists up to date, and Native Daughters increase their subscriptions, Leonard should find it possible to improve the attractiveness of the magazine and the service. He has had the experience necessary, but this alone cannot produce a magazine. It is your publication and without your help, no editor can hope for success.

Whether or not you have supported the magazine in the past, may you be awakened to the importance of an influential medium between your Orders and the public.

In parting, may I take this opportunity to thank all my tried and true friends and say to them, "Adios, Amigos."

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

The Alvarado, Alameda County, beet sugar factory was working to a full capacity of 50 tons a day. Beet sugar came on the market of San Francisco and other cities as a novelty and was being used as such by the people, many of whom claimed it was just as good as the cane sugar they had been using. The Alvarado company was selling its product for 13½ cents a pound.

The San Francisco and North Pacific railroad was completed and put into operation to Santa Rosa, Sonoma County. December 31. Peter Donahue, president of the road, took a brass band, a squad of artillery with their cannon to fire salute, and about 300 invited guests by special train from San Francisco to attend the celebration at Santa Rosa. Charles D. Carter was orator of the day.

The California and Oregon railroad, going north, reached the east bank of the Sacramento River, 13 miles from Red Bluff, Tehama County, and established a temporary terminus at Sesma until the Sacramento River could be bridged at Tehama.

The Pacific Oyster Company was incorporated with a $60,000 capital to propagate Eastern oysters in California waters. It was proposed to bring newly-spawned oysters from the East, transplant and grow them in San Francisco Bay and other places for market.

The bay of Santa Cruz was swarming with schools of smelt. A large part of the population of all ages was upon the wharve with dip nets and all kinds of devices gathering in basketfuls of the shining finny mass. Porpoise, sharks, gulls and pelicans were gathered there too, in big numbers to feed on the harvest which lasted over a week.

Evan Jones of Port Wine, Sierra County, mining in Poorman's Gulch, found a nugget weighing three and one-half pounds and worth over $700.

December 15, in Los Angeles, Miguel Lachensi, in a dispute with Jacob Bell, an old resident of the town, shot and killed him. The morning of the 17th over 300 citizens gathered in a hall and selected a leader. Then they proceeded to the county jail and demanded of the sheriff the murderer. The sheriff refused to give him up and the crowd battered down the jail door. With a following of over 1000 people they took Lachensi to a corral about two blocks from the jail and hung him from a crossbeam over the gate. It was claimed that he had killed three other people in his career and it was time that he was stopped.

The big store of Pozzo & Co. in San Jose was burned December 31, causing a $20,000 loss.

Mayor Thos. H. Selby of San Francisco gave to the charitable institutions of that city his salary for the year, amounting to $4200.

Two Oakland boys made a Christmas "wad" ridding lots and gardens of gophers. They had captured a battling gopher alive and, secured with a long cord fastened to a leg, they would send it into a gopher hole. When, by the violent twitching of the cord, they ascertained their gladiator was in combat, they drew it out with its teeth fastened into the denizen of the hole, which was also dispatched.

George and Ben Crisman, nimrods of Auburn, Placer County, went on a goose shoot to Auburn Ravine sink. George loaded both barrels of Ben's shotgun, either by design or accident with a double charge of powder and shot. In their blind they awaited results, which in a short time came, when a large flock of geese alighted within range. Ben fired both barrels, but the kick of the gun was too severe a shock for him to help gather in the dead. Thirty-one geese were killed, and Ben did not know for some days how the result was brought about.

Our Christmas Story

A STAR shines bright tonight in th western heavens. 'Tis Venus in a her glory. It reminds me of that night ove 1900 years ago, when a great star in all it radiant beauty, shone above the little tow of Bethlehem, and a tiny babe, whose nam and influence was to be felt in the heart of men down through the ages, was born i a lowly manger.

It is Christmas time again, and in hur dreds of thousands of homes throughou the length and breadth of the land, on may see brigh'ly lighted trees, decorate windows, and the time-honored mistleto has been placed over the place where fai ones are apt to stand. To most of us, Chris mas time is a time of joy and instills i our hearts a better feeling towards ou fellow-men. This is especially true thi Christmas of all Christmases, for the gur of war are stilled now and our loved one by the hundreds are coming home to u It is well at this time that we do nc forget the real significanec of Christma and the message it brings, "Peace on Eartl Good Will to Men." Not for just an hou not for just a day, but for ever and ever.

Each year as it comes Christmas tim and we think of that star of long ago an the story of the first Christmas, it draw to mind another story that is California own.

In the year 1775, it was, when the cour try, whose flag we love so well, was bein born. Southern California's mountain are had experienced an unusually cold and bi ter storm in December of that year. S severe had it been that a howling blizzar descended into the desert east of Sa Diego. Through this a little band of Spanis colonists, under the leadership of Captai Juan Bautista de Anza, struggled for day until finally they reached the mouth of th canyon that was to lead them up out c the bleak and desolate desert, through hig mountain passes between snow-clad peak into the broad valleys of a coastal regio

On Christmas Eve the expedition, whos mission it was to found the city of Sa Francisco, camped in Coyote canyon, som 45 or 50 miles southeast of Riverside. Her during the night, a little child was bor to raise its feeble cry against the moanin winds.

And the first Christmas day in Californ of this little group of hardy pioneers wa spent quietly in camp, waiting for mothe and new-born babe to gain strength t push on to their future home. Theirs, story of hardship and privation, under gallant and daring leader, but they wer cast of heroic mold, of the stuff that mak the backbone of a great state or nation.

Governor Earl Warren of California temporarily sidetracks affairs of state to entertain some of the hundreds of homeless children for whom the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West have found foster parents during the 35 years they have jointly carried on this important work, supervised by the state.

Governor Supports Drive for Funds

"There is nothing quite so deserving of mpathy as a homeless child and nothing at brings greater personal satisfaction in complishment than to have assisted in the acing of a homeless child in the custody of ring parents.

'For the past thirty-five years this worthy deavor has been one of the major activi- s of the Native Sons and the Native ughters of the Golden West. As a mem- r of the Native Sons for many years I ve kept in close touch with the splendid rk of the Central Committee of these ganizations which is carrying on the pro- am under license from our State Social elfare Department. It was my privilege serve as a member of this Central Com- ttee for many years. I know of hundreds homes, as well as children, made happier its assistance. And I know of the contri- tions from the thousands of members of th the Native Sons and the Native Daugh- 's which were necessary to keep the pro- am going.

'California's tremendous increase in pop- ation during the past few years has made of us conscious of the need for expansion our social welfare program. We have nd this to be true in our programs in ate Government and have been making a termined effort to keep pace with the ad- ional calls for service. Native Sons and ughters, who, throughout the years, have thin their own membership, borne the pense of their assistance program for meless children, have found themselves faced with the same set of facts. The need for the service which they have so long rendered homeless children has increased. They have had to face the fact that if their program is to continue to meet the same proportion of total need in the future as it has in the past, their entire program must be enlarged.

Governor Earl Warren's radio broadcast October 26, over a state-wide hook-up, on the Native Sons and Daughters Homeless Children Campaign, was interrupted. Due to many requests from our readers the complete text of the Governor's message as transmitted to us by Margaret A. Kerr, is given below.

"And so the choice was made. It was determined that the program would be enlarged and that the general public would be asked to supplement the contributions made by members of the organizations. For the first time we find the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West asking the general public for financial assistance to help carry on their great Homeless Children program.

"I am happy to give my full endorsement to the request which the Central Committee of these organizations is now making for public contributions. I do so because I know from personal experience the benefits and the worthiness of the work in which the Committee is engaged, and I know that California needs more such humanitarian service."

During the 35 years that the Native Sons and Daughters have jointly carried on the Homeless Children work more than 7000 children have been placed in good homes. The efficiency of the jointly conducted work has been challenged by the State Welfare Department and we, as Native Sons and Daughters must see that the money is raised to carry on the work in compliance with the Welfare Department's mandate. If we do not do this before the first of the year, there is a possibility that we may lose our license and have to give up the Homeless Children work, which has meant so much to both Orders.

Complete details of how the work is carried on and what we will be expected to do during the coming year, are given in the October issue of the Grizzly Bear on page three, by Hazel B. Hansen, chairman of the drive.

Every Native Son and Daughter has been contacted in a personal appeal by their Grand Officers. Many have responded generously in the sale of Homeless Babies stamps and in other ways. But it will take the combined efforts of all of us to make the drive a success.

It is hoped to close the campaign by December 15. To those who have not as yet replied, it is urged that you do your part as a Native Son or Daughter and send in your contribution immediately.

Desert Wonderland

The Roadrunner visits beautiful Borego Palm Canyon in Anza Desert State Park

ONE OF THE PLACES that you and I will want to visit in the winter days that lie ahead, when tires become more plentiful, is Anza Desert State Park, one of California's newest state parks comprising some 400,000 acres of fascinating desert country, most of which is in eastern San Diego County.

Comparatively few have visited this section of the desert, yet it contains much of interest to the naturalist, the rock-hound and to the student of early California history. For this reason our trip of the month for December centers around the Borego Valley part of the park, across which in 1774 and 1775 the intrepid Captain Juan Bautista de Anza led his expeditions in blazing the trail from Sonora, Mexico, to what is now the golden city of San Francisco.

Borego Valley is reached by paved highway from San Diego, via Julian, or by the Kane Springs-Julian road from Imperial Valley. A sign marks the turn-off to Borego. Due to the fact that war maneuvers may have made some changes in the desert roads or that certain areas may have been closed to the public by the Military, we suggest that you talk to Noel and Ruth Bell Crickmer of the Desert Lodge, Rancho Borego, before starting off the main traveled road to explore.

While there are many spots of interest in Borego Valley, containing 65,000 acres sheltered by the mountains, our trip this month deals primarily with Borego Palm Canyon, one of the most accessible of many scenic canyons, located a few miles from Desert Lodge.

Native Desert Washingtonia palms in Borego Palm Canyon, a part of greater Anza Desert State Park, embracing nearly 400,000 acres in San Diego and Imperial Counties.

As you cross the valley you will noti a famous landmark. A sleeping giant, "t Old Man of the Mountain," is to be seen profile along the crest of the western ran —the San Ysidros. Only his bust is visibl but it requires no imagination to see h features plainly in the contour of the rang He lies on his back, looking toward t skies. The entrance to Borego Palm Canyo is directly beneath the crown of his hea

It is not possible to see the palms un you have parked your car at the end of t road and hiked up the winding trail for o or two turns of the canyon. It is less than mile to the first native Washingtonia paln and perhaps another mile to a waterfa which is a favorite picnic spot.

Randall Henderson, editor of the Dese Magazine, says: "No one knows when these palms came or how long they ha been there. They furnished food and shelt for prehistoric Indian tribes before t white man came. Probably they are the ol est living natives of the Colorado riv desert."

In Borego Canyon they extend along t stream bed for a distance of four and on half miles. The lower group has be through fire, probably started by India who thought that evil spirits were hidd beneath the shaggy skirts of dead fron which cling to the veteran trees.

Henderson counted 552 palms in the ca yon a few years ago, but he says that a one who has ever tried to follow a more less precipitous mountain canyon and cou palm trees at the same time will realiz that due allowance should be made for erro

These palms are found in many seclude canyons and at oases far out in the de ert country of Southern California. B the palms, early travelers found shade an water. This is the origin of the names desert localities such as Palm Canyon, D Palmas, Hidden Palms, Seven Palms, 2 Palms, Seventeen Palms, Palm Springs, Tw Bunch Palms, Lone Palm and a score others.

The name Palm Springs is applied several different points in the desert, a pearing on old maps, thus giving rise t confusion when tracing out early emmigra routes. For instance, on the old souther route from Yuma, Arizona, across Imperi Valley to Carrizo Creek and Vallecito eastern San Diego County, there is a Pal Springs, so named by travelers in that da This has led to the claim by some that t Butterfield stages ran by way of the famou desert resort of Palm Springs. Adding the mix-up is the fact that another stag route, the Bradshaw line, ran north of Sa ton Sea and maintained a depot at what now Palm Springs, world-wide for its fam as a vacation mecca.

It gives one a feeling of having steppe into another world when he comes une pectedly upon a group of these stately palm hidden deep in some desert canyon. F there they are, silent and alone in the dese vastness, often many miles from any huma habitation, and for all you know, you ma be the first white man ever to see then Quite frequently there is no sign that an one has been there before you. Just barre hot wasteland for miles in every directio

New groups of palms are continually b ing discovered in the desert country Southern California and along the gulf sid of Baja California.

Most authorities class these native dese palms as Washingtonia, but a famous bo anist, whom we met in the upper part Palm Canyon one day, several years ag near the winter resort of Palm Springs, to us that in his opinion, there were two othe varieties in the canyon aside from th Washingtonia. Not being a botanist, we di t care much. We only looked at the palms and marveled their beauty, reaching towards the deep blue sky in a dry, rched land.

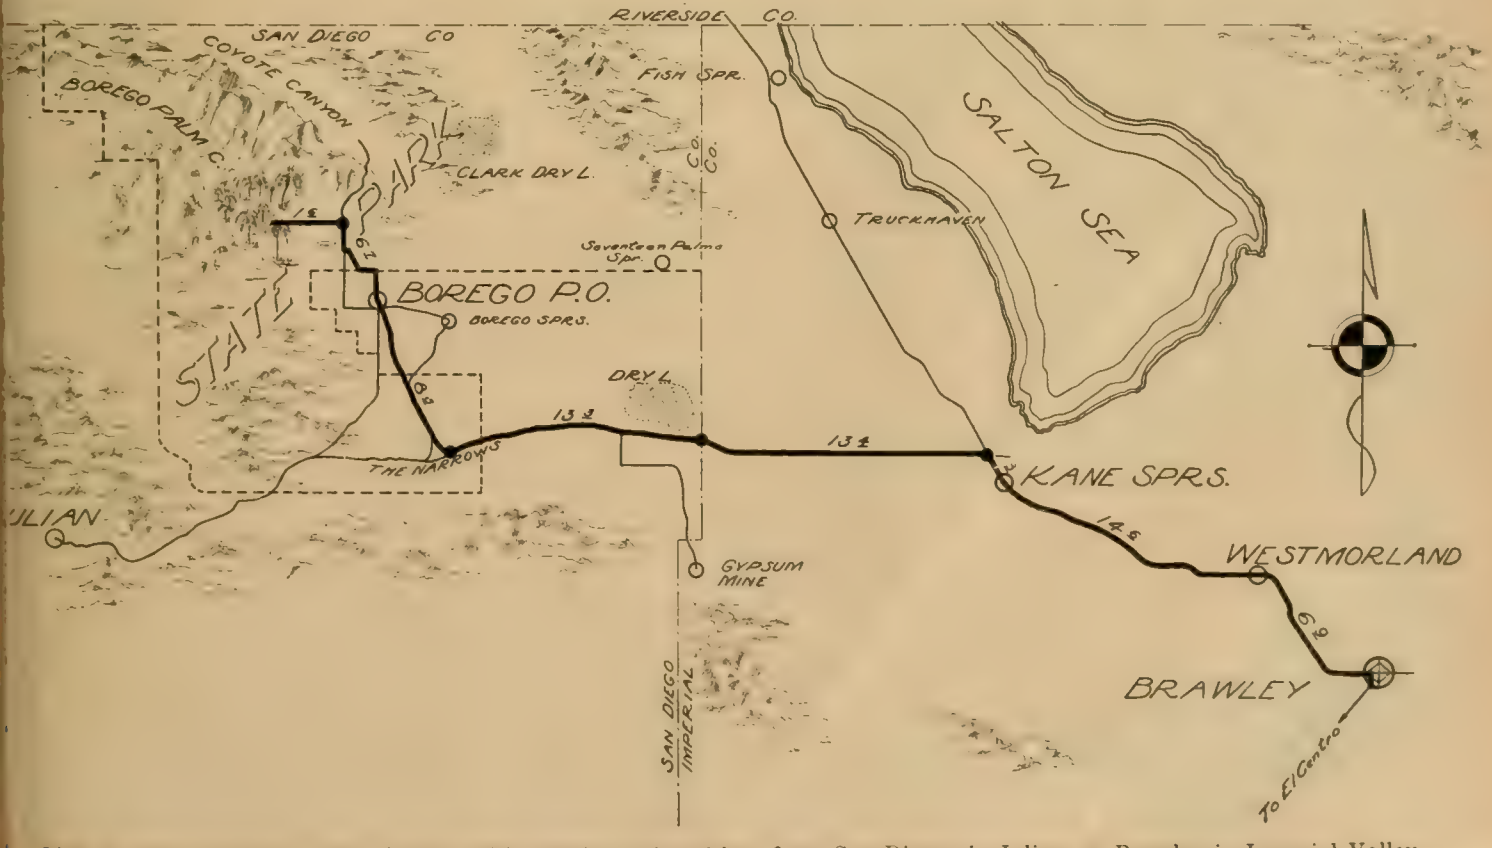
There are other canyons in the vicinity of Borego Palm anyon where there are palms. Most of these, however, are canyons emptying into Coyote Canyon and are hard for the erage person to reach. These canyons include Indian Can-n, Cougar Canyon, Sheep Canyon and 1000 Palms Canyon the San Ysidro mountains. Trips to these palms should not undertaken without adequate preparation and detailed structions for a desert trip. And, in no case should the trip attempted by motorists inexperienced in the ways of the sert.

It is probable that these other palm groups will some day accessible to motorists, for they are all within Anza sert State Park. If plans of park authorities are carried t, sooner or later a paved road will be built down Coyote nyon, allowing entrance to the park area from Riverside unty and opening the park to thousands of additional torists.

There are many other places of interest in and around rego Valley, including the picturesque badlands, Split ountain, Clark Dry Lake and Rock House Canyon, Sheeps nk and the Cannon Ball country. The Elephant Tree, at strange dweller of the desert, thought to grow only in e arid lands of northern Mexico, was discovered within e confines of Anza Desert State Park a few years ago. feature article could be written about any one of these and rhaps, some day we shall. But space this month does not ow us to describe them.



For the benefit of our readers outside of Southern Cali-rnia who might want to spend several days vacationing this delightful winter spot, we are giving you information out accommodations at Desert Lodge, Rancho Borego, rego, California, as sent to us by Noel and Ruth Bell ickmer, owners.

Noel Crickmer says: "As accommodations are limited, ad-nce reservations are urged. Rates will be gladly quoted on request, and when writing, please remember that we ve only three mails per week, arriving about 3 p.m. every esday, Thursday and Saturday. There is no telephone or egraphic service. Our season is from October to June. The lge is seven miles north of Highway 78, which runs be-een Julian and Kane Springs. The nearest good passenger ilway service is 54 miles away."

From Noel's description, it would seem that if you want to t away from things for awhile and relax, it might be a od idea to plan a vacation in beautiful Borego Valley.

One of the veteran landmarks of Borego Valley points the way over many historical routes.

Race of Progress

Thrilling story of Pony Express Riders and their battle to bring the mail through, continued from last month

By WEBSTER K. NOLAN
GRAND TRUSTEE, NSGW

PRIOR to the inception of the Pony Express, Messrs. Russell, Majors and Waddell had for many years operated a freight stage between St. Joseph, Missouri, and Salt Lake City, with a tributary service to the village of Denver. Thus some stations already were available for the pony couriers between those points. Between Salt Lake City and Sacramento, however, there were no stations and the route was rendered highly unsafe by the savage Piute, Shoshone and Bannock Indians of northern Nevada and southern Idaho.

For this far western stretch of the line, the founders of the Pony Express picked riders noted for their superhuman hardiness and daring. No braver horsemen ever lived, it has been attested, than the riders who carried the mails in 1860-61 under the keen and kindly eyes of Boliver Roberts, Superintendent of the Western Division of the Pony Express. Roberts had his headquarters at Carson City, Nevada.

In all, the cost of the Pony Express to its founders, over a nineteen months' period was $700,000. Maintenance ran to $480,000; equipment, $100,000; and miscellaneous costs to $45,000. The expenditures of the company in waging its Nevada Indian war, with practically inconsequential government military aid, was $75,000. The riders of the Pony Express were paid $120 to $125 a month, an extraordinarily attractive wage in those pioneer days.

The thrilling story of how the Pony Express riders battled against disheartening odds would provide material for several volumes. It is necessary only to touch upon some of their exploits here. The name of Colonel William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," is a household word in all America. Colonel Cody, who refused the government's offer to make him a "General," because he was a Kentuckian "and there is no higher rank than Colonel in Kentucky," was the hero of the longest continuous ride ever made by the Pony Express. He rode 384 miles without sleep or rest and used eleven ponies on the famous run.

"Pony Bob" Haslam rode 380 miles with only nine hours sleep during the ordeal. These excessive hardships were necessitated by the murder of relay relief men by Indians. Long after the hoofs of the mustangs ceased to beat the turf of the Great American Desert, "Pony Bob" Haslam remained an employe of Wells Fargo and Company, Express and Banking. He was their first pony messenger between Salt Lake City and Denver, and later labored for the financial saviors of the Pony Express system in the wild Idaho district. It was "Pony Bob" who carried to California the first news of Lincoln's election. He covered 120 miles in the Washoe country of Nevada on horseback in eight hours and ten minutes and was ambushed by Indians enroute. He "came through" on his foam-flecked pony with his jaw shot away by the flint-head arrows of the fierce Piute and Shoshone Indians. "Pony Bob" had taken part, a short time before, in the great and gory Battle of Pyramid Lake, Nevada, when the Piutes under Old Winnemucca slew eighty white men.

The couriers carried two Colt revolvers, one Spencer rifle and a large knife. Their signals to station-keepers miles distant were coyote calls. Often their "relief" was sick, or lay dead on the station floor, felled by Indians, and the rider had to do double duty until another station was reached. Sye MacAulas, who succeeded "Pony Bob" on the Washoe stretch, was killed by Indians on his first trip.

Some of the outstanding heroes of the Pony Express, in addition to "Buffalo Bill" and "Pony Bob" Haslam, were Jim Moore, J. G. Kelly, Alex Carlyle, John Frye, George Thacher, Gus Cliff, J. H. Keetly, Melville Baughn, Jim Beatley, Will Boulton, Don Rising, Theodore Rand, William Cates, Charles Cliff, H. Richardson, Will D. Jenkins, Sam Hamilton, John Seebeck and Harry Roff.

Seebeck lives in Alameda and is one of the few men now alive who took part in the brave and picturesque adventure of the Pony Express. Harry Roff rode the first pony out of Sacramento on April 3, 1860, the opening day of the overland service. Roff, amid the exultant cheers of an enthusiastic populace, took the mail off the riverboat from San Francisco, and sped on his pony to Folsom, a distance of twenty miles in fifty-nine minutes. Changing ponies in less than a minute he was off for Placerville, which town he reached fifty-five minutes later. At Friday's Station on the eastern summit of the Sierra Nevadas his pouches were taken by Sam Hamilton, who flashed through Genoa, Carson City, Dayton, Reed's Station and Fort Churchill, a distance of seventy-five miles, in less than four hours.

Hamilton was relieved by "Pony Bob" Haslam, who defied hostile Indians over a 120 mile stretch between Fort Churchill a Smi'h's Creek. There J. G. Kelly met hi astride a champing pony and carried t mail to Ruby Valley, Utah, where H. Ric ardson and then George Thacher relayed t pouches into Salt Lake City.

Alex Carlyle was the first rider to lea St. Joseph, Missouri, on the same day th Roff left Sacramento. The route of the wes bound couriers was via the Kickapoo Indi Reservation, Fort Kearny, Julesberg, t South Fork of the Platte River, Fort Lar mie and the South Pass of the Rockies Salt Lake City.

On the arrival of the first Pony Expre rider in San Francisco at one o'clock in t morning of April 13, 1860, the popula turned out to greet and escort him wi torch flares to the post-office. It was a nig of great rejoicing.

In 1861 the news of the battle of Antieta was brought to Sacramento from St. Josep Missouri, in eight days and fourteen hou A telegraph system already had been stru as far west as St. Joseph from New Yor and the only other telegraph line west that city was one between San Francis and Sacramento.

Most of the riders of the Pony Expre were renowned for their vigilance and ag ity as guides, scouts and couriers on t Great Plains.

As early as 1854, Wells Fargo and Cor pany began to dominate the express bus ness in the Far West, and by 1855, thr years after its founding in San Francis it was carrying on a banking business, e changing gold dust and selling bills of e change, that led, by 1858, to the institution assumption of a position of influence in t banking business of the West that it nev has relinquished.

In line with its policy of gradual a safe expansion, Wells Fargo and Compan in August, 1861, took over control of t great Butterfield Stage Company, and co tinued that line of traffic. The San Francis commercial financial house, the only ente prise of its kind to outride the great pan of 1855, took over the management of t Pony Express between San Francisco a Salt Lake City on July 1, 1861. It had be named agent for the Pony Express as ear as May, 1861.

From July 1 to October 26, 1861, a peri of nearly four months, the Pony Expre was operated by Wells Fargo and Compan and was lifted out of its financial slou and placed on a profitable level. This tas which the government had allowed to sl from its shoulders, where the burden pro erly belonged, was engineered by Louis M Lane, then general agent at San Francis for Wells Fargo and Company, and by D. I Barney, of New York, then president of th great western commercial financial house.

SHIPS OF THE REDWOOD COAST

Luncheons were held simultaneously in San Francisco and Los Angeles recently to launch "Ships of the Redwood Coast," the latest in the series of Stanford University Press books on modes of transportation in the early days of the West.

In this new book, which has the same attractive format as its predecessors—"Cable Car Days in San Francisco," "Paddle-Wheel Days in California," and "Bonanza Railroads"—Lt. Comdr. Jerry MacMullen, USNR, and Chief Warrant Officer Jack McNairn, USNR, the authors, tell the story of the colorful little sail-and-steam schooners which made possible the opening up of the redwood coast.

"Ships of the Redwood Coast" captures not only the color and personality of the ships that brought the redwood lumber to the fast-growing cities of early California, but also the colorful personalities who built and operated them, including such famous old skippers as Hog Aleck, Flatfoot Hanson, Caspar Charlie, and Midnight Olsen. It is illustrated with photographs and drawings.

Southwest Museum Displays Curious Indian Artifacts

Southwest Museum, Los Angeles, as its special exhibit for December, will display the remarkable collection of ancient Indian stone bowls and other curious articles found last July in the museum's excavations on the W. L. McFee place on Foothill boulevard between Sunland and San Fernando. Museum archeologists think that the spot was a repository for the numerous articles sacrificed at the Mourning Ceremony held at intervals by many California Indian tribes in honor of their dead. Evidence was found to indicate that at least part of the deposit was made more than a thousand years ago. The find was brought to the museum's attention by Mr. and Mrs. McFee, who uncovered some of the bowls while clearing the land for a garden. E. F. Walker of the Southwest Museum staff conducted the excavations, assisted by numerous volunteer workers.

In addition, picturesque Casa de Adobe, the museum's charming replica of an early California hacienda, will be open to the public Wednesday afternoons from 2 until as well as Sunday afternoons, until further notice. Later it is hoped to open the casa five days a week instead of two, in response to increasing interest in California's most romantic period—"The Days of the Dons."

Recently installed is an exhibit of rare "Santos," the quaint religious paintings and statues made by early Spanish settlers of New Mexico.

The Casa de Adobe is located at 4605 No. Figueroa street, Los Angeles, opposite Sycamore Grove. There is no admission charge.

Grand President Visits California Parlor No. 1

On November 8 California Parlor No. 1 initiated a class of five new members. The initiation was conducted by a selected team of the Parlor's officers.

The Parlor was honored by the attendance at the initiation of Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, Grand Trustee Edward J. Wren, Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan, who was making his official visit, Sup. Dist. Dep. Gr. Pres. Lewis Giegerich, and DD Gr. Pres. Jack Lewis.

Well pleased by the attendance of 80 members of the Parlor at the initiation Grand President McCarthy paid tribute to the activity being shown and in his address he stated: "Four months ago when you observed the 70th anniversary of the founding of our Charter Parlor, California No. 1, and of our Order, I was greatly inspired by the fact that the objectives upon which our founders built our Order are just as noble, patriotic and worthy as they were in 1875. This inspiration has been of great help to me in my visits to our parlors throughout the State. I firmly believe that as California Parlor No. 1 goes, so goes the Native Sons of the Golden West and I am pleased that California is on the march."

Stockton Parlor No. 7, NSGW, will hold a social and dance in their headquarters, Smith and Lang Bldg., Stockton, Dec. 8, at 9 p.m. A local orchestra has been engaged and refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge, with members of neighboring parlors and their friends being invited to attend.

Compton Parlor No. 273, NSGW, will hold its anniversary celebration Thursday evening, Dec. 6, with good entertainment promised.

University Parlor Honors Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz

"Somehow we Native Sons do not grow old in spirit in the service of our community," Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz of Los Angeles County, told Native Sons representing all Los Angeles County parlors at a joint initiation and dinner in his honor with University Parlor as host Wednesday evening, Nov. 14.

Sheriff Biscailuz, a member of the Order since 1904, reviewed 41 years experience with the Native Sons of the Golden West. He is a past president of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, and served for a time as its secretary. At present he is a member of Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267, and one of its past presidents. Sheriff Biscailuz is also a member of the Board of Appeals of Grand Parlor. He heads the largest sheriff's office in the world and is considered one of California's outstanding Native Sons. Past Grand President Eldred L. Meyer of Santa Monica Bay, introduced the sheriff.

More than 150 Native Sons attended the meeting at which a class of 20 candidates was initiated by the initiatory team of the District Deputies Association, headed by Dr. John Schwamm. Music was furnished by the Chapel Quartet.

Remarks were made by Past Grand Trustee Ben Jones, judge of Lake County Superior Court and a member of Lower Lake Parlor No. 159; Grand 2nd Vice-president Walter H. Odemar, and Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss.

Grand Trustee Hiss, a member of University Parlor, paid high tribute to its retiring president, Walter F. Wells, and spoke on the Homeless Children work.

Eulogy of Frankie B. Dolan, 2nd vice president of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 was ably given by Roger Johnson, Past Grand Organist.

Ramona Dines on Turkey

Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, had its traditional November turkey dinner Friday evening, Nov. 30, with Ralph Walters maestro of the meataxe in charge, assisted by his trusty trio of Cornell, Bowen and Vega. Members of Ramona Parlor are also taking an active lead in the affairs of the Los Angeles Friday Noon Luncheon Club at the Hotel Clark, with Judge Frank Tyrell, president; Elwood Bowles, executive vice-president, and Charles Brittain, secretary.

Observatory Parlor Has Homeless Children Dance

The membership rolls of Observatory Parlor No. 177, NSGW, were increased the past month by the admission of two more Sons of California, who readily accepted the initiatory obligations and pledged their support to all Parlor activities. Glenn Baker and Lee Puncachar were the latest additions to the parlor rolls.

The fall golf tournament was held on Sunday, October 21, at the Hillview golf course. Some twenty members of the "Niblic Nudgers and Mashie Maulers" fraternity gathered forces to vie for many valuable prizes. Bill Jung and Clancy Leese were the top honor men.

Doc Howatt and Ted Eggers are the latest members of No. 177 to don "civies" once more and become regular parlor attendants.

The Homeless Children dance held at the Civic Auditorium on the evening of November 17 was very well attended. It was one of the biggest crowds in the Auditorium's history. The committee under the general direction of John Sullivan, S. J. Parlor No. 22, certainly deserve a lot of credit for their untiring work in putting over this gigantic project.

Eugene Moore, Court Reporter in the Superior Court of Santa Clara County, spoke before Observatory Parlor on the United Nations Conference held in San Francisco. His experiences were pictorially related in detail, as Mr. Moore was reporting all affairs and activities of the Conference, having a ringside seat.

South San Francisco Observes Armistice Day

South San Francisco Parlor No. 157, NSGW, for the 26th successive year celebrated the anniversary of Armistice Day with a banquet and entertainment. Three hundred members of the Parlor and guests sat at the festive board to enjoy the hospitality of the Parlor as well as the very fine entertainment provided by the committee in charge.

The principal address was made by Past Grand President Harmon D. Skillin of Castro Parlor No. 232, who had served in the United States Navy in World War 1. Addresses were also made by Jr. Past Grand President Raymond D. Williamson, Grand Historian Emmet P. Joy, Grand Trustee Edward J. Wren, Past Grand Presidents William P. Caubu, Chas. A. Koenig, Jesse I. Miller, Lloyd J. Cosgrove and District Deputy Grand President Carl Boegerhausen.

Also as a feature of the evening, twenty-five year membership emblems were presented to the following members of the Parlor: George W. Anderson, Victor Arrighi, Justin Casenave, Joseph Clavere, Meilo Elander, John F. Fox, James Hurley, Edwin Lotting, Harry C. Herman, Robert P. Hoare, John D. McSweeney, Edmund Olson, Fred A. Schuler, Andrew J. Sheerin, Harry J. Schwind, William Walthers and Edward Zettel.

Pacific Parlor No. 10, NSGW, held a "Victory" Class initiation at Sierra Hall, Native Son Building, San Francisco, Tuesday evening, November 20, honoring returned veterans. Refreshments were served following the initiation, which was well attended.

Combined Native Sons and Native Daughters Parlors of San Jose put on their annual dance for the benefit of Homeless Children, Saturday evening, November 17, at the Civic Auditorium, with Benny Glassman and his orchestra furnishing music for the occasion.

Modesto Parlor Celebrates Birthday Anniversary

Modesto Parlor No. 11, NSGW, celebrated the 64th anniversary of the original institution of the parlor on Saturday evening, Oct. 27, at the old Fishermen's Clubhouse with a mulligan at 8 p.m. followed by a district meeting of Yosemite, Los Banos, Tracy, Stockton, Lodi and Tuolumne Parlors. Seven new members were inducted into the order by the Grand Officers Initiatory Team headed by Grand President Richard F. McCarthy. Pictures were shown of a trip by automobile over the proposed Pan-American Highway taken by Carl Hoffman (not a native) of Chicago. The affair was arranged by a committee in charge of Grand Trustee Chas. D. Blaine. A nice sum was raised at this meeting for the Homeless Children's Committee which was in charge of Carl Lewis and Mark Wilson.

The very popular recording secretary of Modesto Parlor, Claude E. Eastin, of many years service, resigned the office due to illness. Gordon Kelley was elected to fill the vacancy. Oren Elmore, marshal of the parlor, assisted by Carl Lewis and others prepared a nicely decorated automobile which appeared in the Armistice Day parade. Walter Crow was master of ceremonies at a joint whist card party given by the parlor and Morada Parlor, NDGW, on Nov. 14. Skillful players were awarded turkey orders. Mrs. Alice Phoenix was in charge of the affair for the Native Daughters.

Grand Trustee Chas. D. Blaine attended a meeting in San Andreas on Oct. 30 with Grand President McCarthy and others with a view to organizing a new parlor in that historic city later. Blaine made his official visit to Columbia Parlor on November 8 when a class of six new members was initiated by a team from Tuolumne Parlor. On November 14 the Grand Trustee from Modesto officially visited Lodi Parlor. On November 19 the San Joaquin Past Presidents Assembly No. 7 met in Stockton which was largely attended.

Arrowhead Assembly No. 14, Past Presidents' Association, Native Sons of the Golden West, met Sunday, November 18, at the American Legion clubhouse, Van Nuys, for its last meeting of the year at which nomination and election of officers for the ensuing term took place. Candidates were initiated and delegates to the General Assembly at Crestline made their reports. Governor Bob Pesquiera and his crew of Valley Parlor members served one of their famous enchilada dinners before the meeting.

Pioneer Mother Passes

Mrs. Lena Day Garnier, 91, and a resident of California for more than 87 years, passed away at Baldwin Park, Los Angeles county, Nov. 5. She was the daughter of Erastus M. Day who was a member of the Vigilance Committee in San Francisco in 1856. When Day sent for his family, his wife and three small children crossed the Isthmus of Panama, arriving in San Francisco in July, 1856. After a short time among the gold mines the family settled in Lake county where the town of Lower Lake is now located. Here E. M. Day was postmaster under President Lincoln during the Civil War period. Lena Day's girlhood was spent in Lake county and in 1873 she married Thos. R. Garnier, later moving to San Jose. In 1892 the family moved to Los Angeles county. She leaves two children, Alice Overshiner of Baldwin Park and Ralph L. Garnier (Ramona Parlor No. 109) of Los Angeles; a granddaughter, Dorothy Garnier Norman and one greatgrandchild.

Major Nolan, Grand Trustee, Native Sons of the Golden West, is the author of "Race of Progress," stirring story of the Pony Express concluded in this issue of the Grizzly Bear.

Grand Parlor Veterans Plans Announced

The Grand Parlor Veterans Welfare Committee has completed its plans for the organization of an active welfare committee in each parlor of the order and hopes to be able during the year to furnish the individual parlors with suggestions that will maintain the interest of the returning veteran and make him active in the parlor work.

With the rapid demobilization of the armed forces many of our members will be returning to civilian life soon and the main purpose of the parlor committee is to inform the veterans where to go for information and to assist him in getting his old job back or placing him in a new one. Each parlor is urged to ascertain from members of the family the date veterans are expected home so that they can be contacted on return and properly welcomed at a meeting.

Headed by John Phelan of San Francisco, the committee is composed of Thomas C. Ryan, San Francisco; James A. Bailey, San Francisco; James G. Dignan, Oakland; Irving D. Gibson, Sacramento; William S. Burke, San Jose; Elmer Hoien, San Bernardino; Daniel Shafer, San Diego, and Ernest Orfila, Los Angeles, who will be pleased at any time to assist the parlor committee or the returning veterans.

East Los Angeles Parlor No. 277 held a booster party Friday evening, Nov. 30.

General Assembly Holds Meeting at Crestline

The 25th session of the General Assembly of the Past Presidents Association of the Native Sons of the Golden West met at Crestline, San Bernardino County, under the auspices of Arrowhead Assembly No. 14, Saturday, Oct. 20, with delegates present from every section of the state.

Governor General Donald E. Van Luven opened the session and conducted the business of the General Assembly. Reports were submitted by several of the General Officers showing the business transacted during the past year.

The following General Officers were elected for the next term of one year: Governor General Guy G. Foulks, Lt. Governor General George Prytz, Director General James F. Stanley, Secretary-Treasurer General John T. Regan, Marshal General Lewis A. Giegerich, Guard General Les Ashworth, Sentinel General Elmer Hoien, Trustees General Frank P. Smith, Frank Prior, Phil J. Humburg, Organist General Al C. Weber.

Plans are being made by Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 to place a plaque upon the unmarked Cabrillo Monument in Palisades Park. Joseph R. Knowland, chairman of the Grand Parlor Historic Landmarks Committee, has given his approval to complete the marker, which the war prevented at the time of its formal dedication. Date of this memorial event will be announced later.

Congratulations!

INSTITUTE NEW PARLOR AT SAN GABRIEL

On Wednesday evening, October 17, San Gabriel Archangel Parlor No. 291, NSGW, was instituted at San Gabriel, Los Angeles County, by Grand President Richard F. McCarthy and the following instituting officers: Past Grand President Eldred L. Meyer, Grand Secretary John T. Regan and Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss as Acting Grand Marshal. Prior to the institution 38 charter members were initiated by the Grand Officers' Ritual Team.

San Gabriel Valley Parlor No. 281, Native Daughters, presented the new parlor with the Altar Flag; Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, Native Sons, the Bible; Ramona No. 109, Native Sons, map of California; Long Beach No. 272, Native Sons, gavels made of hand-turned California wood.

Outstanding was the large turnout of Native Daughters from San Gabriel Valley No. 281, many of whose husbands are members of the new parlor.

Prior to the installation a dinner was held at El Poche Cafe, 233 W. Mission Drive, San Gabriel, where the Native Sons dined on an early California Mexican dinner of chicken enchiladas served by Victor Torres, a charter member of the new parlor. Torres also enjoys the distinction of having been born in San Gabriel.

An interesting sidelight is an explanation of the name of the cafe where the dinner was held. Poche is a nickname that Mexicans below the border give to Americans of Mexican descent born in California, the northern portion of Mexico that was chopped off, Pocho meaning chopped off.

Alameda County Honors Grand President

On Wednesday evening, October 14, all Parlors of Alameda County joined in a banquet and initiation in honor of Grand President Richard F. McCarthy at the Leamington Bowl, Hotel Leamington, Oakland.

Thirty-seven new members were brought into the Order in an initiation conducted by the District Deputies of Alameda County. City and County officials, including Superior Judge Leon Gray, District Attorney Ralph Hoyt, County Tax Collector Earl Toomey, City Councilman and former Mayor, Dr. M. C. McCracken and Police Judge Chris Fox, were among the guests.

Past Grand President Edward T. Schnarr acted as master of ceremonies and Grand President McCarthy and Grand Trustee Peter T. Conmy addressed the meeting.

Following a custom of many years, San Jose Parlor No. 22 held its annual Thanksgiving Dinner Thursday evening, November 15, at the Napoli Cafe, turkey with all the trimmings being served to the members.

Junior Native Daughters At San Bernardino

On Saturday, November 10, a parlor of Junior Native Daughters of the Golden West was organized in San Bernardino, 30 girls being initiated at the meeting held at the Y.W.C.A., under the sponsorship of the senior organization, Lugonia Parlor No. 241. Mrs. Rena Churchill, past president of Lugonia, is the junior adviser, and the other organizers included Ruth Ware, Bertha Heap, Jeanann Stewart and Mildred Meyer, junior past president of Lugonia Parlor.

The newly instituted Junior Native Daughters have selected the name of Assistencia parlor as its name, receiving its charter and gavel from the Worthy Grand President, Ethel C. Enos. The initiation ceremonies were conducted by Elsie Amadon, state chairman of Junior Native Daughters, accompanied by Pauline Jones of Inglewood and a corps of Junior Officers. Fern McGinty, president of Lugonia Parlor and her officers installed the junior officers, who are: president, Shirley Thomas; past president, Nancyjane Stark; vice-president, Rowena Fenlon; recording secretary, Beverly Titus; treasurer, Mary Stewart; financial secretary, Donna Beaulieu; organist, Anna Marie Garner; sentinel, Janet Lehman; marshal, Evelyn George; trustees, Frances Meyer, Billie Lee Putman and Margaret Stewart.

Brooklyn Parlor Holds Anniversary Celebration

Brooklyn Parlor No. 157, NDGW, Oakland, observed its 38th anniversary with a turkey dinner, cooked and served by Chairman Minnie Luhr and her committee. The parlor was honored by having several charter members in attendance. An evening's entertainment followed the dinner.

Fresno Daughters Help Their City Celebrate

Fresno Parlor No. 187, NDGW, helped the city of Fresno celebrate its 60th anniversary in the good old California way, with an old-time dress-up party featuring the Oct. 25 meeting of the parlor, its members dressing in the styles of 60 years ago. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes.

Saturday, Oct. 27, the parlor entered a decorated car in the city sponsored parade in honor of the event. A bear was placed on the top of the entry, while the American and Bear Flags were placed in standards on the front of the car, which was covered entirely with yellow cellophane, making a beautiful picture gleaming in the sun. A second entry of the parlor in the parade featured a horse-drawn cart with two members in old fashioned costumes, seated in it.

Las Lomas Parlor Observes Its 53rd Anniversary

On October 24th, which was the exact date of their institution, Las Lomas Parlor No. 72 celebrated their fifty-third anniversary with dinner at the Del Mar Restaurant in San Francisco.

Two of the remaining four charter members were in attendance and were presented with gifts from the parlor. President Mildred Ehlert made the presentations, one of the honored members being her mother, Mrs. Hattie McLean and the other was Mrs. Mattie M. Collins.

Deputy Grand President Mary Hyland of Dolores Parlor and Past President Emily E. Ryan were also guests of the parlor.

San Gabriel Parlor Makes An Outstanding Record

San Gabriel Valley Parlor No. 281, NDGW, only six months old, has made an outstanding record in its Homeless Children work, it was learned when Grand President Ethel C. Enos made her first official visit there Thursday, November 8.

Helen Neiger, chairman of the parlor Homeless Children committee, presented Hazel B. Hansen, chairman of the Homeless Babies drive, with a check for $246.25 raised in the stamp drive. She announced that her committee through its activities had made over $400 to date. Announcement was also made that the San Gabriel Parlor is adopting its first baby and naming it for its charter president, Louise Cash. Mrs. Neiger was highly commended by Chairman Hazel B. Hansen for her work in behalf of the Homeless Children.

Santa Barbara Parlor Has Active Program

"Abiding faith in the existence of God," the fourth cardinal principal of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, was the accented theme of the November 26 meeting of Santa Barbara's Reina del Mar Parlor. Mrs. Anita Harp presiding. Patriotic and spiritual program accented the activities of the Central Committee on Placement of Homeless Children and the problems of the statewide Veterans Welfare Committee. Cooperation with the Christmas Cheer committee in community Yule plans was voted. By way of advancing the good of the order four new members were initiated. Mrs. Albert Ames, vice-president, announced that the parlor had met its assessment in support of the Homeless Children's bureau for a quota of 166 members.

Mrs. Henry Griffiths, War Finance chairman, reviewed the accomplishments of parlor members in connection with the Victory Loan, working under the women's division of the county war bond committee. Mrs. Harry Lamb, Mrs. Anita Sacconaghi and other standing committee chairmen reported varied activities calculated to maintain the parlor's position as a community force.

Homeless Children Benefit Given by Copa de Oro

The annual grocery-basket card party, given for the benefit of Homeless Children by Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105, NDGW, was a financial success beyond the highest expectations of the membership. Net proceeds reached the gratifying sum of $563.74.

On November 7, a birthday party honored members born in October, November and December. The October table was reminiscent of the eerie spirit of Hallowe'en, with witches, black cats, pumpkins and orange tapers. November table decorations carried out the theme of Thanksgiving-for-Victory, with a central arrangement of seasonal fruits, yellow tapers, autumn-hued flowers and yellow tapers. The December table awakened a realization of the approach of the holiday season, centered with silvered cones, Santa Claus and sleigh, cherubic choir boys and red tapers.

Mrs. John Tessman gave an interesting talk on "California and its part in world affairs, both past and present," at a recent meeting of Santa Ana Parlor No. 235, NDGW. The program was arranged by Mrs. Marschall, chairman of History and Landmarks. Guests for the evening were Deputy Jeanette Traver, SDDGP Frances Mitchell and members of Ontario Parlor No. 251, and Grace Parlor No. 242, Placentia. A social hour and refreshments followed.

Deputy Grand Presidents of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West of San Francisco county, honored Grand President Ethel C. Enos and Grand President Richard F. McCarthy at the Scottish Rite auditorium, Friday evening, Nov. 30.

Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, NDGW, San Francisco, will hold its annual Christmas party for its members and for the benefit of the Home on Thursday evening, Dec. 20. Margaret Barrett is chairman.

Pilgrimage Made to Historic Sutter's Fort

Scores of members of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, including Governor Earl Warren and grand officers participated in a pilgrimage Sunday, Oct. 28, to historic Sutter's Fort, Governor Warren being the principal speaker.

Richard F. McCarthy of Berkeley, Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, and Ethel C. Enos, Modesto, Grand President, Native Daughters of the Golden West, headed the tour. Guy P. Foulks of Elk Grove Parlor No. 41, acted as master of ceremonies at a program arranged by a committee headed by Genevieve Didion of La Bandera Parlor No. 110, Sacramento.

Musical selections were played by the C. K. McClatchy high school band, while the invocation was given by Edna B. Briggs, Sacramento, Native Daughters state chairman of civics.

History of the famous landmark was given by Carroll Hall, curator of Sutter's Ford.

Large Crowd Attends Sequoia Parlor Event

Sequoia Parlor No. 272, NDGW, gave its annual card party, November 8, with a large crowd attending. Dena Benson was chairman of the evening. Guests included DDGP Mildred Irwin and Past DDGP Ethyl Kern. Prior to the playing, an ante-room meeting was held with the president, Vera Giordano, presiding.

Since the last meeting of the month fell on Thanksgiving, a meeting was held Nov. 29. A large class of candidates were initiated at this time and a social hour was enjoyed with Past President Bellah Wakefield in charge.

Santa Claus will be honored December 13 with an old-fashioned Christmas party, with several new members having charge of the entertainment. The parlor's choral to furnish the musical part of the program and Santa Claus will distribute gifts from a gaily decorated tree. Prior to the party an ante-room meeting will be held at which time plans will be made for the 1946 activities. The last meeting of 1945 will be held December 27, followed by an enjoyable social hour.

Fall Banquet Held by Long Beach Daughters

Long Beach Parlor No. 154, NDGW, held its annual fall banquet and initiation Thursday evening, Nov. 15, at the New Masonic Temple, 10 candidates being initiated. Grand officers in attendance included: Past Grand Presidents, Grace S. Stoermer, Hazel B. Hansen and Mary Norenberg; Grand Trustee Ann Schiebusch; Margaret Burch, supervising district deputy, and Hortense Hill, deputy from East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266. Speaker of the evening was Past Grand President Hazel B. Hansen, chairman of the Homeless Children committee, who spoke on the work of the Central Committee and the drive for funds to carry on this important work of the Order.

Piedmont Parlor Presents 25 Year Pins to Members

Presentation of 25 year pins to members of Piedmont Parlor No. 87, NDGW, and initiation of six new members featured the Nov. 1 meeting of the parlor which is completing arrangements for its 50th anniversary celebration to be held in the near future.

DESERT SOUVENIR

A four-color picture suitable for framing shows the Covered Wagon Train of '68 crossing the desert; now on display at Knott's Berry Place, Highway 39, two miles from Buena Park, out of Los Angeles 22 miles. This remarkable oil painting, 20 x 60 feet, took over one year to complete. A copy will be mailed you together with the special souvenir edition of our Western Magazine, jampacked with original drawings and pictures and complete description of Ghost Town and Knott's Berry Place. Both will be mailed with current issue of our 36-page magazine for 25 cents postpaid in the U. S. A. Thousands have already viewed this great work of art and acclaim it a wonderful contribution to the history of the West. Admission is without charge whether you stay for the chicken dinner and boysenberry pie or not. Send 25 cents for all three: picture, souvenir and current issue to GHOST TOWN NEWS, Buena Park, Calif.

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 7, 1945.

Frankie B. Dolan

Frankie B. Dolan, born in San Francisco on March 14, 1894, passed to the Grand Parlor on high on November 12th, 1945. Joined Los Angeles Parlor on December 13, 1944, and was one of our most esteemed and beloved members. He was always working for the interest of the Order, and in his short membership took into our parlor more members than any other member.

He leaves his wife Ethel and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

Memorandum

November 12, 1945.

To the Officers and Members of Downieville Parlor No. 92, NSGW:

We, your memorial committee, entrusted with the sad duty of drafting a memorial of love and respect in memory of our late brother, Thomas Kennedy Turner, respectfully offer the following:

By the call of the Great Ruler of our Universe on October 7, 1945, our beloved brother passed on from the activities of this life to the Grand Parlor on High, thus transferring his membership from Downieville Parlor. During the many years he was a member of our beloved Order he was a loyal Native Son, faithful to his country, and a devoted father and husband. He leaves to mourn his loss four sons, who served honorably in the late war, a daughter, and a devoted wife, to all of whom Downieville Parlor extends its sincere sympathy in this time of sorrow.

We ask that a copy of this memorial be sent to the family, and that copies be sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine and the Mountain Messenger for publication.

MARION F. LUSK,
ANGUS JAMES,
CARL C. SUTTON,
Committee.

Adopted by Downieville Parlor.

HOMELESS CHILDREN FUND—MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION

By GRAND PRESIDENT RICHARD F. McCARTHY

In the early part of October a personal appeal was mailed to every member of the Native Sons of the Golden West for financial assistance toward the Homeless Children work. In response to this call over 800 individual contributions have been received, totaling approximately $7,168.50. This is a very creditable response for the number who have answered the appeal and I express the thanks and appreciation of every member of the Order as well as those who are being served by this work for your interest and cooperation.

To those members who have not as yet replied, may I urge that you do your part in this campaign to insure the conduct of our great charitable project. We would like to close our campaign by December 15, 1945, and ask your immediate action. The continuation of this project is a part of your membership and its successful operation will be your reward.

INDIVIDUAL MEMBERSHIP CONTEST PRIZES

On September 1, 1945, a membership contest unanimously recommended by the Grand Parlor Membership Committee through its chairman, R. G. Power, Grand 1st Vice President, was submitted to all Parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West. From current reports it is evident that a large number of the Parlors are taking an active part in this campaign and the competition will be keen for the very valuable prizes and awards offered for the proportionate increases outlined in the plan.

As an added incentive toward the success of this campaign individual prizes of a $50.00 Victory Bond will be given to the member securing the highest number of candidates in each of the three sections of the state listed below, with a minimum of five candidates. The period to be covered by the contest for the individual member will be for the full period of the membership Contest, September 1-December 31, 1945.

The arbitrary division of the state into these parts would seem to afford an equal opportunity for all members in each division.

Get your candidates initiated before December 31, 1945, and have the secretary of your Parlor mail to the Grand Secretary's office before January 15, 1946, a certification showing the number of candidates secured by you and initiated into the Parlor.

GET YOUR CANDIDATES AND YOUR BOND!

Northern District: Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Humboldt, Lake, Marin, Mendocino, Lassen, Napa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento, Shasta, Sierra, Solano, Sonoma, Sutter, Trinity, Yuba and Tuolumne Counties.

Central District: Merced, Alameda, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Stanislaus and Fresno Counties.

Southern District: Kern, Kings, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATIVE DELEGATION IN WASHINGTON:

Gentlemen:

The housing shortage in California has now become very critical. In many localities discharged service men and their families cannot find any housing accommodations whatsoever. Nothing seems to be done to make facilities available for them.

BUT, the War Relocation Authority is procuring Army trailers, barracks formerly used by service units and similar government property in which to house "relocated Japanese."

The Native Sons of the Golden West demand that the former service personnel be treated fairly and that they and their families be considered before the Japanese. We urgently suggest and request that the date announced by the W.R.A. for closing all relocation centers be postponed and that the Japanese be encouraged to remain in such centers during this critical housing shortage.

The Japanese have been comfortably housed and well fed in these centers and would be willing to stay there until such time as all our returning heroes have been fairly taken care of. Then the government property now being used by the W.R.A to house the Japanese can be used by ex-service men and their families until better facilities are available.

Urgently,
COMMITTEE ON JAPANESE LEGISLATION
NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST
By WALTER H. ODEMAR, Chairman.

INTRODUCING THE EDITOR

The current issue of the Grizzly Bear introduces our new editor, Leonard Schwacofer, a member of Mother Colony Parlor No. 281. Brother Schwacofer comes to us with a splendid background of knowledge and experience in the printing and publishing business. As time progresses and circumstances permit the editor expects to incorporate many new improvements in the form of the magazine and to add features of a greater diversified reader interest.

Assisting Brother Schwacofer to create a greater Grizzly Bear we have employed Harwood Larson as advertising manager. Each solicits the cooperation of the orders of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. Articles, news, calendars of events and advertising will be welcomed.

We wish to express to our former editor, Isabel Fages, our sincere thanks for a difficult job well done. Isabel, after the death of Clarence Hunt, sacrificing her responsibilities as a wife and mother, published the magazine without missing an issue. In the spirit of a good Californian, in spite of adverse criticism, she carried on. Isabel, you have our best wishes for your future.

BERNARD G. HISS, Secretary
Grizzly Bear Publishing Co.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

By Leonard Schwacofer

For some time we have been searching for a name for Ye Ed's column and "Grizzly Growls" used by the late Clarence Hunt seems most appropriate. It is being carried on as a tribute to the man who gave so much to the Grizzly Bear.

It is with a deep sense of responsibility that we have assumed the editorship of your magazine, to carry on with the high ideals and traditions that have been established through the years that it has been published. In this we need and feel that we have your support.

The problems of publishing the Grizzly Bear in war time have increased many fold, due to greater circulation, paper restrictions, and rising costs of publication. A great deal of credit must go to Mrs. Isabel Fages, who worked untold hours to bring your magazine safely the past few years. The members of both Orders owe her a vote of thanks for a job well done.

Today, the Grizzly Bear looks toward new horizons. Your editor and publishers have spent many hours in study and conference with advertising agencies, discussing its future. In making our plans for the coming months we have had to make a careful survey from the advertiser's point of view as well as our readers, for it is only through increased advertising that the Grizzly Bear can grow and more interesting reading material brought to you.

New features have been added this issue and additional ones are planned. The thought behind them is a Grizzly Bear that will be a credit to both the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, and which will be truly representative of our beloved California.

We need up-to-the-minute news of your parlors, articles and good pictures on California. In this connection, let's not forget that, though we have a glorious past, "California is on the march" and what Californians are doing today, also has a place in the Grizzly Bear.

This issue is only a small sample of what we have planned for you. If you like it, you can help to build a bigger, better magazine and at the same time bring your friends 12 exciting issues of the Grizzly Bear by taking advantage of the suggestion on the back cover this month.

Last, but not least, let us have your suggestions and criticisms. They will be more than welcome, we assure you.

Give Them a Bit of California this Christmas . . . .

"Thar's gold in them thar hills"

12 months of California as only those who truly love the Golden State can paint her beauty. . . . . Send them

THE Grizzly Bear MAGAZINE

—and there's a wealth of historical stories of early California and the '49ers tucked like golden nuggets between the pages.

Give them the deserts . . .

—the wild windswept beauty of the Mojaves with its vivid ever-changing colors red and gold sweeping into horizons of azure blue. Mysterious Death Valley, that barren waste below the level of the sea, sprawled at the foot of the Panamint Range—cruel she is at times and again as tenderly soft and enticing as a lovely woman.

Give them the missions . . .

—and those mission bells that long ago pealed forth the message of the Padres. Give them the story of El Camino Real, the Royal Road, which stretches overland from San Diego to Monterey, for interwoven, are, the legends of the past.

Give them the mountains . . .

—high in the blue heavens amid towering redwoods of the Sequoias and higher yet the rugged granite bareness that marks the backbone of a nation, towers our Country's highest peak. Mt. Whitney. Give them the snowfed rushing trout filled streams and game trails leading into virgin forests. In short, give them a guide to happy postwar vacations here in California.

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

Sunday, January 1, 1871—New Year's Day—was clear and cold. It was not as hilariously observed as some previous New Year's Days had been, owing to the fears of a dry year. Little rain had fallen during December, and the extreme cold spell had frozen everything that was freezable.

C. E. Campbell, an old resident and postmaster of Thompson's Flat, Butte County, disappeared New Year's Day. His body was found in an old abandoned shaft January 15. He had been stabbed to death. No clue to the guilty party was found.

New Year's Day J. H. Tobin, a prominent merchant tailor on Montgomery street, San Francisco, was driving to the Cliff House with his wife. Getting out to fix the harness on a horse, he handed the reins to his wife. The team ran away, and in attempting to jump to safety the unfortunate woman fell on her head and broke her neck.

Hiram Macy of Green Valley, Solano county, found a nugget worth over $200 lying between two stones where a prospector had made a campfire near the wagon road and had dropped it.

The Eureka mine at Green Valley, Nevada county, showed by its annual report that it had paid in dividends during 1870 the sum of $430,000. The Amador mine at Sutter Creek, Amador county, reported paying during the same year $155,000. Both mines were in a prosperous condition and expected to continue paying dividends during 1871.

The Cherokee Mining Company of Butte county was surveying a line seven miles long, to lay pipe and carry water from Butte Creek.

General Vallejo began shipping oranges from his trees in Sonoma county to San Francisco. 5,000 in one shipment were sold at 5c apiece.

The Alvarado, Alameda County, Beet Sugar Company represented that orders for its product were four times greater than the supply. Its success was the cause of organizing the Santa Clara Sugar Company by prominent capitalists to build a plant and produce beet sugar in Santa Clara county.

The orange crop of Los Angeles county was reported to be short. It was being sold and shipped to San Francisco at $3 per hundred.

Rivalry between steamship companies established a rate of $5 for passage and $1 a ton for freight between San Francisco and San Diego this month.

The inventor of a flying machine in San Francisco, after an unsuccessful effort to fly, abandoned his machine at Woodward's Gardens in a damaged condition.

A teamster reported that while moving on the road upon the shore of Upper Blue Lake, Lake County, he saw sporting in the waves of its own make a monster fish over twenty feet long and two feet in diameter. The Indians had a superstitious fear of such a denizen of the lake, and did not fish upon its waters. This was said to be the second time the Indian's belief had been corroborated by an eye-witness.

L. H. Titus, a horseman of Los Angeles, bought in New York and sent to his stock farm near that city the trotting stallion "Echo" for $8,000. "Echo" was a half-brother of the famous trotter "Dexter," the fastest in his day in America.

Mark Twain was making the people of the nation laugh by stating in one of his lectures that "I've seen on the Pacific coast slower men than I am—and more deliberate people than I am—and even quieter, more listless and lazier people than I am. But they were dead."

Agnes Lewis, a 16-year-old farmer's daughter living near Antioch, Contra Costa county, had this season plowed with six horses and a three-gang plow over 100 acres of land.

A turkey raiser in the west end of Placer county was credited with having raised 15,000 turkeys. He kept five herders employed.

January 2, at Stockton, the stage stable of C. H. Sisson & Company, proprietors of several stage lines out of that city, was burned; eight horses, ten stages and 100 tons of hay were consumed with the building and a loss of $10,000 reported.

January 17 a fire broke out in the Donner Hotel at Truckee, Nevada county, and destroyed the business section of the town. Seventeen buildings were destroyed but they were quickly rebuilt.

The stage from Murphys, Calaveras county, to Stockton was stopped by two highwaymen a few miles from Angels Camp the morning of January 17. They took the express box and departed.

This stage was again stopped the morning of January 23, a short distance from San Andreas. This time there were three highwaymen, who took $550 from Billy Cutler, the driver, his boots and the express box. There was $2,700 in gold dust in the latter. The robbers had not been caught when the month ended.

The mail car of the east-bound overland train was robbed at Alta, Placer county, January 20. When the train stopped at the supper station the mail clerks locked the door of the mail car and went to eat. While gone the lock was broken and a sack of registered mail and a package of coin containing $10,000 were stolen. January 22 the registered mail—one letter containing $26,000 in United States bonds, and rolls of coin totalling $1,700—was found hidden under a sidewalk in Truckee. Several men were arrested on suspicion, one of whom attempted suicide by cutting an artery with a penknife.

Don Chavez, sheriff of San Diego county with a posse of ten men went in search of a gang of horsethieves and outlaws in San Rafael Valley. January 27 they had a fight in which they killed two and captured four of the renegades. Three of the captured were shot the next day by a vigilance committee. The other a boy was spared on account of his youth.

Cajon Pass

They stampeded through Cajon Pass in '49 in quest of gold. At the foot of Cajon there are still goldfields, but the nuggets grow on trees and great freights climb the mountain pass from San Bernardino to carry California oranges east.

By EMMETT P. JOY
Grand Historian, NSGW

CAJON PASS, located in San Bernardino County, is a historic immigrant road. After the discovery of gold in California in the year 1848 the Pass became a much traveled one since the road ranked next in importance to the South Pass and Humboldt river routes. Many pioneers on their journey to California left Independence, Missouri, and went to Santa Fe, New Mexico; some came via Salt Lake City crossing the Mojave Desert; and through the Cajon Pass to San Bernardino and Los Angeles, and from these points they moved northward to the gold fields.

The Cajon Pass is situated at the east end of the San Gabriel Mountains. This range runs through northern Los Angeles and into San Bernardino Counties, joining the San Bernardino Mountains. The geological formation where the two mountain ranges meet is known as the Cajon Pass. About five miles above what is known as Devore it narrows into a gorge and is called Blue Cut, through which runs Cajon Creek. Above the Blue Cut the pass widens into a fan shaped area. The northern section is the Desert rim and most of it is drained by the Cajon Creek. This area is shaped into two parts which are now known as the East and West Cajon.

Probably the first white man to traverse this region was Pedro Fages, Spanish soldier and explorer, in 1772. It is not well known to us just what trail Fages followed, but it is believed he recognized the Cajon Pass during his exploration of the vicinity.

It was not until 1806 that history records the next expedition through the Pass. Father Zalvidea on his way from the Mojave Desert to San Gabriel came by the Pass and stopped to baptize Indians at a rancheria somewhere near the present Camp Cajon.

Some years had elapsed before the rugged canyon was used and in 1830 a pack train entered the Pass under the leadership of Antonio Armijo. This train left New Mexico and entered California via the Mojave Desert.

In the fall of the same year, William Wolfskill and his party on a trapping expedition left New Mexico bound for California. They first went to Utah and as the weather grew colder turned to the south and crossed the Colorado into California, entering the present county of Los Angeles through the Cajon. Also, Ewing Young and his trappers supposedly chose this route during this year.

Until 1848 the Pass was used only by pack trains and horses and in this same period a number of soldiers of the Mormon Battalion who had received honorable discharges from the United States Army, prepared to return to their families in Salt Lake City. They decided to take a wagon through the Cajon as they had a good deal of experience in pioneering the west with such vehicle, so the wagon was used and when they reached Salt Lake City it was still in good condition. Thus the occasion of the first wagon to cross the Cajon Pass was indeed an historical event.

In the autumn of 1849 Jefferson Hunt left Salt Lake City with a large wagon train headed for California. The pioneers had difficulty on the trip and due to hardship and privation some of the party took what they presumed to be shorter routes to California but some came through the Cajon. Several other wagon trains left Salt Lake City bound for California during 1849—one known as the Pomeroy party. This party met the same difficulties which characterized the early desert trips to California, however, they did arrive in San Bernardino Valley in February, 1850, by the Cajon route. David Seely also accompanied the Pomeroy party and due to the experience he had gained on this journey qualified as a Captain in the Mormon migration of 1851.

In the fall of 1850 Phineas Banning began to haul freight from Los Angeles to a mine on the desert. His associate was Captain William T. B. Sanford. Sanford's wagons went by way of the West Cajon instead of through Coyote Canyon, which is located on the Spanish trail.

The road through Cajon Pass was rough. Rocks had to be moved and brush to be cut. It must have been a common scene from 1849 to 1851 to see the large wagons proceeding slowly through. On some occasions the wagons broke down and were dismantled and parts left behind. In other instances the emaciated horses and oxen became so weak they could not continue. In such cases the loads were taken from the wagons and carried on pack animals. When the road became so rough that the wagons could not carry on, they were unloaded, the wheels removed and the bodies placed on poles to be hauled over the rough ground. Pioneers rejoiced when they knew this was the last mountain pass before they turned south into the fertile San Bernardino Valley.

Under the leadership of Lyman and Rich approximately 300 Mormons arrived in 1851. One of the main purposes of the party was to settle the fertile valley and maintain a way station for Mormons enroute to Utah.

During the years 1855 to 1861 nearly all the wagon trains crossed the summit of the Cajon by this path. The Spanish trail, which was the more direct route, was used mostly by pack trains. These two entrances to the Cajon were in use during the westward movement—the heavy wagons selecting the West Cajon crossing.

Thousands of pioneers came through Cajon Pass. The many hardships they encountered on this mountain journey will always be remembered. Courage, strength and the ecstasy of a new land urged them on and most of them reached their destination.

At the present time a paved highway and railroad replaces the old historic road. Before the time of these modern developments the Pass was unknown to many people.

Near Camp Cajon a monument has been erected by the Pioneer Society of San Bernardino commemorating the early explorers and pioneers who used the Cajon Pass.

Pines to Palms

The Trip of the Month takes the Roadrunners from white-foamed Pacific shores, through golden valleys, over the mountains to the famed winter playground of Palm Springs.

By HAR LAR

Shortcutting out of Santa Ana we swung out of the El Toro hills beachward, crossed Oso Creek and mounting a rise looked down on sleepy San Juan Capistrano. A few modest store fronts faced Main Street but the old adobes were still there. On the left through the crumbling walls we caught glimpses of the mission built in 1776. On the red tiled roofs we saw white pigeons preening their feathers lazily in the sun. The swallows had not yet returned to Capistrano.

Left, we turned past the ancient mission walls that had stood for a century and two-thirds. Though we drove slowly to view the old church gardens, we did not stop. Briefly we glimpsed the famed mission bells and saw again the ruined chapel dome caved in by an earthquake a hundred years ago while Christian Indians knelt in prayer.

Out of the orange groves of the valley we followed the Ortega Highway. The remnants of the Santa Marguerita Ranch stretched away on both sides. The valleys between the hills were lush with grass. Sleek white-faced Herefords grazed or peacefully chewed their cud beneath the giant sycamores.

Up we drove past San Juan Hot Springs and Sitton Peak. Suddenly Lake Elsinore spread mirror-like before us. We drove out on Jamison Point. We gazed out at Southern California's three highest peaks, Old Baldy, Greyback and San Jacinto. The down grade was moderately steep and it wasn't long before we were motoring along the northwest banks of the southland's largest natural lake.

Old timers say the lake is bottomless and the Indians believe that monsters lived in its depths. There are those who avidly claim that they have seen these denizens of the deep when the waters were low but science explains them as gas rising from decaying matter. Actually the lake bed lies along one of the earth's fault lines. Its size is determined by the season's rainfall. At times it dwindles to but few acres in area. Today its shore line is some twenty miles around.

Northeast we drove through grain lands cultivated half way up the low sprawling hills. We passed through Perris, turning right toward Romoland and Hemet.

In the past Hemet was famed for the annual Ramona Pageant but in the years of war the bowl, surrounded by rock strewn hillsides, has remained idle and empty. Hemet itself is busy packing and shipping the oranges, olives and deciduous fruit produced in the valley.

The next fourteen miles is definitely up. It's a high gear road and paved, however. The fruit and pepper tree lined roads we leave behind. We're in the pines. To our left, towering 10,805 feet, we see snow-capped San Jacinto Peak. The heavily wooded mountainsides are all about us and only the purr of our motor echoes through the quiet forest.

We are tempted to drive into Idyllwild but continue on. It's down grade again. We pass the Anza Road and the picturesque Santa Rosa Indian Reservation. We watch our map carefully and suddenly we've reached the head of Palm Canyon. A faint trail leads steeply down, descending fifteen miles directly north, to end at that world famous desert mecca, Palm Springs. It's fifteen tough miles down and quite a hike. Some day we promise that we'll take it.

Now we see the desert. Across the shimmering sands, 244 feet below sea level, we catch a blue tinted glimpse of the Salton Sea. The desert colors, red and gold and brown, paint an ever-changing mural of Coachella Valley. Across the wild deserted wastes the little San Bernardino mountains blend to purple. Lengthwise along the desert floor, almost too tiny to see, a Southern Pacific freight crawls slowly west.

It's a paved road down the rocky mountainside with hairpin turns that continuously keep the driver occupied. The sheer drops may tend to keep some from enjoying the rugged beauty. At one point we counted seven switchbacks on our road below.

Halfway between Indian Wells and Cathedral City we turn left on the Indio-Palm Springs road. It's but eleven and one-half miles into Palm Springs. We're 105 miles east of Los Angeles but coming up the back way around the mountain it's half again as far.

So far as known it was in 1853 when a governmental survey party trekked in with a wagon train that the first white man set foot in Palm Springs. According to the survey crew's official report in the springs warm waters they found Indian boys and girls in swimming while along the stream bank old squaws were busy preparing the evening meal. So it was that on the early California map Palm Springs was first known by the Spanish name Aqua Caliente (hot water).

In the early eighties there appear to be several claimants to first settler honors but Jack Summers, a foothill rancher above Cabazon, is the first that history definitely records. Vandeventer appears to have been an early storekeeper while Val Slyk is credited with having begun the building of the McManus adobe. In 188 Dr. Welwood Murray built the first hotel The site chosen is directly across the street from the Desert Inn.

From the beginning Palm Springs has been famous as a health resort. Way back in 1884 Judge John Guthrie McCallum, on the advice of Indians, came to the Springs seeking a healthy spot for an ailing son. He purchased quite a acreage and planted orchards to citrus, deciduous, figs and grapes.

Palm Springs, the town, is man made. The beautiful homes and hotels beneath the warm healthy winter sun promise an easy luxurious vacation. The crystal clear swimming pools, the magnificent golf course beckon to the wealthy and the winter roster reads like a current edition of Who's Who. But it's not the colorful buildings that enchant all of us.

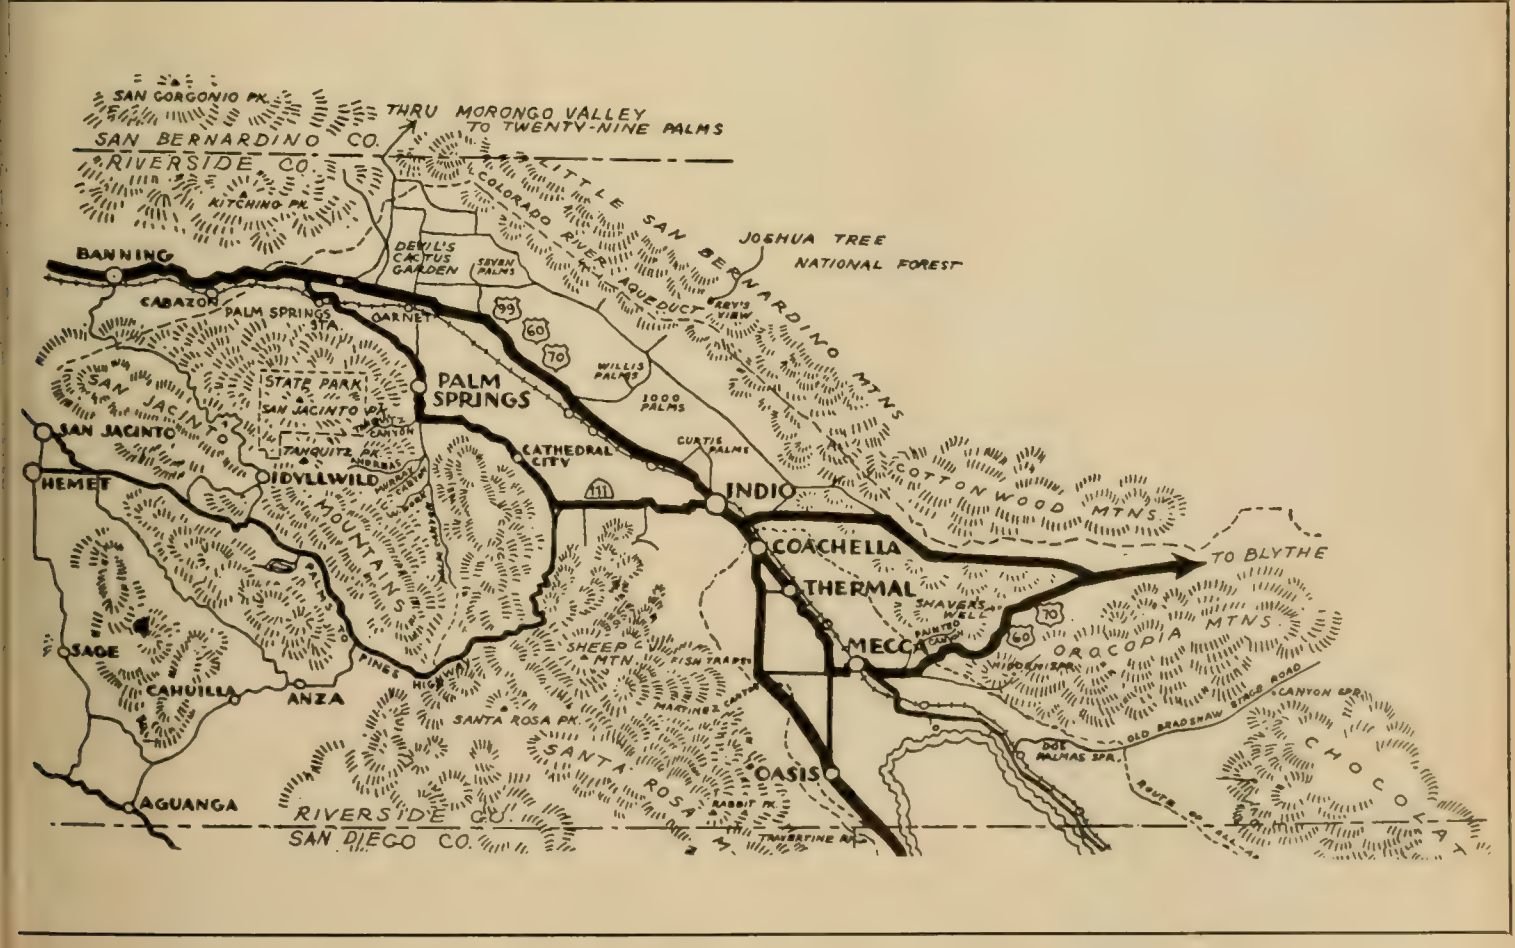
From here San Jacinto towers straight up from approximately 100 feet above sea level to 10,805 feet in the clouds. On the desert side it is the steepest and most perpendicular of any of the mountains in the United States. Only a few mountaineers have attempted the climb. Soon all of us will make it and do it in comfort, relaxed and sitting down in a suspended cable car. Funds have already been appropriated to build this tramway. It will run from Palm Springs to Hidden Lake, some 8,000 feet above. Work will definitely start sometime this year. When completed it will be the highest and longest lift in the world.

An hour's drive some eight miles north and west of Palm Springs town is Devil's Garden. Here almost every variety of cacti grows. Spiny white haired, needle sharp, Cholla cactus abounds. Cholla is sometimes called the jumping cactus and it's well to avoid. "Barrel" and "Beavertail" grow side by side. The high growing thick trunked Biznaga grows here too. Other varieties to be found in the vicinity include Prickly Pear, Fish hook, Niggerhead and Hedge hog. In the spring the Ocotillo paints the pastel desert with slashes of vivid scarlet.

Snow-fed streams from San Jacinto Peak have cut out canyons from the mountain side. Tahquitz Canyon begins in town. A foot trail follows up the canyon stream. For a quarter mile one hikes up this spectacular gorge. It's worth the trip for across sheer granite in a sixty foot drop thunders Tahquitz Falls.

A few miles south and we entered Andreas Canyon. Here the cliffs form sheer towering walls. Along the stream in the flat granite rocks one can find Indian grinding mills used long ago in making acorn meal. They still find Indian relics in the caves. There are many Washingtonian Palms with one exceptional and much photographed cluster.

Just south of Andreas comes Murray Canyon. A small stream runs in spring and winter. Here too are many palms and several ideal picnic spots may be found.



Palm Canyon may in the future become a National Monument. It has been pictured in newspaper and magazine articles all over the world. It is situated seven miles south of Palm Springs. The road terminates on the canyon's "bench." A small charge is made by the Aqua Caliente Indians for this is their reservation. They are a branch of the widely scattered Cahuilla tribes and have lived from time immemorial in the canyons around Palm Springs.

An easy foot trail leads down into the canyon. Though fire swept through the palms some few years back, the trees have again grown out in all their beauty. The trail leads south among the palms many miles, following the canyon stream.

These palms grow wild and are natives of the area but twenty-five miles east man imported palms. From Algeria, Egypt and Persia date palms were brought. Today Coachella Valley grows some of the finest dates in all the world. Truly is our trip named Pines to Palms.

E. F. Shields standing in front of one of the most unique date palms in Coachella Valley. Dates have never been picked from this tree so that visitors to the beautiful gardens may see how one actually grows. Each season a year-tag is placed on the current crop and the dates allowed to remain hanging to mark another milestone in the development of the tree.

Mendocino Plays Part In Course of Empire

By PETER T. CONMY
Grand Trustee, NSGW

MENDOCINO COUNTY, situated on the northwest coast of California, was created by act of the legislature on February 18, 1850. Notwithstanding the fact that Cape Mendocino, the westernmost piece of land in the United States, is situated in Humboldt County to the north, and Pt. Arena is in Mendocino County, the name Mendocino was applied to this large county by the legislature which created it. Mendocino County was not, therefore, named after Cape Mendocino, but both the county and the cape were called after Antonio de Mendoza. This great man was the first Viceroy of New Spain or Mexico and was appointed by the King of Spain in 1535. It was he who ordered the Northwestern Pacific explored and who sent Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo on the expedition in 1542, on which California was discovered.

There is some uncertainty as to whether or not the Cabrillo expedition reached or named the cape but the name appears as early as 1584 and was a patronymic in honor of the great Viceroy, Mendoza. The giving of the name, Cape Mendocino, by the Spanish was the only Spanish influence in that part of California for many decades, however. The Spanish Mission system began at San Diego in 1769 and by 1823 reached Sonoma. That part of California around Cape Mendocino was not inhabited by the Spanish and its great importance was to navigators. Furthermore, the founding of Fort Ross by the Russians in 1812 tended to cut off the Spanish from what is now the northwestern coast of California. Sonoma Mission, founded in 1823, was the northernmost settlement of Mexico, successor of Spain in California, for many years.

In 1841, the Russians, so long a source of worry and dissatisfaction to the Mexican Californians, withdrew, selling Fort Ross and its equipment to General John A. Sutter. Realizing that settlement was one of the best reinforcements to a claim of ownership, the government of Alta California was friendly to the idea of granting lands to those who would settle along the northwest coast. Indeed, a study of the land grants made shows a decided increase in the number of ranchos deeded by the governors to applicants in the northern and heretofore unsettled area. Four grants were made in what is now Butte County in 1844, and during the same year three were made in what is now Tehama County. The largest number made, however, was in Sonoma County, in which county Fort Ross also was located. In the more primitive regions settlement was at a slower rate. Notwithstanding, the isolated area now known as Lake County and directly east of Mendocino County was pierced and Rancho Lup Yonic, 14 leagues, was granted to Salvador Vallejo on August 30, 1844. Rancho Collayonic was given to Robert Ridley and Rancho Guenoc to George Rock in 1845.

In these same years, 1844 and 1845, that vast and rugged area which today is called Mendocino County was penetrated. When this was done the Mexicans had established habitation north of the Russian fort.

The first habitation in Mendocino County came in 1844. On November 9th of that year Governor Manuell Micheltorena granted four leagues to Fernando Feliz. He was born in 1798, had been regidor at San Jose in 1831. He had been granted Rancho Novato in 1839. He settled on his Mendocino grant which was known as Sanel Rancho and was living there on the Russian River when Captain Revere passed through the country in 1846. He was, therefore, probably the first settler in Mendocino.

In 1845, Governor Micheltorena granted four leagues in Mendocino County to one Manuel Torres, but the records do not show whether he developed it or not. It was known as Muniz Rancho.

On May 24, 1845, Governor Pio Pico granted eight leagues to Coyetano Juarez, who migrated across the mountains from his home in the Napa Valley. This was the Yokayo grant and the name Ukiah is derived from it.

In addition there are two spurious or dubious grants reported for the Mendocino area. One of these was the Grante del Norte or Garcia grant said to have been given to Rafael Garcia by Governor Micheltorena in 1844. The claim was eventually held invalid by the Supreme Court of the United States. The other is the Athion grant said to have been issued by Governor Micheltorena to William Richardson in 1844 and conflicted in area granted with the del Norte Rancho. Claims to this were never confirmed.

Because land grants in Mendocino were so few the population grew slowly. The county was created on February 18, 1850, but because of the very small number of residents for almost a decade the area was governed by Sonoma County. After 1860, however, Mendocino exercised her own autonomy.

Gold ON BEAR RIVER

Only a giant black walnut tree remains to mark the site of the resting place of the covered wagon trains. All buildings and even the huge spring once used by travelers, their oxen and horses have disappeared. Nearby is the rutted road, unused these many years, where the wagons pulled down the bank for the crossing of Bear River.

Establishment of the famed Johnson's Rancho preceded Camp Far West by a few years. In 1844, a land grant of 22,000 acres along the Bear River was made by the Mexican government to Pablo Gutierrez, who erected some adobe buildings near the crossing east of Wheatland.

If conclusions reached by General Bidwell in his memoirs are correct, only an unkind fate robbed Guiterrez of the fame that later fell to James Wilson Marshall as the discoverer of gold.

Bidwell related that Gutierrez, who worked for him as a farm hand, claimed to have discovered gold along the Bear in 1844. He prevailed upon Bidwell to accompany him to the scene, but before reaching the spot refused to go further without a batea, a wooden bowl used for panning gold. They returned to Sutter's Fort for a batea, but before they could resume the gold hunting venture an insurrection broke out.

General Sutter selected Pablo to bear a message to the Mexican governor in Monterey. The luckless Pablo was taken prisoner near San Jose and was hanged.

"Otherwise," Bidwell wrote, "Pablo Gutierrez might have been the discoverer instead of Marshall.

In 1845, Captain John Sutter, acting as probate agent for the Mexicans, sold the property to William Johnson, a Sutter employee, for $150. Johnson expanded the buildings and made the crossing a station on the transcontinental route along which only a trickle of emigration was flowing at that time. The Johnson Crossing was later to become known wherever migrations to California were planned.

The Emigrant Trail, cutting diagonally the length of Nevada County, had its baptism of misery during the winter of 1846

47 when the surviving Donner Party refugees straggled from the mountains and starvation. The Johnson Rancho had been the outfitting place for the several rescuing parties organized to aid the Donner group.

An estimated 10,000 wagons used this trail to come to the mining country during the gold rush of 1849. Deep ruts made by their wheels still can be traced along the route through the Camp Beale reservation where modern vehicles of war now use the area for training problems.

Metal markers provided by Auburn Parlor No. 59 NSGW are installed along this famous route used by countless pioneers from 1844 to 1853 where it crosses Nevada County to the old crossing.

Camp Far West was established by the United States government as a military post nearly a year subsequent to gold discovery by James Wilson Marshall. In expectation of Indian uprisings, a log fort was erected and barracks and other camp buildings of log and adobe construction occupied the flat along the river bank. The post was first occupied by a detachment of 2nd United States Infantry under the command of Captain Hannibal Day. At times three or four companies of soldiers were held there against emergencies. At other times the military personnel was reduced to a mere handful, to judge from Day's records.

In 1850, when a sawmill at Forest Springs was sacked and one of the two operators was murdered by Indians, Day reported he had but seven soldiers to send to the scene. Indian uprisings throughout this area caused much damage that year. For while Grass Valley was endangered by the hostile tribesmen. As a result, many of the Indians were rounded up and taken to Mendocino County. This probably constituted the first instance in California of removing tribesmen from their traditional lands to reservations.

Captain Day's assignment at the post seems not to have been a happy one. Several of his official communications deplore the incapacity of his "broken-down, scurvy, fever and ague stricken" command.

Brigadier General E. R. S. Canby, later to become famed for his part in the Modoc wars and other Pacific Northwest Indian battles, was Captain Day's commanding officer.

Records vary as to when Camp Far West was discontinued, but men probably were kept there until 1852, when they were dispatched to Peter Lassen's camp in Shasta County.

Dredge mining along the Bear River—first by the big floating barges and then by the draglines—long ago removed the land upon which the military buildings of Camp Far West stood. Desolate piles of tailings surround the little old cemetery on three sides.

By keeping the cemetery and the surrounding area under close scrutiny, the army is guarding against any further damage to the monument at the burial plot. Vandals had damaged the marker prior to the time the army took over the area.

Mystery of Black Canyon

What ancient people laboriously carved into the hard basaltic rock of Black Canyon on the Mojave, the record of their sojourn there?

By LEONARD SCHWACOFER

ON THE Mojave's far-flung reaches, some 60 miles north of Victorville, in San Bernadino County, the broad, smooth, simmering face of Harper's Lake looks heavenward into the desert's azure sky. It is one of the mystic dry lakes that keep watch in the solitude of the west.

Along the northern edge of the lake the badlands rise out of the desert, capped with an ancient lava flow. Half hidden from human eye, among the myriad canyons that empty cloudbursts into Harper's Lake, is the entrance to Black Canyon, grim and forbidden,as if defying one to unlock its secrets.

Geographically the region is one of the most interesting and strangest that we have ever seen. From the distance, the hills present a solid black front of basaltic rock, yet on closer examination it is found that a great deal of the basalt is veneer. The interior is of sand, which has flowed out between the rock here and there.

It is an odd feeling that one gets as he enters the narrow confines of Black Canyon itself. Great blocks of basalt rear far above in many places, and although the sun is shining hot against the black rock, the foreboding appearance of the place plays on a person's emotions.

And it was near the entrance that we came upon one of the most amazing records that the wide open spaces of California have ever revealed to us, Indian picture writing on the walls of the canyon.

The work is startlingly different from anything we have seen or read of in California. In some long, distant day an alien people tarried in this spot and laboriously worked into the solid, hard rock, the story of their sojourn.

Most of the Indian work that we have seen was crudely done and its meaning was doubtful. Some of it was done by youths and maidens during a ceremony that marked their arrival at man or womanhood, this being an occasion of celebration among many of the tribes of the west. Consequently, the work was amateur and the painter apt to put down anything that came to his or her mind. Often you will find a hand mark, where the young Indian got that member smeared with the paint and left the imprint on the rock.

But the work in Black Canyon is nothing like this. It was not done in an hour, a day, or even a week. It was a long and tedious job, painstakingly worked out in the rock. It has a meaning, if one could but decipher it.

On the right side of the canyon, going up, are the figures of mountain sheep, some eight or ten of them, spaced up the side of the black rock wall, beginning at a point about three feet above the ground and continuing along the face until they reach a considerable height. It gives one the impression that the sheep are following a narrow trail up the side of a cliff. There is a young lamb with one of the sheep.

At various points near the base of the wall are the figures of men, together with other hieroglyphics.

On a large rock, lying face up at the base of the wall, we found another piece of curious workmanship, which had the appearance of a flag about two and a half feet long and two feet wide. This was fastened to a broad staff. Three lines were drawn through the flag dividing it into four parts. In the top portion, with their points touching the first line, are ten inverted pyramids. The next two spaces contain seven trapezoids each. These are centered between the lines and do not touch them. Neither do they touch each other. Hanging down from the third line almost filling the fourth space, are many lines that seem to represent a fringe. One thing that is noteworthy, is the fact that the pyramids and trapexoids, instead of being just outlined, are worked bodily into rock.

On the opposite canyon walls there are a number of figures, one of them of a design similar to that of the Indian rugs that we know today. There are also pictures of sheep and men.

The probability is that when these records were made, the now phantom lakes of the west were a reality and Harper's Lake was a source of water for these people. Perhaps, here is part of the story of happening centuries ago, which science is just beginning to unravel, when long periods of drought sent whole tribes wandering over the face of these western lands in search of new homes, and indirectly is thought by some, to have been the cause of the invasion of the Aztecs into the Valley of Mexico, where they drove out the Toltecs and built up the mighty empire of Montezuma, which in turn was crushed by Cortez with the coming of the Spaniards to the New World.

DESERT SOUVENIR

A four-color picture suitable for framing shows the Covered Wagon Train of '68 crossing the desert; now on display at Knott's Berry Place, Highway 39, two miles from Buena Park, out of Los Angeles 22 miles. This remarkable oil painting, 20 x 60 feet, took over one year to complete. A copy will be mailed you together with the special souvenir edition of our Western Magazine, jampacked with original drawings and pictures and complete description of Ghost Town and Knott's Berry Place. Both will be mailed with current issue of our 36-page magazine for 25 cents postpaid in the U. S. A. Thousands have already viewed this great work of art and acclaim it a wonderful contribution to the history of the West. Admission is without charge whether you stay for the chicken dinner and boysenberry pie or not. Send 25 cents for all three: picture, souvenir and current issue to GHOST TOWN NEWS, Buena Park, Calif.

THE STAGE COACH IS LATE

"Ships of the Redwood Coast" slipped quietly into the harbor to win the race, but the cloud of dust in the distance portends the arrival "Via Western Express and Stagecoach" on November 19th.

This additional volume in the series on early Western transportation published by Stanford Unversity Press is attractively designed and illustrated and a worthy companion volume to "Cable Car Days," "Paddle-Wheel Days," "Bonanza Railroads" and "Ships of the Redwood Coast." Its author is Oscar Winther, Assistant Professor of History at Indiana University and for this year research fellow at the Huntington Library in San Marino.

A lusty link in the chain of early California travel were the stagecoaches and expresses which served the gold-hungry hordes swarming to California. Something had to haul the precious yellow dust from the diggings, transport the would-be miners, deliver mail to homesick grub-stakers. The stagecoach and express lines met the challenge and until the railroads whistled their death knell, formed one of the most colorful epics in the history of transportation.

With its background of the roaring gold rush days, "Via Western Express and Stagecoach" is filled with Western lore as well as exciting histories of Wells Fargo Express Company, Butterfield Stages, the Pony Express, Russell, Majors and Waddell and other rivaling stagecoach and express lines, the bandits who hold them up, the cargo they carried, give the book unusual interest and readability.

Via Western Express and Stagecoach by Oscar Winther; Stanford University Press, $3.00.

ROMANCE OF THE HIGHWAYS

After spending most of his life roaming about the world, in the course of which travels he encircled the globe no less than thirteen times, Commander Scott has decided that California has the most to offer in the way of a permanent residence. Furthermore, he has become so taken with it that he has made it the scene of his first full length book which is entitled . . . "Romance of the Highways of California."

This is not a guide book, although it contains beside a road map of the state several sectional maps, but is rather the story of a leisurely trip through our Golden State that you might have taken with the author.

Commander Scott has the habit of ferreting out strange but true facts about the communities that he visits. These he calls Unreal Realities on his regular Sunday broadcasts over the Mutual Network. Many of these and also some nearly forgotten stories of early California life are woven into the new book.

Claude Putnam, the well known California Artist, has made a sketch for each page and some full page etchings which cover all of the California Missions endear this work to every native son and daughter. Added to these are over a hundred photographic studies of places of historic and sightseeing interest.

Veteran Secretary Retires At Golden Gate Parlor

Adolph Eberhard closely associated with the development of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 since its institution May 4, 1884, has retired from the office of recording secretary.

For the past 55 years Brother Eberhard has served as recording secretary of the parlor. In his retirement Golden Gate parlor lost an outstanding secretary and the Order the senior recording secretary of subordinate parlors.

It is our sincere hope that during his vacation from the office he held so long, that good health and happiness will be his for many years to come.

Observatory Parlor Member Receives Russian Medal

Ernie Lazatere, a newer member of Observatory Parlor No. 177, San Jose, and just released from naval combat duty, has received the Russian Medal for merit in action. His humble nature made it difficult for the members to get all details of the event, it is reported.

Reynold Giese, newly elected 1st vice president of Observatory parlor, will soon be "middle aisling" with one of San Jose's fair daughters. Just when the event is to take place seems to be a mystery, but the parlor is anxiously awaiting.

The annual "Egg Nogg" party of Observatory was held Tuesday evening, Dec. 18, with a large number of members present to extend to each other the best of Yule Tide greetings.

Another three star class of candidates was initiated into Observatory parlor Wednesday evening, Dec. 12, with Grand Trustee Milt Moenning and Webster K. Nolan on hand to greet the newly-admitted members and extend to them the hand of good fellowship. Former Congressman Arthur M. Free of Observatory parlor, delivered a short addresss on happenings in Washington in the past.

Members of Wilmington Parlor No. 280, NSGW, their families, and Wilmington Native Daughters, held a Christmas party, Dec. 21. Santa was present and distributed presents to all the kiddies present. Refreshments and entertainment were enjoyed.

Fred J. Richards, a charter member of Tuolumne Parlor No. 144, NSGW, Sonora, passed away Dec. 1. He was born in Sonora Feb. 6, 1867.

Three Parlors Show Big Gain During Past Year

South San Francisco Parlor No. 157 initiated 14 members into the Order on Dec. 5 and on Dec. 26 held another initiation, bringing that parlor's membership to 900 or more.

During the past two years Arrowhead No. 110 at San Bernardino, has made a splendid gain and is not far behind South San Francisco, having a membership of 820 on Dec. 14. It is to be hoped that this race between Arrowhead and South San Francisco for leadership in membership in the Native Sons will inspire other parlors to make a bid for high honors and by doing so benefit the entire Order.

The parlor making the greatest gain during the past year is Guadalupe No. 231, San Francisco. This parlor started 1945 with 442 members and now has a membership of 602, a gain of 160 members during the year, one of the most remarkable gains ever made by a subordinate parlor in any one year. The members of the parlor responsible for this big increase in membership deserve the commendation of the membership of the entire Order.

Ferndale No. 93 enjoyed its annual turkey feed on Dec. 3 with a large attendance. Henry E. Giacomini acted as toastmaster, calling on many for short, peppy talks. Six applications for membership were acted upon during the business session. An invitation was extended to Oneonta Parlor No. 71, NDGW, to hold a joint installation of officers Jan. 21. H. E. Giacomini presented his son, Eugene, with a past president's ring. He has six sons in the parlor and expects that his seventh son will join Ferndale in July. President J. W. Trigg presided. DDGP A. W. McDonald and SDGP C. H. Rasmussen were present.

Colusa Parlor to Have Entry In Speaking Contest

Colusa No. 69 takes another step forward this year and will have an entry in the state-wide public speaking contest sponsored by the Native Sons. Principal Geo. H. Ponce of the high school and member of Colusa parlor, is already working on it. The winner of the North area meets the winner of the South area in the finals before Grand Parlor in May. A diamond medal is first prize and there are other prizes for district and area winners. Winner last year was from the Elk Grove high school and he defeated, in the finals the young man who had just won the National Contest sponsored by the Hearst papers.

Grand President Promises to Sing New California Song

Grand President Richard F. McCarthy enthusiastically approved California Parlor's new pep song composed by Secty. Larry Flower and has promised to sing it at his next visit to the Parlor.

Our Grand President feels that this song, although intended for use of the Charter Parlor, has a statewide appeal to parlors of both orders especially with many State anniversaries coming up in the next few years.

The words are based on the old tune "Clementine" supposed to have been popular in the Days of Forty-nine and the verse is as follows:

"California! California!
California's on the March.
Going forward, going forward,
California's on the March."

The song was composed to further the Parlor's campaign, "California's on the March."

Coachella Valley Plans Installation Dinner

Plans are being made by Coachella Valley Native Sons for a big turkey dinner Monday evening, Jan. 21, followed by installation of officers by Arrowhead No. 110, San Bernardino. The occasion will also be marked by the official visit of Walter H. Odemar, Grand Second Vice President, to the Coachella Valley Parlor.

Service Men Returning To Claremont Parlor

It is reported that 15 out of the 47 members of Claremont Parlor No. 240, Emeryville, who joined the Armed Forces, have returned to civilian life and are again taking an active part in parlor affairs. It is noticeable in the parlor that some of the boys who have returned are surer of what they want to say and are taking a greater interest in Native Son activities.

Editor's Note: From word reaching us, the experience of Claremont Parlor is that of many other parlors. The returning service men are giving new blood to our Order and we may well look for increased activity throughout the entire organization during the next few months.

Sacramento Native Sons Hold Gala Meeting

One of the largest Native Son meetings in Sacramento for many years was held Dec. 6, at the Eagle Theatre, South Side Park, with Grand First Vice President R. G. Power of Colusa, presenting 25-year pins to approximately 150 members of Sacramento No. 3, and three 50-year pins to members of Sunset Parlor No. 26. Sacramento Parlor No. 3 has on its rolls 170 25-year members, some of whom were unable to be present for the big event.

Several members of Colusa Parlor No. 69 accompanied the Grand First Vice President. Among those present were Grand Trustee Ellsworth Willard of Camino, Past Grand President Henry Lyon of Placerville and Grand Third Vice President Walter Bailey of Wilton. Over 300 were served a delicious four-course ham dinner which preceded the meeting, with Jack Walker of Sacramento No. 3, officiating as caterer.

Golden Nugget Parlor No. 94 of Sierra City, Sierra county, was merged with Downieville No. 92 on August 1, according to information just received by the Grizzly Bear.

Mission Parlor Honors Veterans and Old Timers

In conjunction with the semi-annual Old-Timers Night of Mission Parlor No. 38, NSGW, San Francisco, all members of the parlor, veterans of World War Two, were honored by a reception and buffet in Druids Hall, Nov. 14.

Leon Frankenberg, a member of the Order for 61 years and one of the organizers of Mission parlor, presided over the meeting which followed. He named the following Old-Timers to serve as officers for the evening: George A. Cummings, 1st vice Pres., 54 years a member; W. D. Whitted, 2nd vice Pres., 60 years a member; William Hamburg, 3rd vice Pres., 55 years a member; Henry Smith, financial secretary; Phil Kronberg, recording secretary; Hugh P. Maas, treasurer; Joseph de Larivier, marshal, 52 years a member; F. Estelita, inside sentinel; J. Jehl, outside sentinel.

Past Grand Marshal Raymond J. McGrath acted as master of ceremonies and introduced District Deputy Grand President John Ferry of California Parlor No. 1. Thomas C. Iynch, a member of Mission Parlor and district deputy to Guadalupe and San Francisco parlors, responded in appreciation of his appointment and the motto of Mission parlor, "Double the Membership."

Others in attendance were Al Hufnagel, John Klement, William Giviner, C. R. Wyrich, Al Berryessa, Al Bilay, Ralph McIntosh, Dr. E. M. McKevitt, Walter V. Koch, Sidney A. Bernstein, Al Donohoe, William Segale, John Gotelli, Henry F. Nickel, Ray McGrath, William A. Wilkie, Andrew J. Camous, and Louis Schmitt.

Al Donohoe and John Klement, representing the ex-servicemen, responded to the call of the chair in interesting stories of their days in the Army and Navy, respectively.

Leon Frankenberg of Mission parlor, was also a welcome caller at the Grizzly Bear office in Los Angeles last month.

Hanford Parlor Takes Lead in Civic Service

At recent meeting of Hanford Parlor No. 37, Meredith Wingrove and Capt. E. E. Carr, who had previously been appointed as a committee for the placing at the main entrances to Hanford of a uniform signboard for such fraternal organizations and service clubs as desired to have their names thereon, reported that a number of such organizations had been contacted and that all indicated their desire to place their names on the signs.

Lyman Griswold, chairman of the committee on placing markers at certain points of historical interest in Kings county, reported that he was still working on the matter of arranging for the placing of a suitable marker at the site of the Mussel Slough tragedy and other points of interest. Griswold was also appointed chairman of a committee to handle the oratorical contest for high school students, sponsored by Grand Parlor, in Kings county.

San Gabriel Archangel Parlor No. 291, NSGW, and San Gabriel Valley Parlor No. 281, NDGW, held a joint Christmas party Thursday evening, Dec. 20 at the San Gabriel auditorium. Preceding the party a turkey dinner cooked by the Native Sons was enjoyed by all. Many gifts were distributed to the children and all children, young and old, received a box of candy.

Native Daughters

Buena Vista Entertains at Native Daughter Home

Following their third annual custom, Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 NDGW gave their Christmas party honoring the members of the Native Daughters Home on Thursday evening, December 20, at the Native Daughters Home. A musical program of Christmas carols and special entertainment from Betty Jean's Dancing School of San Francisco, featured the evening's program. A beautifully wrapped gift was presented to every member of the Home family. Chairman of the evening was Margaret Barrett assisted by a large committee from Buena Vista Parlor.

Buena Vista Parlor NDGW No. 68, entertained the Veteran's at Fort Miley hospital on Friday afternoon, December 21, at a Christmas party. Individual gifts for sixty interned service men and women of both World Wars, together with a Christmas Bingo and entertainment was the afternoon's festivity. Veterans Welfare has been one of the foremost projects of the Orders of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West since the first World War and Buena Vista parlor has carried on faithfully through the years, realizing it is our duty to remember the men and women who did not forget us. A monthly Bingo game is given at Fort Miley for these men and women. The committee for the Fort Miley party was headed by the untiring chairman of Veteran's Activities, Mary Chilson, assisted by Mrs. Sophia Pendergast, president, Ruth Weiman, Dorothea Heuring and Margaret A. Barrett.

Grand President Honored By Bahia Vista Parlor

Grand President Ethel C. Enos, was the guest of Bahia Vista Parlor No. 167 and Brooklyn Parlor No. 157, on th occasion of her official visit.

A large class of candidates were initiated and Victory Bonds were purchased in her honor.

Following an inspiring address by Grand President Enos, "Native Daughters Place in Our World of Tomorrow," she was presented with generous gifts from the hostess parlors.

Co-chairmen, Louise McDougall and Elsie Clements, arranged a very lovely evening for the Grand President.

The meeting was followed by a program. Solos were beautifully rendered by Ellen Wales of Bear Flag Parlor, accompanied at the piano by Isabel Snedigar of Bahia Vista Parlor, after which refreshments were served at a beautifully decorated Christmas table.

Among those in attendance to welcome the Grand President were Grand Secretary Sally R. Thaler, Past Grand President Esther Sullivan, Past Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson and Past Grand President Claire Lindsay.

Ruth W. Fuller Nellie Thome

Fort Bragg Parlor Honors Two Retiring Officers

Fort Bragg Parlor No. 210, NDGW, recently honored two of its charter members who had retired from offices after serving faithfully for many years.

Mrs. Nellie Thome had served as treasurer for 28 years, giving of her service willingly and untiring. She served as president of the parlor from January to June, 1920.

Mrs. Ruth Fuller, held the office of recording secretary for 25 years, and her efficiency and accuracy in keeping records was an asset to the parlor. She served as president of the Fort Bragg parlor from January to July, 1921.

During the ceremonies Grand Marshall Mae Harmon escorted both members to the altar where they were presented with a corsage while a song was sung in their honor.

With an appropriate verse President Dorothy Bohn presented gifts in behalf of the parlor to the honored guests. The retiring officers expressed their thanks and appreciation, stating that the evening would be one that would be long remembered.

Rio Hondo Parlor Supports Homeless Children Work

Six members of Rio Hondo Parlor No. 284, NDGW, attended the Spanish dinner Friday evening, Nov. 30, sponsored by the Central Committee of Native Sons and Daughters, Southern Counties Committee on Homeless Children, at Masonic Temple, 1853 South Arlington, Los Angeles.

After the dinner and short meeting all participated in folding, placing seals and data in envelopes regarding the "Homeless Baby" activity. Among the Rio Hondo group were President Katherine Gross, Barbara Holman, Mildred Hood, Ruby Davis, Florence Brown and Hilma Glascoe.

Ruby Parlor No. 46, Murphys, recently donated an afghan, knitted by its members, to the Murphys Red Cross chapter to be sent to a hospital. The parlor also held a Christmas party Saturday evening, Dec. 15, with husbands and Native Sons as invited guests.

Santa Barbara Native Daughters Active

Santa Barbara's Reina del Mar Parlor, NDGW, closed a year of program based upon the four principles of the order when members gathered around a beautiful Christmas tree at Women's City club, Wednesday evening, Dec. 11, President Anita Harp presiding.

Final emphasis was upon Homeless Children's Placement bureau, the parlor forwarding to the Southern office the $1 assessment for each of its 167 members and $200 in placement fund stamps. The parlor voted to "adopt" a child to be named Anita, for Mrs. Harp, president.

Committee to cooperate with local forces in program for California's forthcoming Golden Jubilee was appointed to include Mrs. George Tackaberry, history chairman. Dr. Anna E. McCaughey, the grand parlor's chairman for District 31, will act in advisory capacity. The latter announced that a meeting of district deputies and district chairmen of grand parlor appointment is planned for early January, with Santa Maria parlor serving as host.

Donald E. Van Luven, editor of Arrowhead No. 110's newsy Arrow-Grams for the past 10 years, has resigned that helm, according to the December issue. The retiring editor pledges his support to the new editor and says that he intends to work as zealously as ever for the advancement of the parlor and the entire Order.

Lugonia Parlor No. 241, NDGW, San Bernardino, held its annual Halowe'en carnival at the American Legion hall in October. The large hall was gaily decorated in the fall colorings and in the Hallowe'en theme, which was just around the corner. A lively orchestra played for dancing. Booths and games were around the corners and sides of the room. Before the festivities of the evening a very delicious menu of swiss steak, etc., was served to the public. Everyone enjoyed the Bathing Beauty Revue, the bingo games, ringing the Duck, and the many other games. The carnival this year was under the very able direction and supervision of Lillian McGinty, first vice-president, and her committee chairmen.

University Parlor No. 272 Honors Charter President

University Parlor No. 272, Los Angele honored its charter president, Grand Tru tee Bernard G. Hiss, Wednesday evenin Dec. 12, with a class initiation, the affa being known as "Ben Hiss Night."

An interesting feature was the initi tion of Gilbert and Arthur Cota, fifth ge eration Californians, into the Order. Th original Cota land grant was at Rinco near where the city of Corona now stand Colbert Fountaine was also initiated at th same time by the University ritual tear

Walter H. Odemar, Grand 2nd Vice Pres dent, complimented University parlor on i splendid membership gain during the ter of Walter Wells, retiring president. E paid high tribute to the parlor's honor guest, Ben Hiss, for his untiring work behalf of the Order.

Members of Mother Colony Parlor N 281, Anaheim, joined with Grace Parlo Native Daughters, Placentia, in the la ter's annual pot-luck dinner and Christm party Thursday evening, Dec. 20, at th Placentia Roundtable, with many membe of both parlors and their families in a tendance.

Coalinga Native Daughters Celebrate Seventh Birthday

Coalinga Parlor No. 270, NDWG, cel brated its seventh anniversary on Dec. 1 Special mention went to Rachel Dozie who served as the parlor's first presider and to those charter members who a still active in the Native Daughters. Th parlor is growing steadily and as the wo and aims of the organization became bett known, more and more of California daughters are becoming members of loc parlors, not only in Coalinga, but throug out the state.

Grace Parlor, Placentia, Native Daug ters sewing club met Dec. 11 at the hor of Betty Palmer, about 40 being prese to enjoy the luncheon and business mee ing that followed. The parlor voted to pu chase Tuberculosis seals, another Victo Bond, and all present purchased Homele Baby Stamps. Two books on California hi tory were purchased and given to t veterans' hospitals. It was vote to fill sev Christmas boxes and deliver them to bo at the Norconian hospital.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

By Leonard Schwacofer

Well, the January issue of the Grizzly Bear is in the hands of the printer. We had hoped by adhering strictly to the Dec. 15th deadline that we could get out by the first of the month, but under current conditions and the holiday season, it seems almost impossible. You may rest assured, however, that we are just as anxious to get your magazine out on the first of each month as you are, and we will work steadily toward that end. We are going to stick to the 15th of the month deadline, so we urge that you get your news in before that date, else we may be forced to leave it out.

After editing your magazine for two months now, it seems to us that the Grizzly Bear could be of greater service to both Orders if those of you on the various interparlor and state-wide committees, would let us know what you are doing so that we may pass the news along. It would help you in your work and assure you of greater cooperation in the work that you are doing.

We are also anxious to receive good pictures and illustrated articles, particularly on what is going on in all parts of California. In other words, we believe that the Grizzly Bear should present California today, just as much as historical California. And within the ranks of the Native Sons and Daughters there must be those who can help us obtain the necessary material for such articles. And let us hear from you Camera fans. You can help, too.

Our first travelogue in December drew so much favorable comment that we are continuing this feature from month to month. While for the present it seems that we should feature the winter playgrounds of the South, we assure those of you in Northern and Central California that your turn is coming with the spring and summer months. We are getting together pictures and stories as fine as any ever run in any magazine. And after all, why shouldn't our magazine have the best?

Who owns the Grizzly Bear?

You do. Every Native Son and Daughter has a share in his official Golden State magazine. The office force who select and edit the material are but your servants. It is their firm desire to make the Grizzly as you like it, an all California monthly worthy of the great state. Remember, though, that you are the boss.

As the owners, there's a job for you to do. Advertising is the life blood of every magazine. The Grizzly Bear needs plasma. Few of us can sell ads but everyone of us can wholeheartedly support those who do advertise in our periodical. If it is a choice of several brands, buy the one you see advertised in the magazine you own.

There is no such ownership responsibility among readers of other magazines. The ads themselves must sell their commodities. After all, most magazines can't help who reads them. Consequently a very low percentage of such readers are prospective purchasers of the advertised products. That may be so of other magazines but it is not true of the Grizzly Bear. Every time one of our 21,500 readers buys a product advertised, it helps your editor add more pages, more feature stories, more photographs to the new edition. Next month the Grizzly Bear goes twenty-four pages. We're growing up.

Let's drink a glass of our advertisers' brew in celebration!

Editorial

To the Members of the Native Sons of the Golden West:

Best wishes for the new year to all the members, their families, their friends and particularly to those members who have just returned from service with the military forces of our country. May the new year of peace at home be a happy and prosperous one.

Upon entering the new year, our thoughts turn toward a better way for the future. In our own Order we must prepare for the greater opportunity that will come to us in the progress of peace. In building our numerical strength we must also look to progressive activities that will reach all of the members as a service to them and the community in which they live. As a patriotic and historic organization our destiny will even be greater in the immediate future and the member and the Parlor will have a greater responsibility toward the community than ever before.

Let's pledge ourselves to a greater service to the state in 1946.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,
Richard F. McCarthy,
Grand President, N. S. G. W.

Selling California to the Natives

By coincidence last month, the Victory Day Parade in San Francisco was appropriately held on Admission Day, September 9th—California's ninety-fifth birthday. To Native Californians this should hold a special significance, particularly as we will soon celebrate our three great Golden Centennials.

In 1848, gold was discovered in California and the great gold rush was on, but since that golden era, the other natural resources and agricultural and industrial wealth has by far exceeded the mineral wealth of this golden state. Its climatical advantages are many and varied; with seashores, lakes and rivers, valleys, mountains and deserts; even the most discriminating can be satisfied.

During the war in the Pacific many are the service men and women who have been stationed here or gone through our portals. It is only natural after they go back to their native states and become rehabilitated they will still hold and cherish the memories of pleasant stays and experiences in our state. Visualize the ease to encourage their return to California for the "Three Great Centennials 1948-1949-1950.

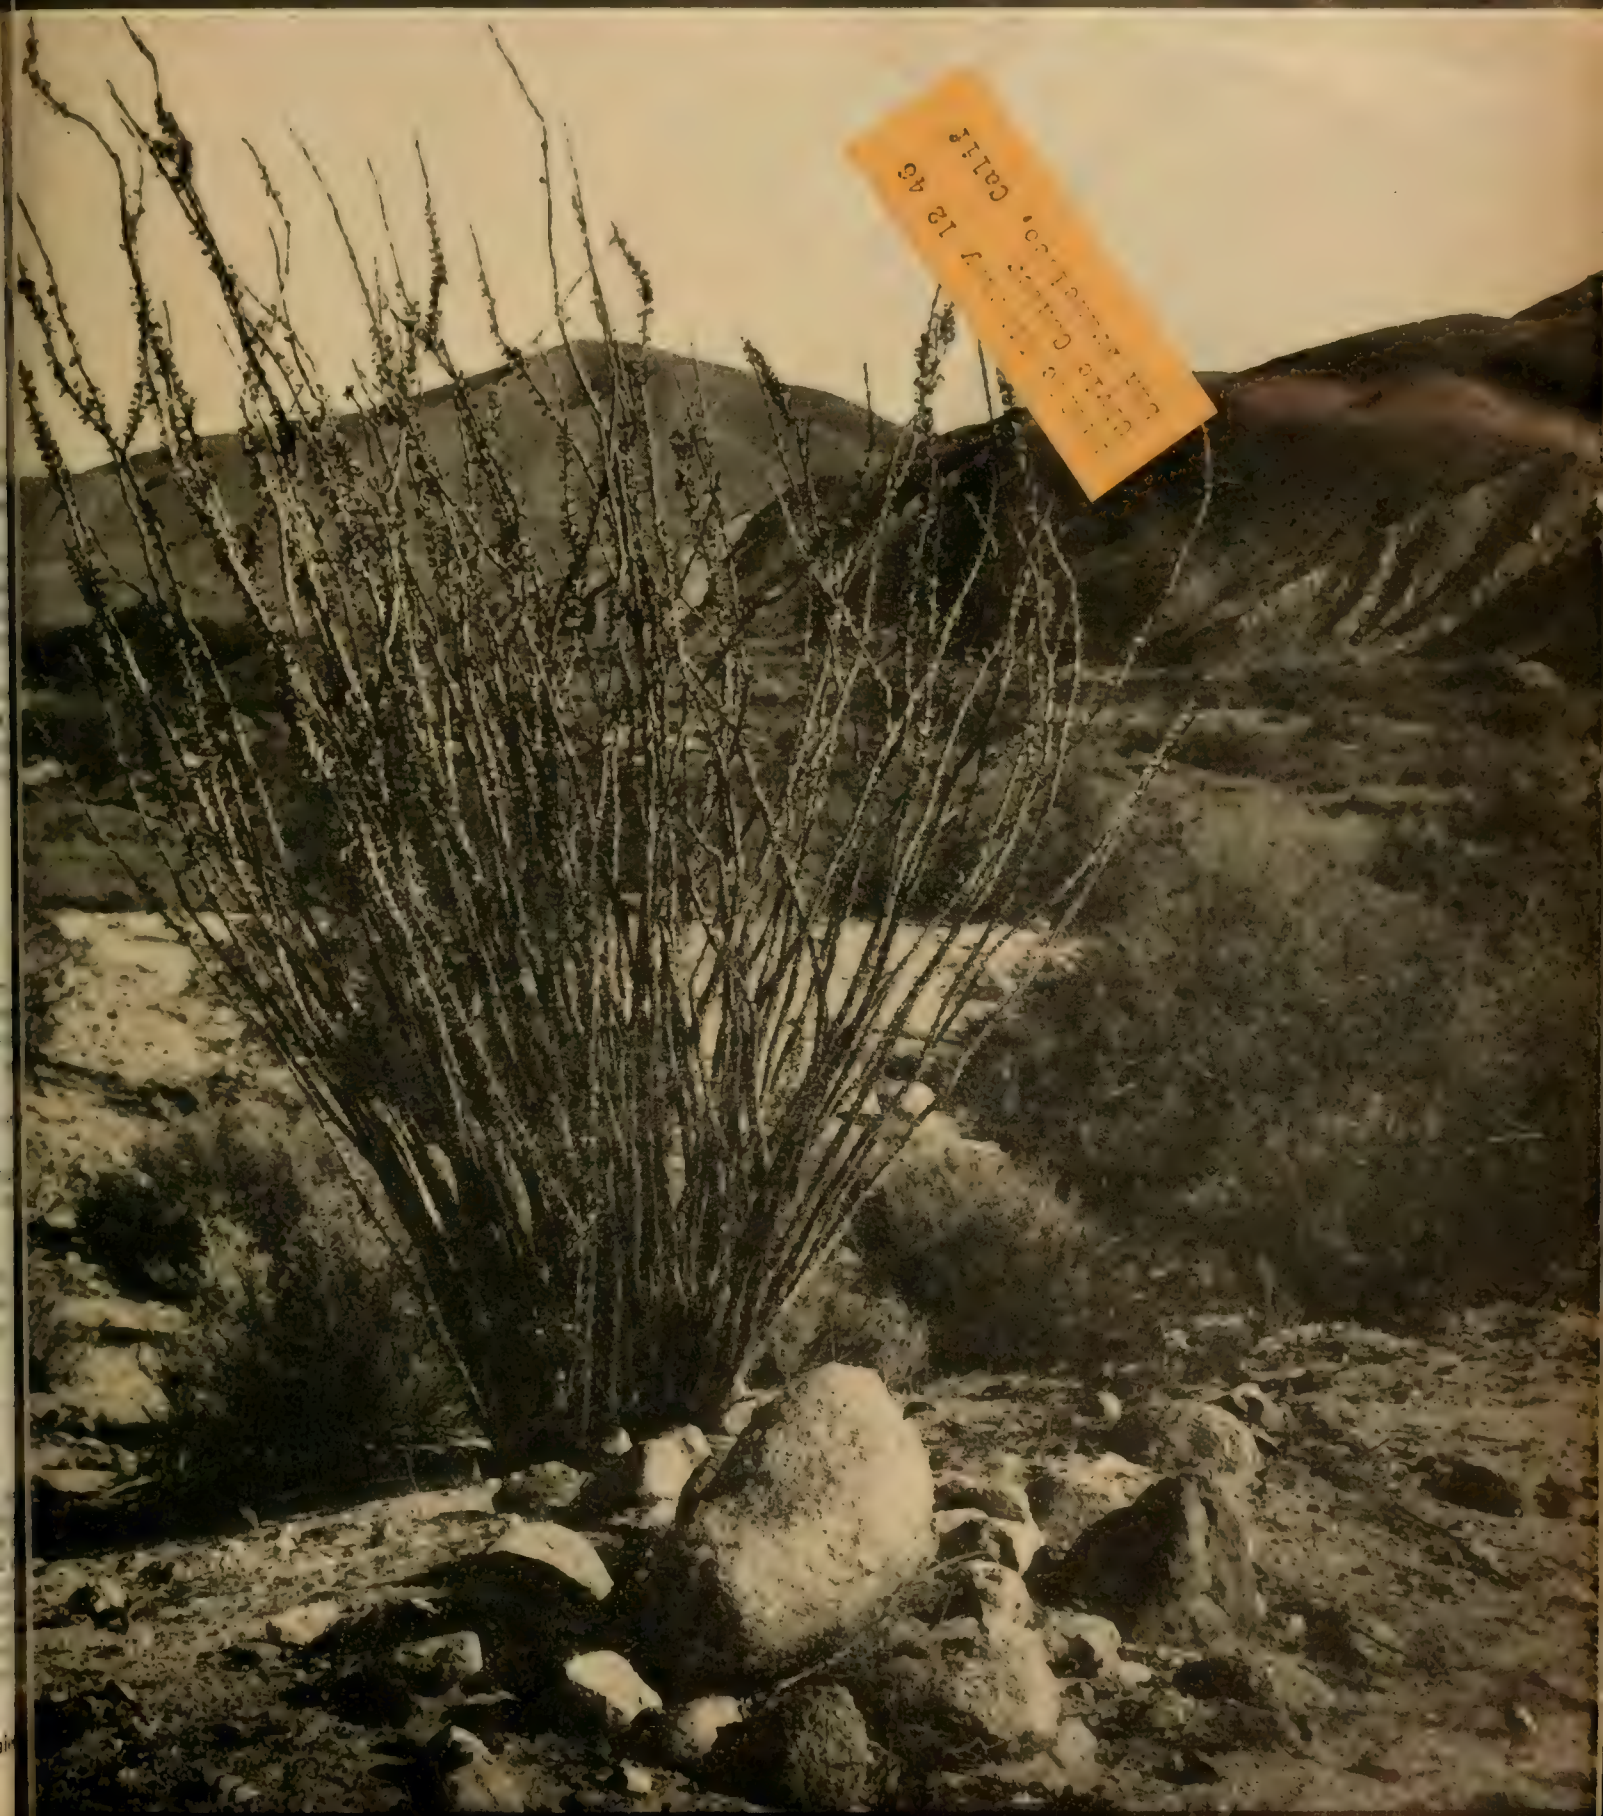
(1848) THE GREAT GOLD DISCOVERY.
(1849) THE GOLD RUSH AND THE PIONEERS.
(1850) CALIFORNIA'S ENTRY TO STATEHOOD.

The Great Migration Westward

There are few who realize the natural heritage that is theirs when born in California. Only Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West or those who travel extensively know what we have here and it took the Pacific War to focus the industrial and financial eyes of the nation on the West and its future possibilities. It is now prophecied by 1960: California will be the most populous state in the Union.

A very remarkable growth from the early eighteen hundreds when the Spaniard lived in luxury and contentment in this wonderful land.

If you are eligible, become a booster and help sell our many natural advantages. Invest in California's future and you will be amply repaid. Then, you too, will know what it means to be a true Native Californian.



Editor's Note: The above article by Past-President Conrad Grieder of National Parlor No. 118, San Francisco, recently appeared in the San Francisco Horsemen's Ass'n magazine "Tales." The author is an active member of the horsemen's association.

BIG BEAR CITY

Shasta Dam near Redding impounds water for the great Central Valley Project. The second highest concrete dam ever built, it is taller than the Washington Monument and creates the largest man-made waterfall in the world, three times higher than Niagara. It took five years to construct at a cost of forty-six dollars a minute.

The Shasta Cascade Wonderland

Beautiful Lake Shasta stretches thirty-five miles back along the Sacramento River and its branches, its shoreline winding in and out where canyons once cut between the hills. The lovely lake now covers the site of the once prosperous town of Kennett.

By COMMANDER SCOTT

(Radio Commentator—Lecturer—World Traveler and Author)

California is a State that has an unlimited variety of scenic wonders, anywhere you go in the State you will find places of interest. However today we are going north and will visit Redding and one of the scenic gems that surround it. I say some of them, because there are so many that a whole book would be needed to really cover the area even in the most casual way.

At this time we in California are vitally interested in the Central Valley Project, because it will play an extremely important part in the future development of all of Central California. And this development will have an important effect throughout the State. So let's first of all take a quick glance at the project and its aims. Redding, California, is one hundred and seventy-two miles north of San Francisco right on the bank of the Sacramento River that nearly surrounds it. It is in the heart of the marvelous Shasta-Cascade-Wonderland. At the head of the Sacramento Valley, with the Cascade Range to the East and the Redwood Empire to the West, Redding has access to a recreation area that is practically inexhaustible.

Primitive hinterland, (almost unexplored), provides hunting and fishing that would satisfy the most exacting sportsmen; scenery of dramatic grandeur comes into view around every bend in the road; while countless places can be identified with the beginnings of California's history. In addition to all of that for one single region, Redding has untapped wealth in her minerals, her timber lands, and water power. It is a country of amazing possibilities, and it is the site of one of the biggest of human accomplishments, the Central Valley Project which has its beginnings in the great Shasta Dam at Redding. It is hard to realize what an enormous irrigation plan is being carried out in this Central Valley Project. It provides water literally for the whole tremendous agricultural heart of California, that long inland valley spreading away from the Sacramento River in the north and the San Joaquin River in the South. Because these two rivers flow into San Francisco Bay together it has been possible, by a series of pumping stations, to force the oversupply of water in the north, on down to the thirsty lands to the south. The north has sixty percent more water than it needs, while the South's water supply is usually sixty percent short. So Shasta Dam holds back all of the runoff from the melting snows and bigger Northern rainfalls, and releases it only as required. The Dam itself is an engineering marvel, being the second largest concrete dam ever built. Not only that, it is actually higher than the Washington Monument and creates the largest man-made waterfall in the world—three times higher than Niagara. The project will eventually pay for itself in spite of five years of labor costing forty-six dollars every minute. However, the undertaking is providing all of Central California with a wonderful system of irrigation and flood control, saving great tracts of land that were threatened with disaster, besides providing enormous quantities of electric power to be distributed throughout the area.

So the staggering project will bring to Central California a new era of wealth and prosperity. True enough, in addition to the practical aspect, Shasta Dam makes a very striking picture, now that the scars of construction are nearly covered. For behind the concrete barrier, a beautiful lake—Lake Shasta—now stretches thirty-five miles back along the Sacramento River and its branches. The shoreline winds in and out where canyons once cut between the hills; hundreds of deer come down from the mountains and the pine forests to drink from its clear, cool waters; and majestic Mount Shasta, with its mighty snow capped peak is always there in the background. For no matter where you go in this area, Mount Shasta is always in sight. You can travel for hours, cover many miles and though the position of the great mountain seems to have moved several times, it is always somewhere on the horizon until you have traveled well south of Red Bluff.

The story that I would like to tell you today is about the sudden birth and the quick death of a town closely connected with lovely Lake Shasta. It had a violent life of ups and downs, was gay and prosperous, then again sad and depressed. It could hardly be called a gold rush town, because the real gold rush ended many years earlier. But someone did discover gold there, soon after the turn of the century, and with it there were great deposits of copper. Mining rights were bought at a fancy price, and overnight a town sprang up, a thriving, working, sweating town, where once there had been only the side of a hill.

The place was called Kennett, and the nucleus of its social life was the four thousand workers who dug the ore from the dark interior of the fabulous mine, and who labored in the fiery smelters outside. Either job was rough and tough, so the town itself was also rough and tough. But it was definitely a boom town and there was plenty of money earned, and it was naturally spent as easily as it came. So Kennett prospered, a violent prosperity with gambling and shootings and dark deeds mixed in with the richness and good living that any boom town always enjoys. Then it slumped, as the demand for copper slackened and the town began to fade.

However Kennett was not destined to become just another ghost town, for at that moment the first World War started and with it, a terrific need for the metal. So the mad spending resumed and even increased because everyone was earning more money than before. It seemed almost incredible but the excitement lasted for four years, then as quickly as it began, the war ended. The work at Kennett seemed to be done. Waiting and hoping for revival of activity was useless and people left for better fields. This time she dwindled and decayed; the brush grew around the corners of the buildings, grass pushed through the floors, only a few hardy souls remained.

Then Strange but True, sounds of new life came to their ears. A great government project was coming to Kennett, and prosperity was once again around the corner.

The old ghost town trembled with excitement and soon her streets were filled with the old throngs. Money flowed and frivolities flourished—a true boom town as in former days. Another four years Kennett glorified in her good fortune and again, with a suddenness, it was all over. Her finish could not have been more dramatic. It happened the day that Shasta Dam was completed. As the waters of the great Sacramento River pounded down against the new concrete barrier, the level along its banks rose steadily. The old ghost town that was once Kennett had now been totally deserted and slowly the water lapped up to her feet, to her porch steps, to her second floors, and then the spot on the face of the mountain disappeared completely and Kennett was no more. She had given her ghost to progress.

But there is a great deal of interesting lore about all of this region as well as the city of Redding itself, only fourteen miles south of the great Shasta Dam. Incidentally, Redding is not named for the Major Reading we often hear of in connection with California Gold Rush Days. Major Reading made the second discovery of gold in California and became a leading citizen in Shasta County. His great ranch of twenty-six thousand acres (a Spanish land grant) actually covered most of the city's present location. However, the two names differ in spelling and it seems that, in spite of protests to change it, the city's name comes from a Mr. Redding who was a land agent in that territory.

The most striking thing about the Redding area is the amazing contrasts that you encounter with every turn and every observation. Here to the South are the wonderful agricultural belts that have been highly cultivately by man. Away to the North are some of the most primitive regions on the coast where plenty of wildlife still abounds. Or the world's largest persimmon orchard covers eighty acres of Shasta County, while lava beds made by the old flow of lava from erupting volcanoes, although interesting, are as useless as a desert. In some places there are fossil remains of great antiquity, but if you cross the Pit River just above Redding, you will use the largest double-deck bridge in the world—brand new. Natural and man-made wonders, one beside the other. And of course the great Shasta Dam standing solidly against the river and the mountains, is one of the most startling sights that meets your eye. Even the story of the town of Kennett is a story of contrasts, but I believe the comparison that impressed me most was the difference between the tw old volcanoes Mount Shasta and Moun Lassen. Lassen is the only active volcan in America but towering Mount Shasta ha achieved the serene dignity of old age Calm and quiet with a permanent crow of snow, Shasta is truly monarch of all sh surveys along the Highways of the World

THE OLD TIMER
RECOLLECTS

As Told to HAR LAR

Old Timer tilted his chair back to lea against the whitewashed walls of the ol adobe. On the red-tiled hacienda verand floor lay his wide-brimmed high-crowne black Stetson. A barefooted Mexican boy about ten summers dutifully massaged th scalp of the white-haired patriarch. The ol man paused a moment to look out over h acres of heavily producing orange trees b fore he spoke.

"Naw," said he, "Pancho ain't lookin' f lice, but that sorta reminds me of som thing that happened a long time ago whe I was a young un agoing to the old 'dol school."

Old Timer grinned in recollection.

"We had a man teacher. He stood six fe three inches and weighed two hundr pounds. He taught the three R's with lemon switch layed ontothe seat of yo pants.

"What with dirt floors and one thing a another we were a grubby lot and so weren't no wonder that the whole scho developed an itching scalp that turned o to be lice. Don't think that the schoolmast hadn' any remedies.

"Kerosene and sheep dip is what he a ways used. He scrubbed each squirming k until he liked to drowned or suffocate Tuesdays was sheep dip day."

Old Timer paused to reminisce.

"One of the McDugan kids was in n class. His old man came into the territo hell-bent-for-leather a jump or two ahead the sheriff. As it was right peaceful, settled down and brung up his family.

"I can remember the first McDugan as six-foot Irishman, but he never looked big as the day he came to school and caug the schoolmaster sheep-dippin' the you 'uns. To make matters worse, it happen to be the skinny McDugan kid that w gettin' dipped.

"'And what fur are ye doin' thet?' roar McDugan.

"'To get rid of the lice, as you can w see for yourself, man.'

"'What makes you think that you're i mune to the dirty little chiggers?' McDug asked, and not waiting for an answer, grabbed the headmaster.

"It wasn't a dainty tea party, that figl Fists like hams came sledge-hammerin' in face and ribs. In short order us kids was the outside looking in through the wi dows and door. The schoolroom was a shar bles of broken desks and benches.

"How he did it, to this day I don't kno but the pounded-up giant that spoke li McDugan came up with a full nelson a plied with his legs and he goes lice hunti with his hands over the teacher's craniu

"He must have found what he was loo ing for, as teacher got the sheep dip a looked like a drowned rat as McDugan we down the road, a little unsteady to be su but well pleased with himself.

"It is true we were still subject to t Tuesday morning sheep dip, but from th day on the teacher always kept his he shaved as bare as a turkey egg."

Vallecito stage station beside the now dim and faded trail of pathfinder and pioneer across Imperial Valley to the coast, as it looks following its restoration in 1935 through the efforts of the San Diego Historical Society.

Historic Imperial County

The thrilling story of one of California's youngest counties, an area through which the course of empire flowed from early Spanish days, through the gold rush, playing its part in the winning of the west. Here, in the fascinating "Land of Barbara Worth" men wrested from the desert a garden below the sea, one of the richest agricultural counties in our state today.

By EMMETT P. JOY, Grand Historian, NSGW

In the southeastern section of California is historic Imperial County, founded in August, 1907. Even though it was one of the last counties to be created in the state, its history dates back to the year 1540.

In the eastern section of the county are the sand hills, serene and where solitude reigns—shifting sands have formed fantastic patterns there for centuries. To the west of the sand hills are the chocolate mountains. The Salton Sea is situated in the northwest section and is 250 feet below sea level; Superstition Mountain lies west of the Salton Sea. What was once a dry and uninviting desert where cactus thrived is now a great garden spot known as the Imperial Valley. Water from the Colorado river is distributed by hundreds of miles of canals to supply the fertile soil.

Probably the first white man to touch California soil was Hermando de Alarcon. Alarcon made several trips by water along the gulf and reached the mouth of the Colorado river. This expedition was made during the year 1540 for the purpose of securing information about Coronado. It is believed Alarcon landed somewhere on the California side of the river.

During the same year Melchior Diaz of the Coronado expedition made a journey to the gulf coast in an effort to make contact with Alarcon. He is supposed to have reached California at about the same place as Alarcon. This landing spot would be somewhere opposite to where Yuma, Arizona, is now located.

By the year 1700 settlements had reached Arizona and Father Kino had founded a mission there. Kino had made several long journeys in the southwest. On one of them he crossed the Colorado river into Lower California. He reached the head of the gulf and concluded Lower California was not an island, but a peninsula.

Father Francisco Garces, a Franciscan sent to San Xavier del Bac in 1768, shared honors with Anza in advancing land exploration. Father Garces on one of his journeys explored the west side of the Colorado River for the first time.

In January, 1774, Juan Bautista de Anza, an officer in the Spanish army, left Tubac, Mexico, on an expedition to California. Anza was accompanied by thirty-four men. After one month of travel they reached the Gila River. They were entertained by Palma, a Yuma chief, at the Indian rancheria. The Indian chief accompanied the expedition across the Colorado River. From here Anza followed through the Cajuenches country and then turned north through the desert. This was the first exploration of the region and of this section now Imperial County. Anza seems to have kept to the west of the Salton Sea and followed a route which led him to San Gabriel.

Anza returned to Mexico after the first California expedition and laid before the viceroy the results of his journey. He was advanced to the rank of Lieut. Colonel. It was not long before he left on a second expedition from Mexico and followed somewhat along the same route he used on his first trip, but this time had over a hundred people with him for the purpose of colonizing what is now the city of San Francisco.

In 1780 Mission Purisima Concepcion and Mission San Pedro y San Pablo stood about twelve miles apart in the southeastern section of what is now Imperial County. The Missions were built by four Franciscan padres including Fathers Garces and Diaz. The main purpose of the Missions was to convert the Yuma Indians living in this area and along the Colorado River. This proved to be a dangerous undertaking for after some time the Indians became insolent in their actions and trouble commenced to take form. During the month of July, 1781, the Indian attacked the village of San Pedro y San Pablo. The warriors met no resistance and dispatched most of the populace, including the soldiers and missionaries and destroyed the buildings by fire, leaving all in complete devastation.

The next day the natives attacked a camp across the river. Captain Rivera and his men who were enroute to establish the pueblo of Los Angeles were camped near the Colorado. They made a gallant stand but were outnumbered by the Indians. Of Captain Fernando Javier de Rivera y Moncada, Bancroft says, "Thus died one of the most prominent characters in early California annals—who had come in the first land expedition of 1769—had been military commandant of the Monterey establishments—and who, at the time of his death, was Lieutenant Governor of Baja California.

The natives returned to Concepcion, burned the buildings and slew Father Garces and others. These Missions and pueblos were not established again.

During the month of September, 1781, Lieut. Colonel Pedro Fages led a cam-

Vacation Lands

The Grizzly Bear "Trip of the Month" leads through the Joshua trees of the Mojave to the picturesque valley of Lucerne, up Cushenbury and Johnson grades to historic Big Bear Lake.

By THE ROADRUNNER

OUT Los Angele's beautiful Arroyo Seco Freeway and through Pasadena, world renowned for its Tournament of Roses, we sped on the Grizzly Bear's "Trip of the Month" for February.

Eastward we rolled past Santa Anita, where the nation's most famous horses race each year. Azusa and Glendora, set in gleaming orange groves, we left behind, pausing briefly at the intersection just north of Upland where the statue of the Pioneer Mother under magnificent green trees, watches beside an ancient highway, now carrying streams of traffic east and west.

On our left the snow-capped crown of Old Baldy shone in the early morning sun, while straight ahead loomed the snowy peaks of San Gorgonio. Through the vineyards of Cucamonga, past vinecovered wineries, a broad highway led us to the tune of purring motor.

We stopped for awhile in the historic and thriving modern city of San Bernardino. Founded in early days as a Mormon settlement, San Bernardino today might well be termed the western home of the Santa Fe railroad. For here in the great shops and roundhouse shining monsters are ready, day and night, to haul California products to distant parts of the nation. There is plenty of atmosphere for the most ardent railroad fan, whether he owns his own model line or just like to see the big engines at rest or in action.

San Bernardino also is the home of Arrowhead Parlor, second largest parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, having a membership of over 800, being exceeded only by South San Francisco.

The city of San Bernardino is also famous for its National Orange Show, an annual event which was cancelled during the war years, but which will be revived next winter.

Northward from San Bernardino we climbed on modern highway the old trail of the pioneers through Cajon Pass, history of which is ably told in the January issue of the Grizzly Bear by Emmett P. Joy.

At an elevation of a little over 4000 feet we reached the summit and started to drop down on the Mojave desert toward Victorville. On every side, as far as we could see, were hundreds of picturesque Joshua trees, those strange and weirdly beautiful dwellers of the Mojave.

Over on our right Mount San Gorgonio now wore a cap of fleecy clouds while golden shafts of sun light were reflected from the Mountain's snowy crest.

The little western town of Victorville, set among the cottonwoods on the Mojave river, has grown considerable since we last saw it, due primarily to intense military activity around it.

We turned right in Victorville on the road to Big Bear Lake, via Lucerne Valley, crossing the Santa Fe and Union Pacific tracks, and Mojave river on a great single arch steel bridge just below where the river breaks through a rugged gorge. It is quite a sight to look upstream from the bridg and see the double tracks of the railroa straight along the banks of the gleamin river which, fed by rushing streams of th San Bernardino mountains, flows out on th desert to sink in the sand, where for man miles it feeds the wells that provide wate for lush, green alfalfa fields in the sprin and summer.

About five miles out of Victorville w drove up to Irene McCarthy's guest ranc set among the Joshua trees. Here is a ranc that truly reflects the spirit of early Cal fornia hospitality. There is no swank c Hollywood, but on this western ranch, fa from the noise of the city, you will find a the modern conveniences, coupled with goo old-fashioned home cooking. This popula vacation spot has been in operation sinc 1935 and has accommodations for 50 peopl

Up in Lucerne Valley, where sleek white faced cattle graze under the Joshuas, w visited the Von Breton ranch, owned an operated by Bill Stillwell and his charmin wife. This delightful guest ranch is locate about five miles east of the Lucerne po office and is reached by paved highway. Th ranch buildings are set back from the roa and a locust tree lined driveway leads t them. You can enjoy horseback riding he and during summer swimming in the bi outdoor pool is in order.

This desert country is all high, the Vo Breton ranch being located at an elevatio of 3100 feet. Bill Stillwell told us that th temperature last summer never went ov 100 degrees and that the average was 9 This is something that we all might no when we want to get away from things an vacation this coming summer.

There are accommodations at the Vo Breton ranch for 16 people. Meals are serve family style and you'll be thrilled with th hospitality of the Stillwells. You will als fall in love with their five lovely litt blonde, blue-eyed daughters, the oldest which is nine.

Leaving the Stillwells, we returned to th Lucerne-Big Bear Lake paved highway an drove to Mary Coster's C-Bar-H gue ranch, which lies against the northeaste slope of the San Bernardino mountains. Th charming hostess of this favorite vacatio pot of scores of Californians from San Diego to San Francisco, gave us a warm welcome. Here we met several writers and ther prominent personages, who had come o this popular ranch. Woodrow W. Power nd his bride, the former Sara Skinner of os Angeles, married on the well-known Bride and Groom" radio program, were oneymooning at C - Bar - H, enjoying the ng horseback rides across the fascinating eserts of Lucerne Valley.

The sun was just going down while we ere at C - Bar - H, casting long shadows cross the valley and turning the desert ountains from tints of old rose to deep urple, one of the most gorgeous sunsets at we have seen in many a day.

As we were due to spend the evening and ight with Harry Burden and Ralph Miller t Moon Camp, located at Fawnskin on the orth shores of Big Bear Lake, we regret- ully bade Mrs. Coster goodbye and set out p the mountain grades to where the Josh- as meet the pines at an elevation of 6000 et. Patches of white began to glisten in ie sheltered spots along the winding road nd the air grew colder and colder, until hen we reached Baldwin Lake there was ite a bit of snow and ice by the roadside. e were glad to reach our snug cabin at oon Camp that night.

We can not begin to tell you all of the storic and interesting places to be found in e vicinity of Big Bear, which this past ar celebrated in observance of its centen- al. This area abounds in stories of gold sh days in Holcomb Valley, when that ea lost to San Bernardino by two votes in e race for the county seat. There are fox rms to visit and the sites of ancient In- an villages.

The entire resort section is growing and scores of auto courts, hotels and lodges, rticularly on the south shore, were filled capacity when your motorlogue party ited them.

At this writing there has been little snow Big Bear, but often the heaviest snow- lls of the season come in February. And en there is snow, there is sledding, skiing d kindred snow sports. While we were re youngsters were skating where shal- v waters had frozen over. However, in der to avoid disappointment, one should quire at the travel bureaus regarding w conditions before journeying to this ort area.

Interesting view of secluded Boulder Bay at Big Bear Lake high among the pines of the San Bernardino mountains.

We visited beautiful Lagonita Lodge, with its red-tiled roof, situated on a level point commanding a view of all Big Bear Lake. Lagonita Lodge has everything to attract the vacationist, and you will like its hosts: Adelia and Harry Becker.

From Lagonita we went back through the charming village of Big Bear and out to the Peter Pan Clubhouse, between Big Bear and Baldwin Lakes, where many celebrities spend their vacations. Peter Pan is run by B. W. Deming and has everything from a nine-hole golf course to a motion picture theatre. One of its outstanding attractions is its gigantic fireplace, built to the high ceiling. The fireplace is designed to look like a mountain with a road twisting to the top. On the miniature highway, small cars climb the grade, which is illuminated with small street lights.

In season, Big Bear Lake is one of the fishing Meccas of the Southland. Last fall and this winter the State Fish and Game has placed 42,800 fair-sized fish in the lake, something for nimrods to look forward to this spring. There are plenty of boats to be rented on the lake, particularly at Moon Camp on the north shore, which makes a point of taking care of fishermen.

One thing, perhaps, we should stress, in speaking of both the resorts of Big Bear and the guest ranches of Lucerne Valley, is that reservations should be made in advance if you plan to stay at any of these places overnight.

It was mid-afternoon of our second day out when we again passed through the village, which, incidentally, boasts a cafe with a real totem pole from far-off Skagway, Alaska, on its front, and regretfully left the brown buildings, their steep green roofs gleaming among the great pines, behind and headed for home out along the Rim of the World Drive.

We cannot praise the glories of this high mountain road along the backbone of the San Bernardino range too highly. Running for miles at an elevation of 5,000 to 6,000 feet, as one looks down on the valleys of Southern California spread out below he gets an impression of flying.

Lake Mathews, one of the great storage basins of the Colorado River aqueduct, which feeds the cities of the Metropolitan Water District, was shining in the late afternoon sun, while beyond it, etched in the sky, was Old Saddleback, famous landmark of Orange County.

Just below us, winding out towards the sea, was the broad ribbon of the Santa Ana River, whose headwaters are in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Yes, our trip of the month for February was one that we will long remember for the many interesting and beautiful spots that we visited and for the wonderful western hospitality accorded us by people wherever we went.

Historical Society Commemorates Raising of Bear Flag

Native Sons and Daughters will be special guests of the Historical Society of Southern California at the meeting on February 11 in the Los Angeles City Library. In this centennial year of 1946 the Society is commemorating the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma and of the Stars and Stripes at Monterey.

Walter H. Odemar, Grand Second Vice-President and former president of Ramona Parlor, will deliver the address, setting forth the contribution made by the Native Sons organization to the civic and cultural development of our Golden State.

Henry and Oscar Bilderbeck, near Los Angeles, Feb. 4, were found to have been murdered and buried in their blankets on a ranch they had claimed. Alfred and Henry Gardner, brothers and neighbors, were suspected of having shot them. They left, and were being followed in Inyo county by officers in pursuit.

Thos. Guinean, proprietor of the Arcade hotel and restaurant on Second street, Sacramento, kept a big bullfrog in a bowl of water on his bar. In the center of the bowl was a large brick, and on this the bullfrog almost continually sat, a living advertisement that Guinean served frog legs. A citizen, sauntering up to the bar one day, informed Guinean that he, too, possessed a frog, but it was a small green one; that he had raised it from almost its tadpole stage and had taught it several athletic stunts, one of which was climbing a miniature ladder and hanging by one foot from its top rung. Guinean, speaking from his experience as a French chef, declared it was impossible to teach a frog anything, and promised to open a quart of champagne if the citizen could show him what he claimed his little green frog could do.

A few days later the citizen appeared at the bar with his frog in a pasteboard box and his toy ladder in his hand. As no better place offered for the test than the bowl—which the big bullfrog occupied—the brick was removed, the little ladder placed therein, its top resting against the rim, and the emerald-hued athlete was dropped into the water. With a straw wand, taken from a broom, the citizen began to tickle his frog's back and talk "frog" to it. It immediately began to climb the toy ladder, and had ascended several rungs when there was a disturbance in the water.

Like a leaping frog, the bullfrog for an instant appeared, and then, with the little green one in its cavernous mouth, began to disappear. The citizen grabbed for a part of a leg and foot protruding from the cannibal's mouth, but missed and it dropped to the bottom of the bowl to digest the unexpected meal. Consternation reigned for a few minutes while Guinean, although he and his bullfrog had the best of the argument, uncorked a quart bottle of wine.

The Stockton and Copperopolis railroad was completed and operated to Peters, thirteen miles from Stockton, Feb. 22.

The two rear coaches of a west-bound overland train on the Central Pacific were derailed and turned over down an embankment near Penryn, Placer county, Feb. 20. Fourteen passengers were injured, but none fatally.

Fannie B. Price was starring in "Fanchon, the Cricket on the Hearth." She was said to be the best shadow dancer in the part on the stage.

Sacramento game cock fanciers had a $1,000 cocking main fought with Virginia City cock fighters Feb. 20. There were five contests; Virginia City won the first and third, while Sacramento took the other three and all the money. One battle lasted 17 minutes and was a big betting affair.

A little boy named Bassett, gathering mushrooms near Oakland, got a toadstool mixed with them. He ate it, and died from its poisonous effects.

THE DESERT'S CALL

The desert is a solitary coyote keening no April of the blood; running with no swift mate
in the shadow of the mesquite.

Greyly it skulks,
haunched on the lean hill
beyond the outer rim of dark, and howls its hunger to the moon.

From "Hourglass in the Mojave"

Truly have the poems of Ruth Forbes Sherry captured the wild desolate feel of the desert and made it beautiful in its lonely magnitude. To those who love these California arid, sand-filled wastes, "Hourglass in the Mojave" will set to words those surges of emotion that grip the heart as one stands so insignificantly gazing at sun-glazed horizons.

Mrs. Sherry is one of California's own poets. Three times running she has won the Chaparral Poets of California trophy of the year. Some 150 of her verses have been printed in magazines and newspapers throughout the country. On February 28th she begins her seventh series of lectures entitled "Conversations in Contemporary Poetry," and makes her initial appearance at the Los Angeles Unitarian Church. Note to program chairmen—she is available for group lectures.

JOURNEY OF THE FLAME

Not often are fact and fiction so happily married as in the historical novel, "The Journey of the Flame," by Fierro Blanco, Houghton Mifflin, 1933. There may be more delightful versions of the story of the Baja California peninsula and of the Jesuit missions there, and their fate after the coming of the Franciscans and Dominicians, but this reviewer knows of none.

The tale is told by Don Juan, born of an Irish castaway father and an Indian mother in 1798. Don Juan died in 1902 near Rosario after having seen "three centuries change customs and manners." In the telling, the author has woven in a wealth of history, geography, geology, flora and fauna, ethnology and mythology.

A fascinating locale—that long arm of land stretching a thousand miles south from the Southern California border, its western coast washed by long rollers from the South Sea, its ports once the haven for high pooped galleons of the plate fleet and British buccaneers who preyed on the tall Spanish ships; legendary home of cannibals and pearl divers; separated from the mainland of Mexico by that vermilion sea which took its name from our own Rio Colorado at its head. This is the stage on which Blanco's priests and soldiers, courtiers and Indiada, pearl divers and cannibals, move in a drama at once convincing and charming.

A journey from near the southern tip of the peninsula to Monterey in Alta California, in 1810, gives the patriarch scion of the Celtic seaman the thread on which to string his pearls of mission history.

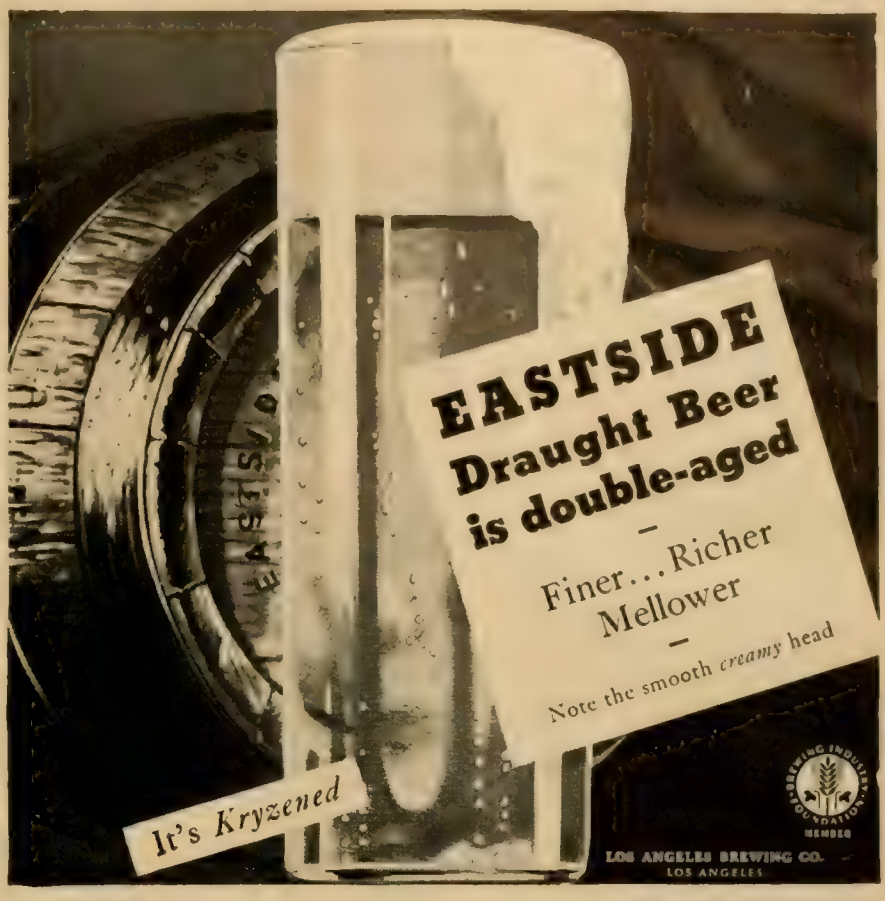
paign against the hostile Yuma Indians. After success he proceeded overland to Mission San Gabriel and reached there April 25, 1782. Fages carried dispatches to San Gabriel relative to these Indian outrages. On his first journey he followed Anza's trail through the Colorado desert, but on the second it is said he traveled into unexplored territory through part of the desert, thus opening up a new route.

Imperial County became a gateway to California. It was an early California frontier. Early explorers traveled this area since the days of Garces and Anza. Immigrant trains journeyed through the region as early as 1831 at which time the David Jackson party followed a route along the Anza trail.

Zoeth Skinner Eldredge says: "over this dread desert following Anza's route, came in 1846, General Kearney with the 'Army of the West' for the conquest of California. Kearney crossed the desert to Carrizo River in three and a half days of travel (ninety miles) with great suffering to both man and beast and losing a number of animals."



Early stage routes also traversed the desert expanse. One of these was the Butterfield Stages which commenced to operate in 1858. The Butterfield stages were well known as a famous stage route to early Californians.

Ferries were established on the Colorado River below the Gila River junction in 1849-50. These ferries were used by immigrant parties enroute to the gold fields of California.

In 1891-92 the Colorado River Irrigation Company was formed. It was organized for the purpose of distributing water upon the Colorado desert. The water was to be taken from the Colorado River and under the direct supervision of engineers the entire problem of irrigating the area was worked out. In March, 1900, the Imperial Land Company was incorporated for the purpose of colonization. Thus were established the towns of Imperial, Brawley and others. El Centro and Seeley were established later. The Imperial Land Company decided to use the name "Imperial Valley" for the region to be covered by the great system of irrigating canals. The settlement of Imperial Valley took place rapidly and subsequently became a rich, prosperous valley.

Some old mining towns are to be found near the Colorado River. One is the mining camp of Picacho. It was located by prospectors in 1862. The place grew to large settlement and was well known for its placer diggings. The town has been deserted and has almost vanished from its historic site. The chocolate mountains border it on the west. It is now lonely and abandoned, but its past will forever remain in the pages of California history.

Located near the old Anza trail is the beautiful city of El Centro—one of the most interesting in southern California. It is ideally located with wide streets and lovely homes. El Centro is the county seat of Imperial County. With its palms and other semi-tropical trees, green fields and gardens it has the appearance of a picturesque oasis.

Grand Officers to Initiate at Lower Lake

On Thursday evening, Feb. 19, the Grand Officers NSGW, headed by Grand President McCarthy, will initiate a class of twenty-five candidates for Lower Lake Parlor No. 159 at Lower Lake, Lake County. The following Grand Officers and Past Grand Presidents have signified their intention of participating in this affair: Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, Junior Past Grand President Raymond D. Williamson, Grand 1st Vice President R. G. Power, Grand 2nd Vice President Walter H. Odemar, Grand 3rd Vice President Walter N. Bailey, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Bernard G. Hiss, Peter T. Conmy, and Edward J. Wren; Past Grand Presidents Wayne R. Millington, Lloyd J. Cosgrove, Edward T. Schnarr, Jesse H. Miller, Harmon D. Skillin and Chas. A. Koenig.

A banquet will be held prior to the meeting and Judge Benjamin C. Jones, former Grand Trustee, will be Master of Ceremonies.

On the following evening, Wed., Feb. 20, the Grand Officers above named, will initiate a class of candidates for Colusa Parlor No. 69 at Colusa. Grand 1st Vice President R. G. Power, a member of Colusa Parlor, has promised a class of 40 candidates.

Ramona's New Members To Learn California History

Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles, will institute a new program on Feb. 15, which might well be followed by other parlors in the State. At that time a class of candidates will be initiated by old timers of the parlor. Following initiation, Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, noted historian, author, lecturer and prominent Native Son, will speak to the new members and refresh the minds of the old timers, his subject dealing with "California History Personalities.

Similar initiations will also be held on the evenings of March 15 and April 19, with Dr. Hunt continuing his talks on those dates.

Los Angeles Friday Noon Luncheon Club Growing

Increased attendance is noted at the Los Angeles Friday Noon Luncheon Club meeting each week at the Hotel Clark. Speakers are prominent men, each well-versed in the subjects presented which deal with every phase of California development and life. Elwood Bowles, 1st Vice President of Ramona Parlor No. 109, is president.

San Luis Obispo Asks For Celebration at Sonoma

Lloyd E. Tiernan, president of San Luis Obispo Parlor No. 290, NSGW, has written the following letter to Governor Earl Warren, suggesting that the state of California observe the centenial of the unfurling of the Bear Flag at Sonoma, June 14, 1946.

January 12, 1946

Hon. Earl Warren
Governor of California
Sacramento, California
My dear Governor:

June 14, 1946 marks the hundreth birthday of the unfurling of the Bear Flag at Sonoma, June 14, 1846.

I wish to suggest that the State of California hold a celebration in the pioneer town of Sonoma, June 14, 1946, in commemoration of that historical event when on the 14th day of June, 1846, a patriotic band of Americans first unfurled the Bear Flag as their Declaration of Freedom from Mexican rule.

The purpose of this celebration is to help keep alive the interest in pioneer California to acquaint the newcomers with the history of the California State Flag—the Bear Flag.

Yours respectively,
Lloyd E. Tierman

San Gabriel Archangel Parlor Has Historic Background

This newest of Parlors to be instituted in the Southland takes its name from the oldest white settlement to be established by the Spaniards, north of San Diego and south of San Luis Obispo. Among the twenty-one Franciscan Missions founded in Nueva California, it was the fourth in point of time being preceded only by those of San Diego de Alcala, San Carlos de Monterey and San Antonio de Padua. It was first founded some four and one half miles southeast of its present location on Sunday, Sept. 8, 1771, on the west banks of the Rio de San Miguel, in the valley of the same name. Both valley and river were later given the name of the mission, by which they are known to this day.

Thanks to the encouragement of Grand Parlor officials, the generosity of neighboring units of the Order, and the determination of its officers, San Gabriel Archangel No. 291 is off to a good start, and the New Year augers well. A spirited membership drive, led by 1st Vice President Richard Sepulveda and 2nd Vice Pres. Jesse Fike with Pres. Eldon Hastain holding the stakes is in full swing in anticipation of sponsoring a joint initiation for the Grand Officers in the latter part of February.

The monthly bulletin "El Temblor," edited by Rec. Secretary Tom Temple, has made itself felt throughout the state and the publication committee is gratified with its enthusiastic reception. Plans call for one historical article each issue, and inspired by the fine work of the "Grizzly Bear" and the age-old community about them, they shouldn't soon run out of copy. Any suggestions as to format, material, etc., will be kindly received. The officers and members of San Gabriel Archangel reiterate their thanks for the help given them by the older Parlors, and wish them all well during 1946.

San Francisco Juniors Install Officers

Junior Native Daughter Unit No. 6, San Francisco, under the direction of their Advisors Constance Warshaw and Past Grand President Orinda Giannini, held their Installation of Officers on Friday evening, January 4th, in the Grizzly Bear Club Library. The following officers were installed: President June Printer, Past President Maureen Mahoney, Vice President Florence Rodriques, Marshall June Moorhead, Sentinel Beverly Picetti, Secretary Dorothy Bawden, Treasurer Marianne Nyhan, Organist Audrey Taylor, Trustees Diane Domenichini, Genevieve English and Alice O'Brien. The installing Officer was Doreen Quilan assisted by Acting Past President Theresa Estilita, Acting Marshall Lois Carr and Acting Secretary Joan Mahoney. These young ladies were all former members of the Junior Unit and are now affiliated with the Native Daughters of the Golden West. Grand Organist Frances Simas officiated at the piano and several vocal selections were sung by Raymond Lombardi.

Veteran Will Speak at Californiana Parlor

February, the first patriotic month of the year will be highlighted by a program directed by Ernestine Aylward, Americanism chairman, February 12 for Californiana Parlor No. 247, Native Daughters. Speaker of the twelve noon luncheon program will be Col. Charles W. Decker, veteran of World War I. His subject will be, "Current Opinion of Patriotism." A representative of World War II also will be honored. A business meeting will follow a luncheon. A Valentine tea will follow the February 26 business meeting scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

Members journeyed to the Downey home of President Mabel S. Wigdal January 3, for a Gertrude Sewing Circle luncheon and January 5, the regular USO day at the Sixth and Main canteen saw a number of members busily serving sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee to hungry servicemen.

Board of Grand Officers Hold Busy Meeting

Many activities of the Order were reported at the meeting of the board of Grand Officers, Native Daughters of the Golden West, held in San Francisco, January 12.

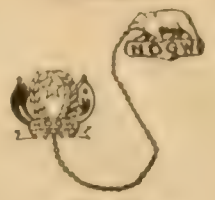
The board has donated for Grand Parlor, ten wheel chairs to be used in Veterans' hospitals in California. Five of these chairs have been sent to Birmingham hospital, Van Nuys, in southern California and the other five when received will be distributed to the various Veteran hospitals. These folding wheel chairs are expensive in production and in great demand in the hospitals, a service not provided by the government at this time.

Endorsed by the officers was a movement of the Guild of the American Theatre Society, to bring to California—Los Angeles and San Francisco, each year, a series of New York plays, thus bringing cultural advantages to the West Coast. This movement was started in New York in 1919, under subscription series, which brings the better class plays to the smaller cities, but this is the first year they have extended their activities to the West Coast. The first series in San Francisco will include the casts of "Oklahoma," Tallulah Bankhead in "The Foolish Notion," "Lady Wildemere's Fan" and one other to be selected.

The board also endorsed the United National Clothing Drive. A letter will be sent to subordinate parlors asking their cooperation with the officials towards its success.

A letter was written to Joseph Knowland, PGP of the NSGW, and chairman of the State Park Commission, endorsing the petition by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to the State Park Commission, giving reasons why the Order felt that pictures should be made and that the Commission grant the right to film a picture in Point Lobos park on the Monterey peninsula, a state park. The filming of a picture to be shown nationally would bring our beautiful California park before the eyes of the world, showing the scenic beauty of the West Coast.

The Grand Officers also endorsed the National Cancer Drive. It is hoped that $8,300,000 will be raised in the state. Subordinate parlors will be asked to cooperate in this drive as 60% of all funds raised in California will be kept here and 40% sent to the National Association for the Prevention of Cancer, for use in the state of California.



Aloha Parlor Honors Their Recent Bride

Aloha Parlor No. 106, Native Daughters, Oakland, held a special meeting Wednesday, January 9, honoring their recent bride, Juanita de Romo de la Torre, at which the guest of honor was the recipient of a lovely gift.

Native Daughter Home Board Celebrates Anniversary

The Home Board Committee of the Native Daughter Home at 555 Baker Street, San Francisco, celebrated the eighteenth anniversary of the dedicating of the Native Daughters Home by resuming their monthly breakfasts, the first since the war, on Sunday, January 13, 1946. The Home was dedicated on January 12, 1928. Orinda G. Giannini, Past Grand President, presided as Chairman, in the absence of Dr. Mariana Bertola, who has been seriously ill.

These breakfasts have been a means of bringing together the members on the second Sunday of each month, in a social way, but when war came and rationing of food, gasoline and numerous other problems arose with the war, the breakfasts had to be discontinued. The members of the Home Committee were the Hostesses at the first breakfast and because of the help shortage, also served as waitresses, etc., and so we found Past Grand Presidents serving us with a delicious breakfast.

PGP Orinda Giannini presented Judge Theresa Meikle of the San Francisco Superior Court, under whose jurisdiction falls the Juvenile Court of San Francisco County. This magnetic and charming woman, who demonstrates so highly the great capabilities of the women of today, spoke of the problems facing the country and especially California, in the juvenile delinquency situation. Judge Meikle chose as her subject "Blessings" and then cited a number of the recent cases of Juvenile Delinquency which have presented themselves in her court. She termed the problem not one of parental delinquency but rather of parental ignorance in the handling of the problem child. After listening to the problems in the cases presented, we were indeed grateful to take up our own little bundle of problems, counting our own many blessings.

We were delightfully entertained by a young coloratura soprano, Miss Eda Morelli, accompanied by Miss Helen Heinemann of Orinda Parlor No. 56, who sang most beautifully Gounod's Ave Maria, Morning and Annie Laurie. Grand President Ethel C. Enos spoke briefly and introduced her official family in attendance, including Grand Vice President Loretta M. Cameron, Past Grand President Emily E. Ryan, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Marshal Doris Treat, Grand Trustees Dorothy Donofrio, Elmarie Dyke, Margaret Farnsworth, and Chairman of the Board of Trustees Anna Schiebush, Grand Organist Frances Simas and Grand Inside Sentinel Jewel McSweeny. Also in attendance were PGP Anne Theusen, Claire Lindsay, Grace Stoermer, Mae Wilkins and Ariana Stirling.

PGP Grace Stoermer of Los Angeles responded to the Chairman with very inspiring remarks as to the capabilities of our women today and the great responsibilities placed upon the women of California. A tribute was paid to Grace Norton of Los Angeles Parlor, who founded the morning breakfast in the San Francisco Native Daughters Home, and so the southern part of our great California has the honor of establishing this cordial custom of opening the Home to the members once a month.

Representatives from the following Parlors throughout the State were in attendance on Sunday, January 13th, to reestablish this custom, Guadulupe, Fairfax, Twin Peaks, Alta, Los Lomas, National (Native Son) El Carmelo, Morada, Orinda, Oro Fino, Encinal, Chabolla, Buena Vista, Juniper, Aloha, Los Angeles, Yerba Buena, Santa Cruz, El Vespero, Salinas, San Andreas, Vendome, Golden Gate, and three Native Sons from California Parlor No. 1, Nianti and National. The February breakfast will be sponsored by Golden Gate Parlor No. 158, and the March breakfast under the direction of the San Francisco County Deputies.

Homeless Children CORNER

The first public campaign to raise funds through the sale of stamps by the Central Committee on Homeless Children has drawn to a close. However, due to the fact that money is still coming into headquarters from donors and purchasers of our Baby Fund Stamps, we are not yet in a position to give you actual figures as this issue of the Grizzly Bear goes to press.

We are happy to state, however, that the drive has far exceeded our expectations in the amount of money received.

In addition, the work of the Central Committee on Homeless Children and the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West organizations has been most favorably publicized throughout the State.

Because of the much needed funds, raised by the Baby Stamp Campaign, some of the State Social Welfare Department's recommendations are now being complied with as rapidly as possible and our State license has been renewed for another six months period. These results make the drive tremendously worth while, and is the means of paving the way for future Baby Fund Drives, which we intend to project annually.

From these encouraging results of this our first drive, we now have more experience and valuable data with which to continue our future campaigns to a successful end.

The splendid cooperation of all the members of the Native Sons and Native Daughters has made this possible and we wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks and appreciation.

Your Grizzly Bear editor, Leonard Schwacofer, has been gracious enough to devote a column each month to the Central Committee on Homeless Children, and through this column, I shall endeavor to keep you posted on our progress, as your Central Committee has appointed me Campaign Chairman for 1946, and I know that with your continued support and assistance, each campaign will be more and more successful.

Sincerely,
CENTRAL COMMITTEE ON HOMELESS CHILDREN,
Hazel B. Hansen, Camp. Chairman.

Tribute Paid to Dr. Bolton For Pioneer Research Work

More than 200 persons paid tribute to Professor Herbert E. Bolton, onetime chairman of the University of California's department of history, at a banquet held in the Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco, Friday evening, Dec. 28.

The ceremonies, presided over by Sidney M. Ehrman, regent of the University, included addresses by Edward J. Lynch, Past Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West; Frederic L. Paxson, present chairman of the department of history and President Robert Gordon Sproul.

Past Grand President Lynch reminded the gathering that only 40 years ago the lack of assembled data on early California history prevented the teaching of the subject in the schools. Today schools in every California county give instruction on that subject. "Professor Bolton," said Lynch, "was the guiding spirit of the research work on this project."

Professon Paxson said the University's department of history, now outstanding in the country, was built by Dr. Bolton, and asserted that though he was now a professor emeritus, he is still regarded "as the livest of us all."

President Sproul paid tribute to Dr. Bolton's scholarship and historical writings which won for him among many other honors, the presidency of the American Historical Association in 1932.

The ceremonies culminated in the presentation to Dr. Bolton of an honorary essay volume entitled "Greater America"—a collection of 27 historical essays dealing with all parts of Western Hemisphere written by his former students. The volume was presented by Adele Ogdon, its editor and supervising teacher of history at the University High School in Oakland.

Dr. Bolton emphasized the need for history professors who were not only great scholars but also have the ability to excite and arouse the interests of their students.

Professor Bolton is now looked upon as our leading historian and is the founder of the great school of Western History. He has frequently praised the research work of the Native Sons History Fellows and declared:

"The fellowships in Pacific Coast History maintained by the Native Sons of the Golden West, are the keystone of our post-graduate work in Western American History at the University of California."

Spanish Dinner Helps Homeless Children Fund

An overflow taxed the ingenuity of Chairman Robert Pesqueria of the Southern Counties Committee on Homeless Children, recently, when he announced one of his popular Spanish dinners, which netted approximately fifty dollars for the Homeless Children's fund.

Expression of their enthusiastic support of PGP Hazel B. Hansen in her tireless efforts in behalf of the Homeless Babies' Campaign of which she is State Chairman, was ordered conveyed to her officially by Eugenia Smith, Secretary, by those present in recognition of Mrs. Hansen's personal generosity and energetic work in this State-wide project which has accomplished unprecedented results.

Full Native Sons and Daughters Parlor representation is anticipated at all monthly meetings of this important Committee in this Southern area, which convenes at 1853 So. Arlington Ave., Los Angeles.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

By Leonard Schwacofer

Do to circumstances beyond our control and lack of space, it was necessary to leave out considerable parlor news in this issue. In the words of the father, out at the wood shed, about to administer the rod to his small son for dumping the salt into the sugar, "This hurts me worse than it does you." In spite of these unavoidable deletions, which were only made after serious consideration, we believe that you will enjoy reading this issue of the Grizzly Bear and will want to file it way for future reference. We know that every Native Son and Daughter will take pride and joy in knowing that the Grizzly Bear is fast gaining the recognition in California, which so rightfully belongs to it. This is not due to our humble efforts, but rather to the advice and help given by hundreds of Bear fans throughout the length and breadth of the state. To them should go the thanks of both our great Orders.

Directory Next Month

Because many secretaries had not sent in their list of new officers to Grand Secretary John T. Regan of the Native Sons, or Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Secretary of the Native Daughters, it was not possible to publish the parlor directory this month. However, it will be published in the March number and all secretaries should be sure that their lists are in the hands of their respective Grand Secretaries at once. Otherwire, they will not be properly listed.

Discovery of Gold Banquet Held in San Francisco

Joseph B. Keenan, president of the NSGW Hall Association of San Francisco and Wm. P. Caubu, Past Grand President and secretary of the banquet committee of the Hall Association, following a precedent established half a century ago, sponsored a banquet commemorating the 98th anniversary of the discovery of gold in California. The banquet was held in the Grizzly Bear Club Rooms of Native Sons Building, 414 Mason Street, San Francisco, on Thursday evening, Jan. 24, with over two hundred members in attendance.

Master of Ceremonies was Joseph B. Keenan of Niantic Parlor No. 105 and the principal address of the evening was made by Grand President Richard F. McCarthy. Addresses were also made by other Grand Officers and Past Grand Presidents in attendance.

Popular Native Daughter Announces Engagement

Miss Angelina Latasa, treasurer of La Tijera Parlor, No. 282, Inglewood announced her engagement to John Robert Tackett by passing the traditional box of chocolates at a recent meeting. Mr. Tackett has just returned after 28 months of service in the South Pacific. The wedding will take place sometime after Easter.

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

March, 1871, blew in like a lion, with a northwest gale that prevailed for three days and changed the February mud into March dust. Several mild storms passed over the state during the month, and the showers that fell increased the season's rainfall by 1.76 inches, a sufficient supply for the growing crops to date. March went out as it came in, with a gale from the northwest.

A heavy earthquake shock was felt in Eureka, Humboldt County, at 1 p.m. of March 2. Chimneys fell, window-glass broke, and considerable damage was done to the interior of buildings. It was not felt in San Francisco.

Colonel Von Schmidt was taking subscriptions for stock in the Lake Tahoe Water Co., that was to conduct water from Lake Tahoe and supply Sacramento, Stockton, San Francisco and other points. A tunnel from the west side of the Sierras was to tap the lake, according to announced plans.

A snowshoe racing tournament, lasting three days, was held at Downieville, Sierra County, beginning March 9. The track was 1,200 feet long, and the best time made over it was in fifteen seconds. George Brown, Robt. Loudon and Charles Lettick, all of Howland Flat, and M. McDonald were winners of the purses.

San Diego citizens, March 3, celebrated the passage of a bill by Congress creating that city the terminal of the Texas Pacific railroad, to be built in the near future.

Los Angeles citizens, the evening of March 3, celebrated with bonfires and speeches the passage by Congress of an act appropriating a large sum for the improvement of Wilmington Harbor.

The Hibernian Society gave a ball on St. Patrick's Day in the Turnverein Hall at Sacramento. As was frequently the case then, the tickets had a postscript printed upon them reading: "Persons of doubtful reputation not admitted." Timothy Lee, then a policeman, was acting as doorkeeper. He knew "Who's who" in the city as well as any man, and when a woman, somewhat shady, with her escort presented their tickets, he handed them back, silently pointing his finger at the postscript. The woman then indignantly asked: "Who in hell doubts my reputation?" "Nobody now," replied the affable Tim. "You can't go in."

There was a run of salmon up San Buenaventura River, and citizens were spearing and pitchforking with big success. One expert secured six big salmon in a few hours.

The town of Truckee, Nevada County, which was partly destroyed by fire in January and had been about rebuilt, was again swept by flames March 29. The fire broke out in the Kennebec hotel, and the young child of Mr. Hill, the proprietor, was caught in the building and burned to death. The fire burned for four hours and destroyed 120 buildings. The houses were all built of pine lumber, and were consumed like kindling wood.

George W. Teal, a 17-year-old you herding cattle near Calistoga, Na County, March 12, saw bear tracks. dug a hole, hung a bait of deer me from a tree limb and, with a rifle, cc cealed himself in the hole and watch for results. About 2 a.m. the grizzly car and so close was it that when he fi the powder burned its hair. He killed grizzly, which weighed 800 pounds.

Tobe Turley, on Beaver Creek, Siskiy County, March 4, killed a California li that measured over seven feet long.

The mining stock excitement, due the development in Crown Point a Belcher on the Comstock Lode, gained gr momentum this month. Crown Point oper at $63 a share, and went with kangar like jumps to $107, while Belcher, sta ing at $26, reached $37 by March 16, wh publicity was given that the ore body Crown Point was thirty-five feet w across the length of the mine and unknown depth, assaying $100 a ton.

The prices of shares in other Comst mines doubled and trebled in value the excitement grew. Doubts were fre expressed by brokers of the value of strike, which had a pessimistic effect.

Western States Horse Drawn Stage Drivers' Ass'n to Hold Meeting

Third meeting of the Western Sta Horse Drawn Stage Drivers' Associati of which the late Capt. William Bann was president, will be held Tuesday Wednesday, March 26-27, at Highl Springs near Beaumont in Rivers County, it is announced.

The first meeting of this unique sociation was held in 1934 and the sec in 1935 at Carpenteria. Unfortunately minutes, transcripts and notes of th meetings have been lost and it is ho that these stories, yarns and traditions again be developed at the Highland Spri meeting.

Any horse drawn stage coach drive automatically a member of the associat in which there are no dues and no pense. They will be entertained by the sociation as guests of Highland Spri Guest Ranch. Getting there and back be the only expense.

Tuesday will be devoted to round ta stories and yarns, a banquet in the e ning, more discussion and yarns in evening. Wednesday noon they will be h ored with a barbecue, with sheriffs f Riverside and neighboring counties in tendance to do them honor.

Humboldt

THE BAY OF THE INDIANS

By PETER T. CONMY, Grand Trustee, NSGW
City Librarian, Oakland

SITUATED on the northwestern coast of California, midway between Cape Trinidad on the north and Cape Mendocino on the south, lies a vast expanse of water which is known today as Humboldt Bay, and upon the shores of which stands the city of Eureka. Everyone who is familiar with the history of California knows the story of how all the great navigators, Cabrillo, Drake, Vizcaino, and others, sailed up and down the coast without finding the entrance to that harbor of harbors, San Francisco Bay. The great events which have taken place in the past century which have witnessed the development of the San Francisco Bay area from a wilderness into a metropolitan center, have detracted from the story of the discovery of that other great natural harbor of California, situated on the northern gate of the Redwood Empire, Humboldt Bay. The great navigators who by-passed San Francisco likewise failed to discover the entrance of Humboldt Bay. It is doubtful if the Cabrillo-Ferrelo Expedition, 1542-1543 reached as far north as Humboldt. Drake may have passed the entrance as he sped northward (1579). There is some suggestion that Vizcaino (1603) may have entered the Eel River, but the evidence is dependent upon a subjective interpretation of the records of the voyage. Whether Bodega-Heceta Expedition of 1775 or the Vancouver Expedition of 1792-1793 found Humboldt Bay is equally open to question. In 1804 the ship, The Lelia Byrd, under Captain William Shaler entered a harbor on what is now the coast of Humboldt County, but whether this was Trinidad Bay or Humboldt Bay is open to doubt.

In 1805, an American skipper, Captain Jonathan Winship, hunting for sea otter under a contract with the Russian-American Company, entered Trinidad Bay, which is situated several miles above Humboldt Bay. In the following year 1806 he again touched the northwestern coast of California with his ship, The O'Cain; it is now commonly accepted that he entered Humboldt Bay. The exact date is not known but as the records show that he sailed for Alaska on April 19th and was off Tudos los Santos Bay on March 6th, the discovery of Humboldt Bay probably took place between these two dates.

The visit to Humboldt Bay in 1806 by Captain Winship and The O'Cain did nothing either to advertise or populate the surrounding area, and the locality seems to have been forgotten for forty-three years when it was rediscovered by Josiah Gregg.

After the discovery of gold in California in 1848, prospectors moved into all of the mountain streams seeking the precious metal. Late in 1848 Pierson B. Reading penetrated to the headwaters of the Trinity River and found gold there. Men who reached the Trinity surmised that it must enter into the Pacific, perhaps at Trinity Bay. In November, 1849 miners at the source of the Trinity formed two parties. The first went by land to San Francisco and thence by boat to meet the second party which was to proceed by land downstream and meet at the mouth of the river. Those who went to San Francisco set out up the coast on December 9th on board the Cameo but were unable to find the point for which they were searching. The second party led by Josiah Gregg and comprising about forty miners, started at Rich Bar and followed the river to the coast. On December 7th they arrived at Trinidad Head which they named Gregg's Point, after their leader. Turning south they moved along the shore and on December 20th discovered Humboldt Bay, which they called Trinity Bay because they believed that this was the water which they had reached. The Indian name for the bay was Qual-a-waloo.

During the Spring of 1850 attempts were made to find the entrance to the bay from sea. Again the Cameo was unsuccessful but on April 9, 1850, The Laura Virginia under Captain Ottinger sailed into the harbor, and the skipper believing that he had discovered a new body of water named it Humboldt Bay after the famous German Scholar Alexander Von Humboldt. The Laura Virginia discovered the entrance only after a long voyage. The start had been made from San Francisco on March 20th. Heavy fogs plagued the navigators for a number of days. They went as far north as Pt. St. George (now in Del Norte County), and then turned south. After entering the mouths of the Klamath and the Mad Rivers and Trinity Bay, the lookout observed a break in the shore line, and upon sailing in the great bay was found for the first time from the sea. But the actual discovery or rediscovery had taken place on December 20, 1849, when the land party reached the bay from inland. It may be of passing interest to observe that on this day (December 20, 1849), the California State government under the First Constitution was

Men and equipment hard at work on the extension of the All-American Canal from Imperial Valley bringing Colorado River water to Coachella Valley for some of the richest land in America.

Fabulous Coachella

By ED AINSWORTH

IT is known as the land where rock floats and wood sinks.

And the whole country is just as unpredictable as that. It is a fact that pumice stone floats on water, and ironwood sinks down in the Coachella Valley. So nothing ever surprises the natives—not even the current land boom, which suddenly has catapulted Coachella Valley into the national limelight. The boom is due to the coming of the extension of the All-American Canal from Imperial Valley, bringing Colorado River water for some of the richest land in America. The land, plus the warm winter climate—modestly said to be the best within the limits of the United States—has created an ideal condition for the growing of mammoth sweet grapefruit, tangerines bursting with juice, succulent early peas, crimson-cheeked tomatoes in January and scads of other eatables.

Coachella Valley sort of looks down on its swank neighbor, Palm Springs, which lacks many of the valley's advantages. The attention suddenly given this favored region of Coachella by millions of shivering unfortunates who live elsewhere amid ice and snow and smog has brought about an influx of new population. The result is something about equally made up of the Yukon gold rush, Coney Island and the Oklahoma land race.

The four townships of Indio, Coachella, Thermal and Mecca are inhabited by the lowest-down people on earth. They will cheerfully admit it. The whole region is below sea-level. The land slopes gently from exactly sea level just at Indio to an abysmal 248 or so below sea level at Gus Eiler's famous swimming resort on Salton Sea.

This Salton Sea is a freak body of water about 40 miles long and 10 miles wide, created when the Colorado River broke loose in 1906 and re-flooded the old sea bed which makes up the Coachella Valley.

It is a crazy place all the way around. It is desert land with sagebrush and greasewood, yet the soil is full of tiny shel which are relics of the old freshwater se It even got its name by a mistake—a go ernment surveyor in the early days se in a report on the region called "Co chilla" for the Indian word meani "shell," and some bureaucrat in Washin ton misread it and made it "Coachella."

The valley's fame heretofore has rest chiefly upon the fact that it is the on spot in the nation growing dates on a lar commercial scale and that Gen. George Patton trained his famous desert troo at Camp Young, near the valley. Produ tion in 1944 was 30,000,000 pounds; la year it wasn't much because a couple cloudbursts came along and almost ruin the crop.

It is a violent land in more ways th cloudbursts. The sun burns down with unlimited gusto in the summertime. Som times the zephyrs that caress it carry te phone poles on their wings.

But it is a seductive land that, on visited, is never forgotten. If it is visit twice, the visitor usually longs to be permanent resident, and often becomes o

A Date In Dateland

WO white-capped mountains rise loftily in frigid grandeur to guard the rance into Coachella Valley. San Jacinto k rises perpendicular on the right. To left towers San Gorgonio, its snowy wn gleaming in the sun. The black ribn of road stretches across white sands the southeast through hills sparsely ered (if we may coin a word) with ert scrubbery.

he bleak stretch from Whitewater south, ugh awesomely beautiful, leaves the veler wholely unprepared for his first npse of the great valley oasis, green h growing things and majestic with its , stately columns of regal date palms. e are date gardens that outrival their ebears in far away Persia.

t wasn't always thus. Even in our nory, a trip to this land below sea level s undertaken only by the adventurous. re were no pleasant resorts and accomlations. Water and camping equipment e always carried. These date trees were , shall we say, native sons and daughs. They were imported from Arabia.

According to the story by the old timers, a hobo dropped off a freight train in the early spring of 1901. His name was Bernard Johnson. He was something of an international meanderer as knights of the road go and his travels had taken him over most of Europe and a good part of North Africa.

Here in this arid wilderness of an almost forgotten slice of California he chose to work and filed homestead papers on a desert claim But back in his memories he remembered how the dates thrived in a country climatically identical with this new found valley He visioned this land growing dates as on the oases of the Sahara. His enthusiasm convinced the Mecca Land Company and they staked him in his venture, giving him ten acres and guaranteeing water.

So it was, with $300 in cash with which to buy date offshoots, Johnson hitch-hiked across a continent and an ocean to far away Algeria. Late summer found him back with 129 offshoots, 87 of them the popular Deglet Noors.

Johnson wasn't the first to plant date trees in America. The mission padres planted seeds and now date palms are growing at some of the missions. In 1890, the United States Department of Agriculture imported a few date shoots, two of which are reported to be growing in the Coachella Valley. But nothing came of the venture until Bernard Johnson dropped off a freight, visioned those ancient date gardens of Algeria and hitch-hiked his way half way around the world and back to make the first commercial planting here in California.

Last year's (1944) crop paid the date farmers of Coachella Valley $6,964,000. Some 13,140 tons were picked off of 3,227 bearing acres. The average price per ton was $530. A great deal of money, to be sure, but if you are aspiring to becoming a date rancher we're warning you that these farmers don't just laze around soaking up glorious desert sun while sipping luscious date milk shakes for there's a great deal of work connected with raising dates.

A date palm is climbed 27 to 35 times in a year to produce a crop. The ladders are high as it's a thirty to forty foot climb to reach the business end of a palm tree. The first ascension is for the purpose of cutting out what's left of the old bunches and pruning off the dead lower fronds. If the noon whistle doesn't find you up a tree, the job is done in a single operation. The next climb is to dethorn the new fronds. These long needle-like thorns can cause ugly wounds to the men who work in dates. A long handled machete shaped knife is used to slice off these stilletto-like daggers from each side of the stems of these great palm leaves.

Pollenating starts in mid-February and ends the last of May. It's necessary to be up the tree every four days for two and a half months. The pollen of the male tree must be dusted on the flowers of the female date. These pearl-like blossoms grow on long stems, heavily bunched together in a protective sheath. As the blossoms develop, the sheaths swell and break. The blossoms must be fertilized within four days after blooming. It's quite a job to trim a third of the blossoms, insert sprigs of male pollen, tie, bag, sulphur and cinch down the date producing branches.

At Valerie Jean's, south of Indio, we found King Solomon. This famous palm

San Francisco

By COMMANDER SCOTT

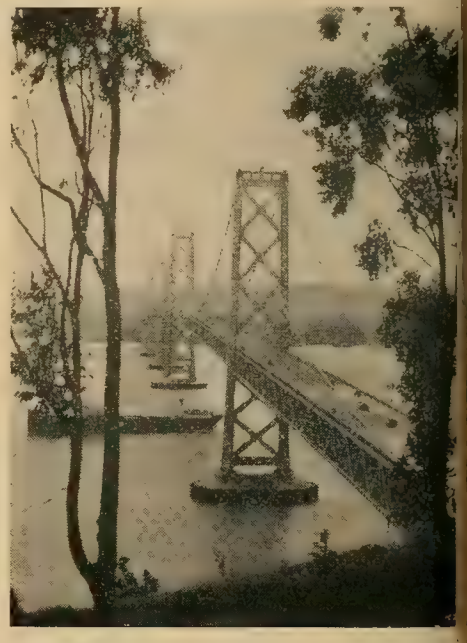
(Radio Commentator—Lecturer—World Traveler and Author)

PORTSMOUTH SQUARE, or Plaza, was really the birthplace of San Francisco, for it was here that the American flag was raised for the first time in the city. The Vigilantes also assembled in this Square and marched forth from there when it became necessary for them to restore law and order. During the time Robert Louis Stevenson was in San Francisco he would go there and sit on the benches in order to hear the tales of the seamen who had sailed the Seven Seas—tales of their hardships, adventures and perils. Today great skyscraper buildings edge close to the Square, but in those days it was but a short step from the waterfront.

Many businessmen have seen the profit that is to be made by obtaining a corner in any essential product in any given locality and some immense fortunes have been won by this simple expedient. Repeatedly men have tried to get a monopoly in essential foods, lumber and even in other commodities, but one has to go back to the thrilling western days of '49 and '50 to discover one of the strangest and most amusing corners that was ever pulled on the public.

When news of the Gold Strike hit Yerba Buena, as San Francisco was then called, it was a small and for the most part, a sleepy village of rough log and adobe houses dotted about near the waterfront and around Portsmouth Square that we just mentioned.

There they obtained the necessary equipment and supplies and then dashed off to the gold fields. Almost overnight the sleepy village grew into a flourishing busy town, but even its phenomenal growth was far too slow to take care of the ever growing multitude of gold seekers on their way to and returning from the Mother Lode.



It was the captain of the schooner Niantic who first thought of the idea of using his ship as a hotel and warehouse. He built a rough gang plank out over the mud and he was soon doing a flourishing business. Naturally other captains followed suit and soon a hotel and business section sprang up on board the numerous sailing ships that were tied up on the mud where Sansome street is now. But these ships were perfect breeding grounds for rats. Everywhere you went at night you would see the evil looking creatures, and large supplies of wheat and other food stocks were destroyed and eaten by the ever-increasing army of rodents. Unfortunately there were few cats in San Francisco at that time, so before long the situation reached alarming proportions. Then it was that Peter Biggs, a colored barber in Los Angeles, hit on a novel idea. From personal observation he knew that there was a definite surplus of cats in Los Angeles. Now why couldn't he buy up these cats and tranship them to San Francisco? The more he thought about it, the better he liked the idea, but he realized that he would have to invest considerable capital if he was going to buy all the cats, and he must have a monopoly. But he hadn't any capital. Then another idea hit him: why buy the cats? He would simply kidnap them. So he set work to trap and catch every cat he could see anywhere, and it was comparatively easy, when he offered them a piece of juicy meat they willingly approached, only to be seized and unceremoniously thrown into a sack with a lot more. When the sack was full he would put them in crates. In four days there was hardly a cat left anywhere on the streets of Los Angeles. Pete then transported the crates of cats to San Pedro and transhipped them to San Francisco. He had nearly a thousand cats and soon as news got around that a car of cats had arrived everyone came dow to the waterfront to purchase the animal small ones, big ones, sleek ones, all we wanted. At first the barber asked twen dollars apiece, but he found that everyo was more than willing to pay the price, he upped it to forty dollars, finally to o hundred dollars. And so Peter Biggs, an u known colored barber from Los Angele made a fortune of over fifty thousand d lars by getting a monopoly on the cats California.

Although he had shown remarkab shrewdness in carrying out the plan, wasn't used to wealth. He went on a spen ing spree, invited everyone to drink at h expense and then finished up in a Gamblin Saloon. When he left it three days later, was absolutely broke and even had to bo row enough money to get back to his litt barber shop in Los Angeles. But he h saved San Francisco from being overrun an epidemic of rats. He was the Americ counterpart of the Pied Piper of Hamli and like the Pied Piper he failed to ma any lasting financial gain from his ente prise.

Today all sign of the old Waterfront h disappeared, large modern buildings n stand where the crumbling hulks of t Niantic and other ships once stood. In t pavement, near the beautiful Mechani Memorial Bronze Statue at the corner Battery and Market Streets, a plaque mar the line of the old bay shore; otherwise it for the most part forgotten, even by t people who work in the office buildings th stand on land that has been recovered fr the waters of the bay. That reclaiming the land tells a silent story of the ente prise, courage and progress that went in the making of San Francisco.

It doesn't matter when you see the gre Bay bridges—in the sunlight or in the f at sunset or at night they are always ma nificent and inspiring. Gabriel Moraga

EARLY CALIFORNIA VALLEY EXPLORER

By EMMETT P. JOY, Grand Historian, NSGW

THE autumn of the year 1806 must have been an unusual scene in the San Joaquin Valley—wild, lonely and unexplored; it was the destination of Gabriel Moraga's expedition. They probably observed the beauty of this particular season as some of the trees were leafless although others which bordered the rivers were of golden hue. At night the autumn moon must have shone on the land and under its soft rays of light sat Gabriel Moraga and his men near the flickering camp fires.

Gabriel Moraga was the son of Lieutenant Jose Moraga who was second in command of the second expedition of Captain Juan Bautista de Anza the colonizer of San Francisco.

Gabriel had a very energetic and successful career as an officer in the Spanish army. He enlisted in 1784 and in 1788 he was promoted to Corporal in the Monterey Company. From 1800 to 1806 he was Sergeant. In 1811 he was made Brevet Lieutenant for the gallantry in the battle with the Indians on the Strait of Carquines; then in April, 1818 he received his commission as lieutenant of the Santa Barbara Company. According to his report of 1820 he had been connected with forty-six expeditions against Indians and had taken part in ten battles.

Gabriel Moraga with his company of men traveled along discovering and naming rivers and Indian villages while in search of suitable mission sites also making a survey of the Indian settlements of the valleys of California.

Inland exploration was an important activity during the final two decades of the Spanish regime. The first and most principal penetration was that made in 1806 to the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. During September Governor Arrillaga notified the Commandant of Monterey de la Guerra that one expedition instead of two should be sent to the valley area.

The expedition consisting of twenty men started from San Juan Bautista on September 21, Father Pedro Munoz served as chaplain and kept a full diary of the trip. The route followed was northeast of San Juan over the mountains and entered the valley in the vicinity of the present boundary between Merced and Fresno and then turned northward.

Above Merced a rancheria of Tahuamne Indians was found. Thus, the origination of the word Tuolumne. These natives were not hostile, therefore, were not troublesome to the explorer. Subsequently the river in this region was called the Tuolumne.

Moraga also discovered and named the Stanislaus River on this expedition.

"Mariposa" which is Spanish for butterfly was first given in the plural form, Los Mariposas in Merced by Moraga. Mariposa County was so named.

In October the expedition turned; one party keeping to the hills and another in the valley until they reached the Merced River. Moraga named the river "El Rio de Nuestra Senora de La Merced" (the River of our Lady of Mercy). Merced County named from the river.

Moraga was supposed to have made an expedition to the San Joaquin and the Sierra in the year 1807.

During the expedition of 1808 he named many of the rivers in the valley, and ventured as far north to what is now known as Yuba county. Moraga was perhaps the first white man to cross the streams of this area. It is said that he probably proceeded as far north as the present Nevada county. As they journeyed onward they camped on the lower Feather river on October 9 which Moraga called the Sacramento and the name was given to the larger river into which it flows. Today we have the name Sacramento given to the city of Sacramento, the Capital of California, and the county. The expedition crossed the river and came upon a mountain range in the middle of the valley, these mountains were, perhaps, the Marysville Buttes.

On his expedition of 1808 Moraga reached the banks of the Calaveras river where he discovered many Indian skulls, and the natives informed him of the tribes who formerly lived in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys and that they made war on the tribes of the Sierra when fishing in these waters. In a great battle fought on the Calaveras river 3,000 were killed, hence the skulls and the name.

In the year of 1810 Moraga with Father Viader made two expeditions to the San Joaquin to find mission sites. The first trip was made in August, the route was northward from Mission San Jose to the mouth of the San Joaquin and then across the mountains to San Juan Bautista. The second journey was made in October with a company of twenty-three soldiers and fifty armed neophytes. This force captured thirty Indians and sent them back to the mission under guard of Corporal Pico. A new survey of the country between the Merced and Tuolumne rivers was again made.

In May, 1810 Moraga commanded a party of seventeen men to penalize the Indians of the Sespesuya rancheria who lived across the bay from San Francisco somewhere near the strait of Carquinez in the region of Suisun and who for several years had committed depredations and killing neophytes from San Francisco. He crossed the Carquinez strait and after a hard fight had won the battle. Governor Arrillaga sent an account of this brilliant affair to Mexico and the viceroy transmitted it to Spain, there came back a royal order expressing the satisfaction of the council of regency, in the king's name, at the glorious action of May 22, 1810. By the terms of this order Moraga was promoted to a Brevet Lieutenancy.

There was trouble in November at San Gabriel where an attack was deemed imminent and Moraga was ordered south. Little is known of the affair that took place but the danger, whatever it may have been, was averted through his efforts.

The area of Mt. Diablo was explored by Moraga and at this point let us deviate to consider the derivation of the name Monte Diablo for by such name it is known in the early American surveys.

General M. G. Vallejo, an authority on California lore, in his famous report to the legislature, dated April 16, 1850, says:

"Mount Diablo, which occupies a conspicuous place in modern maps, is the center of this county (as it was then and still is). It was intended so to call the county, but both branches of the legislature, after warm debates on the subject (the representatives of the county opposing the said name), resolved upon the less profane one of "Contra Costa". The following he then gives as the history of Monte del Diablo:

"In 1806 a military expedition from San Francisco marched against the tribe "Bolgones", who were encamped at the foot of the mount: the Indians were prepared to receive the expedition, and a hot engagement ensued in the large hollow fronting the western side of the mount. As the victory was about to be decided in favor of the Indians, an unknown personage, decorated with the most extraordinary plumage, and making divers movements, suddenly appeared near the combatants. The Indians were victorious and the incognito (Puy) departed towards the mount. The defeated soldiers on ascertaining that the spirit went through the same ceremony daily and at all hours named the mount "Diablo", in allusion to its mysterious inhabitant, that continued thus to make his appearance until the tribe was subdued by the troops in command of Lieutenant Gabriel Moraga, in a second expedition of the same year. In the aboriginal tongue "Puy" signifies "Evil Spirit" in Spanish it means "Diablo" and "devil" in the Anglo-American language."

It is said that Moraga named the San Joaquin River in 1813. San Joaquin is Spanish for St. Joachim he named the river in honor of that saint and subsequently was used to designate the county.

Gabriel Moraga was a kind hearted, popular and successful soldier. The names which he gave to these rivers will forever remain as a monument to his explorations in California.

THOMAS H. KUCHEL, former state senator, recently appointed State Controller by Governor Earl Warren. The new controller is a member of the Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, Anaheim. His father, the late Henry Kuchel, pioneer publisher of the Anaheim Gazette, which recently celebrated its 75th Anniversary, was a member of the old parlor in that Southern California city many years ago. Kuchel's grandparents came to San Francisco in 1848 by sailing vessel.

VACATIONLAND

Only a little snow on the north slopes and high up, reports Harry L. Burden of Moon Camp, at Fawnskin, on Big Bear Lake, but there's still enough to roll up a snow man or two. There are twenty housekeeping cabins at his north shore resort, all snug with stoves or fireplaces. The modern touch is added with a gas range in the kitchen. Moon Camp boasts thirty boats and one of the best landings on the lake. When up at Big Bear don't miss driving up to the lookout station on Butler Peak. It's a glorious sight. Big Bear and Arrowhead lakes lie at your feet and Catalina Island can be seen way off in the Pacific. Rates for cabins start from $1.25 per person and run to slightly higher.

Across the lake, Peter Pan Clubhouse is operating under the supervision of B. W. Deming. No longer must one be a member to enjoy this elite club. Fine dinners are available at reasonable prices. First run moving pictures are shown nightly. You may enjoy dancing to a top notch orchestra once a week. There are ample cabins available on reservation. Come spring, the Peter Pan nine-hole golf course will open up for the first time since the war. There's a grand swimming pool, with heated and filtered water.

We can't overlook Lagonita Lodge. Harry Beckler runs this luxuriously rustic resort on the American plan. He serves his bountiful meals family style. He's on the south shore of Big Bear Lake.

The Desert Circus is scheduled for the first part of April in Palm Springs. There'll be several days of rodeo, a street parade, barbecue and an amateur vaudeville show. This last is scouted by Hollywood . . . There are no accommodations available in Palm Springs, as far as we could ascertain. Everything appears to be booked solid for the season.

Out in Lucerne Valley, the yuccas are getting ready to burst into bloom. We already saw desert verbena in riotous purple spreading across the desert sands . . . Bill Stillwell at Von Bretons has just finished building a fine looking game room. There's even a recording phonograph for dancing. He runs some pretty fair livestock on his place, according to what we could see in his new cold box. Juicy steaks always make enjoyable eating.

May Coster manages the C-Bar-H. It's quite a sight to see her guests seated at the ranch dining table at meal times. The cook comes out and beats on the iron triangle with a "Come and get it." They come in from all directions, afoot and horseback. Mary takes good care of her guests. A while back a newly married couple were expected. They were to fly in as guests of the radio "Bride and Groom" program. After a lot of phoning, Mary found they had been grounded in San Bernardino. She set out immediately in the station wagon and brought them home.

The Irene McCarthy ranch is one of the most picturesque of all. A half dozen miles out of Victorville, her private road angles off the black-topped pavement. Across a low mountain pass, the ranch sprawls out in the valley. Irene has excellent riding accommodations for fiftv guests. There's no charge for horseback riding. Informality is the word to best describe this hospitable ranch . . . Rates on the dude ranches are based on the American plan and generally begin at $7.50 a day for singles, with lower rates by the week.

Recently, we were in San Francisco. Never have we seen so many fine restaurants catering to the epicuric whims of a hungry populace. Though we couldn't try but a few, we'll go on record saying Chas. Fashion Grill is just about "tops" in our opinion.

A Fascinating Little Book of Stories of California Deserts

Price 25c

Home-Town Printers

126 East Center St. Anaheim, California

DESERT SOUVENIR

A four-color picture suitable for framing shows the Covered Wagon Train of '68 crossing the desert; now on display at Knott's Berry Place, Highway 39, two miles from Buena Park, out of Los Angeles 22 miles. This remarkable oil painting, 20 x 60 feet, took over one year to complete. A copy will be mailed you together with the special souvenir edition of our Western Magazine, jampacked with original drawings and pictures and complete description of Ghost Town and Knott's Berry Place. Both will be mailed with current issue of our 36-page magazine for 25 cents postpaid in the U. S. A. Thousands have already viewed this great work of art and acclaim it a wonderful contribution to the history of the West. Admission is without charge whether you stay for the chicken dinner and boysenberry pie or not. Send 25 cents for all three: picture, souvenir and current issue to GHOST TOWN NEWS, Buena Park, Calif.

The Desert Magazine

This column for March seems to resolve itself down to the reviewing of magazines on the California scene, which in their own way are preserving the history and traditions of our state.

One of these, familiar to many Native Sons and Daughters, is the Desert Magazine published at El Centro by Randall Henderson and associates. This publication, unique among all magazines, extols the history and natural wonders of our southwestern deserts, as no other publication has ever done. Randall Henderson insists on his articles presenting the human interest side of what might otherwise be a dull and uninteresting subject. The Desert Magazine insists on accuracy and has no room for story-book fiction.

Famous for its beautiful covers, Desert goes in for beautiful black and white pictures to illustrate its articles. However, it presents plenty of reading matter in its stories to let their effect linger long after you may have forgotten the pictures.

Since November, 1937, when the first issue of Desert came off the press, its circulation has steadily grown until now it has reached 27,000 copies. Its circulation reaches far beyond the confines of the desert area, being highly prized by those who have been exposed to the charm of the desert country, but whose circumstances keep them from visiting this fascinating section as often as they would like.

Published monthly, the Desert is $2.50 per year, or 25c per copy on the news stands.

Ghost Town News

Ghost Town News, published monthly out at Knott's Berry Place in Buena Park, is all that the name implies. It dutifully chronicles the happenings of the past. Right now, a series of stories, written by Rockwell D. Hunt and illustrated on the cover by Paul V. Klieben, is appearing regularly, describing the ghost towns of the past.

Every issue is crammed full of authentic history, autobiographies, amusing and factual. To those interested in the history of the Golden West, it will prove a constant source of interesting and reliable information.

Nicholas Field Wilson is the editor.

In Buena Park, Walter Knott, owner of Ghost Town News, has laboriously erected an authentic ghost town of his own. He has searched far and wide for the authentic antiques that have helped to furnish his boom town of yesteryear. Even the lumber that went into the buildings came out of the past when ancient weatherbeaten houses were torn down to make way for more modern edifices. Though Ghost Town was erected about five years ago, over a million people have visited it during the past year alone.

ROMANCE OF THE HIGHWAYS OF CALIFORNIA

by COMMANDER SCOTT

An interesting and beautifully illustrated book about California.

320 pages of authentic material and countless interesting stories, told in Commander Scott's intimate and friendly style.

THE OLD TIMER

RECOLLECTS

"Sure," affirmed Old Timer, "Pa and Ma did come across the plains with oxen, but me, I wouldn't know about that." The white haired pioneer who laid claim to the distinction of being the first white child born in the county looked up from beneath his wide brimmed black Stetson and grinned. "Ya see, I wasn't along 'cause I just wasn't born yet."

Old Timer paused to watch a gayly colored humming bird hovering before a huge hybiscus bloom, sampling the nectar through its long bill.

"Fact is, the only yoke of oxen around these parts belonged to old man Schultz. They were both big red beasts and Schultz used them to plow his ranch down on the river bottom. Reckon they did a right smart job, too, judging by the stuff he brought to market. But heck, that was way back in the days when this town was just a pup. Still, those were the only oxen that I ever met personally and they didn't live forever.

"Eventually there came a day when one of the critters up and died . . . but Schultz kept right on plowing with his one ox.

"I was quite a jim dandy in those days. Cut some figure with the gals come Saturday night even if I do have to say so myself.

"Had a friend by the name of Barber. Now Barber was no barber. Barber was a butcher. Every Saturday he and I used to hire a livery rig and high tail it down the road at a brisk trot for the colony. In the old days the settlement boasted the best brewmaster this side of the Sierras, the Rockies and Milwaukee. Beer just ain't what it used to be."

There was a challenge in Old Timer's tone that we cared not to dispute.

"Well, Barber and I, as usual, had had a real rip-snortin' time. We were jogging along home with the livery rig, singin' kind of loud and sweet, when we saw old Schultz and his lone big ox.

"You know maybe how young fellers can be feelin' their oats, so to speak? That's how we felt."

Old Timer grinned, remembering.

"We stopped ol' man Schultz and sort of joshing, we asked how he would swap. 'Reckon a porely hoss is better than a big bull ox,' says Schultz, so we up and traded even.

"That was a funny sight, no doubt, us young fellers splicing that too short harness onto that huge ox. We pictured ourselves driving down Main Street with an ox for a horse. If anybody gave a thought to what the proprietor of the livery stable might say, they didn't audibly mention it.

"We patched the harness on all right including the horse collar, but trouble started when we tried to back the critter between the buggy shafts. There seemed to be just a mite too much belly. High or low, those shafts just wouldn't stretch to fit.

"After a lot of hemmin' and hawin', we came to the conclusion that we should have arrived at in the first place. It was all a big mistake. Naturally, we took it up with old man Schultz, who had stayed to watch.

"Guess we can't trade, after all, Mr. Schultz.

"But the old man didn't see eye to eye. A trade was a trade. There were a lot of strong words exchanged but do you think the old Shylock would give in? No, sir, he made us pay him ten dollars to boot to trade back!"

atch with a huge dog over fried chicken a discussion of the proper way to raise ildren and pups.

THE BARNACLE'S birth is typical of e way things happen in Coachella, fast d furious! The editors described it this ay in an early edition under the heading, faternity Chart on The Barnacle!"

8:37 p. m., Dec. 5—THE BIG IDEA de- lops in casual conversation after dinner the home of one of the editors.

8:31 p. m., Dec. 6—A price is obtained om printer on first edition. The editors b the piggy bank and pawn their watches.

11:11 a. m., Dec. 8—Camilo Castro and rst National Bank buy the first ads in achella.

7:01 p. m., Dec. 9—The advertising in st edition is all sold out, with aid of hn Hilton and other friends.

5:15 p. m., Dec. 12—The first news ories are written.

The board walk at Gus Eiler's Date Palm Beach on the North Shore Road from Mecca to Niland.

6:12 p. m., Dec. 13—Clyde Forsythe, famous artist, turns in the first of the Greasewood Gus series to be made into a cut.

10:00 a. m., Dec. 14—The final news stories are given the printer in South Pasadena.

1:14 p. m., Dec. 15.—The presses start rolling in South Pasadena Review office, where the first edition is being printed.

3:00 p. m., Dec. 15—The editor's car, which was to be used to take papers to the valley, breaks down thoroughly.

5:00 p. m., Dec. 15.—Clyde Forsythe loans his station wagon.

7:30 a. m., Dec. 16—The editor takes off with the precious cargo.

11:13 a. m., Dec. 16—First papers reach John Hilton's place, across from Valerie Jean's.

Noon, Dec. 16—People say they like it.

Immediately afterward, Dec. 16—The editors have a nervous breakdown.

Success stories leap out at the reporter on every hand, as Frank Taylor, who is doing a story on the valley for the Saturday Evening Post, is finding out.

Russ Nicoll started peddling dates from a tiny roadside shop back about 1928. Today, at Valerie Corner, 11 miles south of Indio, his "Valerie Jean Date Shop" does a gross business of $150,000 a year or so and has been written up in Reader's Digest and other publications.

Gus Eilers has a "boardwalk" and everything over at his famous swimming resort on the North Shore Road from Mecca to Niland. Gus has developed a grapefruit Collins that is as famous as his hospitality.

Coachella Valley's scenery is world famous. Painted Canyon is a riot of crimson and vari-colored stone. Wild palms hide up tiny canyons. Ancient fish traps, built by aborigines, can be inspected. The date gardens are cool and inviting. The sunrises and sunsets flame across the tawny hills.

Religious fervor is mixed in with the robust spirit of the frontier. At Travertine Point, 23 miles below Indio on Highway 99, in a setting strikingly resembling the Holy Land, Easter Sunrise services will be conducted April 21 as the sun comes up over the sparkling Salton Sea.

Yes, the irrigation water is coming to a rich and abundant land, and the rush is on. As THE BARNACLE says, "The new frontier is on the march." Coachella Valley is aflame with the pioneer spirit. New wealth is being born. It is a sight worth seeing.

the longest single span in the world—the Golden Gate Bridge.

But there are many interesting parts of the old harbor. We strolled along the Marina, which is built on the 1915 Exposition Grounds where the beautiful Palace of Fine Arts still stands. In front is a lake on which swim dignified swans and small boys sail their boats.

On our return we transferred to a cable car. There, my friends, is real fun! As a youngster do you recall the thrills you got from roller coaster rides? Here you can enjoy them again on the cable cars. Straight up and down the hills they climb and dive, bells clanging, wheels squealing around corners, the gripman grabbing and tugging at huge levers that clamp on the cable. It's fun.

Sidewalk flower markets greeted us at many corners and their gay profusion of fragrant blossoms lent a happy fiesta note to the crowded business districts. The flowers were amazingly inexpensive, and we found that beautiful flowers truly enter into the spirit of San Francisco.

We explored Chinatown, the largest Chinese community outside of China. The deeper we wandered from where it commenced at Grant and Bush streets the more interesting it became. We discovered an Unreal Reality in the Telephone Exchange. Chinese operators make connections for literally thousands of telephones where calls are made by name, for Chinatown does not dial —they ask for whom they want, the operator does the rest.

One of the most interesting things to be seen in all San Francisco is the first vessel to explore and to navigate the long sought for Northwest Passage. This tiny vessel, the Gjoa, now stands on dry land in Golden Gate Park facing the sea. She is a staunch vessel, but so small that one marvels that her crew of six and her famous Captain, the bold Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen, with their supplies, ever managed to stow away on her. To us she represents courage and adventure on the seaways of the world. We gave a silent tribute to everything the sturdy little craft stands for as well as to her intrepid crew and skipper.

San Francisco Chinatown, largest Chinese city outside of China.

Nearby Dutch windmills go round and round. Originally they pumped drinking water for the early settlement of San Francisco. Now these picturesque colorful windmills pump water that cascades into Lake Stowe and that has turned bleak sand dunes into beautiful Golden Gate Park.

Don't take Golden Gate Park lightly. For in all of America there is no finer city park, and it's all man-made, even its lakes. There are flowers and shrubs from all parts of the world, miles of bridle paths, scattered enclosures for herds of buffalo and other wild life, a museum. an aquarium, a stadium for sports and many playgrounds for children, all spread over a thousand acres.

We liked Market Street, that great broad central arterial that stretches from the old Ferry Building to Twin Peaks. It has four street car tracks along which charge clanging trolleys and we marvelled that the cars on the tracks didn't run over a dozen people a day, as passengers got on and off with only a few inches to spare between them and the oncoming cars on the other tracks. We liked the shopping district that lined Market (San Franciscans rarely say "Street") and the great Palace Hotel, which was once the biggest in the world.

We were also impressed with the Civic Center and San Francisco is justly proud of her great buildings that stand around a beautifully landscaped square and present an imposing picture of well thought out architecture.

At one end of Market, spreading both ways from the Ferry Building, is the wide Embarcadero. Here ships, carry the commerce of the world, lie quietly at their docks while trucks, trains, stevedores, taxis, passengers and onlookers bustle about to serve and observe them. There is lots of drama and romance here for those who will but take a little time to look for it.

The Mission Dolores, in the Mission District, has been kept in a state of good repair. The first mass was said there only a few days before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The inside walls were painted by the Indians and the colors that they made out of vegetable dyes are still bright after all these years. One interesting feature of note is that all the ceiling beams were tied together with rawhide because they had no nails when the Mission was built. This job was so well done that the Mission came through the earthquake of 1906 and still stands today.

Among other things in San Francisco that stand out in our memory is North Beach, the largest Latin Quarter in the West. The people all look happy and they seem just as much at home here in sunny California as they were originally in sunny Italy.

San Francisco today is still as interesting and colorful as it was in those thrilling days of '49 and '50, and is still one of the most cosmopolitan and romantic cities to be found along the scenic highways of the west.

LAKE GEORGE, in the High Sierras. George M. Spears, Anaheim photographer, took the picture. Searching out early California scenes is a hobby of Photographer Spears, who is well known to many Native Sons and Daughters for his lectures on the Missions, illustrated by beautiful, large hand-tinted photographs. With the coming of spring and summer thousands of fishermen will throng to lakes in the High Sierras in quest of the elusive trout.

GRAND PARLOR OF NATIVE SONS AT HOBERGS, MAY 20-21-22-23

GRAND PARLOR AT HOBERGS

The Board of Grand Officers, by a postcard vote, unanimously voted to hold the 946 Grand Parlor session at Hobergs, Lake County, California, and the dates fixed re—Monday, May 20; Tuesday, May 21; Thursday, May 23, with Wednesday, May 22, s a day for pleasure.

One of the finest Grand Parlor sessions ever held by our Order was held at Hoergs in the year 1942, and it was so successful that the Grand Parlor meeting there ntertained a resolution to meet there the following year. However, Brother George loberg, the host of this Grand Parlor, stated on the floor of the Grand Parlor that due) war conditions he was afraid he could not handle the same at the time. He did, evertheless, allow a Conference to be held there in the year 1945.

This year, 1946, Brother Hoberg states his entertainment will excell that of 1942, nd therefore all members of our Order who journey to Lake County for the coming rand Parlor are assured one of the best sessions ever held.

Wren, grand trustee; Inside Sentinel, John T. Regan, grand secretary; Organist, Al Weber, grand organist.

Previous to the meeting a banquet was served to over one hundred members and visitors.

The Board of Grand Officers (Board of Directors) of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West held a meeting in the office of the Grand Secretary, 414 Mason Street, San Francisco, the latter part of February, with all members of the Board present.

Utopia Parlor Plans For Active Year

Utopia Parlor No. 270, NSGW, held one of its most enjoyable meetings in over four years on Tuesday evening, Feb. 5, 1946. Four candidates were initiated by a capable set of new officers under the leadership of President Timothy J. O'Leary. The Ritual was well exemplified and so as to keep the officers in condition, applications are still on the desk and coming in. There will be no rest for them this term.

Several of our returned veterans were present along with "Our" Brother Jack Reid, who pays his dues to South San Francisco Parlor No. 157. Brother Reid offered one of his inspiring talks to the members present. Refreshments were served after the meeting by Brother Ex-Sergeant John Toohey and from the lay-out it could be that he may have been a Mess Sergeant. The returned veterans, including Brother Toohey, have taken an active interest in the meetings, committees and offices, so the old Utopia Spark has been rekindled. It was pretty dim at times but never really went out.

The Good of the Order Committee have picked the Parlor's 18th birthday on May 13, 1946, or around that date, for the "Welcome Home" party for our returned heroes, so we earnestly hope that the remaining 12 of our 26 servicemen will be mustered out by that time and be welcomed home to their Parlor and friends in the old Utopia style. There is no member in the Parlor who welcomes home the kids as are the "Old youngsters" who, with a skeleton group, held up the name of the Utopia Drum Corps for the past few years and deserve a great deal of credit, so look out you other Corps, Utopia will soon be on the march again spreading Native Sonism and good fellowship throughout this great State of ours.

Stanford Parlor Member Named Judge Advocate by Gen. Stilwell

Col. Ingemar E. Hoberg, who served as judge advocate on the staff of General Robert L. Eichelberger in New Guinea and the staff of Major General J. P. Swift in Japan, and who was decorated by General Douglas MacArthur after he was wounded in the invasion of the Philippines at Lingayen Gulf, has been appointed judge advocate on the staff of General Joseph Stilwell, at the Presidio until June, after which he will return to law practice in San Francisco.

Colonel Hoberg, well known in San Francisco legal circles, although filling a desk job officially, was made reconnaissance officer and saw action at Biak, Halmahera, Lingayen and way points to Tokyo. His unit, the I Corps, received the Presidential citation for gallantry in action. At a ceremony in the Presidio recently, Colonel Hoberg received the DSM from General Frank Merrill, of "Merrill's Marauders" fame.

He is an active member of Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW.

Compton Native Daughters Dedicate Cemetery Monument

In the first event of a year beginning the Centennial of American acquisition of this area from Mexico, Compton Parlor, NDGW, gathered Sunday afternoon Jan. 31, at the 75-year-old Compton Rural Cemetery to dedicate a historical marker, placing the monument at the family plot of Griffith Dickenson Compton, who came to that section in 1875 and gave his name to what is now a thriving, progressive city. The cemetery is now under the jurisdiction of the modern Woodlawn cemetery which it adjoins.

Pointing out that the American flag was first raised in Los Angeles almost 100 years ago, Dr. Owen C. Coy, director of the California Historical Ass'n and professor of history at the University of Southern California, declared in the address of the day that there is much of value in recognizing the contribution of American pioneers in this area.

Dr. Coy said he found an interesting study in the influence of a church in the founding and early development of Compton. He pointed out that Mr. Compton had a hand in the opening of the First Methodist church in 1868. Several years later at the appointment of a regular pastor membership in the church rose to 120 members, being the largest Methodist church in Southern California at that time, exceeding even the Los Angeles church, which had a membership of only 30 members.

Mrs. Faye Young, president of Compton parlor, opened the program, presenting Mrs. Edith Norton, past pres., who gave the invocation. Mrs. Dorothy Rice, also a past pres., served as marshall in leading the Pledge to the Flag. The audience sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

Brief remarks were made by Alfred Jones, county surveyor and chairman of the Los Angeles County History and Landmarks committee, who also presented Arthur Woodward, curator of history at the county museum and Richard Flickwir, assistant secretary of the committee.

Mrs. Ethel C. Enos, Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, officiated at the unveiling of the monument and made the formal presentation to County Supervisor Raymond V. Darby, who made the formal acceptance.

Engraved on the monument is the following inscription:

"Compton Rural Cemetery, 1871. Established for the use of the settlers of the newly founded town of Compton located on portion of Rancho San Pedro. Compton Parlor No. 258, N.D.G.W., 1946."

The committee in charge of the event was headed by Eleanore Gum, chairman and included Ellen Haskell, Eva Rice, Kathleen Campbell. About 150 people were in attendance including Florence Dodson Schoneman, chairman of history and landmarks committee, NSDW, southern section.

Adopt 27th Baby

Grace Parlor No. 242, NDGW, has adopted its 27th baby, it was announced at the Feb. 7 meeting of the parlor.

Presiding at the recent dedication of the historical monument in the 75-year-old Compton cemetery are left to right: Mrs. Faye Young, president of Compton parlor, NDGW; Mrs Eleanor Gum, chairman history and landmarks; Alfred Jones, director of committee; Dr. Owen C. Coy, professor of history, USC; Raymond V. Darby, supervisor Los Angeles county; Mrs. Dorothy Rice, acting marshall; Mrs. Edith Norton, past president of Compton parlor.

El Tejon Parlor Has Many Activities During February

First meeting of new officers of El Tejon Parlor, Native Daughters, Bakersfield, was held Friday evening, Feb. 1, with President Ella Bozeman presiding. Committees were announced by the president and plans were made for what promises to be an active year.

Friday evening, Feb. 15, the parlor held a formal initiation at its regular meeting, following which an entertaining program of motion pictures was shown.

Poppy Day, an annual event, with Ada Bartholomew as chairman, was held Saturday, Feb. 23. This activity is for the parlor's Homeless Children and local charity fund, with enthusiastic members and a cooperative public joining in each year to make the affair a success.

LOS ANGELES PARLOR URGES OUTDOOR GIRLS CAMP

A resolution urging establishment of an outdoor, ranch type camp for girl wards of the juvenile courts in Los Angeles County was adopted by Los Angeles Parlor, No. 124, NDGW, and presented to the county Board of Supervisors.

It was pointed out that "forestry camps" for the boys already have proved their efficiency in teaching useful trades and in rehabilitating yougsters, but no such outdoor camp has been provided for girls.

Animal husbandry, gardening, dairying, laundering, domestic sciences and other occupations should be taught at the proposed girls' camp, the resolution said.

Dolores Parlor, Native Daughters Holds Its Annual Banquet

Dolores Parlor No. 169, Native Daughters, held its annual banquet Thursday evening, Feb. 21, at the Rex Restaurant in San Francisco. A large attendance was present and Miss Audrey Cohn, president of the parlor, welcomed all members and friends.

Preparations are in full swing for the official visit of Grand President Ethel C. Enos to Dolores and Castro parlors Wednesday evening, Mar. 6, at the Odd Fellows Hall, 7th and Market streets.

Busy Month for Native Daughters at Santa Ana

As Santa Ana Parlor No. 235, NDGW, starts on its 21st year of existence, the officers were installed by Deputy Jeanette Traver, assisted by SDDGP Frances Mitchell and Pres. Edna Cushing of Ontario Parlor No. 251, Pres. Pauline Johnson of Grace Parlor No. 241 Monday, Jan. 21, 1946. Ivo Richardson was installed as president. Delicious refreshments were served by Social Chairman Ava Ridgway and her committee.

Thursday, Jan. 31, 1946, the Thimble Club was entertained by Pres. Richardson and her sister, 1st V. Pres. Claudine Sager. Sewing of aprons and coat hangers were order of the day, and much was accomplished. These will be sold by the ways and means committee. A delicious pot-luck lunch was served with home-made butter and rolls.

Monday, Feb. 4, 1946, four candidates were initiated. Corsages were presented to these new members by Pres. Richardson. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served from a buffet table.

Santa Ana Parlor extended an invitation to all officers of Orange, San Bernardino and Los Angeles Counties Native Daughters Parlors for a school of instructions, which was held Monday, Feb. 18, 1946, Ebell Club, Santa Ana SDDG Presidents Frances Mitchell, Margaret Burch and Phyllis Hirst conducted the meeting.

Rio Hondo Parlor No. 284, NDGW, had a family night supper and entertainment at the Florence Woman's club house, Huntington Park, recently, with Frieda Savage and her committee planning and serving the meal enjoyed by children and adults.

A program arranged by Dorothy Campbell was presented, featuring a teen-age group from Hollydale Christian church, which gave a puppet show. A dance solo, vocal duet, piano solo and a recitation were given by the very young folks, followed by a song fest.

A table of White Elephants for the adults and one of gifts suitable for the children were enjoyed by those who wished to buy one and be "surprised."

Piedmont Parlor, NDGW, Celebrates 50th Anniversary of Institution

Piedmont Parlor No. 87, NDGW, Oakland, recently celebrated its 50th anniversary with the official visit of Grand President Ethel C. Enos, who was escorted to the altar by Collen Lane, marshall and an escort team of six members wearing formals in pastel colors. The hall was beautifully decorated in yellow flowers.

Distinguished visitors included Mae Hines Noonan, Evelyn I, Carlson, Claire Lindsey, Past Grand Presidents; Patricia Reardon, Piedmont Parlor, supervising deputy grand president and Rowena Fernandes of Fruitvale Parlor No. 177, deputy to Piedmont Parlor.

Two members were initiated before a large attendance. Grand President Ethel C. Enos congratulated the parlor on the occasion of its golden anniversary, while Marion E. White presented the Grand President with a gift on behalf of the parlor.

On Jan. 24 members of Piedmont parlor were guests of honor at a banquet held at Capri's restaurant. Mrs Hattie Plane was the only 50-year member attending the dinner, the other members being ill. There were 92 members present at the affair arranged by Katheleen Dombrink chairman, assisted by Kate Ford, Alice Halnan, Patricia Reardon, Margaret Robinson, Bernice Digman, Carol King and Elza Paul.

Ethel C. Enos Guest of Fruitvale Parlor No. 177, NDGW

Mrs Ethel Enos, Grand President, was the guest of Fruitvale Parlor No. 177 and Argonaut Parlor No. 166 on January 29 upon the occasion of her official visit.

Argonaut Parlor opened the meeting with Miss Hadlis Froines, president, presiding. A very special escort team carrying old fashioned bouquets of Valentine Hearts and ribbon presented the Grand President for the welcome and introduction.

Initiation was exemplied by Fruitvale Parlor with Mrs Maxine R. Clement presiding.

Grand President Ethel C. Enos spoke of the significance of our Flags which was very interesting after which she was presented with gifts from both Parlors.

A special march was held for the benefit of the "March of Dimes Fund" which was very successful.

Mrs. Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Secretary, Mrs. Claire Lindsey, Grand Past President, Miss Patricia Reardon, Supervising District Deputy Grand President, and Mrs. Hazel Andrews, Deputy Grand President to Argonaut Parlor were among the guests welcomed. Mrs Irene McNiece, Deputy Grand President to Fruitvale Parlor was ill and unable to attend the meeting.

This very lovely evening was arranged by Ann Turnbull, Blanche Davis, Flora Crockett, Jane Lange, Alvena Fain, Ethel Casey, Nell Crowley and Jennie Landucci of Fruitvale Parlor and Irma Caton, Ora Doyle, Hadlis Froines, Claudia Evans, Josephine Lauricella and Doris Kisling of Argonaut Parlor.

James Lick Parlor No. 220, NDGW, San Francisco, held a public installation of officers with a large crowd in attendance. Louise Chironi is the new president.

Natives Should Record Saga of California

Write traditions of the California families from which you are descended, and thereby make a rich contribution to the state's historical literature.

Mrs. Oscar Elvrum, historical authority and leader in Los Angeles club affairs, delivered this impelling urge recently, when she addressed Los Angeles Parlor, No. 124, NDGW.

"No group of men and women," she asserted, "is better qualified to record the saga of our state than the Native Sons and Daughters. In every family which dates back to the previous century, there are legends which persist by the spoken word. It is time that these valuable and delightful tales be preserved in the interest of posterity."

Mrs. Elvrum pointed out that many of the accepted volumes on California history have been prepared by out-of-staters.

"These visitors," she continued, "have performed nobly. Still, in many instances, they but skimmed the surface. Others have rewritten already recorded tales. It is time now for the Native Californians to undertake this work. Nobody is better qualified. Native Sons and Daughters from one end of our state to the other should consult among themselves—then launch a great statewide literary effort."

Native Sons and Daughters, she said, as descendants of men and women who took part in the vivid events of early California, are competent and trustworthy to undertake this task. They, alone, can preserve the fascinating stories, which have been handed down from past generations.

Mrs. Elvrum stressed the various phases of California history—Spanish, Mexican, American and others—declaring that representatives of all these nationalities well should join in the commendable undertaking.

Once the vast grist of anecdotal material has been assembled by the two societies, she said it should be the duty of the two organizations to assemble the work Through careful editing, the contributed stories could be included in one or more volumes, which might be published by the Native Sons and Daughters

She predicted the books, thus acquired, would be come not only best sellers, but precious stores of source material to furnish inspiration to future writers

Besides, she said, a new picture of the hardships of the pioneers, the rich resources of early California and the adventures faced in the settlement period of this state would be presented.

Mrs. Elvrum further urged Native Sons and Daughters to watch all legislation closely. She said it is incumbent upon the two societies to study every new law in the interests not only of this generation, but of posterity

Placerita Parlor Backs Homeless Children Work

Placerita Parlor No. 277, NDGW, Van Nuys, recently presented $300 to Past Grand President Hazel Hanson to carry on Homeless Children work. During its first two years this parlor has adopted eleven homeless children and donated a complete layette last year. Their annual bazaar held last December netted $600, a large part of which will go to the Homeless Children fund. Dollie Garaventa has been the parlor's successful Homeless Children chairman.

To aid in civic betterment the parlor has voted to donate $100 to developing the new Van Nuys-Sherman Oaks War Memorial Park.

Berryessa Parlor Presents Pins to 25-Year-Members

Berryessa Parlor No. 192, NDGW, Willows, recently honored its members of 25 years standing by presentation of pins. Of the 25-year pins presented, 11 were to charter members who have been members since 1911 when the parlor was instituted. The recipients were escorted to the altar by the drill team where President Christine Goss made the presentation.

Newly elected officers were installed by DGP Aliva Callendar, ably assisted by her corps of officers.

East Los Angeles Parlor Adopts Baby at Meeting

At a recent meeting of East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266, NDGW, a baby was adopted through the kindness and efforts of Florence Ringgold, member of the parlor. Members of her church wanting to help out in some worthy cause, contributed a generous amount of money to the parlor's baby fund. The baby will be named Florence Mary.

Aloha Parlor Honors Lincoln's Birthday

Aloha Parlor paid tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln Tuesday evening, Feb. 12, with a patriotic program arranged by Chairman Martha Decker and her committee. Harmonica numbers, from the Stephen Foster collection, and Lincoln's favorite piece, "Long Long Ago" were played by Eda Steuer. Patriotic games were played, and community singing closed the program.

The national colors were used in decoration, and at the close of the evening refreshments were served. Valentines were distributed signifying that in a day or two St. Valentine's greetings would be extended to every member of Aloha.

Menlo Park Junior Daughters Have Outstanding Record

Junior Native Daughters of the Golden West of Menlo Park, Unit No. 10, were visited officially by Grand President Ethel C. Enos Saturday evening, Feb. 9 at the Central school in Menlo Park.

Nine young girls were initiated, making a total membership of 42. The report of the activities of these young women, particularly during the four war years, was one of outstanding service and included manning the Bond Booth each Saturday during every Bond Drive, sending Christmas gifts to hospitalized service men enroute home, mounting of cross-word puzzles and giving greeting cards on all occasions to patients at Dibble General Hospital, Menlo Park, as well as making Christmas boxes containing many useful articles for destitute children of Europe.

The Grand President complimented this unit upon its fine war time record of service and at the conclusion of her remarks presented the junior past president, Pat Gardenier with an emblematic presidents' pin from the membership.

Junior Native Daughters To Hold Joint Meeting

Junior Units of the Native Daughters in Southern California, are busy with plans for the Official Visit of Grand President, Ethel C. Enos. This will be the first time that a joint meeting of Juniors has been scheduled to receive the Grand President. The meeting will be held at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, March 30, in the Masonic Temple, 1126 Fair Oaks Avenue, South Pasadena. General arrangements are being made by Elsie C. Amidon, state chairman of Junior Native Daughters. Assisting her are the advisory board Members of the sponsoring Senior Parlors.

The participating units are: Placerita Unit No. 16 of Van Nuys; Aowa Kuja Unit No. 18 of Burbank; La Tijera Unit No. 19 of Inglewood; and Asistencia Unit No. 20 of San Bernardino. From all the officers of the Units, a ritualistic team has been chosen to exemplify the work. A noteworthy fact is that all of these units have been instituted within the past year.

The founder of the Junior Native Daughters, Florence Dodson Schoneman will be an honored guest, as will the visiting Grand Officers. The Juniors extend a cordial invitation to all members of the Southern California Native Daughters to attend.

Sebastopol Parlor Entertains For Grand President

Sebastopol Parlor was visited by Grand President Ethel C. Enos on the evening of February 8. A "pot-luck" dinner was enjoyed at 7 o'clock in the dining room of the lodge rooms where places were laid for 50 guests. The tables were decorated with valentine theme and pictures of Washington and Lincoln were placed, one at the end of each table.

Visitors from Petaluma, Sonoma, Fairfax, Santa Rosa and Morado Parlors were present.

A large doll was sold for the Guide Dog fund and a mystery package was sold for the March of Dimes.

Five new members were initiated. They were, Inez Brock, Neva Johnson, Barbara Lindsey, Audrey Knight, and Caroline Williams.

Grand Trustee Zoura Tompkins, SDD Grand Pres. Irene Nahmens and Deputy Grand Presidents Anne Beach, Clara Johnson, Jimella Cook and Ada Oliveri were among those who attended.

A report of the year's work was read by the recording secretary showing activity in many projects, Veteran's welfare with support to the local camp and hospital fund as well as other veteran work. A pioneer history book was purchased and donated to the local library, Red Cross, T. B. Bonds and crippled children stamps were purchased as well as Defense Bonds.

Past Presidents Association Commemorates Gold Discovery

Commemorating the 98th anniversary of the discovery of gold in California, Past Presidents Association No. 13, NDGW, chose "A Night of Gold" as the theme of the official visit of State President Harriet Corr, held at the San Juan Adobe.

A covered dish dinner was served with the table decorations carrying out the theme with a color scheme of yellow. The central adornment featured miners panning gold from the bank of a stream, with their burros laden with the fruits of the day's toil. Miniature wheelbarrows at each plate were filled with nuggets and "pay dirt" in the form of candies and nuts.

A short business session was followed by a happy social period during which Mayme Moran told the story of the discovery of gold by James Marshall at Sutter's Mill. Mrs Corr was the recipient of a gift presented by Edna Butterfield and Rose Guilhamet in the guise of early day miners. Elma Libao outlined activities of the unit during the past few months.

Interesting talks were made by State President Corr, PGP Mamie G. Peyton, State Director Elizabeth Gould and Carrie Payton, president of the Watsonville association.

Entertaining quizzes featured gold, with awards received by Elma Libao, Mar Prendergast, Nell Zook and Mayme Avill

From the letters that are pouring into he Grizzly Bear office both in commendaon and in offering constructive criticism, e would gather that Native Sons and aughters are reading their publication horoughly these ays and eagerly vatching for the ext copy. Almost vithout exception hese letters aproved the addd features and hanges in style f presentation ade in your agazine.

Some like Caliornia Seventyve Years Ago, thers the historal articles and he monthly moorologues are deloping a large following.

So many have been these communications hat it is impossible, much as we would like, answer all of them and still have time get out the Grizzly Bear and wrestle with ll the publication problems of the times. owever, please accept this as expressing ur sincere appreciation of your letters, hether approving or disapproving. For our letters show reader interest and are great source of encouragement in the ork that we are doing.

The Grizzly Bear's first full-page add a considerable time appears on the ack cover this issue. Read it and patronze Russell Nicoll at Valerie Jean if you an. Send him your order by mail and e'll guarantee that you'll enjoy these decious products. He is a native of Caliornia and his is a success story. In short, e is a "grand guy," and if not already a ember of the Order of the Native Sons, e should be. How about it Coachella Parr?

The Grizzly Bear this month carries he announcement of the dates of the Grand arlor at Hoberg's in May of the Native ons of the Golden West. Parlors running andidates for Grand Parlor should send heir ad copy to the Grizzly Bear as soon possible for the time is growing short, nly the April and May issues before rand Parlor. Advertising rates upon apication to this office.

We do not as yet have an announceent of the place and dates of the Grand arlor of the Native Daughters of the olden West, but may we suggest that ney also begin to make arrangements or advertising for their various candiates.

Further, at the risk of making this colnn seem too commercial, we would apreciate having the names and advertisg agents of any candidates running for blic office in an election that will soon upon us. By all means, they should vail themselves of the opportunity of esenting their message through the rizzly Bear to the Native Sons and aughters of the Golden West.

Last month we presented Commander cott in a splendid article on the Shasta onderland. He appears again in this isue. Commander Scott is an author and lecturer of note. Each Sunday morning he speaks over the Mutual Broadcasting hook-up on "Romance of the Highways."

This month Ed Ainsworth of the Los Angeles Times and former state editor of that famous metropolitan daily, author of several historical books of California, gives us a few highlights of that fascinating valley in which Coachella Valley Parlor No. 288, one of the younger Native Sons parlors is located.

Then too, we are presenting each month pictures taken by some of California's most outstanding photographers.

That the Grizzly Bear is able to do this is a tribute to your magazine and gives a brief insight into what your Grizzly Bear can be providing each one of us does his bit in its support.

HUMBOLDT BAY

being launched at Monterey. In Josiah Gregg's party the records of the trip were kept by L. K. Wood and in 1863 were published. A description of the rediscovery of Humboldt Bay on December 20, 1849, from the pen of this eyewitness is reproduced below:

"Immediately after halting, Buck and myself went in search of water. It had been our custom, whenever night happened to overtake us, there to camp—the almost ceaseless falling of the rain affording us a continual supply of water. This night, however, we camped in some sand hills, about a mile back from the beach, without giving a thought how we should get water. A short distance from camp we separated, Buck going in one direction and I in another, I soon found slough water, which, although not altogether agreeable and pleasant to the taste, I concluded would answer our purpose, and returned with some of it to camp. Not long after, Buck came in and placed his kettle of water before us without anything being said. The Doctor, not relishing the water I had brought, and being somewhat thirsty, was the first to taste the other. The suddenness with which the water was spit out, after it had passed his lips, was a sufficient warning to the rest of us. The Doctor asked Mr. Buck where he got that water. Buck replied, 'About half a mile from here.' The Doctor remarked: 'You certainly did not get it out of the ocean, and we would like to know where you did get it.' Buck answered, 'I dipped it out of a bay of smooth water.' This excited our curiosity and Buck seemed, at the time, to be rather dogged and not much disposed to gratify us by explanations. It was dusk, and he could not tell the extent of the bay. This was the night of the 20th of December, 1849, and was undoubtedly the first discovery of this bay by Americans, notwithstanding a Captain Douglas Ottinger claims to have first discovered it. We gave it the name of 'Trinity Bay,' but before we could return to it, Capt. Ottinger, with a party by water, discovered it and gave it the name of 'Humboldt Bay.'

"The next morning by daylight, we were up and moved our camp over to the bay, and stopped over there during the day. This was opposite the point where Bucksport now stands. We encamped, the night previous, under a group of small trees in the sand hills lying between the bay and the ocean, on the strip of land now known as the 'Peninsula,' of 'North Beach.' The reason we had not discovered the bay the day previous, in traveling down from the mouth of Mad River, was because we followed the beach—it being hard sand and easy traveling—and the low hills and timber on the strip of land, lying between the ocean and the bay, shut out the latter entirely from our view.

"During the day we remained here, the Indians came to our camp, and we learned from them that we could not follow down the beach on account of the entrance of the bay, which was just below us. Mr. Buck, however, to satisfy us, took an Indian with him and started down to the entrance. When he returned, he reported quite a large and apparently deep stream connecting the bay with the ocean, and considerable swell setting in, which he thought would make it dangerous to attempt to cross. The Indians also represented that it was deeper than the trees growing on the peninsula were tall; so we abandoned the idea of attempting to cross it."

Homeless Children CORNER

Seeds That Need Permanent Cultivation

By HAZEL B. HANSEN

The motherless and fatherless babies who are brought to the Central Committee on Homeless Children come from parents who have trod all walks of life. Here you will find no race problem, no nationality usurpation. Poor and rich mingle alike. Protestant, Catholic, Jew and atheist. American, European, African and Asiatic enjoy the same kind of treatment, the same happy surroundings.

You might liken the Central Committee on Homeless Children to a true melting pot of the world. A small one, to be sure, but a veritable one nevertheless. These homeless babies know nothing, nor care less, of world strife and troubles. They are a joyful happy lot who know how to get along with one another.

Of course, even at their age, these babies have their own inherited personalities. Sometimes these personalities clash—that is human nature. But these are only minor difficulties that are soon remedied and forgotten.

When one comes into the nursery, out of a world that is still licking its battle wounds and already planning greater weapons of total destruction, one cannot help but be overcome with a sense of guilt and shame at the actions and thoughts of mankind.

It may seem like an Utopian idea, but it is the fondest dream of all of us who come in daily contact with this hodgepodge of homeless babies that among them will be planted a few seeds of the "love-thy-neighbor" flower which will continue to be cultivated and irrigated so as to thrive and grow, long after these babies have matured and are on their own.

If they could only develop to be as free from hatred, jealousies and fear as they are now, we wouldn't have to worry about new Hitlers, atomic bombs, labor strikes and the hundred and one other things which cause this to be such a troubled world!

Nor is this such a fantastic idealism after all, for there are countless incidents where men and women who got their start in such homes as ours, have practised this principle throughout their useful lives.

Surely, if for no other reason than the happy mingling of these homeless babies in their play and every day living, the work of the Central Committee on Homeless Children is a most worthy one.

DATE CRUMBLES

Hand selected Deglet Noor dates, pitted and chopped especially for our customers who like the best dates in their salads, custards, bread puddings, cakes, cookies and ice cream topping. The surprising thing to us is that the folks are eating this confection right out of the bag as they leave here instead of taking it home for the purpose it was intended. The sales force continue to eat it also and that is a pretty good recommendation.

Showers fell copiously during the first week of April, 1871, and other showers during the month increased the season's rainfall about two inches, but only in widely-separated localities was the grain crop saved from partial failure. Due to this fact, the price of flour advanced to $7.50 a barrel, wheat to $2.75 and barley to $1.85 a cental, and hay to $20 a ton. The rainfall for the season in the state at the end of the month was only 11 inches in San Francisco and six inches in Los Angeles.

At 7 p.m., April 18, a brilliant, magnificent meteor shot across the sky from south to north and was viewed by thousands of people in the State of Nevada and Northern California. An observer in Placer County stated it was visible for ten seconds, and burst into fragments, giving off all the colors of the rainbow. The sound of its explosion, rumbling like distant thunder, was heard eight minutes after the meteor had disappeared, and it was thereby estimated to have been passing at a height of over 100 miles.

Strawberries at 50 cents a pound basket came on the San Francisco market April 3, and ripe cherries made their appearance April 30, selling for $1.25 a pound.

The discovery of a rich silver ledge eight feet wide and over two miles in length, sixty miles southeast of San Bernardino, was the cause of a rush of locators, it was reported. An assay as high as $377 a ton was rumored.

The Eureka mine at Grass Valley, Nevada County, continued its marvelous production of gold, yielding $44,000 this month.

The Blue Point gravel mine at Smartsville, Yuba County, made a $40,000 cleanup and paid a dividend of $80 a share.

The cornerstone of Grace Church, Sacramento, was laid April 18 by Bishop Kip, Rev. J H.. C. Bonte and other Episcopal clergymen with appropriate ceremonies.

Three celebrated greyhounds were imported from Ireland by San Francisco members of a coursing club. The express charges on the dogs amounted to over $700.

Eugene West, riding fifteen horses at Sacramento Agricultural Park April 30 against time, rode 100 miles in four hours and 34 minutes, winning a wager by six minutes.

Mary Sweiz of Jackson, Amador County, popularly known there as "Madame Pantaloons," a French woman, who worked in the mines and owned a vineyard for many years in that vicinity and dressed in men's clothing, was arrested in San Francisco for this offense. On a promise to wear the apparel of her sex she was let off with a $5 fine. She always looked neat and natty in trousers, and a reporter wrote she made a better looking man than woman.

The Rising Star Social Club of San Francisco, more popularly known as the "Hoodlums," had a picnic April 9 at Schuetzen Park, and the Swiss guard had one also in an adjacent park across the bay. Both associations returned from Oakland on the same boat, one occupying the lower deck and the other the upper. But the "Rising Stars" could not obey orders, and an invasion by them precipitated a free fight, one of the biggest on record on the bay. Half a hundred of the participants were badly used up. Some of the guns of the guard were thrown into the bay, and only the arrival of the boat at the wharf stopped the conflict.

A man named Linehan, convicted of robbing Chinamen on Chinese testimony, was discharged by order of the Supreme Court it deciding that a man could not be legally convicted on Chinese testimony. After his conviction by a jury his wife obtained a divorce on that ground and married another man. He now began a suit to annul her marriage and divorce, and the unfortunate woman was in a quandary.

An Indian named "Billy" at Folsom, Sacramento County, was claimed to be the champion pie biter and eater of the state. His backer bet $50 that "Billy" could eat eight pumpkin pies by taking less than forty bites, and he won with an average of four bites to a pie. He had a mouth that compared favorably with that of a catfish it is said.

Joseph R. Knowland Speaker at Historical Society Meeting

Joseph R. Knowland, Past Grand President, Native Sons of the Golden West, and publisher of the Oakland Tribune, was the speaker at the April 8 meeting in Los Angeles of the Historical Society of Southern California.

The Historical Society of Southern California is working closely with Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West in the marking of early California landmarks and the preservation of our State's history.

OUR COVER

M. D. Bradshaw of San Gabriel, photographer for the Grizzly Bear, took the picture for our April cover. Framed by an ancient cottonwood tree are two of the famous trees that give the desert town of 29 Palms in San Bernardino County its name. The scene is not far from one of the gateways to the Joshua Tree National Monument, visited recently by Bradshaw and the editor of this magazine.

Los Angeles

The legend of the founding of El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora La Reina de Los Angeles as the result of a vision seen by a soldier in far-off Spain nearly 200 years ago.

By COMMANDER SCOTT
(Radio Commentator for Greyhound—Lecturer—World Traveler and Author)

AS ONE travels along the Highways of California you see countless beautiful spots, scenic gems unrivaled anywhere abroad. Yet somehow I feel that many of the old legends, that can be unearthed with a little diligent search, do even more to recapture the Romance of California than any of the scenic vistas that all can see, and these stories always make travel more enjoyable. The story that I am going to tell now covers a strange almost unbelievable set of circumstances.

When the Franciscan Padres built the chain of Missions, one day's walk apart through California, they really started the first outside settlement in the state. Before many years passed, little Spanish settlements sprang up near each of the Missions. Some of course flourished and have since grown into big cities like San Diego and San Francisco, while others are still peaceful little settlements not much larger than the original ones started by the Spaniards. When the Americans started to arrive by covered wagons and sailing ships, they found very few villages anywhere except those around the original Missions. The two big exceptions were Sacramento which had already started to flourish under the guidance of Captain Sutter and had become the center of his Inland Empire, and the other was Los Angeles. For although San Gabriel Mission is today within the boundaries of the modern city of Los Angeles, it was far removed from the original Pueblo and the story behind that first settlement and the name Los Angeles, lies the almost unbelievable set of circumstances that I wish to recount.

The story really started far away in Spain itself. It was early in May, nearly two hundred years ago. A young Spanish soldier was traveling by foot through the mountains of Spain. He was barely seventeen years of age at the time but he had just returned from his first campaign and being granted leave, he was on his way to visit his native Granada and his family. The day being extremely hot and the trail very dry and dusty, the soldier felt the need for a rest and seeing a sparkling stream cascading through the tall pines, he left the trail and threw himself on the green slope in the shade and was soon fast asleep.

Los Angeles City Hall, one of the most modern in America, stands close to the old plaza, a fitting memorial to the vision of those who founded El Pueblo de Nuestra Senor la Reina de Los Angeles 165 years ago.

When he awakened he found that the whole scene had changed. He was standing on a high hill gazing into the most beautiful valley he had ever seen. A valley backed by high rugged mountains with the foothills already turning from green to brown and gold. Through it twisted and turned a river like a silver ribbon and in the meadows and in the shade of the pines he could see huge herds of wild antelope and deer. In the distance he noticed a beautiful Mission, its white walls and red roof shining in the sun in the center of this sylvan green. He was so enthralled by this beautiful panorama that he didn't realize that he was no longer alone, until a voice said "Turn around Navarro and look behind thee". He turned and here the scene was even more beautiful, the silver stream twisted and turned away to the blue, blue ocean. An ocean lined by golden beaches and in the distance toward the horizon rocky islands guarded the shore. Then his companion spoke again and Navarro turned and noticed that he was in the presence of "Our Lady, the Angel Queen", who was standing there in a halo of glory. She pointed out the utter loveliness of nature and she told the young soldier that he would one day visit that very spot and that when he did, was to found a city there. A city that would one day grow and rival in wealth and productiveness any city in all of Spain. Then in the radiance of shimmering glory, she was gone.

Navarro now really awakened, rubbed his eyes and there was the stream by which he had settled down. In the distance through the pines he could see the roof tops of his native Granada. Then it was that he realized that he had truly seen a vision.

He told others but they only laughed at him, but that vision of the valley, the Land of the Joshua

An account of the enchanting wonders to be found in the ancient desert country of the 838,258 acre Joshua Tree National Monument, San Bernardino County.

By EDWARD WALTERS

THE 1946 tourist season has an excellent start and promises to be a year in which more people will be "goin' places and seein' things" than ever before.

There are many unusual and delightful tours awaiting those who like to get out and get under the sun. Some of these, either because of a total lack of information or, because the data available has been too meager to excite interest, have been missed entirely by the lovers of scenic beauty and the great outdoors.

Especially inviting is the Joshua Tree National Monument park, an entrance to which is at the town of Joshua Tree, San Bernardino County, California. This comparatively recent addition to our National Park System was created by Presidential proclamation August 10, 1936, and consists of 838,258 acres of some of the most beautiful desert and mountain scenery to be found anywhere in this country. The elevation of this enchanting land ranges from a thousand to more than five thousand feet and is an excellent example of basin and range physiography.

There are good, desert type roads throughout the park and those who enjoy hiking may climb mountains, clamber over rocks as large as office buildings or explore the numerous caves and intriguing by-ways of the area to their heart's content.

Pinto Basin, in the eastern part of the park, is a region of great interest to geologists and archeologists. During the Pleistocene, or Glacial age, this was part of a large, shallow lake bordered by low mountain ranges. Various artifacts found in the vicinity give evidence that this area was once inhabited by primitive people. A decrease in precipitation finally made it uninhabitable. While it is impossible to fix the definite time of this habitation it is generally believed to have been between 15,000 and 20,000 years ago.

A tribe of Shoshone Indians made their home in the plateau area in the middle and western portions of the park and they, too, left numerous artifacts, consisting of flints, pottery, beads, metates, manos, etc. Pictographs of red, white and black are to be found on the ceilings and walls of caves.

Gold mining and cattle running were carried on by early white settlers and everywhere among the hills are the abandoned dumps, shafts and tunnels used by gold prospectors in their eternal quest for the precious, yellow metal.

Freakish and fantastic rock formations, fashioned by that master sculptor, erosion, are found throughout the park and offer unusual subject material for the artist or camera enthusiast. Those interested in rock specimens will find a wide variety and an almost inexhaustible supply of very fin specimens for their collections.

The area is rich in the quantity and vari ety of vegetation and many of the specie found are extremely rare. One of these i the Joshua tree (Yucca brevifolia), one o the most spectacular botanical features o our western deserts. It is a member of th lily family and attains a height of 10 to 3 feet. Its cream-white blossoms grow i clusters at the ends of heavy, errati branches.

The Mormons are said to have given thi giant yucca the name Joshua-tree, seein in its grotesquely extended "arms" a sym bol pointing to the promised land. The large trees are believed to be several hundre years old.

Also in the park may be found the palo verde, manzanita, pinon, live oak, juniper ocotillo, Spanish-bayonet, desert-willow, in digo bush or smoke tree, mesquite, catclaw numerous species of cacti, and many othe bushes, shrubs and plant too numerous t list. In the spring the desert is a veritabl sea of pastel shades and the desert burst forth in glorious bloom.

From a point on the ridge of the Littl San Bernardino Mountains, locally know as Inspiration Point, Salton View, or Keye View, is one of the most extensive deser views in the west. From an elevation of al most a mile and easily accessible by ca the visitor may view a vast expanse o beautiful desert, mountain and valley scen ery. The Salton Sea, 244 feet below se level, and the area to the south in Mexic are plainly visible on clear days. In th foreground lie the date gardens of the Coa chella Valley, more productive even tha those of the Sahara, and to the right Mount San Jacinto rises to a height o 10,805 feet. Just across the Gorgonio Pas is Mount San Gorgonio, whose peak is snov covered most of the year, with an eleva tion of 11,485 feet. Here is presented a awe-inspiring and unforgettable panoram of nature's contrasting beauty.

rustlers' hideout, is a very interesting attraction. It is completely surrounded by a wall of rocks and is accessible on foot by those familiar with the means of entrance.

There are several designated camping sites within the park although no regular camp grounds have as yet been established. It is advisable to take a supply of water for extended visits.

The thriving new desert town of Joshua Tree is at the western entrance to the park and here you may find excellent accommodations for a most pleasant stay of days or months. The climate here is ideal and the air is clear, dry and free of dust and sand. The summers are as delightful as the winter season and you will suffer no uncomfortable temperature extremes.

The Joshua Tree National Monument park is less than 140 miles from Los Angeles and best approached on Routes 60, 70 and 99 to a point 15 miles east of Banning, thence east to the town of Joshua Tree and the park entrance.

HOBERG'S — A Pioneer Story

How Gustave Hoberg and his family founded the famous Lake County Resort where Native Sons and Daughters will hold their Grand Parlors in May and June.

AN OLD "Injun fighter" was Gustave Hoberg and he kept his hair free of the redskin's scalping knife through campaigns from Idaho to Oregon. Before that Gustave fought in the Civil War, joining up with the Illinois Volunteers just after he immigrated from New York from Westphalia, Germany, in 1860. It was immediately after that he signed for a hitch in the regular army and shipped off to Sitka, Alaska.

By '85 Gustave had seen a good chunk of the globe from the old world to the new. Though he must have called New Holstein, Wisconsin, home, it wasn't what might be termed permanent. Anyway, on Thanksgiving Day fifteen years ahead of the present century, Gustave, his wife and five youngsters came to settle down in the mountains of Lake County, California, in the very middle of a pine forest wilderness.

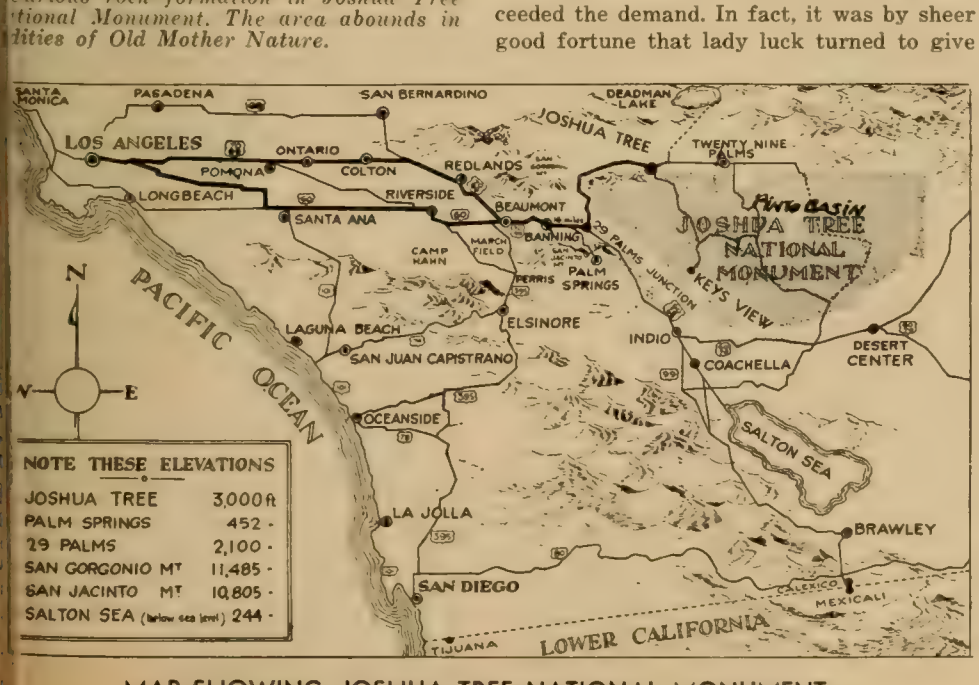
On a hundred and sixty acres of land owned by an uncle, George Kammerer, the Hoberg family settled down. The tiny cabin was several sizes too small for the Gustave clan. They owned no livestock or farming equipment. The wagon ruts, called roads, turned into a mire of mud. That first winter was extra severe but Gustave proved to be a good provider. There was plenty of game and the first Hoberg was a "dead" shot.

There are stories they tell of how the Hobergs survived those early years. How a terrific storm sent a gigantic pine crashing directly down beside the little cabin. That no one was hurt was truly a miracle.

Lake County even then was famous for its fruit. Grapes were bringing $24.00 a ton, a good price for those times. Apples too did well. The Hobergs planted as did their neighbors and the supply quickly exceeded the demand. In fact, it was by sheer good fortune that lady luck turned to give the Hobergs just a flicker of a smile.

George Kammerer sent a couple of his friends up from San Francisco to spend a vacation with the Hobergs. No doubt there were many things lacking that go to make a first class resort but Hoberg proved to be a grand host. Ma Hoberg's meals were really something to rave about, her beds clean and always freshly made. Then, too, there was plenty of scenery and people were visiting the mineral springs.

Gustave's oldest son Max was growing up. He helped his father in those early days to build this summer guest home. Every dollar he could earn working out went into buying necessary things for the little resort. But in 1895 Gustave died.



The next seven years were years of toil for Ma Hoberg and her son Max. Guests still came over the rough roads in summer but now there was competition from other resorts. Chief item of interest was that Max Hoberg took unto himself a wife. In course of time the third generation of Hobergs, three sons, were born, George, Paul and Frank.

Forty-four years have seen some changes around Hoberg's. New cottages with modern conveniences nestle among the pines. A big hotel was built. A swimming pool and dance pavilion were added. The first tennis court in Lake County was laid out. The dining room was enlarged to accommodate four hundred guests. The one hundred sixty acres has grown to half a thousand. Today Hoberg's is a small sized city.

Here the guest comes to play in this sylvan mountain retreat. He may ride horseback, hike, swim, fish, play every game imaginable but at the end of the day a Hoberg guest ceases to rough it. Beds are too soft, meals are too temptingly delicious. Hoberg's gives the guest the service found in a city's fine hotel.

Maybe that's why both the Native Sons and Native Daughters have selected this pioneer resort in which to hold both sessions of Grand Parlor. Here one may dance the night away to the lilting tunes of two fine orchestras. At Hoberg's most recent addition one may enjoy the famous Seigler Soda Water Springs. There's a swimming pool that is heat conditioned. They warm it up during spring months and cool it off in summer.

Nearly sixty-one years ago old Gustave started building Hoberg's. It took three generations to complete the job. Perhaps the Hoberg Brothers have additional plans already in mind but to a thousand guests Hoberg's is just about perfect.

Harry Oliver Divulges His Plans

At a recent meeting of the Sierra Club at Paul Wilhelm's Thousand Palms oasis, Harry Oliver told tall stories about the great winds around Garnet. He also outlined his twenty-year plan in building his home at Thousand Palms Junction (formerly called Edom), in which he makes ten adobe bricks one day, spends the next three waiting for the bricks to dry, and the following three deciding where to put them once they are dry. In twenty years he hopes to complete his project.

The First Theatre in California: Monterey started early in the field of art for in 1847 a company of players from Los Angeles presented the production "Putman, in the Lion Son of '76," on a stage set up in what was originally a sailor's boarding house. This is believed to be the first stage play in the city of Monterey. It was during the same year that groups of New York volunteers gave minstrel entertainments, but with the discovery of gold in 1848 the interest shown in drama was soon diverted.

Monterey

FIRST STATE CAPITOL

By EMMETT P. JOY, Grand Historian, NSGW

PICTURESQUE Monterey, bordered on the west by the Pacific Ocean while a thick pine forest covers the hills to the south, was the scene of California's first capitol. During the season of spring one may find California wild flowers of rainbow tinted bloom which are of almost endless variety. The sky is pure, clasping the landscape with a belt of peace and silence. Out on the divide, after crossing a wooded ridge, is the beautiful view of Carmel. In the distance rise the ocean waves, soaring in a sublime chain, lifting their fantastic formations upward; still farther beyond, completing the magnificent vista, crowned with pines, are the steeples of Carmel Mission. Nearby stand the Monterey Cypress, a tree not found in any other place in the world.

It is a paradise for historians, artists and writers. This wonderland probably has more landmarks than any other city in the State.

Monterey history dates back to the voyage of Sebastian Vizcaino who on December 15, 1602, on the flagship "San Diego" landed on the shores of what is now Monterey Bay. Amidst winter winds and solitude he and his men explored the area naming the bay in honor of the Count of Monterey, viceroy of Mexico. Vizcaino spent Christmas in California; the first white man to do so.

The hills about the bay remained a vast wilderness until 1770 when Padre Junipero Serra founded the mission at Carmel and the Presidio at Monterey was established. (At this point we will leave the Spanish period and start with a short sketch of the American history.)

On July 7, 1846, Commodore Sloat took possession of California and raised the American flag; the settlement was garrisoned by a Naval force. Sloat's proclamation declared California a portion of the United States and promised the people rights and privileges they possessed before the occupation, together with the privilege of choosing their own magistrates and other officers for the administration of justice among themselves and the same protection would be extended to them as to any other state in the Union.

Walter Colton was appointed the first alcalde of Monterey under the new regime. Rev. Walter Colton was a chaplain on the U. S. frigate "Congress." It was he who erected the well known building "Colton Hall." This building became a most useful one as it served as a school house, a court house, a public assembly hall and California's first capitol. Unlike most of the buildings in Monterey which were of the early Spanish adobe type, Colton Hall's architecture was of the old New England Academy style.

Rev. W. Colton and Robert Semple established the first newspaper published in California. It was a weekly printed for the first time on August 15, 1846, and named the "Californian."

The first jury summoned in California was empaneled by Walter Colton at Monterey on September 4, 1846.

Monterey started early in the field of art for in 1847 a company of players from Los Angeles presented a stage production. This stage was set up in what was originally a sailor's boarding house and the play was called "Putnam, in the Lion Son of '76." This is believed to be the first stage play performed in the city of Monterey. It was during the same year that groups of New York volunteers gave minstrel entertainments; but upon the discovery of gold in 1848 the interest shown in drama was soon diverted.

Thomas O. Larkin was a prominent man in the early history of the city as he came in the year 1832, established the first retail store and built his home which is now on the corner of Main and Jefferson Streets.

After the American occupation the city continued to enlarge, the building of industries and business houses was increased. But, upon the discovery of gold by James Wilson Marshall at Coloma in El Dorado county, the news reached Monterey causing a great deal of excitement among the inhabitants and men immediately started for the gold field. All along the coast farms were left tenantless, grain fields, orchards were abandoned and places of business were closed.

According to Hubert Howe Bancroft's history of California "Jackson McDuffee addressing Larkin in San Francisco on June 1st said "Monterey is very dull, nothing doing, the gold fever is beginning to take a decided effect here, and a large party will leave for the Sacramento Valley the last of the week. Shovels, spades, picks and other articles wanted by these wild adventurers are in great demand."

In the midst of the excitement although there were some men who retained their calmness and remained in the city to carry on their work, Monterey became almost depopulated as a result of the gold discovery.

On June 3, 1849, Governor Bennet Riley issued a proclamation recommending the formation of a State Constitution or plan of a Territorial Government. In pursuance of Governor Riley's proclamation forty eight delegates were elected to the constitutional convention to be held in Colton Hall Monterey. Monterey, therefore, became California's first capitol. Dr. Robert Semple was chosen president of the convention and held its first meeting September 1 to October 13, 1849. The convention accomplished successful results which ultimately led to California's admission into the Union September 9, 1850. However, it did not continue long as the state capitol for subsequently the law making center was moved to San Jose.

The city of Monterey was incorporated by an act of legislature on April 30, 1851. Philip A. Roach, who was alcalde, was elected the first Mayor. He was succeeded by Gilbert Murdock of the firm of Curtis and Murdock, merchants. On May 11, 1853 an act was approved which amended the city's charter and vested the control of her municipal affairs in a board of trustees.

In 1859 Monterey was much in debt which necessitated selling a portion of the Pueblo grant to meet her obligations and it was not until June 3, 1889, that it became re-incorporated. At long last Monterey became a permanent city.

The first narrow gauge railroad in the state was built in 1874; the route running

Let's Begin To Plan

The year 1948 will mark the 100th anniversary of the discovery of gold in California and plans are already under way for the greatest celebration in our state's history.

By EDWARD J. LYNCH
Chairman of the California History Board
Native Sons of the Golden West

WHEN James W. Marshall decided to go West he sought adventure and not gold. Leaving his home in New Jersey, as a young man who had started to learn the trade of carpenter, he made his way across the continent, arriving in California in 1844. Like most newly arrived Americans, Marshall headed for Sutter's Fort, where he was employed by Captain John A. Sutter, who had selected a site for a colonization plan on the Sacramento River a few miles below the present city of Sacramento. Sutter built a fort in the wilderness for protection against savage Indians who made frequent attacks on Sutter's party while engaged in their work. Notwithstanding the difficulties encountered, Sutter was successful in his farming operations and became prosperous. His increasing crops created a need for a flour mill and a sawmill. The plans for the construction of the mill were left to Marshall, who chose a site in the little valley of Coloma, 45 miles from Sutter's Fort. There he found good yellow pine, sufficient water power and a site for a dam and tail-race. He obtained the services of a number of Indians and some Mormons who were returning from San Diego to Salt Lake City.

When the mill was nearly completed and the gates were in place for the tail-race, the water was turned from the river into the race, so as to carry away loose dirt and gravel. Afterwards the water was turned off and on the afternoon of Monday, January 24, 1848, Marshall, while inspecting the tail-race, observed some yellow particles lying in the gravel, the largest of which were about the size of grains of wheat. They were smooth, bright and the color of brass. On returning to the mill he informed some of the men that he had found gold, but his statement was ridiculed and no further attention paid to it. He nevertheless proceeded to hammer out the small specimens and found that the metal was malleable and, by melting it, he concluded it was gold. He exhibited proof of his discovery at the mill, after which he rode to Sutter's Fort, showing the specimens to Sutter. After additional tests were made, they concluded that the first tests were correct.

In Marshall's narrative of the Discovery of Gold he related:

"One morning in January—it was a clear, cold morning; I shall never forget that morning—as I was taking my usual walk along the race, after shutting off the water, my eye was caught with the glimpse of something shining in the bottom of the ditch. There was about a foot of water running then. I reached my hand down and picked it up; it made my heart thump, for I was certain it was gold. The piece was about half the size and of the shape of a pea. Then I saw another piece in the water. After taking it out I sat down and began to think right hard. I thought it was gold, and yet it did not seem to be of the right color; all the gold coin I had seen was of a a reddish tinge; this looked more like brass. Suddenly the idea flashed across my mind that it might be iron pyrites. I trembled to think of it! This question could soon be determined. Putting one of the pieces on a hard river stone, I took another and commenced hammering it. It was soft, and didn't break; it therefore must be gold, but largely mixed with some other metal, very like silver, and for pure gold, I thought, would certainly have a brighter color."

Marshall was fearful that the employees at the mill site might abandon the work if they knew that the particles found by him were gold. However, word of the discovery leaked out and, in order to hold the men, he promised that as soon as the mill was finished they would begin a search to find out where there was more gold.

Finally, the story spread among the workers at the fort, a number of whom were Mormons and disbanded American soldiers. These men gathered whatever pans, shovels and picks they could find and headed for the mill, where the gold had first been discovered, hoping that they, too, might make a rich discovery. At the mill, Marshall directed them to locations which seemed favorable, but as fast as one party would leave, others would arrive, remaining until they could get information from Sutter or the other men as to where it would be best for them to begin operations.

Soon a second discovery of gold was made near Mountaineer House, on the road to Sacramento, and then a third discovery on a bar on the south fork of the American River above its junction with the middle fork. Shortly afterwards gold was discovered at Hangtown (now Placerville) and at Kelseys and various other locations in the Mother Lode territory. By this time it was generally realized that all the surrounding country was rich in gold deposits. This was the beginning of the great "Gold Rush" and was followed by one of the most remarkable movements of humanity toward a single goal. Within a few years most of the small towns in California had lost their entire population and a deluge of people from outside the state poured into California. In 1849 it is estimated that 50,000 people east of the Rockies were on their way to California by land and 25,000 more by sea. There was also a large imigration from foreign countries, from which vast numbers of fortune-hunters made their way to the new land of gold. In addition to the ordinary hazards of travel in those days, the immigrants had to contend with the heat of the desert, attacks by savage Indians or the dangers of crossing the snow-capped mountains or the fever-ridden swamps of Panama. When they found it difficult to obtain means of transportation to the goldfields and even after their arrival they were compelled to undergo many hardships.

The celebration of the discovery of gold was initiated in California by the Society of California Pioneers and the California Miners' Convention. In 1897 both of these organizations appointed committees to act jointly in the celebration and the committees invited the co-operation of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. Under the auspices of these bodies and with the enthusiastic support of the people, a great celebration was held in San Francisco in 1898. It was known as California's Golden Jubilee. This celebration was held during the administration of James D. Phelan as mayor of San Francisco. The celebration began on Monday, January 24, 1898, and continued for the entire week. Each day had special features, including parades, dancing parties, literary exercises, receptions, football games, cowboy tournaments military maneuvers at the Presidio, rodeos, and competitive features participated in by school children.

The year 1948 will be the 100th anniversary of the discovery of gold and plans are already under way for one of the greatest celebrations in the history of California, to commemorate this important date in our state's history.

Pioneer Developer of Palm Springs Announces Plans

This month marked a return to activity in Palm Springs and vicinity of Charles Doyle, pioneer in the late '20s of two important institutions in Palm Springs.

In 1928 Mr Doyle started the first desert guest ranch in this area by developing the Deep Well ranch which he owned through 1929. Later he moved across the road and developed the Smoke Tree ranch which he built from the ground up until it now is a famous Village institution with its colony of home owners.

In 1939, prior to the construction of Airport road, now known as Ramon road, by Alphonso Bell of the Bell ranch near Thousand Palms, Mr. Doyle bought several hundred acres at the foot of Thousand Palms canyon adjoining the Bell ranch property. He abandoned development at the outbreak of the war in Europe.

Mr. Doyle was a World War I first lieutenant in field artillery in France and during the recent world conflict served with the U. S. Army engineers on construction of the Pan-American highway in Central America and on cantonment construction in the United States.

During the past few months, with associates, he has acquired further land holdings in the Thousand Palms area and has been quietly developing a large well and other physical work in preparation for the valley's largest residential development in many years.

Vacation Lands

Interesting bits of information from here and there about spring wild flowers and news regarding favorite vacation spots as gathered by Grizzly Bear Scouts.

Spring really comes to the Southwest with April and May. The next few weeks will find many sections of the country in a glamorous array of color, for in spite of scant rainfall this season, Mother Nature has been more than kind in seeing that most of our favorite wild flower gardens got some of the precious water.

It is difficult to tell our readers when any one locality will present the best display of wild flowers due to a wide variation of altitude and climatic conditions. However, may we present a few reports and forecasts that have come to the office of the Grizzly Bear in the hope that they may add some to your enjoyment of the great out-of-doors.

The floral display on the desert this year will be early. Verbenas are to be found around Indio and Palm Springs at the present time, while soon on the Palms to Pines highway in Riverside County and in the Anza Desert State Park area of San Diego County, giant Ocotillos will flaunt their flaming red tassels to the warm breeze. However, reports are discouraging over the prospects of the Desert Lily blooming this year.

The first of April finds the Joshua trees in full bloom in Yucca Valley, 29 Palms and Joshua Tree National Monument. Word comes from Von Breton's and C-Bar-H, two guest ranches in Lucerne Valley, San Bernardino County, that the Joshuas there are in bloom. Right now this desert section is a paradise of color. You'll enjoy horseback riding here in the great open spaces. And it won't be long before these guest ranches will be staging some of their moonlight rides. There's nothing like a real western barbecue around a camp fire with cowboys singing to the accompaniment of guitars. It's a sort of seventh heaven feeling, a bliss one should not miss.

In the San Gorgonio Pass region of Riverside County, from Banning to 1000 Palms, you will see the bright yellow blossoms of the Bladder Pod. Also, coming into bloom now are sunflower-like Encelia or Brittlebrush (also called Incense Bush) and the Creosote (better known as Greasewood).

In the higher sections, the Desert Paint Brush blooms and the Beavertail Cactus is unfolding its delicate pink blossoms.

Farther north along the highways south of Bakersfield, blue lupines turn the meadow plains to azure while here and there golden poppies nod in the April breeze.

Up in the mountain areas it seems as if almost every shrub is either in bloom or will be shortly, while mountain meadows are a carpet of color. Wild lilacs add a beautiful blue to the hillsides.

The coastal foothills will soon see the bloom of the sage and echo to the hum of busy bees, while up Cajon Pass way and out towards Lancaster "The Candles of the Lord" (the Yuccas), will in a short time give an Eastertide touch to the scene.

Then too, throughout the citrus groves of California the sweet, heady scent of orange blossoms permeates the air.

Our wildflower scout reports that he has observed people picking flowers the past few days. Attention is called to the fact that this is against the state law. Photograph and admire the flowers, but do not pick them. Leave them for others to enjoy.

Information from our vacationland reporter brings out the following interesting bits of news:

There's an elevator down at Indio located in the Potter's Hotel that starts below sea level and it takes a flight of two stories to get above. . . . The Hyde sisters operate the Desert Moon Guest Ranch at Thousand Palms. In case you don't know, the town is located just eleven miles on the Los Angeles side of Indio. It's a lovely place with large airy bedrooms. Meals are served ranch style and all you can eat. There are horses to ride and there's the old Indian camp grounds at 1000 Palm Springs to explore. No pun intended but for a sure enough enjoyable vacation hide away, we recommend those Hyde sisters.

For truly fine foods served in the magnificent manner, there's a spot north of San Bernardino on the old road from Arrowhead Springs up Waterman's Canyon. Club Oaks it is called. Proprietor Joseph Vasquez, a member of Arrowhead parlor, will bid you welcome. Juicy steaks or lobster newberg, you may have your choice. And just as an appetizer, we'll add that Joe Vasquez boasts the finest liqueurs available.

It's still an almost miracle to find hotel accommodations in Palm Springs. Norm Williams of nearby Palm Village suggests building your own home in the new desert pueblo. Construction on a new eighteen-unit motel was started last week and a $200,000 guest ranch is being planned. Several of the prosperous date growers are buying building sites and preparing their future homes.

From Big Bear Lake comes word that there's lots of snow. Four got lost in the heavy drifts tracking a mountain lion in Holcomb Valley. However, they found an empty cabin and the next day when found they appeared to have enjoyed the experience. . . . Big Bear Lake is an all year resort and just to prove it a beautiful local lass, Miss Nina Davis, is making all the eastern papers via World Wide photo service skiing on the snow covered hills attired in a two-piece bathing suit.

With the first of May just a few short weeks ahead, it's time to get out the fishing tackle for a last minute check-over. At Peter Pan Senator Ralph E. Swing was guest of honor of the valley's Chamber of Commerce. Announcement was made that his $900,000 fund for statewide fish and game advancement was passed. Seems that there was a rumor that five star General "Ike" Eisenhower was at Peter Pan. His five-star car was there but a colonel was at the wheel. Hollywood's song writer and actor Jimmy Dodd was on hand, however, and was called on for an impromptu song.

Historic Fairmont Hotel Scene of Radio Broadcast

San Francisco's famous historical Fairmont Hotel, on top of Nob Hill, was the setting for a radio broacast over KSFO from the Birch Room, featuring "Breakfast on Nob Hill," a daily broadcast, at which Grand Officers of the Native Sons and Daughters and members assembled in a group of over a hundred on the morning of February 26, at 8 a. m. During a half hour program following the breakfast at 9 a. m., Bill Baldwin and Ruby Hunter, who conduct the program, went on the air with the Native Sons and Daughters as their special guests. Interviewed over the network were Past President Ray Williamson and Grand Secretary John Regan, who were presented with a very luscious but loud necktie and a box of chocolates, respectively. Just under the wire and as the program signed off, Grand President Ethel C. Enos was introduced but only had a moment to say she had left Modesto at 4 a. m. that morning to breakfast on Nob Hill. Also interviewed during the broadcast were Mr. and Mrs. Gus Gunther, mother and father of P.G.P Orinda Giannini, who were married 49 years. Asked to what measure she attributed their happiness during the long years, Charlotte Gunther of Orinda Parlor, N.D.G.W., replied, "Harmony in the Home." Mr. Gunther confirmed this.

ESTRANGEROS

By THOMAS WORKMAN TEMPLE, 2nd

This list of "Estrangeros" or unnaturalized foreigners then resident at the Pueblo de los Angeles as of Feb. 12, 1829, may prove of interest to historical students and Native Sons alike. Governor Jose Maria Echeandia had requested such a list from Alcalde Guillermo Cota, who forthwith supplied the necessary information. The four men here enumerated as will appear, had letters of amnesty, requests for letters of naturalization, or no letters whatever. Other so-called "Estrangeros" then living in Cota's jurisdiction at Los Angeles and San Gabriel, had already become naturalized: William A. Richardson, Richard Laughlin, Juan Bautista Leandry, George Rice, Isaac Galbraith, Joaquin Bowman, John Haley, John Davis, Louis Bauchet, William Welsh, William Fisher and Jesse Ferguson.

"Joseph CHAPMAN, disembarked at Monterey in the year 1818 on the 21 or 22nd of November, from the Sloop of War in command of Santiago Bouchard, named 'La Libertad' out of Buenos Ayres; he was taken prisoner of this territory by Governor Don Pablo Vincente de Sola, from whom he received the King's amnesty to all Anglo-American prisoners, evidenced by a document dated Dec. 19, 1821; his religion, that of an Apostolic Roman Catholic, having been baptized into the Faith by the late Padre Fray Jose Senan, at Mission San Buenaventura, where he took the name of Juan Jose, on June 24, 1822, his padrino having been Don Miguel Pico; married on Nov. 5th of the same year to Maria Guadalupe Ortega, daughter of Jose Vincente Ortega and Maria Estafana Olivera, a native of the Presidio of Santa Barbara, by whom he has three children; his age, 42; his trade that of a carpenter with his own home in this Pueblo and owner of a vineyard and other temporal goods; of well approved comportment both in religion and patriotism.

"Juan TEMPLE, disembarked in the Puerto de San Diego in the month of July, 1827, from the Brig 'Waverley,' Wm. G. Dana, Captain, out of Oahu, Sandwich Islands, with permission of Comandante Don Jose Maria Estudillo, but as yet without any passport, continuing as a merchant in this Pueblo up to the present with the necessary authority; his religion, that of an Apostolic Roman Catholic, having been baptized at the Presidial Chapel of San Diego by Padre Fray Antonio Mendez of the Order of Preachers of St. Dominic, on July 30, 1827, taking the name of Juan, his padrinos having been Don Jose Maria Estudillo, Don Pablo de la Portilla and Don Tomas Menendez; his age 31 and single; with a business house in partnership with George Rice; his trade that of a merchant. He claims to have requested Letters of Naturalization from the Governor of the Territory since last year, but has not received them to date; of approved conduct and 'Bostones' by birth.

By HAR LAR

The tinny sound of a slammed mail box door came floating up the lane. Old Timer watched the rural mail carrier drive away.

"You got young legs," he says, looking at me. Obediently I arose and did as bid.

"Tain't like the old days," the gray haired patriarch complained. "Look at this pile o' worthless reading junk. Used to be when mail came it was important."

His eyes gazed off toward the distant horizons and twinkled as though in recollection.

"Course we had to drive into town for it. Quite a jog it used to be, too. Didn't have regular post office either. Had to go to the general store. Jack Werner was both storekeeper and postmaster.

"Shaw, I can recollect plain as though twere yesterday. Me? I was just a kid in knee pants when pa used to go into old Jan Werner's store a askin' for his mail. He used to keep it in a big box under his counter and he'd always motion dad to help himself. 'Ain't had time to sort it. Stage just got in,' or 'Eyes ain't accustomed to read them fine hen scratchings. Me, I gotta have course stuff for my reading.' Shucks, everybody knew old Jack couldn't read a lick.

"It was a real thrill to see the stage coach come down Main Street. Three span o' horses in a cloud of dust comin' in with the stage coach at a dead run. Those drivers were tough men. As a kid I used to stand around in awe admiringly just a-watchin' and listenin'.

"There was a hold-up man who had stuck up the stage twice that summer. Pa was bettin' the drivers, askin' what they'd do if a bandit laid a gun on 'em.

"Big Red said he'd shove out the strong box first thing but Joe Russell said he reckoned he'd shoot it out.

"Two weeks later he did just that."

Old Timer gave me a quick look to make certain I was listening.

"The road winds through a dry gulch about thirty-forty miles southeast of town. Heavy sand makes it necessary to drive the horses at a walk. Joe Russell and a Frenchman was on the box. The only passengers in the coach was the local Judge and a Chinaman.

"It was at this point and getting along toward midnight when the stage coach slowed down to a crawl. The bandit was waiting.

"Joe Russell says when he saw the masked outlaw he whipped up the horses. The holdup's shot got Joe in the hand and he dropped the reins. The Frenchman emptied his sixgun, scaring the horses into a wild gallop.

"Inside the careening coach the Chinaman was hunched in a corner praying to his heathen gods. The tough judge opened the door, grabbed the top rail and pulled himself up. The horses were off the road and running wild. How the stage held upright over the chuckholes and boulders is one of those little miracles.

"The judge made it. Pushed aside the Frenchman, gathered in the reins and finally got six wild eyed broncs under control.

"They put a tourniquet on Joe's wrist but at the first ranch they stopped to give him more first aid. When they drove into town next morning they had Joe and the strong box.

"What did Joe get out of it besides a busted hand for life? Why, a genuine engraved gold watch and chain from the Express Company, saying 'for bravery in line of duty.' It shure was pretty."

from Monterey to Salinas. Thomas Carter built the cars.

In 1891 horse-drawn street cars came into use; the tracks were laid by J. Malarin who began the work in April of the same year. In 1924 the old tracks were removed.

In 1856 the old whaling station was built as headquarters for Portuguese whalers. This building was restored in 1902.

In 1850 Joseph Alemany O.P. was consecrated bishop of Monterey and under his direction St. Catherine's Academy was erected. It was put into use in 1851 and stood on the corner of Main and Franklin Streets.

Monterey's present architecture has a style all its own. The Monterey type intermingle with the Spanish adobes which still stand to give the city a unique appearance.

Through American literature it first became known in the literary field in Richard Henry Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast," Robert Louis Stevenson's "Old Pacific Capitol" and "Old Monterey" by Charles Warren Stoddard. Today, it is known for its historic land marks which date back to the year 1602. Among some of them are: Colton Hall, Larkin House, Fremont's quarters, Sherman's quarters, old Custom House, the Cooper House and many others.

After following some historic events of the city of Monterey; one becomes interested in knowing how the county was formed. It was one of the original counties in California being created in 1850. The southern boundary line was changed several times before it became permanently located. In 1851 it was enlarged. The county seat was removed from Monterey to Salinas in 1873.

Monterey has been the capitol under three flags; it claims California's first newspaper, the first frame and first brick houses and the first theater. From a historic village it has grown to the largest city on the peninsula with its many fish packing plants and canneries as well as a thriving commercial and distributing center. It is modern in every respect and is included in the itinerary of the nationally known Seventeen-Mile Drive.

Every month is visiting month in Monterey, but it is in August when the glorious past is celebrated with the Serra Pilgrimage.

Although not a Native Son, C. C. Covey, one of the developers of Desert Hot Springs, Riverside County, has reason to know a great deal about the Order. For the Native Sons Building at 414 Mason Street, San Francisco, is built on the site of the old family home. He says that the building was built by Lawrence Covey, his brother and a Native Son.

A MUST FOR CALIFORNIANS

Mary Thomas Woods of the Argonaut says: "To Californians it is a must; to non-Californians a double must."

Vierling Kersey, Superintendent of the Los Angeles Board of Education says: "The book is very interesting and it holds the readers attention. The story of California is well covvered and presented in a manner that makes it appealing."

These are but a couple of countless favorable comments about

COMMANDER SCOTT'S NEW BOOK

ROMANCE OF THE HIGHWAYS OF CALIFORNIA

This is not a guide book, although it contains beside a road map of the state several sectional maps, but is rather the story of a leisurely trip through our Golden State that you might have taken with the Author.

Commander Scott has the habit of ferreting out strange but true facts about the communities that he visits. These he calls Unreal Realities. Many of these and also some nearly forgotten stories of early California life are woven into the new book.

NO MORE A STRANGER

Once in a great while an author can take the dry facts of reality and breathe into the ashes of a burned out and almost forgotten life. Once in a blue moon we run across a writer who literally takes his reader by the hand and guides him through the scenes, making them live the tale of the man of whom he writes. Such is the story written by Anne B. Fisher, "No More a Stranger."

It is a biography of a famous author who struggled to success in old Monterey.

He came half wav around the world from Edinburgh, Scotland, almost penniless that he might be near the woman he loved. It didn't matter that he gave up a life of luxurious ease and was disinherited by a stern Scot parent. Nor did it make a whit of difference that Fanny Osbourne was the wife of a '49er who had struck it rich in the California diggings and that she was still a married woman. Robert Louis Stevenson, then an unknown struggling writer, followed his beloved to the sleepy California adobe town of Monterey.

The entire book is based on fact, according to the author. "No character is imaginary, not even the horses." It is the story of Stevenson's career from September to December, 1879. It is the unconventional story of a brave courageous woman battling that her lover, sick in body, might win his way back to health and attain the pinnacles of literary fame. It is a story of a great love woven into the early historical past in the old Spanish California capital. It is fraught with early tintypes and photos of these characters who lived two-thirds of a century ago.

Anne B. Fisher lives in historic Monterey. For six years she has gathered the material for this true narrative. Some of her story she learned directly from those who knew her hero. Anne Fisher has made history live gloriously once again. Truly does her story of Robert Louis Stevenson make him "No More a Stranger." Printed by Stanford Press—$3.00.

SALT WATER BOY
Pi-yuk of the West Coast
by Melicent Humason Lee

The Indians of the California coast have received little attention in either history or literature. Peaceful tribes, they figured little in warfare and raids—the events upon which most Indian history is based. The life of these Indians before the white man came upon the scene consisted mostly of hunting and fishing expeditions. Their thatch villages had little of the nomadic character of the usual Indian settlement. The sea and its teeming life provided them with most of their occupation and adventure. In their villages along the seacoast they met the friendly tribes who came from farther inland to trade their treasures for the booty of the ocean.

With Pi-yuck, an Indian lad, whose life is packed with adventure, the reader of Salt Water Boy is offered a vivid picture

Easter in the Desert

By Ed Ainsworth

The Resurrection and the sun will bring a simultaneous new light to the great desert of the Coachella Valley, Easter Sunday, April 21.

One light will be an inner and invisible one. The other will be outward and most vividly visible.

As dawn comes over the pink hills in the East, the worshipful throng waiting beneath the cross on the great rocks at Travertine Point will gaze out over the shimmering expanse of the Salton Sea. Words of praise for the Resurrection of the Christ will be resounding as the renewed, daily miracle of the sun's rising bears testimony to the infinite guiding power of the universe.

With the surging spirit of Spring about them, with the manifestations of rebirth everywhere displayed in flowers and grass, the crowds can feel a kindred spirit with those first witnesses of the Resurrection in a land so similar to this.

Here in the Coachella Valley are striking resemblances to the Holy Land, found nowhere else on earth.

In this ancient sea bed with its sandstone hills and vast stretches of desert, the only things lacking to make it seem a veritable counterpart of Palestine are the camel trains and the flowing native dress of that olden country.

Here, as in the Holy Land, are the vineyards, just now putting forth their fresh new leaves to share in the general awakening of Nature. Here are twisted olive trees. Here are the barren hills raising their heads to the almost perpetual sunshine.

Here are the date palms with their long leaves emblematic of that greeting accorded the Christ by crowds in Jerusalem so long ago.

Here, as in the Holy Land, is a placid inland sea, bringing memories of that other time almost 2000 years ago when faith was personified as the Christ walked upon the water.

All these things combine to create a feeling of reverent kinship with the scene of the Nativity, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection.

The drive to the scene here during the dark hours just before the dawn is through fragrant grapefruit and orange groves, beside vast expanses of greasewood and sage, through desert sands filled with tiny sea shells reminiscent of the time when all this area was under water in a prehistoric sea. Native smoke trees in ghostly gray, the vigorous Palo Verde with green-barked arms stretching skyward, the occasional bulk of a stately ironwood tree, the lacy contours of the praying mesquites all join to create an arboreal symphony set to the silent music of the waning stars.

Easter will come to the desert in simplicity and unrehearsed grandeur.

Man's hymns and words of praise for the Saviour will blend with Nature's own testimony to the everlasting re-creation of all living things.

The Desert has a lesson for the human heart.

And that message is best heard in the sun-filled beauty of Easter dawn.

Native Sons

Native Sons To Take Lead In Three Centennials

Native Sons of the Golden West are taking the lead in planning for the Centennial Celebration commemorating the raising of the Bear Flag in the historic town of Sonoma, June 14, 1846. Plans call for a three day celebration in Sonoma, June 14, 15, 16, and it is expected to be one of the biggest affairs of its kind in many years. Many auto caravans have already been organized to take Native Sons and their families to Sonoma.

The first raising of the American flag on California soil at Monterey on July 7, 1846, will be observed with fitting ceremonies July 4, 5, 6, 7, in Monterey. Plans are also being made for a celebration of the Centennial of the first raising of the Stars and Stripes at Los Angeles, Aug. 13, 1846, by an active committee in that city, details of which will be announced later.

In keeping with these three centennials the entire theme of the 1946 Grand Parlor at Hoberg's, May 20, 21, 22, 23, will center around the Centennial theme, Grand President Richard F. McCarthy of the Native Sons of the Golden West, has announced.

Hollywood Parlor Native Sons To Celebrate Golden Jubilee

Hollywood Parlor will hold its Fiftieth Anniversary Banquet on the evening of April 25, 1946. The office of the Grand President will be represented, likewise will members of the Board of Grand Trustees grace the occasion by their presence.

As in the past, a large representation of members of the Order from the surrounding parlors is expected to attend this traditional event.

Prominent officials of City, County and State have been invited to join with the members and their friends, in the celebration of Fifty Years of progress and of incessant labor for the highest type of Friendship, of Loyalty and of Charity; the foundation of good citizenship.

Acting on the Committee of Arrangements are Louis D. Nafzinger, Chairman, Victor T. Mathews, Ralph E. Montrose, and Donald W. Myers. Serving on the Speakers Committee are Henry G. Bodkin, Chairman, Ellery Cuff and M. U. Rosenthal. Reception Committee, Earl P. Thompson, Wm. I. Hortenstine, Lee Owens, Fred Gamble, and Harold G. Thomas. Press, John Bodkin, Eldin L. Smith, Jas. M. Lynch.

Further information will appear later in the daily press.

Norma Gaetjen, for fifteen years Assistant to the Grand Secretary was married to Brother Carl Pastina of Claremont Parlor No. 240. We are pleased to report that after a short vacation that our efficient Assistant will return to her duties in the office of the Grand Secretary.

St. Patrick's Party Held By South San Francisco

South San Francisco Parlor No. 157, N.S.G.W. following a custom of nearly forty years, celebrated the anniversary of St. Patrick's Day with a banquet and entertainment. Approximately three hundred members of this Parlor and invited guests were in attendance.

The principal dish served was corned beef and cabbage. The head chef, Brother Jack Danz, had on hand three hundred pounds of corned beef for the hungry group present and little was left when the crowd departed.

The principal speaker of the evening was Edmund G. Brown, District Attorney of San Francisco, who took as his theme "The Life of St. Patrick". Brother Brown made a splendid address and received the plaudits of all assembled.

Other speakers were Richard F. McCarthy, Grand President; Raymond D. Williamson, Jr., Past Grand President; Grand Trustee Edward J Wren, who was making his official visit; Grand Trustees Peter T Conmy and Webster K. Nolan, Grand Marshal Ray Burke, Past Grand Presidents William P. Caubu, Chas. A. Koenig, Jesse H. Miller and Edward T. Schnarr; Supervising D. D. G. P. s Lewis Giegerich and Les Ashworth, D.D.G.P. Carl Boegershausen, Superior Judges Geo. W. Schonfeld and William Traverso, Sheriff Daniel C. Murphy, and Assemblyman Thomas A. Maloney, and President William Bacher.

The Master of Ceremonies was Daniel J. Collins.

In charge of the entertainment was Charles (Scotty) Butterworth, with Eddie Arnold at the piano. Songs by James Farley and Scotty Butterworth and musical numbers by Terrance Reilly and Dan Healy. Stories by Eugene H. O'Donnell.

A fine evening was enjoyed by all.

GRAND PARLOR AT HOBERGS

The session of the 1946 Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, at Hobergs in Lake County, will open at 10:00 A. M., Monday, May 20. Tuesday, May 21, will be devoted to Parlor sessions. Wednesday, May 22, has been set aside as a day of entertainment. Grand Parlor will close on Thursday, May 23, after all business is transacted and the Grand Officers duly installed.

Full business program with time of registration will be given in the May issue of the Grizzly Bear.

Grand President's Notes

By RICHARD F. McCARTHY

Grand President, N.S.G.W.

This will introduce the "Grand President's Notes" which is intended to be a monthly message and report from the Grand President to all members of the Order. This column will take the place of the "Grand President's Corner" which in the past three years has been issued approximately each month by the Grand President as a separate message and report of general activity throughout the Order. The "Grand President's Corner" was mailed to each individual Parlor and therefore did not reach many of the individual members who were not able to attend the Parlor meeting at which that message was read. By the use of this column the message will now be made available to each individual member of the Order. It is further proposed the Secretary of each Parlor read this message at the meeting of the Parlor immediately following the receipt of the Grizzly Bear so that the column may be brought to the attention of the members present and made a part of the record of the meeting.

During the month of April it is expected that at least one new Parlor will be instituted. This will be John Bidwell Parlor No. 292 at Chico. To date fifty-one names have been secured and it is anticipated that there will be at least one hundred charter members at the time of institution. All members are invited to attend this function on Monday evening, April 15, at 8:15 o'clock in the Native Daughters Hall, Chico.

Preliminary work is now being conducted for the organization of Parlors at Gustine, Mojave, Pasadena and San Andreas. Further information with respect to the institution of these Parlors will appear in a later issue of this column. In the meantime if any of the members have friends or acquaintances in these localities who may be eligible for membership, their names and addresses should be sent into the Grand Secretary's office at once that they may be contacted.

A pilgrimage will be made to Marshall's Monument at Coloma on Sunday afternoon, April 28, at 1 p.m. where a class initiation will take place. Placerville Parlor No. 9 will act as host Parlor. The initiation will be conducted by a ritual team composed of Grand Officers and a barbecue will be staged immediately following the initiation.

On the preceding evening, April 27, a class initiation, also conducted by the Grand Officers, will be held at Tuolumne Parlor No. 144 at Sonora.

All members are invited to attend these functions and particularly the pilgrimage to the Marshall Monument.

The theme of the Grand Parlor at Hobergs, commencing May 20, will be "The Centennials" and all particulars with respect to the Grand Parlor will be released in the May issue of this column.

San Francisco Assembly No. 1 Past Presidents' Association

The San Francisco Assembly No. 1, Past Presidents' Association, has been making remarkable strides in membership during the past two years, and is at this time the largest Assembly in this state organization.

Lewis A. Giergerich, Chairman of Membership for this Assembly, announces that it has increased, in the past 24 months, from a membership of 125 members to 197 and we hope to reach the 200 mark at our next meeting.

In July of this year, Bro. Giegerich, a member of Pacific Parlor, will be installed as Governor of the San Francisco Assembly, and in two years' time will head the state organization as Governor General.

The primary aim and purpose of the Past Presidents' Association is to keep actively interested in the Order of the Native Sons, all members who have served their Parlors as President, and to lend whatever assistance possible to the subordinate Parlor, through exemplification of the initiatory work, and Inter-Parlor visits.

Approximately sixteen Past Presidents of Pacific Parlor are members of this organization, the latest member of Pacific Parlor to join being Jr. Past President Cliff Wayman who was initiated March 1.

Hall Association Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Stockholders of the N.S.G.W. Hall Ass'n. of San Francisco was held on Tuesday evening, March 12, 1946, in N.S.G.W. Hall, 414 Mason street, San Francisco; Jas. B. Keenan, presiding.

The report for the last year showing a nice profit was read to those assembled.

President Kennan reported that the Stage Door Canteen relinquished the main auditorium February 28 and that a tennant with increased rental has been selected and will be given a fifteen year lease.

Th Board of Directors for the ensuing year was elected.

The Stockholders meeting adjourned and thereafter the Board of Directors held a meeting and elected the following officers: President Joseph B. Keenan, Niantic Parlor No. 105; Vice President Frank M Buckley, National Parlor No. 118; Secretary, Adolph Eberhart, Golden Gate Parlor No. 29; Attorney, Edward J. Lynch, Past Grand President and member of Pacific Parlor No. 10.

The Board of Directors voted a dividend to be paid July 1, 1946.

Redwood Native Sons Will Observe 61st Birthday

Redwood Parlor No. 66 was instituted Aug. 15, 1885 and will celebrate its 61st birthday this year. In all of these 61 years the parlor has never failed to gain financially even in many lean years, says the editor of its official bulletin. In membership Redwood Parlor is making a slow but steady gain. The parlor takes a lead in community activities such as the Community Chest Drive, Red Cross, etc. A Boy Scout troop, under leadership of Scoutmaster H. L. Day, assisted by Bill Byrd, Phil Bozzo and Paris Partidos as Scout commissioners, is sponsored by the parlor.

Auto Caravans to Mother Lode Planned by Stockton

Mrs. J. O. Gossett, chairman of the Stockton Parlor Native Daughter committee for the College of Pacific California History Fund, is planning a series of trips to the Mother Lode, with the first caravan scheduled for Sunday, May 19, from Hunter Square, Stockton.

The first stop will be Knight's Ferry, then to Columbia, finishing up at Angels Camp. A speaker from College of the Pacific will be present to point out historical spots and give a history of each locality. Each car is urged to bring its own box lunch.

These caravans to the Mother Lode are the beginning of a series to be run through the various sections, stimulated by the Native Sons and Daughters of San Joaquin County to create interest in the Centennial years 1948-1949-1950. Anyone interested may join these caravans as they are open to the public.

Stockton Parlor has also voted to assist the State Department of Public Works in carrying on a campaign for re-marking all Historic Landmarks with plainer road signs.

El Tejon Daughters Adopt Two Babies

El Tejon Parlor No. 239 at a recent meeting voted to adopt two babies in addition to their generous contribution to the Homeless Children Fund.

On March 8, 32 officers and members of El Tejon Parlor, No. 239, boarded the train enroute to Mojave. With candlelight ceremonies in a flower filled room, initiation of candidates was followed by installation of officers for Desert Gold Parlor. Catherine Christensen was installed as President. Lucy Cupertino, deputy to Desert Gold Parlor, was installing officer.

Grand Trustee, Ann Schiebusch, Los Angeles Parlor, was present, as was also State Chairman of Extension of the Order, Eugenia Smith of Long Beach Parlor. Lucy Cupertino, of El Tejon Parlor, and officers and members of El Tejon Parlor were in charge. Refreshments were served.

At the regular meeting of El Tejon Parlor, March 15, a short business meeting was held with President Ella Bozeman presiding. After various reports and plans for money making projects to start at once, the meeting was turned over to the program chairman, Mary Jane Clarkin, who presented several numbers of tap dancing from the dancing studio, and concluded the evening with everyone playing bingo. The program committee then served lime sherbet and home made cookies. Everyone had a gay St. Patrick's Day time.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW will celebrate its 45th birthday this month with a gala party on Wednesday evening, April 3rd at Odd Fellows Hall, Washington and Oak streets. Evelyn Howell, president, announced that parlor past presidents, headed by Juanita Porter, will sponsor the evening's festivities.

Easter Greetings

Dear Sisters:

Let the praises of mankind ring loud and clear for a renewal of faith based upon courage, divinity of purpose, and integrity of spirit in order that this Easter Season will exemplify the true meaning of the teachings given to us almost two thousands years ago by our Savior.

"Christ, the Lord is risen today," has a deeper significance because of peace after four years of degradation. Our Alleluias must come from our very hearts; and the principle of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, "abiding faith in the existence of God," contains a deeper message than ever before.

We are all awaiting the coming of the springtime and Eastertide, knowing it carries a true promise of a better and brighter future for our Order.

That each member of the Order enjoy a new-found happiness and love in carrying out her plans, is my Easter wish to you.

Sincerely and fraternally,

ETHEL C. ENOS

St. Patrick's Breakfast at Native Daughter Home

Sunday Morning, March 10, found the Deputy Grand Presidents of San Francisco County hosting a St. Patrick's Day breakfast in the Native Daughter Home. Ninety-nine representatives of Native Son and Daughter parlors filled the dining room to overflowing. Presiding was Jessie Ormond, SDDGP of San Francisco county, a member of Gabrielle Parlor. Opening the program, following the breakfast, were soprano solos by DGP Leslye Hicks, who sang "A Glad Prayer" and "Without a Song," accompanied by Grand Organist Francis Simas. Frank H. Beckmann, world traveler and lecturer, head of the Beckmann-Hollister & Co. public speaking school, the largest school of its type in the United States, spoke. Mr Beckmann chose to take the group "Flying down to Lima," from an air experience he had in January of this year on a trip to Peru. Included in this word travelogue was the simple psychology of relaxation. Every person attending the breakfast was thrilled at the address given by this famous gentleman.

Introduced were Grand President Ethel Enos, Grand Vice President Loretta M. Cameron, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Marshal Doris Treat, Grand Trustee Betty Read and the following Past Grand Presidents: Emily E. Ryan, Orinda Giannini, May Boldeman, Evelyn I Carlson and May B. Wilkins. Dr. Marianna Bertola, permanent chairman of the Native Daughter Home Board, was introduced and responded with short but interesting remarks regarding the operation of the Home. DGP Leslye Hicks closed the morning with "Two Little Irish Songs," in keeping with the theme of the day, which greatly amused the listeners. Chairman of the day was Kathleen Holland, DGP of Guadalupe Parlor.

Californiana Parlor Aids Red Cross Drive

Miss Mabel S. Wigdal, president, presided over the monthly luncheon of Californiana Parlor No. 247, NDGW, at the Women's University Club, Los Angeles, Tuesday, March 12. Camelia corsages adorned the guests and tables.

In keeping with Californiana's hundred per cent record of individual memberships in the American Red Cross, Mrs. George P. Adams, parlor Red Cross chairman, presented the program.

Miss Ann Wall of the Red Cross Clubmobile European Theater Sector, who recently returned from two years' service overseas and who has the distinction of wearing five battle stars, was the guest speaker. Miss Wall served through the bitter bulge experience in France in December, 1944, and was assigned to keep close to the front lines under General Patton's command. She conveyed a glowing picture of the irrepressible American GI's under adversity.

The Red Cross motion picture, "The Job Ahead," depicting the veteran rehabilitation work at home and abroad now being performed by the Red Cross, concluded the program.

Have you sent your check for membership to your American Red Cross Chapter? If not, Californiana Parlor No. 247 urges you to do so today.

Aloha Parlor Celebrates 47th Birthday Anniversary

Aloha Parlor, Oakland, celebrated their 47th birthday February 26, 1946. A turkey dinner cooked by the members of the parlor was served. Through the efforts of the chairman, Martha Decker, and her committee, a most delectable dinner was enjoyed.

On reminising on the progress of Aloha Parlor, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler read excerpts from the "Proceedings" from the time of the Parlor's institution.

50 members were present and enjoyed an evening of entertainment following the banquet.

We are preparing for our Grand President's Official Visit under the leadership of Mrs. Gladys I. Farley. The date of the visit will be April 23; and as we have a Grand Officer in our midst, the Grand President has given us an individual meeting.

A baby shower for the Homeless Children was the event at our meeting of March 26 and a dinner honoring our Past President, Mrs Irma S. Murray, was held preceeding the baby shower at the Cock of the Walk—Mrs. Myrtle S. Ransom, chairman.

Copa de Oro Parlor Celebrates Birthday

Copa de Oro Parlor, NDGW, enjoyed a two-in-one observance on Feb. 20, celebrating Washington's birthday and the birthday of the parlor. Four charter members were introduced and presented with gardenia corsages. Interesting stories of Washington's life were related by Nettie Hoyle, Ruby Nyland and Ethel Hostetter. An informative quiz compared Washington and Lincoln, for which awards honored Washington as a farmer, Ruby Nyland receiving a pound of butter and Justina Lewis a dozen eggs.

The refreshment table set aside for the charter members was prettily centered with a bowl of yellow and white blossoms flanked by red tapers. The first minutes of the parlor were read during the refreshment hour and entertaining anecdotes related by the honor guests regarding the parlor's institution.

James Lick Parlor Initiates Six New Members

James Lick Parlor No. 220, NDGW, initiated six new members at a recent joint meeting with Golden State Parlor No. 50, honoring Grand President Ethel C. Enos. Other Grand Officers present were Emily Ryan, Loretta Cameron, Jewell McSweeney, Evelyn Carlson, Jessie Ormand and Dorothy Donifrio.

James Lick Parlor presented a beautiful layette for the Homeless Children, a dozen or more of everything. Ellen Bell has made these beautiful layettes for years and deserves much thanks. She has already started a new one for the next Grand President.

Joint Meeting Honors Grand President

Cleora McAlpin, chairman of young women's activities of La Reina Parlor, NDGW, Los Angeles, recently held a meeting at her home to discuss social activities. Plans were made for an ice follies party and a drill team was discussed.

Grand President Ethel C. Enos made her official visit to a joint meeting of Verdugo Parlor and La Reina Parlor, Thursday evening, March 28. The officers were dressed in white formals. Florence Grass and members of Verdugo Parlor planned the refreshments.

La Reina Parlor is proud to have Catherine Wilke back from the Marines.

Golden Anniversary Is Celebrated by Ivy Parlor

The meeting night of Feb. 6, 1946, marked the day of the Golden Anniversary of Ivy Parlor's institution, Feb. 6, 1896. Of the 35 charter members, Ivy Parlor now has four on its roster: Mattie Stein, charter president; Emma Lou Humphrey, charter recording secretary; Mae Corson, four times president, and Flora Langhorst, past president and oldest living member. Added honors were brought to the parlor by these charter members when, in 1909-10, Emma Lou Humphrey, and in 1922-23, Mattie Stein, presided as Grand Presidents of NDGW.

Preceding the meeting, a dinner was held in the Gold Room of Hotel Lodi. The room was decorated in appropriate scheme of baskets of poppies, ferns and gold ivy. The dinner tables had bowls of poppies and maiden hair fern, with gold ivy entwined with poppies running along the center of the table. Nut cups of poppy color were held by a gold ivy leaf and napkins printed in gold completed the table decorations. Incidental music was played by Walter Urben and, between the dinner and the meeting, community singing was lead by P.P. Virginia Stahl. The programs of the evening, which also held our roster, were faced with a gold ivy leaf.

The meeting, which was held in the Gold Room of Hotel Lodi, was called to order by President Lulu Mae Gregg and P.G.P. Mattie Stein (our first president) opened the parlor. Our Grand President, Ethel C. Enos, made her official visit and was escorted to her seat of honor. P.G.P. Emma Lou Humphrey was escorted to the Recording Secretary's station and later in the evening read the minutes of our first meeting, which she attended.

P.G.P Clarice Cook of Caliz de Oro Parlor No. 206, Supervising D.D.G.P. Angel Perry of Phoebe Hearst Parlor No. 214, Ivy Parlor's own D.D.G.P. Emma Morotti of Joaquin Parlor No. 5 were escorted and each presented with a corsage of daffodils. Announcing their presence were the following D.D.G.P.'s: Annette Boltzen of Phoebe Hearst Parlor, Blanch Carre of Sutter Parlor, Harriet Welch of Joaquin Parlor, Ora Hammer of Stockton Parlor, and Lulu Mae Gregg of Ivy Parlor No. 88. Visiting members were from El Pescadero Parlor No. 82, Phoebe Hearst Parlor No. 214, Stockton Parlor No. 256, Caliz de Oro Parlor No. 206, Morado Parlor No. 199, Joaquin Parlor No. 5, La Rosa Parlor No. 191, Santa Cruz Parlor No. 26 and Sutter Parlor No. 111.

Each of the twelve candidates were presented with a daffodil corsage.

P.P. Virginia Stahl sang "In the Heart of a Rose," presenting G.P. Ethel C. Enos with a nosegay of yellow rosebuds, in the center of which was the gift of Ivy Parlor. G.P. Ethel responded in her usual charming manner, giving a lasting memory to all.

P.G.P. Emma Lou Humphrey, P.G.P. Mattie Stein and P.P. Flora Langhorst were escorted to the altar and Grand President Ethel C. Enos presented them with their 50-year pins. P.P. Virginia Stahl sang "Because." Each charter member responded with remarks of the experiences of 50 years in Ivy Parlor. Grand President Ethel visited the home of the other charter member, P.P. Mae Corson, who was unable to attend, and presented her with a 50-year pin and corsage.

Grand President Ethel C. Enos asked that our penny drill be made a dime drill and that the proceeds, which were a goodly sum, be donated to the Polio Fund.

Santa Barbara Daughters Plan for Grand President

Santa Barbara's Reina del Mar Parlor NDGW, will make a gala occasion of th forthcoming official visit of Grand Presi dent Ethel Enos, scheduled for Wednesda evening, April 10, at Santa Barbara Wom en's Club.

The parlor's Past Presidents Associatior Elizabeth Coan, secretary, met on March at the home of Miss Edna Sharpe to pla a buffet dinner at the midtown clubhous The program will be based on the them of the current administration, "Unity an Leadership in the Period of Reconversion, and Mrs. Albert Ames, president, will pre side. Ten new members will be initiate as part of the ceremony honoring the Gran President. Reports of officers and commit tee heads will be presented in a printe edition of "The Cub," the parlor's occa sional publication.

Buena Vista Parlor Enjoys Family Night

Devoting an evening to that great prin ciple upon which the Order of the Nativ Daughters of the Golden West is founde "Love of Home," Buena Vista Parlor N 68, NDGW, under the leadership of Rut E. Weiman, president, demonstrated th the "family who plays together stays t gether" on the night of March 21, wit a family night. Guests of the evening i cluded the husbands of members of th parlor who have devoted years of servi to the successful social and financial affai of the parlor, among whom were Andre O. Field, Kurt Ritterbush, F. "Blacki Blackburn, Elmer Vocarri, Frank E. We man. Rummage sales and fall bazaa require the help of the men-folk, and th certainly give that help in Buena Vis Parlor. Sons and daughters of the fa ilies were also present. Dancing, game bingo and community singing filled t evening's entertainment. Real "fami night" refreshments of corned-pork san wiches and home-made potato salad we provided for the enjoyment of the gentl men. Co-chairmen for a very successf evening were Mary Chilson and Doroth Heuring.

MISSION BELLS

California Mission Bells are once again on the market, and available to every lover of California's history and romance. In 1906 Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes copyrighted her unique design for the El Camino Real Mission Bell Guide Posts standing today as markers along California's highways. A nine-inch high replica will be sent postpaid for $2.25.

Replicas of the Santa Barbara Angelus, San Gabriel Angelus, San Juan Capistrano, Mission Dolores, San Diego, or Carmel Mission Bells are priced at $1.65, postpaid. Full, true and lasting bell tone is a guaranteed quality. The exclusive Verde green finish antiques to a weathered bronze.

Each Souvenir bell (approx. 3" tall) is tissue-wrapped and packaged in a gift box with a brief history of the mission.

California Parlor NSGW Shows Membership Gain

Expressing appreciation for the gains made in the "California's on the March" membership drive now in progress in California Parlor No. 1, President I. Edward Unger heartily praised the efforts of three of his committees for making the drive a success.

The Membership Committee is headed by Bill James and Duke Rehfeld, and was recently augmented by returned war veterans John Hayes, Al Basso and Richard Gros de Lange. They feel the gains shown in the drive is reflected through the Order for the Grand Secretary's office has been receiving an average of fifty applications a day. Now all "California is on the March."

The Good of the Order Committee is assisting by providing entertainment and refreshments for the class initiations. On March 9, an Open House and Dance was held in the Grizzly Bear Club for the members, their families, friends and prospective candidates. Henry Rickleffs, M. L. Caligari, J. B. Cassou and Jack Silva make up the committee.

Sharing in the praise was the Bulletin Committee which publishes the Parlor's "Alta Californian," L. F. "Larry" Elower, Fred Ehlers and P G Pres. Jesse H. Miller. "Through the columns of their paper this committee won the support of the members and throughout the drive has sustained their interest in the Parlor's forward program.

Pres. Unger attributes the success of this coordination and cooperation of these three committee working as a team in the interest of California Parlor.

To Hold Reception For Grand President McCarthy

A reception for Grand President Richard F. McCarthy will be held April 26 under auspices of the San Francisco Extension of the Order Committee of the Native Sons, in the library of the Grizzly Bear Club. Armand Nishkian of California parlor, chairman of the reception committee, is in charge of the program.

Hanford Native Sons Hear High School Orators

Finals in the High School Oratorical Contest, sponsored by the Native Sons, were held at the meeting of Hanford Parlor Wednesday evening, March 8, with arrangements in charge of Lyman Griswold, chairman of the speakers committee. Acting as judges in the elimination contest to select the winning high school boy were Meredith Wingrove, Capt. E. E. Carr and Sheriff Clyde.

Mrs. C L. Dodge Passes to Great Beyond

On March 9, 1946, Mrs. C. L. Dodge, wife of Past Grand President Charles L. Dodge, passed away. The funeral services were held at her home town, Martinez.

Grand Officers present at the funeral services were John T, Regan, Grand Secretary, Peter T. Conmy, Grand Trustee and Chas. A. Koenig, Past Grand President.

Los Angeles Parlor Daughters Mark Portola Trail

Ground trod by Gaspar de Portola in 1769 when he moved northward to Monterey to act as first Spanish Governor of California, was marked appropriately Sunday, April 7, by Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW.

Grand President Ethel C. Enos unveiled an impressive six-foot granite monument at the exact site where the Portola trail entered Sepulveda Canyon. The point is at the present intersection of Sepulveda boulevard and Moraga drive, West Los Angeles.

Portola and his accompanying army are believed to have been th first white men to move over the Indian trails, which now are Wilshire and Sepulveda boulevards.

On the monument is etched the coat of arms worn by Portola, when he made his historic pilgrimage through little known territory.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron and numerous city and county officials, as well as members of pioneer families and prominent citizens were invited to witness the unveiling.

Grand Trustee Anna T. Schiebusch delivered the invocation. Speakers included Evelyn Howell, president, Los Angeles Parlor; Dr. Owen Coy, director of the California State Historical Association and professor of history, USC, and Arthur Woodward, chief curator, Los Angeles County Museum.

Bernice Setterberg and Ella Steinbeck, co-chairmen of the parlor's history and landmarks committee, who arranged for the marking, were in charge of the program. They introduced prominent members of the Native Sons and Daughters, and state historical organizations. A musical program preceded the unveiling.

Restoration Committee Visits Monterey Missions

A pilgrimage was made March 18 to the three missions of Monterey County—Mission San Carlos Borromeo, Mission San Antonio de Padua and Mission Nuestra de la Soledad, in the interest of restoration work by several members of the committee appointed by Grand President Ethel C. Enos of the Native Daughters. Among the party were State Chairman of Mission Restoration, Orinda G. Giannini, and Elmarie H. Dyke. Others in the party included Frank V. Freethy of San Francisco, who has long been interested in the restoration of Soledad Mission, and Raymond M. Giannini.

Native Daughter New Superintendent of Schools

Miss Gladys Stone, member of Aleli Parlor No. 102, Salinas, was recently appointed county superintendent of schools for Monterey county to fill out the unexpired term of James G. Force, who retired because of ill health. Miss Stone had served as chief deputy for more than 17 years. Alpha Lamba Chapter of Delt Kappa Gamma, national honor society, honored Miss Stone at a dinner held at Santa Lucia Inn, Salinas. Grand Trustee Elmarie Dyke, charter president of Alpha Lambda, assisted with the arrangements.

FLASH! FLASH!

At the Board of Grand Officers meeting, March 9, it was voted to hold the Grand Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West the first week in June at Hoberg's, Lake County. The exact date will be forwarded to the Subordinate Parlors in a short time.

Hidden Springs Ranch at Thousand Palms

The deserts' newest and largest residential suburb in the Palm Springs District.

A development by the Doyles, originators and former owners of the Smoke Tree Ranch at Palm Springs. 1200 acres in estate sites of 1, 2½, 5 and 10 acres.

Architectural restrictions limited to external design. Simple artistic cottages or elaborate desert estates. Adequate character restrictions. Mixed-income groups without loss of homogeneity.

Electricity, roads and domestic water piped to each site. Future abundant cheap water for irrigation of ornamental landscaping — dates, figs, citrus.

Spaciousness and privacy without isolation. Easy commuting distance to Palm Springs City shops and theatres. Future swimming pool, club house and services.

Elimination of all courts, "business frontage."

The developer is a substantial land owner with the responsibility it implies.

KATHERINE BRITSCHGI

To the Officers and Members of Orinda Parlor No. 56, N.D.G.W.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our beloved Charter Member and Past President, Katherine Britschgi, respectfully submit the following:

The Angel of Death entered our Parlor and summoned from our midst to the Grand Parlor on High a dearly beloved Sister. Sister Britschgi has gone to a Better Home and, while we mourn her loss to our Parlor, we are comforted by the beautiful memories of her loyalty to and love for our Order and, with deepest sorrow, we bow in humble prayer, realizing our loss is the heavenly gain of our dear Sister.

Resolved, that we extend our sincere sympathy and pray that God will comfort the bereaved husband, who has lost a loving companion, and to her daughter, Past President Verene Friede, who has lost a faithful mother.

Be it further resolved, that this expression of sympathy be sent to the family, a copy spread on the minutes of the Parlor, and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

mountains and the coast always remained with him. His fellow soldiers kidded and joked about Navarro and his dream. Several years later he was sent to the new world with his regiment, and promoted to Sergeant. Yet in spite of the lapse of time he still talked of his vision and felt confident that one day he would see this paradise and there found the city as he had been instructed by the Our Lady, the Queen of the Angeles. Thirty years passed but he stuck to his dream and the other Spanish soldiers still ribbed him but they admired him and there wasn't one of them that couldn't describe that beautiful dream valley in the remotest detail. And each one hoped to one day find it and lead their beloved Sergeant to the chosen spot.

Then one day Sergeant Navarro with Corporal Quintero and a soldier named Bannegas accompanied by a few mission Indians and some pack mules, started from the Mission at Ventura to visit San Gabriel for supplies. The Sergeant had made the trip several times before and so this time he decided to explore a possibly shorter route over the mountains.

At noon they reached the summit and a beautiful valley was laid out in front of them. Instantly the Sergeant recognized it as the identical valley that he had seen in his vision in Spain thirty years before. And Corporal Quintero and Bannegas also realized that at last the Sergeant's quest was ended, for there were the rugged mountains already turning from green to brown and gold, there was the river like a silver ribbon. There were the herds of wild Antelope and Deer. There was the white walled Mission in the setting of green, and away to the west was the blue ocean, the golden beaches and the rocky islands. Not a word was spoken as Navarro opened his flagon of wine and poured a drink for each one. Then they sat there and smoked as they gazed on this beautiful valley.

That night they reached the Mission, and the three soldiers instantly appealed to his Excellency, Don Felipe De Neve, (Governor and Military Commandante of California) for their discharge and permission to found a Pueblo on the river. The Governor consented but pointed out that they would be far from the protection of the Mission and that they would have very little chance of ever obtaining a population or, for that matter, of the Pueblo ever growing to any size.

Navarro wouldn't be discouraged, and appealed to the Father of the Mission and obtained an order for the founding on August 26, 1781. At dawn on September 5, the procession left the Mission San Gabriel and at noon reached the site for the new Pueblo.

Navarro led, carrying an image of the Queen of the Angels, followed by Corporal Quintero with the Spanish banner and Bannegas carrying the cross which he erected on the Plaza. They were followed by nine other soldiers who with the women and children were to form the entire first population of the city. Then came the Mission Fathers and Governor Don Felipe de Neve. As the Plaza was reached, the trumpets sounded, the drums rolled and then to the accompanyment of the Priest's chants the cross was erected. Mass was then solemnized, the Plaza was carefully marked out and then the procession set off again for the San Gabriel Mission leaving behind the 36 original settlers to build their adobe homes.

A new city had been born—El Pueblo de Nuestra Senora la Reina de Los Angeles—the town of Our Lady the Queen of the Angeles. The city that had been shown to Sergeant Navarro in a vision thirty years before, a city that was prophesied to grow to be one of the brightest jewels on earth and one day a city second to none, a city larger than anyone had ever dreamed that one could be.

That was 165 years ago. Today that little Pueblo has already grown to an amazing size and has become a jewel that attracts visitors from every corner of the globe. Truly the prediction that Navarro foresaw in his dream (or vision) has been fulfilled a thousand fold. And today the old Plaza where Los Angeles had its beginning, is one of the most historical and romantic spots to be found anywhere along the interesting and scenic highways of the West.

At a recent meeting of the California History Board, NSGW, it was suggested that he attention of all members of the Order be called to the legislation passed by the 1945 ession of the Legislature, requiring that the Stars and Stripes and the Bear Flag shall e prominently installed, displayed and maintained in all courtrooms of the State of alifornia, not only those of the Appellate and Superior Courts, but also including the Municipal Courts and Justices of the Peace.

Under the law the National and State flags must also be displayed during business ours in front of every public building, State, County or Municipal.

The law further provides that it is the duty of public officials in charge to make ecessary provisions for the flags and the Superior Court is given jurisdiction to enforce he act, on the petition of any citizen of the county.

As 1946 has been designated as "Bear Flag Year," all members of the Native Sons nd Daughters of the Golden West should see that this law is complied with by those in harge of courtrooms and public buildings.

In case of violation of the law, members should call attention to the fact, and if not emedied, necessary steps should be taken to have the law enforced.

Homeless Children CORNER

PLANS ARE NOW IN THE MAKING FOR BIG 1946 HOMELESS BABIES CAMPAIGN

by Hazel B. Hansen

The Central Committee on Homeless Children is already getting under way with preparations for the 1946 Fund Raising Campaign.

Our plans, while still in the preliminary stage of being formulated, call for a greater activity than last year. Even more of the public will be reached with the story of these homeless tots and what we, the Native Sons and Native Daughters, are doing about it.

The exact date and other details of our program are as yet in too early a stage to make any definite announcement in this issue of the Grizzly Bear.

However, all members of the Native Sons and Native Daughters will be notified of our plans, as soon as possible and well in advance of the actual campaign to the general public.

The need of this drive is now even more acute than last year. As you undoubtedly know, our burdens have greatly increased and our expenses have gone up, along with the general higher costs in foods, supplies and help.

Therefore, there is much to do for all of us in this work and we feel confident that you, as in the past, will be most co-operative—for we believe that you will agree, there is no cause more worthy than that of caring for babies who are left helpless and homeless.

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

The picnic season in May, 1871, had ideal weather conditions, balmy and sunshiny days prevailing. The Sunday-schools appear to have taken the lead in nearly every town for a frolic in the fields. One of the largest of these picnics was on May 6, when 2,500 Sunday-school children of San Francisco went by steamboat to Vallejo and then by rail to Holly Grove in Napa County. The military companies, civic societies, and even the colored people, where numerous enough, had their day in the groves.

A battalion of erstwhile barbers and bartenders now appeared on California street, San Francisco, as wealthy speculators and wiseacres. Listening to the talk of mining men who were on the "inside" while they were being shaved in the shops and treating at the bars, they took the tips, got in while prices were low, and now were harvesting their opportunity. A bevy of landladies, chambermaids and milliners, whose patrons had told them to buy, now flocked in the brokers' offices, and watched quotations and their wealth increase. When the "winter of discontent" came with falling prices, they stayed with the markets. When, in the parlance of California street, they had to "dig more mud" to keep up their margins, their speculating brothers dubbed them "mud hens," and the name stuck.

The firemen of Marysville, Yuba County, fire department paid a visit to the Stockton firemen May 10. They chartered a train of six coaches. At Stockton there was a parade and a banquet. On their return trip they were received with a band and a big delegation of the Sacramento firemen on their arrival there and induced to remain over until the next day. They were given a rousing reception.

The first carload of peanuts to be shipped from this state left for Omaha, Nebraska, May 16.

A woman's suffrage convention met in San Francisco May 16 with forty-two delegates. Mrs. John A. Collins was made president and Mrs. DeWolf secretary.

The American Medical Association met in San Francisco May 3. Its annual meeting was attended by several hundred physicians and surgeons from all states of the Union. Dr. D. W. Yardell of Kentucky was selected as president. It refused to seat a female delegate, deciding there was an inequality in sex.

The Americus Club, composed of a score of Prominent Tammany, New York City, politicians, came to the state in a special car named "Wm. M. Tweed" for a good time, and had it.

There was a rush of prominent people from San Francisco and other cities this month to the Calaveras Big Trees and Yosemite Valley. May 3, via Stockton, over 100 vehicles departed with pleasure-seeking loads. The demand for vehicles exceeded the supply, and hotels in the valley had to erect tents to lodge the unexpected hundreds who came. The veteran stage owner, Billy Hamilton, established a stage line from Galt, via Mokelumne Hill and Big Trees to Yosemite, which was largely patronized.

Malcolm Bros. near Hollister, San Benito County, planted 300 acres in flax. The seed was selling at six cents a pound.

Chas. Lewis at Salinas, Monterey County, had raised a hog that weighed 1,200 pound

Bordwell and Cooley, near LaPort Plumas County, had been running a tunn through a ridge for nine years. At a di tance of 1,700 feet they struck this mont a gravel channel that was paying $1 to t pan.

A fire in San Bernadino, May 8, destroy six business houses with a $30,000 loss.

A desperate fight in the Panoche Mou tains, Monterey County, May 11, took pla between a band of desperadoes and Sheri Morse of Alameda County and Sher Harris of Monterey County with the deputies. Sheriff Morse killed Manual Sot wanted for killing three men at Sun and another Mexican was captured. T balance of the gang escaped but were bei pursued.

Johnny Devine, alias "The Chicken," notorious rounder in San Francisco, w had had his hand slashed off while on spree two years before, buncoed a sail named Kamp out of $20. Meeting him ne day Kamp started to make him refu when he shot Kamp in the head and caus his death a few days later. "The Chicken" predatory cruising along the Barbary Co bid fair to be permanently stopped.

The Sacramento Story

by
COMMANDER SCOTT

THE gleaming golden dome of the capitol building at Sacramento is a ıining beacon welcoming every visitor to ıis beautiful serene city. It is truly, one f the loveliest of all state capitals and alifornia can well be proud of it. The olden dome is, as a matter of fact, symolic of the beginnings of this mellow city, or Sacramento sits almost in the lap of ıe land that produced the first great gold ısh. Everything that happened to Sacramento in the early days, was due to gold. The prosperity, the depression, the brilliance, the disaster can all be attributed to gold. So when you see that beautiful gold dome, it reminds you of the very foundations of this fabulous place.

If you approach Sacramento from the west, you go into the city over a long causeway and a bridge across the Sacramento River. Hundreds of years ago the Spaniards ventured up this beckoning river, and in honor of the Holy Sacrament, they named it Sacramento. Then a hundred and six years ago last August, Capt. John Sutter sailed up the river and saw promising land that only needed clearing and

The Golden Dome of the State Capitol at Sacramento and the spacious surrounding grounds. On the Capitol building an inscription eads, "Send me men to match my mountains." To the East the mighty Sierra Nevadas look down approvingly, for here great men have ome to meet and wisely shape the destiny of a great state. Perhaps this is the source of the intangible quality of the lovely city—for 'acramento has an individuality that can be found in no other city along the Highways of the World.

cultivating. So he established a settlement that soon grew into a great agricultural domain. But as you remember, all of it was ruined by the discovery of gold on his land. After the gold rush subsided, ironically enough, Sacramento was to again find her great wealth in agriculture. And now today her beautiful surrounding countryside is one great garden of fruits and vegetables. Warm, sunny foothills produce luscious grapes, or rosy pears, while nuts and apricots, oranges and berries, all thrive equally well. Pasture lands are of the best, and large herds of healthy looking cows fill the grazing lands. And Strange but True, it is all a realization of the dream that Sutter had when he first came upon this wonderful country more than a hundred years ago. Though Sutter lost everything, there are still many reminders of him in names of clubs and organizations, roads and buildings, the old landing and even the Sutterville townsite. Many relics of the old days of Sutter's time still survive in that wonderful museum that was once Sutter's Fort. There are some fingerprint records that are surely an Unreal Reality, especially to see them, and never go to the fingerprint file in Washington D. C. You might guess that they are Black Bart's or perhaps those of another one of the old bandits that came to justice long before J. Edgar Hoover stepped into the American scene. But as a matter of fact, they belonged to peaceful, hard working men, who had no idea that they were leaving records for posterity. When Sutter's Fort was built, it began as a house. Then a wall around the house was added for better protection against the Indians who were then very hostile. Some small cannons were later imported and placed at vital points along the wall. These were used a few times against the beligerent Indians, and evidentally to good eflect, for the Red Men soon changed their tactics and went to work for Sutter. As his establishment grew and he needed more buildings, he gave the Indians the job of making adobe brick for new storerooms and living quarters. And strangely enough here is our Unreal Reality, for on the surface of those very bricks are still to be seen the fingerprints of those fighting western Indians that turned peaceful. By the way, have you ever seen the old Sutter Fort Museum? There are hundreds of interesting things there, and everyone should visit it. Another yet a newer building will also interest almost as much. because it has an undiscovered gold mine, so to speak, right within its own walls, and most people knew nothing about it until ten years ago. I refer to the Crocker Art Gallery. Few people realize what it has contributed to the art world and that it has a collection of drawings that comes close to the famous Fogg and Metropolitan Museum Collections.

The interesting fact about it is, that for years hundreds of famous signed works were actually in an art gallery and yet they were completely lost to the world. It happened because Mr. Crocker (brother of the famous Charles Crocker) made a great deal of money, went abroad for two years. apparently bought out an art dealer, and returned to Sacramento to enjoy life. Here he had a huge mansion built in the most elaborate Victorian style. Along with a library and a ballroom, he had built a skating rink, so it is not surprising that when he acquired an art collection he built an art gallery for it. But two years after this lavish outlay of wealth, Mr. Crocker died and ten years later Mrs. Crocker gave the whole gallery and its contents to the California Museum Association.

Whoever was in charge of the acquisition had no idea of its priceless treasures, or at least knew nothing about caring for them. So for fifty years the collection gathered dust. Then in 1936 the old gallery acquired a new master and things began happening. More than a thousand genuine drawings of European masters were discovered. Experts came, interest grew, and various organizations and individuals, together with the city council, promoted the project.

GENERAL JOHN SUTTER

Finances are still a problem, but with the war years past, the Crocker Art Gallery is due for a new impetus, but can even now be proud of its high place in the art world.

Only a few blocks from the Crocker Art Gallery, and on the same street, as a matter of fact, is another reminder of the early days. It's the Pony Express Museum, which was actually the terminus of the famous mail route between St. Joseph, Missouri and Sacramento. The Express was of course also delivered in San Francisco, but the journey from Sacramento was made by boat. And incidentally, I just read a dispatch that the last pony express type of service, which operated over a mountain road in Arizona, has relinquished its place to the automobile. But to go back to the original Pony Express. Just eighty-five years ago, the first trip was completed, and the whole town of Sacramento was in an uproar of excitment. Another chapter had been added to the Romance of the Highways of the West. Fire engines turned out, bands played, there were speeches, parades and dancing, for it was a great moment. At last the East had been joined to the West. News only ten days old in the east was already being printed in the western newspapers. And in ten days, eastern newspapers could print the great news that had just been made right in Sacramento itself. Imagine! Ten days, when three or four weeks had seemed short enough before this. This new wonder—the Pony Express—had thirty-five or forty horsemen in the saddle every moment, day and night. Racing east and west, riders changed horses every ten or twelve miles. Then every hundred miles they relayed their bags of express to the next rider. But it was not as simple as that, for the life was a dangerous one at best. What experience those men encountered! Often they would arrive at some outpost to change horses or riders only to find it burned or destroyed by Indians, and then on they would race, hoping to find the next post safe. Some times bands of wandering Indians woul attack the lone rider. Many were lost an many dragged themselves dying into th post to turn over their precious expres One of the star riders of the Pony Expres was William Frederick Cody who later be came the famous Buffalo Bill. He wa born in Scott County, Iowa, where hi father owned a trading store for th hunters and trappers of the western state When Bill was only three, gold was dis covered in California. Before he was eleve years of age, he was herding cattle, an before he was twelve he had alread crossed the plains with a large herd. O that trip he was attacked, and he sh and killed his first Indian. When he g safely home from that excursion, he im mediately joined up with a covered wago train of pioneers that was bound for Cal fornia. As he had signed on as a hunte his job was to keep the entire compan supplied with fresh meat.

Today it's hard to realize that a lad twelve could even be considered an expe hunter, much less be able to provide foo for a large caravan. But in spite of har ships and more Indian fights he and th carvan got through. These strenuous a ventures had made Bill Cody a real ma among men, a man of unlimited braver and tremendous fortitude. So it was, tha he became tough enough to ride for th Pony Express, at the tender age of fou teen. One day he rode his regular sixt one miles with the mail only to find tha the station had been attacked and his r liefman killed. Undaunted, he set out f the next depot, seventy-three miles awa where a rider would be waiting. At smal er stations on the route he changed horse seized a bit of food and raced on. but h next depot had also been attacked a everyone had been killed. Without a pau he dashed on, and at last gained his fin goal another fifty-eight miles away— total of one hundred and ninety-two mil from his starting point. And can you b lieve it—he arrived right on schedule!

Then, stopping only for a meal, he w in the saddle again to make his retu trip. After two complete days and nigh and nearly four hundred miles of ha riding, (often riding for his life) Co pulled into his home station, and again l brought the mail in on time!

Such were the records of the Pony E press and although it lasted for only year and a half, it will always remain one of the most colorful institutions western history. Sacramento is full of r minders of such exciting history—polit cal, financial and social.

As the government seat, it has been th scene of many thrilling political event The home of the greatest gold rush in hi tory, it claims an unchallenged place the financial history of the nation and many individuals. And as the terminus the Overland Route, it was truly the gat way to a whole new social life. Sacramen has played a dramatic role in the shapi of not only the state of California, but the whole United States. She seems have a charmed life; perhaps because her very rugged beginnings she develop an immunity to disaster. But through th years she has suffered fires. floods, eart quakes, and epidemics and has alwa shaken off each annoyance and come u smiling, stronger than before. On the ca tol building there is a significant inscri tion that reads. "Send me men to mat my mountains." To the East the gre Sierra Nevadas look down approvingly, f underneath the golden dome, great m have come to meet and to wisely shape th destiny of a great state. Perhaps this the source of the intangible quality of th lovely city—for Sacramento has an indivi uality that can be found in no other ci along the Highways of the World.

Billion Dollar Coast

A bit of the history of the fascinating coast line of Orange County, home of Mother Colony, Santa Ana and Paradise Parlors, Native Sons of the Golden West, and Grace, Santa Ana and Silver Sands Parlors, Native Daughters.

By HARRY WELCH

ON HIS voyage along the Coast of California in 1542 Cabrillo, the Spanish explorer, looked over the area where Newport Harbor is now located. At that time the peninsula on which Balboa is built was probably a small extension of the delta of the Santa Ana River and in those days the channel to Upper Newport Bay opened direct to the sea.

In his reference to this voyage along the California Coast Cabrillo reports he entered a bay between high headlands, a bay hidden by clouds of smoke with springs of sweet water on its sides. To those who have studied the early history of this part of California it is well known that for many years the extensive peat beds at the head of Upper Newport Bay burned constantly and a pall of smoke hung over that area most of the time.

Cabrillo also states he reached this bay by "sailing with the prevailing wind from Santa Catalina," and to those who know the winds and weather of Southern California it is apparent that by sailing with the prevailing wind from Santa Catalina Island he would have arrived at the area around Newport Harbor for that is the direction in which the winds regularly blow.

Another interesting bit of local history. This time we do not have official records to draw from, but certain supporting evidence is presented. This relates to the story of a ship which sailed from Boston in 1790 on its way to Astoria, Oregon. An account of the voyage states that the ship, running low on water, anchored in an inlet and a party was put ashore at a location which fits the description of the entrance to Newport Harbor as it then existed. Water was found and a supply secured for the ship. Some of the party being ill wished to stay ashore and not continue the voyage to the Northern Port, so some of the voyagers were left in the area. Of the group remaining one died and was buried on the bluffs overlooking the bay. The group which were recuperating explored the region during which time they camped on the bluff and stayed in the area for several months. After proceeding to Astoria with the remainder of the party, the ship later returned and took on board the group who had remained ashore after which the ship sailed back to Boston, the voyagers evidently discouraged with their experience.

Many years later an old flag was located in Santa Ana and was said to be the flag which the party had carried with them from Boston and which they had displayed over their temporary home and camp on the beach near where Newport Harbor now is. If this account of the party and the flag raising is correct, then the flag referred to would be the first American flag flown in California as it was not until March, 1846, that General John C. Fremont unofficially hoisted an American flag over a camp which he had established in the Gabilan Mountains on a peak which is now known as Fremont's Peak near the town of San Juan Bautista, San Benito County. This was also a few months before Commodore Sloat officially raised the flag of the United States at Monterey July 7, 1846, when California became a part of the Union.

Folks along the Orange County Coast have been looking for a name to designate their particularly forty miles of shoreline. Several ideas have generated. One name suggested is the "Gold Coast," another is the "Oranged Kissed Coast." Still another is "The Billion Dollar Coast." This last is suggested because the values represented in the forty mile area reach tremendous totals.

For example, starting at Seal Beach there is the great Navy Submarine Net and Ammunition Depot which represents an investment of nearly thirty millions. Next is Surf Side Colony and Sunset Beach with fine homes fronting the Ocean. Then comes the Coast Artillery Battery on the Bolsa Chica Club property. Next is Huntington Beach where "black gold" in the form of oil to the value of millions of dollars is pumped daily from under the Ocean. Here is where the "whipstock" form of drilling for oil was perfected and today a well sitting quietly on the Bluffs may be pumping oil from a pool half a mile out under the Sea. The logs of some of these wells are far from straight down but corkscrew their way down with many and devious turns and twists until the oil pool is reached seven to eight thousand feet below and some distance out to Sea. Then the flow of oil starts.

But here there is not only oil. Huntington Beach has its beach attractions of a fine order and is a modern, up to date city.

Next comes a six mile stretch of Ocean beach, now (1946) in process of being taken over for the people of the State as a State Beach Park. This extends east and south until it reaches the Santa Ana River where the City of Newport Beach and Newport Harbor begins. Newport Beach extends still further east for another six to seven miles carrying the area of the city beyond Corona Del Mar, a suburb, and also beyond the entrance to Newport Harbor.

Newport Beach and Newport Harbor constitute a city and adjacent to the city proper is Costa Mesa which is rapidly coming into its own.

Newport Harbor was the first Recreational Harbor to receive recognition from Uncle Sam. To tell of its attractions would take too long in this story so we will leave Warm days are attracting many to California's cool and inviting beaches. Here's how city folks, and some from the country, forget their cares on the sands at Newport Harbor, Orange County.

Caught on a No. 12 hook with a four-pound test leader, Dail realized he would have trouble in landing the mammoth trout. He directed his companion to up-anchor and row in pursuit. It took over two hours to boat.

Only it isn't necessary to leave the family behind this season. Here are a few pointers on where to go in California and plans made for fishermen by some of the resorts, both in the mountain areas and at the seashore.

By HAR LAR

FISHING will be good at Big Bear Lake, San Bernardino County, on opening day. According to official figures the State Division of the Fish and Game planted 15,600 trout since January 1st. Several other heavy plantings were made during 1945.

Old timers tell us that cold waters make it poor for bait fishing. However, we noted the youngsters were in swimming in the middle of April and if they can take it so can the fish. To be on the safe side it would perhaps be wise to supplement the tackle with some trolling lures. Andy Reeker No. 2 Wobblers are recommended along with Nos. 3 and 4 Bear Valley spinners. Good results will no doubt be obtained on the old reliables, Trout Orenos, Flat Fish and Dave Davis combinations.

As the waters grow warmer bait fishing improves. It's just as well not to sell the still fisherman short. Take Burt Keeler for instance. He broke a twenty-four year record to catch the biggest trout ever brought to gaff in Big Bear waters. It was a Rainbow, measuring 29 inches long and weighing 14½ pounds. Keeler was using salmon eggs.

Outsiders may claim that Burt, being a native resident, had an advantage of knowing the hot fishing spots. James Dail, a Los Angeles Sunday fisherman, rather disproved the theory, proving conclusively that fish are where you find them. Using a No. 12 hook with a 4 pound test leader and salmon eggs for bait, Dail hooked on to a beauty weighing 11¾ pounds and measuring 27¾ inches long. This was no story of the fish that got away for after 2 hours and 14 minutes the proud angler landed his prize.

Other baits that readily bring in limit catches are helgramites and the lowly angleworm. Helgramites are a natural bait, living in the moss to be found in the shallow waters along the lake shore. Just in case you don't know, the water bug looks like a small fat green grasshopper. All in all we rather like a wiggling worm and we find the fish like them too.

We sat in on a Chamber of Commerce meeting and learned that the Big Bear Lake Fish Derby would definitely be held again this year. Though the plans are still being perfected it is expected that the first prize would be a $500 cash award. There will be at least three main prizes. However, many business houses in the area offer varying consolation gifts to the runner-ups.

This year the contest will extend for one week beginning at sun-up June 2nd and running through to sun-down Saturday, June 8th. Contestants must register beforehand. Entrance fees will be $1.00 per angler. The caught fish must be weighed in at any of the lake's landings. The officials reserve the right to perform post-mortems on fish submitted in competitions. It's been rumored that some of these big fish take the bait hook, line and sinker, proof of which is that some pretty heavy lead has been found in the gullets of a few of these so-called prize catches.

We listened to the local boys bragging up Big Bear. They said that Big Bear was the biggest and best trout fishing lake in all California. From the looks of a couple of pictures we would hesitate to dispute their claims.

AS we "came off the hill" from Big Bea Lake, San Bernardino County, we ra into a blanket of light fog. Up on top th boys and girls were basking in the warr sunshine in shirt sleeves and playsuits Still on the shady sides of cabins the tell tale signs of winter were piled two an three feet high in drifts of snow. Sno Valley was still blanketed with whit patches and we stopped to take movie

Everyone was readying up for fishing From the Boulder Bay Boat Landing clea around to Dana's and Filsted's on the nort shore, the camp owners were scraping an painting in order to have their boats i first class condition.

Dana's camp has no housekeeping cabin though trailers and campers are welcom Boats of all types are available and Dan will help you with fishing information.

On the north shore and just a few curve east, Wilsted's Camp and boat landing i run by three former Orange County fam ilies. Stay there and Cliff and Miles Whit and Harold Long and wives will be you hosts. They have one of the most com plete stocks of fishing tackle that you'v seen since prewar days.

New cabins are springing up every where and they are modernizing the ol Fawn Lodge on the north shore has ne owners. The old rambling hotel is bein made comfortably modern. There will b an excellent cafe and a cocktail bar is b ing considered.

Here at the Grout Creek bridge just few steps away from the very middle c Fawnskin, we saw at least a dozen trou playing in the shadow of the bridge. The were immense fish measuring a good tw feet in length. A ranger said that the littl pool had held at least 200 trout that wer going up stream to spawn. It may be we to add a word of caution. Grout Creek i closed to fishing at all times though th other creeks are open this year.

To those who feel that it can not be vacation without golf, the Peter Pan go course opens May 15th. At that time als their swimming pool will be filled an dancing may be enjoyed every night c the week except Monday. Their ridin stables open, too.

It's spring cleaning time all around th lake. Langlois cabins are being prettie up. Here we watched a fourth grade Easter vacationist fashioning a snow ma from a lingering snowdrift at the Langloi front door.

Andrews Camp is preparing to welcom the fisherman. In the Big Bear fishin derby they are entering a prize of thei own—a week-end vacation at Andrews. Bi Braman of the Navajo Hotel, where th movie stars stay when on location, offer his finest steak dinner as a runner-up "bi fish" prize.

On Metcalf Bay the Lorenzens have take over Harbor Cove. Here, where the towe ing pines measure some twenty odd fee in girth, we truly found modern drea cottages.

Lagonita Lodge was undergoing a pair job in its great dining room. Stainless ste sink boards were being installed. Harr Becker feeds his guests and you'll enjoy hi hospitality on the European plan.

The modern Ferris Cabins are locate on the main boulevard just three block away from Cedar Lake, the locale of man a Hollywood story. Here at his back doo is the ski-run but we'll mention that nex winter.

The popular Augustin Cottages are no under the able management of the Agajar ian family. They are located on the sout shore.

MEXICAN GOLD TRAIL

The Journal of a Forty-Niner. By George W. B. Evans. Edited by Glenn S. Dumke with a preface by Robert Glass Cleland. The Huntington Library, San Marino, California, 1945. pp. 340, Index, Ills. 8° $5.00.

The Huntington Library has published another outstanding book on California in Mexican Gold Trail. This journal of a young gold seeker who left his wife and son on February 22, 1849 in a company of his fellow townsmen from Defiance, Ohio, bound for California is a well written and representative diary of events experienced by many of the overland companies of the time. But in the selection of a route to the gold fields it differs from the majority of such groups and the diary is one of a very few that have given any sort of a description of the perilous trail they chose through northern Mexico into California.

The little Defiance Company, well equipped, went down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to New Orleans and then on by water to Lavaca, Texas, where their long overland journey began taking them up to San Antonio, then down across the Rio Grande into Mexico and through tortuous desert country to Chihuahua. From there they traveled across country to the present site of Nogales, up to Tucson and then skirted the lower bank of the Gila—not entering the territory of the United States until they crossed the Colorado River at Yuma, for that portion of our country known as the Gadsen Purchase had not yet been acquired at that time.

Evans was most meticulous in his details, writing with an evident intent of later publication, which his early death after reaching the California Gold Fields precluded. His description of California after reaching Warner's Ranch is a glowing recital of a travel-weary man to whom the country appeared a paradise after the dismal trail across the deserts of Mexico. But his minute description of all he saw on that trail make the book unique among overland diaries. The diary, too, is excellent in that it covers almost every phase of a miner's life at the mines, his hopes and disappointments—the enactment of frontier justice—the hard work for little gain—the sickness that seemed to dash the hopes of so many fortune hunters of that eventful period—and the eventual disgust with failure and the attempted return to business life.

The young author obtained an appointment after his failure at mining, as an assistant collector at the Port of San Francisco under the famed James Collier, but this employment was short lived as the disease that had dashed his hopes as a miner caused his untimely death in December, 1850.

The editor has done a good piece of work on the Journal, though some of his geographical notes are confusing. As an example of a Forty-Nine diary the book is excellent and will be well received by historians and students of western history—and being well illustrated and beautifully printed it will no doubt become a collectors' item.

ROMANCE OF THE HIGHWAYS OF CALIFORNIA

IS A MUST FOR CALIFORNIANS

This is not a guide book, although it contains beside a road map of the state several sectional maps, but is rather the story of a leisurely trip through our Golden State that you might have taken with the Author.

Commander Scott has the habit of ferreting out strange but true facts about the communities that he visits. These he calls Unreal Realities. Many of these and also some nearly forgotten stories of early California life are woven into the new book.

Dear Sir:

Yesterday I chanced to pick up the March edition of the Grizzly Bear. What attracted my attention was the frontispiece, showing a very beautiful scene in the Sierras. I then casually examined the magazine and learned it had many fine features. It is such a change from the drab nature of the magazine for several years past that I was highly pleased. I feel sure that if you will continue the present style this magazine will soon be one of the finest in the country.

I have been a member of the Native Sons since 1910 and have always felt that the Order could not be a real success without a real magazine. It looks to me like you are on the right track and I certainly hope that you will continue your present policy.

Dear Mr. Schwacofer:

At the last regular meeting of Grace Parlor No. 242 there were many complimentary remarks made about the Grizzly Bear Magazine and we all feel as you do—that it should be one of the leading magazines of our Golden State and we have full confidence that under your able management it will improve rapidly. Please accept our congratulations and best wishes for your splendid efforts in its behalf.

ought to be called Uncle Tom's Cabins. Wasn't it another Harriet, Harriet Beecher Stowe, who wrote the book?

Over on the north shore at Moon Camp, Harry Burden and Ralph Miller have just completed a brand new dock and many new boats have been added to their fleet. Here you may rent boats of every description. If it's fishing you're looking for, you will find it in the inlet coves and bays on the north shore around Moon Camp. If the coming season measures up in expectations to past gone years you'll not lack for fish during your stay at this popular resort. You'll find the friendly atmosphere. We did.

The dude ranches in Lucerne Valley are truly at their best. Now from the C-Bar-H and Von Breton's the guests can go western riding on the desert beneath a canopy of stars and enjoy barbecues prepared California fashion to the tunes of cowboy plunking guitars.

IT'S good-fishing time right now in Lake County, most eastern of the nine Redwood Empire counties. In the lakes of this delightful county—in which the striking redbud is now also in full flower—black and calico bass, Sacramento perch, trout and fork-tailed catfish abound. Trout are taken in Lake Pillsbury in the season beginning May 1 and black bass, perch and catfish in the Blue Lakes and Clear Lake, 28 miles long and from 2 to 8 miles wide and the largest body of fresh water located entirely within the boundaries of California.

The Black Bass is caught with plugs either by trolling or off shore and the largest ever caught in Clear Lake weighed about 12 pounds, while the average weight is from 3½ to 4 pounds. Limit is five a day and owners of lake resorts, which are many and comfortable, report that fishing should be excellent until mid-July and in October, November and December. Catfish are caught on sardettes and sardines and average weight is 3 to 4 pounds with a daily limit of 50 pounds. If you have any traditional feeling that a catfish dinner is nothing to get excited about, you should talk to Clear Lake residents who will tell you that catfish is fine eating—and will prove it to you.

No commercial fishing is allowed on the Lake County Lakes nor is there a closed season on bass or catfish.

Clear Lake may be reached any month of the year by an elaborate $100,000,000 system of improved Redwood Empire highways, the Barlett Springs Highway from Williams; the Tahoe-Clear Lake-Ukiah Highway from Sacramento and Valley points; the Rumsey Highway from Sacramento via Woodland and Arbuckle; the Geyser-Silverado Highway of Napa Valley; and from the Redwood Highway at Ukiah by the Upper Lake route or from Hopland by the Lakeport route of the Tahoe-Clear Lake-Ukiah highway.

NEWPORT Harbor; the geographical hub of sportfishing for Southern California, is located on Hiway 101, forty miles from Los Angeles. Here sportfishing has been developed, to a point, where the area is recognized, as the Coasts leading center of the sport. Here the angler can find any type of salt water fishing he may wish to try. Surf, Bay, Deep Sea, the waters teem with fish.

Corbina, Croaker, Yellowfin, Perch and an occasional Halibut or Shark, keep the surf fisherman busy. Fishing from boats or casting from the beach, the Bay fishermen take Croaker, Bass, Sea Trout and Halibut, good fighters all. Taken on light tackle, it is truly a test of skill, to bring to gaff one of these game fighters. In the ocean, one may take anything from the lowly mackeral to the mighty swordfish.

Live Bait Boats, manned by the fishing est crews on the Coast, leave the various landings daily, to take the Angler to the fishing banks. A day on one of these big clean boats, is indeed, one to be remembered.

For those who wish to make up their own party, large or small, Newport Harbor, provides Live Bait Charter Boats well known for their fish getting ability. Keen rivalry exists, as to their ability to get fish, and it is rare indeed, that one comes in empty handed.

This year, with restrictions removed, a barge is again anchored off Newport. This barge operated part of last year. All that is necessary is to duplicate the sport of last year, and you are in for a lot of fun. We know, we've been aboard.

Last but by no means least, is Newport Harbor's fleet of trolling boats. On these boats, one to four anglers, may sit in easy chairs, trolling for barracuda, white sea bass, yellowtail, bonito, tuna, skipjack, albacore and swordfish. We should say, the angler sits at ease, until

This year, the Newport Harbor Fleet, s prepared for the biggest year in history. More and better boats are in service. Older boats have been rebuilt and modernized, and many conveniences have been added. Most of them are equipped, or are equipping, with ship to shore radio phones, as an instance. Many have galleys, serving excellent food.

For those who do not possess tackle, he various landings maintain a stock of ental outfits, which are rented, at a nominal rate per day. The fee depending on he type of equipment desired.

The Sportfishing Association maintains n office to assist you in getting reservaions, chartering boats, giving you information, and attending to the many deails necessary to a successful and carefree fishing trip.

In fine, everything possible, is ready to nake yours a day of pleasure. Long to be emembered as, "That Day at Newport Harbor."

Ocean fishing is already underway, what vith the barracuda and halibut catches beng made daily on the live bait boats. No rick at all to catch 'em, they tell us. We even know of one family who fishes in Newport Bay, Orange County, through heir front room window and has entirely olved the meat shortage situation.

Port Orange Fishing Hole, located on the 9 Highway side of the bay, has just about he finest fleet of sport fishing boats that ve've ever inspected. The boats, up-to-theminute modern, are equipped with two way adio sets, live bait tanks, galleys and speial accommodations for the ladies. Even he piers are built so that even we slowed lown oldsters can board without risking broken leg or a ducking.

Two Editors Compare Notes

Harry Oliver of Thousand Palms, editor and publisher of The Desert Rat's Scrap Book, and the editor of the Grizzly Bear look over a recent issue of your magazine. Oliver, who used to write for the Grizzly Bear in years gone by, found much to interest him in the magazine. "It should be the leading magazine of the state," was his comment. A-TURTLING THEY DO GO!

Edwin P. Walters

Residents of Joshua Tree are busily engaged in rounding up turtles in preparation for the big turtle races to be held there Sunday, May 12.

A good spring rain would bring these Chelonian quadrapeds out in goodly numbers but because of the sparsity of rainfall in the desert this year a great deal of patience, ingenuity and resourcefulness must be exercised to locate them.

But—they will be corraled in sufficient number to provide a full quota of entries for every "stable."

If you've never witnessed a turtle race you are in for loads of fun—suspense and excitement. Every entry is suitably decorated with the colors of his stable and a number is painted on his back.

A 100 ft. circle is laid out, in the center of which is a smaller circle, 10 ft. in diameter. A jockey holds his "mount" within this inner circle until the starting signal is given, when the turtles are released. The winner is the one crossing the outer circle line first.

Upon being released, your entry may not move a step until the others have almost reached the line and then he is apt to really start going places—in a turtle hurry, that is.

And he MAY win. You can never tell. Anyway, it's all for fun and fun for all—and all for free.

Joshua Tree is only 135 miles east of Los Angeles over excellent highways. Take Routes 60, 70 and 99 to Banning. Thence south 14 miles to 29 Palm Junction and left on 29 Palms Highway to Joshua Tree.

ts detailed description to a later issue and go on down the Coast another six miles from the east city limits of Newport Beach at Corona del Mar until we reach Laguna Beach, in the meantime having traveled along a section of coastline famous for its beauty.

Laguna Beach is nationally known for its art and atmosphere. It is home to many famous artists whose works adorn galleries throughout the world. Its attractions are not confined to its art features alone and we use the term in a broad way. The city is home for a number of authors, lecturers, musicians and a host of interesting people and can only be appreciated to its full extent by a visit.

Beyond Laguna are several similarly attractive subdivisions, South Laguna, Coast Royal, Three Arch Bay and then we come to Dana Point, another historical region. It was from this great bluff along the ocean's edge that in early days hides and tallow and other products of the cattle range were lowered to boats which in turn carried the cargo to waiting sailing ships, which when loaded, returned to Boston and other ports on the Atlantic seaboard. Charles Dana in his thrilling story of "Two Years Before the Mast," told the world about the life lived in California in the days of the Dons and vividly and glowingly told of the attractions and allurements of California. He also described in detail the method of handling of hides from the bluff at what is now known as Dana Point.

A short distance inland from Dana Point is the pride of the California Missions, San Juan Capistrano, which has become famous for so many historical incidents it is difficult to decide the most important. Perhaps its most recent call to fame has been brought about by the story, which has spread over the world, of the annual return of the swallows, March 19th. Each year these swallows arrive at the Mission on the same date, March 19th, and proceed to make the Mission their home for another season. Leaving in the Fall to return again on the same date in the following Spring.

The Mission is one of the most photographed of all the California Missions and lends itself admirably to picture making. It is also a happy hunting ground for artists who find in its variety of color and form a wonderful medium for expressing their talent and skill.

The Mission is constantly being renovated and improved and fortunately the plans for improvement not merely a brief program of a few years, but are to carry on for many years to come.

Beyond San Juan Capistrano is Doheny Park, with its fine beach as well as its highland area, and adjoining is the modern Spanish City of San Clemente." Here the planners insist that all of its structures must be of the Spanish type which makes for a very attractive community and San Clemente is fast growing into wonderful area for home makers.

Adjoining San Clemente begins the Santa Margarita Ranch, the last of the great Ranchos" of California and which early in the recent War was taken over by the United States Marine Forces and now constitutes the Nation's largest Marine Headquarters and Training Area which extends for some fifteen or sixteen miles along the ocean and inland for a score of miles or more.

San Clemente marks the last stopping place on Orange County's forty miles of ocean shore area, and we have now completed our trip along Orange County's Billion Dollar Coastline.

Native Sons

GRAND PARLOR ATHLETIC PROGRAM UNDER WAY

To the Chairmen and Members of the Athletic Committees of all Parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Dear Brothers:

With the return of so many of our war veterans and the advent of the Spring season, this would seem the logical time to launch an active athletic program for the interest of these young men. Our participation in sports events was greatly curtailed during the war, but it is our desire to again become actively engaged therein, and to an even greater extent than has been manifested for some time past.

We suggest that you start immediately to arrange for Soft Ball and Hardball Games, Bowling and other events which will appeal to the sports-minded young man.

If possible, arrange for publicity in the newspapers of your communities, thereby bringing to the attention of the young men eligible to join our Order, the fact that the N.S.G.W. is a sports-minded organization, which should be an added inducement for them to become affiliated with our Order. By promoting competitive sports events, it is hoped to build the athletic program to a point where we can arrange for statewide competitions during the various Centennials which will take place during the next few years. This should be the means of contributing greatly to the goal we strive for—increased membership in the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

San Francisco Parlors may start bowling at once, as we have arranged with Bro. Frank J. Ryan, manager of the Broadway Bowl, Broadway and Polk Streets, for the use of this bowling alley during the time outlined below:

After April 29—Saturday, Sunday or any Thursday night after 8:30. Cost will be 30c per game; 90c per three game series, including special wood, electric telescores and many other conveniences.

Committeemen throughout the state can undoubtedly arrange with their local bowling alleys along the same lines in order to complete these tournaments by May 17. Members of the Grand Parlor Athletic Committee will be glad of the opportunity to assist you with your athletic endeavors. We suggest contacting the following:

Lucien Griffin, 5448 Crenshaw Blvd., Los Angeles, phone AXminister 27766; Robert J. Jones, 5969 Keith Street, Oakland, phone HUmboldt 3433; Larry Marvin, 813 K Street, Sacramento, phone SAcramento 66558; Al LaRocca, Bay & Columbus, c/o Royal Motor Sales, S. F., phone ORdway 1440; Dan J. Collins, 2606 19th Ave., San Francisco, phone OVerland 5549; Wm. S. Burke, 217 So. 13th St., San Jose, phone BAllard 2724W; Wm. Rea, 1231 Chester Pl., Bakersfield.

Let's go to work at once and get this program under way.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,
Lewis A. Giegerich, Chairman,
ATHLETIC COMMITTEE N.S.G.W.

San Jose Parlor Plans For Returned Veterans Night

Members of San Jose Parlor No. 22, NSGW, are looking forward to a dinner in the near future as a welcome home to the parlor's returned veterans who have so faithfully served their country. The plans are being formulated by the Good of the Order Committee.

A party sets out for an early morning ride from Hoberg's where the Native Sons of the Golden West will gather May 20-23 for the 69th Grand Parlor Session.

GRAND OFFICERS INITIATE LARGE CLASS AT CAMBRIA

Saturday evening, April 6, Cambria Parlor joined with San Luis Obispo and Central Parlors to hold an initiation in Cambria at which 33 candidates were initiated in the Native Sons of the Golden West by the Grand Officers. A large number of Native Sons were present both for the initiation and the barbecue which followed.

Piedmont Native Sons Celebrate 58th Birthday

With 137 members and guests present, Piedmont Parlor No. 120, NSGW, Oakland, celebrated its 58th Anniversary Thursday evening, March 14, in one of the finest anniversary observances in the past several years. Fritz Brause and his Good of the Order Committee were in charge of the affair. Master of ceremonies was Frank P. Smith.

The parlor will hold a dance and buffet supper at the Grizzly Bear Club, 414 Mason Street, San Francisco, Saturday evening, May 11, with all members and their ladies invited. The affair will honor Grand President Richard F. McCarthy who will preside over the destiny of the 69th session of the Grand Parlor at Hoberg's in Lake County May 20-23. Frank Smith and George Prytz are in charge of reservations.

Annual picnic of Piedmont Parlor will be held Aug. 4 in Elderberry Park, Niles Canyon, with music to be furnished by George Collins and his orchestra, it is announced.

Grand President's Notes

By RICHARD F. McCARTHY
Grand President, N.S.G.W.

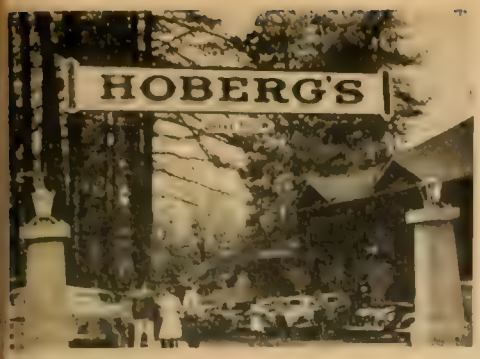
The month of May brings with its sun shine and flowers another Grand Parlor i the history of our Order. New Grand Offi cers will be elected and installed and th Order will embark upon a new year o activity and progress.

During the past month or two applica tions for membership have been receive by the Grand Secretary in greater numbe than ever before. For a period of two o three weeks an average of fifty applica tions a day were received. This is a ver healthy condition and points towards tremendous movement forward in th growth of our Order.

On Monday evening, April 15, John Bic well Parlor No. 292 was instituted at Chic with 103 new members. Over 60 addition applications are on the desk and within short time this Parlor's membershi should exceed 200.

On Thursday evening, April 25, Fremor Parlor No. 293 was instituted in Gustin with 60 members.

Work is continuing at Pasadena, Whi tier, San Andreas and other cities concu rently to bring additional parlors into th family of our Order.



In addition to the new Parlors there ha been a substantial growth in other Parlo in both membership and activity. Th majority of the new members are retur ing service men who find in our Order co tinued service to home and country.

There has been marked development als in Parlor activity which should be enhance ever greater by the approaching cente nials. The May Day celebration at L Banos under the auspices of Los Banc Parlor No. 206, the Bear Flag centenni at Sonoma being directed in a large respe by Sonoma Parlor No. 111 and the Amer can Flag centennial at Monterey will ea bring the members of the Order throug out the state closer to activity in their ow localities as well as in the statewide cel brations.

In writing these Notes for the month May I wish to extend my sincere than to the members throughout the state f their interest, cooperation and associatio during the past Grand Parlor year. Eve meeting with you will form a living reco of a year of action. Carry on the gre work of our Order.

Hollywood Parlor Observes Golden Jubilee

Observance of Hollywood Parlor's Golden Jubilee took place Thursday evening, April 25, with members of the parlor and a legion of friends on hand for the affair. Significance of this event lies in the fact that it forms a permanent background of Fifty Years of Loyalty and Devotion to this great State and the exercise of friendship and fraternity, still typical of the Golden Days of Forty-Nine. Likewise in the furthering of the fine work being done by the Homeless Children Committee, wide activity of the Order.
Louis D. Nafziger, Victor T. Mathews, Ralph E. Montrose and Donald W. Myer composed the banquet committee, while Henry G. Bodkin, Ellery E. Cuff and M. Rosenthal arranged for the speakers.

SONOMA CENTENNIAL SET FOR JUNE 14-15-16

One hundred years ago, on the morning of June 14th, 1846, a small band of American settlers rode into the little town of Sonoma in Northern California, seized power from the Republic of Mexico and declared the existence of the independent Republic of California. Late that afternoon or early in the morning of the next day, a new flag displaced the Mexican flag on the flagstaff in the Sonoma plaza. It was the famous Bear Flag, which was to fly in defiance of Mexican rule for only 25 days, but was to survive as a cherished symbol of California's independent spirit.

Henry L. Todd is credited with suggesting that a figure of a grizzly bear should appear on the flag, since that huge animal attacks no man when left alone but fights to the death when molested. A piece of unbleached cotton, provided by an American woman, Mrs. John Sears, was used for the major portion of the flag and a strip of red flannel was sewn across the bottom. In the upper left corner William L. Todd drew a five-pointed star and in the center, painted with linseed oil and Venetian red, a bear standing on all four feet facing the star.

On June 14, 15 and 16 the centennial of that dramatic episode in California's history will be celebrated in Sonoma with a colorful three-day pageant and fiesta that will reproduce those exciting pioneer years. Sponsored by Sonoma Parlor No. 111, Native Sons of the Golden West, the celebration will be an outstanding spectacle in which all the citizens of the "Cradle of California" will participate.

APPRAISING CONFERENCE PAYS TRIBUTE TO HARRY B. RILEY

(Eulogy given to memory of Brother Harry B. Riley, Sacramento No. 3, by Chris R. Jones Appraisers Conference, Mission Inn, Riverside, Apr. 2, 1946.)

When this group meets, as we are doing today—coming from every section of California—we are a gay and happy company, and delight in renewing the friendships of past years and in making valued new ones.

But today, as we begin our meeting, there is in every heart, a surpressed sadness, a deep sense of loss, because one of our best friends is absent and will be with us no more. Our former Chief and loyal associate, Harry B. Riley has gone to his final rest. We miss him sadly and I know we all want to express our deep sorrow that we can press his hand no more.

Harry Riley was a fellow citizen of mine. He loved California and he grew to love Sacramento. I knew him in his home and saw him many times with his family. He loved his family, he was a kind and faithful husband, a devoted father, and his grandchildren were the delight of his life. He loved his home and his garden, his flowers were his hobby. As evidence of his devotion to his duty, as controller of his native state, editorials in every county of California poured forth the grief of our citizens at the passing of a capable and honest servant.

Words are futile at times like these, but we know it will comfort his family and lessen our sense of loss to say that we will never forget so loyal a friend and capable fellow worker. We will rise and stand a moment in silent memory of HARRY B. RILEY.

Favorite Native Son

United States Senator William F. Know land, member of Halcyon Parlor No. 14 NSGW, has been so intimately associate with the progress of California that the has been scarcely a major problem in th State that either he or his father, Josep R. Knowland, Past Grand President, ha not had a voice in, in the past fifty year "Senator Bill" knows the Golden Stat from family association, from his own edu cation at the University of California, fro his service as State Assemblyman an State Senator and from the world viev point he has acquired since he was ap pointed United States Senator last Augu by Governor Earl Warren to fill the un expired term of the late Hiram Johnso

"Bill," in 1933, was the youngest mem ber of the California legislature. He ear began to demonstrate his knowledge, h enthusiastic energy for government, an his devotion to the duties thrust upon hi One proof of his "budding statesmanshi was, that two years later he was elect to the State Senate from his home coun of Alameda.

With a wife and a fine family of thr children, "Bill" Knowland entered th Army when he was called in 1942. He w a private in the ranks, but here again h qualities of leadership made him Sergea very shortly and months later he was se to Officers Candidate School at Fort Ba ning, Georgia.

Graduating as a Second Lieutenant Infantry, "Bill" was transferred later a went to the School of Military Governme in Virginia where his governmental bac ground could be utilized. From there went overseas and served in Englan France, Belgium and Germany until call by Governor Warren, when Japan capit lated in August of last year.

Senator "Bill" Knowland entered Ha cyon Parlor, February 16, 1928, and w a delegate from that Parlor to the Gra Parlor sessions from 1931 to 1934.

Vets Back Howser

Enthusiastic support of Fred Howser f attorney general of California is being r ceived from veteran groups, agricultura industrial and labor organizations throug out the state, it was announced by Ke neth E. Lynch, campaign director.

Howser is seeking election on a no partisan basis and is pledged to a progra of safeguarding youth, protection of state rights and impartial service to all, regar less of race, creed or color.

His career in public service began 1932 when he was appointed deputy ci prosecutor of the city of Long Beach, which capacity he served for six years. 1940 he was elected to the California Legi lature and served two terms as a memb of the Assembly until his appointment district attorney of Los Angeles county, fill the unexpired term of the late Jo Dockweiler. A few months later he ran f election and won a smashing victory in th primary.

Howser's attack on the juvenile deli quency problem in Los Angeles county du ing his three years as district attorney h won him the support of women's organiz tions throughout the state. His imparti service during recent labor controversi has brought him the endorsement of ma labor groups, including the United A. F. L. and the Northern California A. F. of Political League.

Veterans' organizations which are spo soring Howser include the American L gion, Jewish War Veterans, Veterans Foreign Wars, United Veterans of the R public, United Spanish War Veterans an Womens' Relief Corps.

Native Daughters

Adair Scholarship Fund of Great Importance

With Native Daughters geared to all-out participation in war effort during the active years of World War II, interest in the Annie L, Adair Scholarship Fund necessarily was minimized. The state-wide committee on this scholarship fund is convinced that this project can now be activated to help meet postwar problems, With accent currently placed on youth problems, this scholarship project attains real importance. Our own California has become a peacetime front in the battle of readjustment from war to peace. The training provided by the Adair scholarship becomes most important in our own community structure, capable of making real contribution to readjustment.

Annie L. Adair, born in Mariposa, but readjusted to residence in Southern California (Los Angeles), became active as a volunteer in service of the Central Committee in placement of Homeless Children. His service continued until her death through accident.

As a memorial to this member, who devoted much of her life to the field of child welfare, in its fullest sense, Southern California Parlors, led by Reina del Mar Parlor, Santa Barbara, originated the fund which in 1941 became a state-wide interest in Grand Parlor committee structure.

The Fund committee now recommends that a $5,000 revolving fund be firmly established to carry on the memorial scholarship. Approximately $2900 is already in hand, and if every parlor in California takes a share in this Educational humanitarian project the desired goal will be attained, and Native Daughters of the Golden West will have contributed materially to peacetime readjustment.

Contributions and applications should be sent to Mrs. Amelia Acres, State Chairman of the Annie L. Adair Scholarship Fund, PDGW, Santa Barbara County Court House, Santa Barbara, California. Grand President Ethel C. Enos hopes for the completion of this project this year.

MENLO JUNIOR NATIVE DAUGHTERS INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Menlo Unit No. 10, Junior Native Daughters of the Golden West, at a meeting Friday evening, March 29, in the Central School, Menlo Park, installed their officers in a manner that impressed the large number of parents and members of both Orders present.

Betty Rehorst, president of Menlo Parlor No. 211, NDGW, conducted the ceremonies assisted by charter members of the Menlo Junior Native Daughters. Grand Organist Frances Simas presided at the piano throughout the evening, with vocal and piano selections by Marion Gilbert and Margaret Paccioretti, members of the Menlo Unit being thoroughly enjoyed.

Shirley Difani was installed as president and since it was her 15th birthday, a large cake with 15 lighted candles was brought in to the auditorium as a surprise.

The Menlo Unit was organized in November, 1941, with 23 charter members. Its present membership is 42.

Miss Eileen Freeman Davis, first beneficiary of Annie L. Adair Scholarship Fund, now enroute to Europe for service with U.N.R.R.A. She traces ancestry to pioneers of Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and San Bernardino Counties. Her college preparation was Mt. St. Marys and U.S.C. Department of Social Welfare.

Miss Davis' field work was with Santa Barbara Court Catholic Daughters of America; P.E.O. Sisterhood chapter I.J., Santa Barbara, fourth generation thus affiliated, and member of Reina del Mar Parlor, N.D.G.W., specializing in history.

Leaving U.S.C., she was affiliated with American Red Cross, Los Angeles, and later with N.C.C.S. of U.S.O. with assignment at Las Vegas, Oceanside and as Director at Bellflower and Hawthorne, Los Angeles County.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis, members of Santa Barbara Parlor N.S.G.W and Reina del Mar Parlor N.D.G.W.

SAN BENITO COUNTY PAST PRESIDENTS ENTERTAINED

Past Presidents' Association No. 13, NDGW, of San Benito County, were pleasantly entertained by Rose Guilhamet on March 25.

The highlight was the election of delegates to the State Association meeting to be held in Stockton on April 27. Those elected were Bertha Briggs, Mayme Avilla, Nell Zook, Mary Grunnagle and Mary Prendergast.

April Fool Whist was played with awards presented in reverse order to "K" Black, Josephine Winn and Edith Chandler. Mary Prendergast was the recipient of the special award. The awards were deceptively wrapped as toilet articles and proved to be glasses of home-made jelly.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the social period.

ETHEL C. ENOS GUEST OF ALAMEDA COUNTY DEPUTIES

The Fiesta Room of the City Club Hotel, Oakland, was the setting for a luncheon honoring Grand President Ethel C. Enos on March 16, the occasion being the district meeting of the Alameda County Deputy Grand Presidents, presided over by Supervising District Deputy Grand President Patricia Reardon.

The tables were beautifully decorated with daffodils and yellow candles and Grand President Enos was presented with a corsage of yellow roses and violets.

After a musical program a very interesting talk by Past Grand President Joseph R. Knowland was enjoyed. Called on for remarks were District Attorney Ralph E. Hoyt, Thomas E, Caldecott, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County, and Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, N.S.G.W.

The Grand Officers present included Grand Vice President Loretta M. Cameron, Past Grand President Emily E. Ryan, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Marshall Doris Treat, Grand Inside Sentinel Jewel McSweeney, Grand Organist Frances Simas, Grand Trustees Anne T. Schiebusch, Margaret Farnsworth, Dorothy Donofrio, Zoura Tompkins; Past Grand Presidents Evelyn I. Carlson, Mamie P. Carmichael, Estelle Evans, Sue J. Irwin, Claire Lindsey, Ariana W. Stirling, Ann C. Theusen and Mae B. Wilkin. Grand Officers from the Native Sons of the Golden West included Past Grand President Edward T. Schnarr, Grand Marshall Raymond P. Burke, Supervising Deputy Grand President Lester Ashworth.

JOINT MEETING HELD AT HISTORIC SAN JUAN ADOBE

San Juan Bautista and Copa de Oro Parlors, NDGW, jointly received Grand President Ethel C. Enos at the San Juan adobe on Thursday evening, March 21.

In commemoration of the abdication of Winter on that date, the theme chosen was "The Triumph of Spring." The historic candle-lighted building was festive with masses of spring blossoms. Gifts were presented to the honor guest in an original tribute to the new season by Edna Butterfield with Spring personified by Eleanor Taglio with her two satellites Grand Trustee Elmarie Dyke, Supervising District Deputy Ethel Hyde and Deputies Myrtle Hughes and Carrie Payton, who were the recipients of flowers.

Four candidates were initiated into San Juan Bautista Parlor and five into Copa de Oro.

Rudecinda Parlor, NDGW Has Busy Calendar

Two candidates were initiated at the April 10 meeting of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, NDGW, San Pedro. Those joining the Order were Dorothy Mitchell and Jean Burke bringing the parlor's membership to 109.

The parlor ordered $10 sent to Grand Parlor for the Restoration of Missions; $5 to the American Cancer Society, Inc. and gave $15 to the American Red Cross. In addition to parlor activities many of its members have attended meetings of other parlors and the marking of historical sites.

SILVER SANDS PARLOR

Huntington Beach, the home of Paradise Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, now has a new Native Daughter Parlor, for Silver Sands Parlor No. 286 was instituted there Saturday evening, March 30, in an impressive ceremony by Ethel C. Enos, Grand President of the Native Daughters.

Silver Sands has a charter membership of 42 members, headed by Mrs Martha Pickering as charter president. Officers of Lugonia Parlor No. 241, presided over the initiatory work. The charter officers were installed by Phyllis Hirst, SDDGP of Verdugo Parlor.

The officers installed carried nosegays of sweet peas, while the hall was beautifully decorated with Calla Lillies. Hazel Hansen, Past Grand President, acted as Grand Marshal for the occasion.

The new baby parlor received many gifts from various parlors. Long Beach No. 154 presenting the American flag. President Martha Pickering was presented with a gavel by Grand President Ethel C. Enos.

With the institution of Silver Sands Parlor No. 286, Orange County now has three Native Daughter Parlors; the other two being Grace Parlor No. 242, Placentia, and Santa Ana Parlor No. 235. There are also three Native Son Parlors in Orange County at the present time, Santa Ana No. 265, Mother Colony No. 281, Anaheim; Paradise Parlor No. 282, Huntington Beach.

The institution was marred by the serious accident of the installing officer, Frances Mitchell, who was injured enroute to the installation. Badly hurt in the same accident were Mrs. Cushing, president of Ontario Parlor and Dorothy Raven of Verdugo Parlor.

PAST PRESIDENTS HONORED BY CALIFIA PARLOR

Califia Parlor No. 22, NDGW, honored their past presidents on Tuesday evening, March 12, at the Native Sons Hall in Sacramento.

The past presidents were presented with gifts, and there was entertainment and refreshments.

The decorations were carried out in the St. Patrick's theme.

Chairman of the evening, Josephine Dorsa was assisted by Santa Lota, Rose Scalora, Eleanor Scalora, Mary Filpi, Frances Angelo, Evelyn Spingola, Audrey Van Volkinburg, and Georgia Lawrence.

At the second regular meeting on Tuesday evening, March 26, at the Native Sons Hall, there was an Initiation. President Josephine Dorsa presided.

The decorations were carried out in the spring motif.

Refreshments were served in the Banquet Room by Catherine Kelly, Chairman of the evening, assisted by Josephine Oliveri, Mary Huston, Ellen Ward, Viola Casey, Hertha Wesley, Evelyn Spingola, and Rosielyn Rainone.

Vocal selections were rendered by Viola Casey, Loretta Englehart, and Irene Moccetini.

CASA BANDINI MARKED BY SAN DIEGO NATIVE DAUGHTERS

Of interest to all Native Californians is the news that San Diego Parlor No. 208, Native Daughters of the Golden West, have placed a bronze marker on the Casa Bandini, which was unveiled by Grand President Ethel Enos on Wednesday morning, March 27th.

The marker was placed on the hand-hewn post in the tall doorway through which passed the great of early California as well as its youth and beauty when the Casa was the home of the socially prominent Bandinis. The house was also the headquarters of Commodore Robert F. Stockton in 1846. It was here that Kit Carson and Edward Beale delivered their urgent message calling for reinforcements for General Kearney.

At the unveiling, Mrs Arcadia Bandini Bronnan, a descendant of the family, told stories of her girlhood. Mrs. Winifred Davidson, San Diego historian, gave the history of the Casa and Mrs. Florence Dodson Schoeneman, whose great grandmother was born across the street in the Estudillo house, also spoke. Mrs Emily Welch, chairman for the occasion, introduced other notables.

Unique Party Held by Sequoia Parlor No. 272, NDGW

With the charter members as special guests, Sequoia Parlor 272, Berkeley, entertained on March 28 with a unique party. Those attending wore costumes of the days gone by and all were authentic. The past presidents reviewed interesting and humorous experiences during their term in office. During the evening, those in costume formed a parade and each gown was applauded. A social hour was enjoyed following the meeting.

During the meeting of April 11, plans were made to assist on the restoration of Missions San Jose de Guadalupe and Nuestra Senora de la Soledad.

At the May meetings of 9 and 23, delegates to Grand Parlor were elected. Vera Giodrano, president of the Parlor, will head the delegates.

The birthday dinner anniversary was held during May and included top entertainment. A birthday cake was cut by Edna Williams the charter president. Several grand officers and Mildred Irwin, DDGP was a special guest. Hannah Bredehoft was chairman of the arrangements.

Members of the Parlor who had served 400 hours at the Hospitality House were awarded gold USO pins. Martha Gohl was chairman of the evenings serving there. A special program was given during the presentation of the pins.

ROSE SULLIVAN

To the officers and members of Guadalupe Parlor No. 153 Native Daughters of the Golden West:

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect in memory of our departed member, Sister Rose Sullivan, herewith submit the following:

WHEREAS, God in His Infinite Wisdom has called to her eternal reward our late dearly beloved Sister, Rose Sullivan

WHEREAS, We who knew her and loved her kindly, gentle ways and pleasant smile deeply regret her untimely passing and extend to her bereaved husband and children our heartfelt sympathy and trust that their abiding faith in the existence of God will help assuage their grief. Sister Sullivan is an irreparable loss to her family, our beloved Order and the City of St. Francis which she dearly loved and took a keen interest in any project that was for the betterment of her community. As a Mother she was an outstanding example of true Motherhood that has been equalled by few and surpassed by none.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, a copy be mailed to the family, and that a copy be mailed to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

MARGARET BLANCHFIELD,
RETA ROVEGNO
LULA PORTER
Committee.

HENRY G. KRUMLAND

To the officers and members of Byron Parlor No. 170 N.S.G.W. We your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect and condolence to the memory of our late Brother Henry G. Krumland submit the following:

WHEREAS, in the passing of Brother Krumland our Parlor mourns the loss of a loyal and faithful member; therefore be it resolved that while we miss him nevertheless the memory of his association with us will ever remain fresh in our minds, and that we extend to the members of his family our deep and sincere sympathy in their sorrow;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the members of the family, a copy spread on the minutes of the Parlor and a copy sent to The Grizzly Bear magazine for publication.

R. R. HOUSTON,
A. CHAIM,
W. E. BUNN,
Committee.

EMMA HENRITTA ROBINSON

To the Officers and Members,
San Diego Parlor No. 208, N.D.G.W.

We, your Committee to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our beloved charter member, Emma Henritta Robinson, herewith submit the following:

Whereas, The precious ties of Love and Friendship once again have been severed, and we hereby pay fond and loving tribute to her memory,

Be It Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her bereaved ones, and

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, a copy be sent to her family and a copy be mailed to the Grizzly Bear for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

Alice H. Damarus

Deceased April 1, 1946.

KATHERINE HEILBRON

To the Officers and Members,
San Diego Parlor No. 208, N.D.G.W.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions in loving memory of our beloved Sister Katherine Heilbron, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Our Omniscient Father has called our sister to her heavenly home leaving a memory of one whose stouthearted loyalty and nobility of soul ever exemplified ideal womanhood,

Be It Resolved, That we extend to the family our expression of sympathy. That a copy be sent to the family, a copy thereof be sent to the Grizzly Bear for publication and a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor.

Respectfully submitted,

Editorial

This month marks the 39th Anniversary of your magazine, for it was in May, 1907, that the first Grizzly Bear was issued under the editorship of J. Rush Bronson and J. L. LeBethon, business manager.

Shortly thereafter, the revered and honored Clarence M. Hunt took over the guiding of the destiny of the Grizzly Bear, making it his life work and dream until the time of his death. There have been two editors on the Grizzly Bear since the passing of Clarence Hunt: Isabel Fages, who edited the magazine through the trying war years, during which time its circulation more than doubled, and the present editor, who a few short months ago, assumed the helm in this even more difficult post-war era of readjustment and rising costs of production.

During those 39 years much has come to pass in this great state of ours, and your publication has always attempted to play its humble part in the course of events that have shaped California's history and progress. The stories of many famous Native Sons and Daughters have appeared in its pages and many a valiant battle for the best interests of California has been fought through the Grizzly Bear.

Today, California stands upon the threshold of a period of progress and development that staggers the imagination. For it is in this land by the western sea, that the eyes of the world are focused. Here is the mecca of millions of vacationists, many of whom will stay to make their homes. It is in California that a new industrial empire is being born, taking advantage of an unsurpassed climate, plentiful water and power.

Because of its very foundation and the fact that the Grizzly Bear is the official publication of those most interested in California's future, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, it is fitting that this magazine play an important role in the years to come. It is a big goal, but one well worth striving for, and to this the staff of your magazine is dedicated.

Dr. Rockwell Hunt Presents Series at Ramona Parlor

Ramona Parlor No. 109, NSGW, has inaugurated a new feature for the benefit of its members. One meeting night each month, Dr. Rockwell Hunt, one of California's foremost historians, gives one of his stories on the state's history, drawing a colorful picture that finds appreciative response in his fellow Native Sons of Ramona Parlor.

In his talk at the hall in March, Dr. Hunt presented the enigma of John C. Fremont and the "Pathfinders' " part in the conquest of California. "Until Fremont came," he said, "everything made for peaceful acquisition of California by the United States.

"To this peaceful penetration by American trappers, hunters and traders, followed by homeseekers and settlers, businessmen and artisans—both known and unknown—the United States owes its favored position when in 1846, the Year of Decision, Mexican California hung like a ripe fruit ready to drop to the nation who was in the best position to catch the prize.

"We do not have to uphold every deed, act, or event in the American conquest of California," averred Dr. Hunt, "but I would like to see a monument to the unknown pioneer who helped to bring on the annexation of California."

The conquest, however, was not without design; for in addition to the peaceful penetration, especially that of Thomas O. Larkin, American consul to the Mexican government at Monterey, the governmental policy at Washington from the time of Jackson, or even Jefferson, the ideal of Manifest Destiny had a powerful influence on the acquisition of California.

Manifest Destiny was the idea that American boundaries should be pushed to the Pacific Ocean, despite adverse Mexican possession and designs of varying intensity on the part of England, Russia, and France. A point of Polk's platform on which he was elected President was the acquisition of California.

The telling of Fremont's military campaign in California, upon receipt of special orders borne by Capt. Gillespie, gives the impression of opera bouffé rather than of gallantry. Indeed, Dr Hunt—Bidwell's Boswell—quotes Gen. Bidwell, "We rode all over California in search of an enemy, but couldn't find one." The history of armed combat in California is singularly unsanguine, with the exceptions of Kearney's bloody battle of San Pasqual, and the battles of La Mesa and the San Gabriel River.

The Californians capitulated to Fremont at Cahuenga Jan. 13, 1847, to culminate the California act or episode in the War with Mexico. The conquest ended officially with the signing of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo at the close of the Mexican War, Feb. 2, 1848.

A typically California footnote to Dr. Hunt's talk was furnished by the turbulent land itself as the speaker was saying the very words, "—there was a movement on foot—" at the instant of a slight earthquake.

Colusa Parlor Bulletin Has New Editor

Len Mannee is the new editor of the Colusa Parlor Bulletin, which post has been held for the past three years by Brother R. G. Power, Grand First Vice President. The Grizzly Bear congratulates Brother Mannee and wishes him luck in a work that means a great deal to the progress of any parlor.

PESCADERO RODEO TO BE EVENT OF JULY 13-14

Pescadero's Annual Rodeo will be held Saturday-Sunday, July 13-14, according to the working committee of Pebble Beach Parlor No. 230, NSGW, and Ano Nuevo Parlor No. 180, NDGW, sponsorers of the popular San Mateo County event.

Although plans are yet in the formative state, there will be a Festival Dance Saturday evening, while the big rodeo program will take place Sunday preceded by a colorful parade beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning and ending at the Arena Grounds. A full afternoon of riding and roping events in which both children and adults may participate.

Those who enjoy rodeos should keep the above dates in mind.

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

In the parlance of the political writers of the time, the "political pot was boiling furiously," and candidates were as "thick as the falling leaves of Vallombrosa." Primaries and conventions to select county office candidates and delegates to the two state conventions were being held in every county of the state. One of the nominations made by the Sacramento County Democratic Convention was that of Grove L. Johnson, father of the late United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, for state senator.

The Democratic State Convention was held in the Assembly Chamber at Sacramento June 20, with J. W. Coffroth as chairman and Henry George secretary. As the party was in the saddle, filling all of the state offices, it had an enthusiastic three-day gabfest, every old warhorse making a speech and prophesying a victory at the polls in September. Governor H. H. Haight was renominated by acclamation and the following ticket named: Lieutenant-governor, E. J. Lewis of Tehama; Secretary of State, W. B. C. Brown of Sacramento; Controller, R. DeWitt of Siskiyou; Attorney-general, Jo. Hamilton of Placer; Treasurer, H. F. Cornel of Los Angeles; Surveyor-general, J. W. Bost of Mariposa; State Printer, John T. Barry of San Francisco; Harbor Commissioner, John Rosenfeld of San Francisco; Clerk Supreme Court, Thos. Laspeyre of San Joaquin; Superintendent Public Instruction, Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald of San Francisco; Justices Supreme Court, Jackson Temple of Sonoma and S. S. Wright of San Francisco; Congress (first district) L. Archer of Santa Clara, (second district) J. W. Coffroth of Sacramento, (third district) George Pearce of Sonoma.

The Republican State Convention met in Sacramento June 28. It was quickly and harmoniously organized by naming Judge Chas. E. Filkins of Yuba, chairman and M. D. Boruck of San Francisco, secretary. Mayor T. H. Selby of San Francisco and Newton Booth of Sacramento were contenders for the nomination for governor. Mayor Selby got the San Francisco vote, but Booth had the interior delegates and won out. The following ticket was nominated: Lieutenant-governor, Romualdo Pacheo of San Luis Obispo; Secretary of State, Drury Melone of San Francisco; Controller, J. J. Green of Contra Costa; Attorney-general, John Lord Love of San Francisco; Treasurer, Ferd Baehr of San Francisco; Surveyor-general, Robt. E. Gardner of Humboldt; State Printer, Thos. A. Springer of Amador; Harbor Commissioner, John A. McGlynn of San Francisco; Clerk Supreme Court, Grant I. Taggart of Shasta; Superintendent Public Instruction, H. N. Bolander of San Francisco; Justices Supreme Court, A. C. Niles of Nevada and A. L. Rhodes of Santa Clara; Congress (first district) S. O. Houghton of Los Angeles (second district) A. A. Sargent of Nevada, (third district) John M. Goghlan of Solano.

The Amador Miners' Union struck a Sutter Creek June 20 and caused the closin down of the mines. They claimed th owners intended to reduce their pay, ar the union presented a schedule and rul for the mine owners to accept. Being r fused, they quit work. On an appeal to th governor by the mine owners for militar protection, claiming local authorities we powerless, the First Regiment of the N tional Guard was ordered from San Fra cisco to Sutter Creek. June 23 Governo Haight, M. S. Latham and J. McDona went to Sutter Creek and had a conferen with the mine owners and the miner union in an effort to adjust the difference but were unsuccessful. The First Regimen with 400 men, went by boat to Sacrament thence by rail to Latrobe and marche from there to Sutter Creek. Their arriv was viewed with sullen silence by th striking miners, and there was no distur ance during the rest of the month.

John Ingham killed a grizzly on Sa Lorenzo Creek in Santa Cruz County th weighed dressed 500 pounds.

June 29 a fire that broke out in th Central Pacific snowsheds at Cisco, Plac County, burned the Cisco hotel, sever other buildings and nearly a mile of sno sheds, blocking trains for twenty-fo hours.

CLEAR LAKE, largest body of fresh water wholly within California, is situated in Lake County, famous resort country of the Redwood Empire.

Lake County

Vacation Land of a Thousand Charms

By COMMANDER SCOTT

(Radio Commentator-Lecturer-World Traveler and Author)

LAKE County is a wonderfully scenic district that is quite outstanding even in a state so full of magnificent sights. For in the mountains is some of the most primitive and rugged country in the entire west.

Every trip is full of surprises, of intimate views and of wide sweeping vistas, of heavy forests that seem untouched by the hand of man, and also, fine orchards that have been given a great deal of training and care. Here also you will see, in addition to huge Clear Lake, many tiny gem-like lakes and rushing streams plunging over stones and boulders. You will fall in love with the beauty of this area, everyone always does.

Since I have told you how beautiful Lake County is, some of you who are not too familiar with the geography of California, may be wondering how to reach it. Clear Lake, which is in the center of the county is twenty miles east of the Redwood Highway and about a hundred miles north of San Francisco. Near the south end of the lake, a main road leads east in a slightly southerly direction through Colusa, Marysville, Grass Valley and Truckee to Reno. Another main highway comes north from Oakland and Vallejo through the Napa Valley more or less parallel to the Redwood Highway. It follows along the eastern side of the Valley of the Moon, which Jack London, the famous writer immortalized. Beyond Calistoga one can follow a route twisting up the side of Mount St. Helena. Near the summit you will pass the house where Robert Louis Stevenson resided when he wrote the story Silverado. The whole of this mountainous area is delightful—lovely vistas—green pine forests—plunging streams—profusion of dogwood blossoms. Here and there charming mountain resorts nestle in the hills, among them the famous inn at Hoberg's where a stopover will always assure you of a very enjoyable vacation.

It is a strange but true fact and an amazing coincidence that Mount St. Helena was named three times, by three different people from three different nations at widely different times and each time they named it "Mount St. Helena" for an entirely different reason.

The first time was shortly after the Franciscan Fathers founded the Mission Dolores in San Francisco in 1776. A party of Friars and Indians was sent out toward the north to explore the country and if possible find a suitable location for a mission.

Finally they came into the beautiful and fertile Napa Valley. When they saw this majestic mountain that seemed to rise straight up from the valley commanding a view of the entire area, one of the party noticed that the outline of the peaks looked like the form of a reclining woman, and it reminded him of the carving of St. Helena on her coffin in the Old Abbey at Rheims. So for the first time the mountain was named by one of the Spanish Padres—Mount St. Helena.

Nearly 50 years later when the Czar of Russia ordered the withdrawal of the Russian settlement from Fort Ross, the wife of one of the officers, who had just arrived in California, was curious to see some of the Redwood trees before she left. She prevailed upon her husband to take her for a trip inland. They journeyed up the Russian River and the young matron was thrilled by everything she saw. Finally when Mount St. Helena came into sight nothing would do but they must climb it. It took two days to make that climb. Then as she stood entranced by the landscape and the magnificent view, she could think of no better name for the mountain than that of the patron saint of her Queen, the Royal Empress of all Russia—St. Helena. So for the second time, Mount St. Helena was named—this time by a Russian girl.

Finally Steve Smith, a down east Yankee sea captain, sailed into San Francisco Bay a little over a hundred years ago. While there he met Captain Sutter and at his suggestion, applied for land from the Mexican Governor. Before long he was granted the larger part of Napa Valley and all of the mountain rising at its northern end.

His inspection of the land delighted him, but when he saw the great mountain, he was filled with awe and wishing to perpetuate his name he decided to call it "Smith Mountain." However, the magnificent range with its soft silhouette of a reclining woman, did not seem to fit the prosaic name

Mural in "Old Barracks," Sonoma, depicting first raising of the Bear Flag.

WHERE THE BEAR FLAG WAS BORN 100 YEARS AGO

The eyes of California are focused on Sonoma, June 14, 15, 16, where the Centennial will be celebrated in commemoration of that historic event which took place in "The Valley of the Moon."

By MARSH MASLIN

IN THIS month of June in the little city of Sonoma something happened a hundred years ago that was to have a mighty bearing on the history of California. In that year of 1846 California was still a part of Mexico but it seethed with unrest. Even the old California families of Spanish blood had decided that Mexican misrule, inefficient rather than tyrannical, had made it impossible for them to remain any longer a part of Mexico. Some of them felt they should attach themselves to France, others that they should join their fortunes with England. Strong leaders like General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo, commandante general of the northern frontier with headquarters at Sonoma, were outspokenly in favor of junction with the United States of America. In this very month of June 1846 the British Admiral Seymour and the American Commander John Drake Sloat were eyeing each other suspiciously at Monterey, waiting to see which way the great cat of destiny would jump.

And at this peak of history, a little group of American settlers, trappers and traders rode into the town of Sonoma on the morning of June 14, 1846 and informed General Vallejo that "The Independents"—as they called themselves—were taking over the rule of California. That very afternoon they pulled the Mexican flag down from its flagstaff in the plaza and designed, on the spot, another flag to take its place. That new flag was to be forever famous in California as the Bear Flag. It was made of a piece of unbleached cotton domestic and a strip of red flannel across the lower edge. Henry L. Ford, one of the group, painted a five-pointed star at the upper left corner and drew a grizzly bear facing the star. Below the bear he painted the words "CALIFORNIA REPUBLIC." The grizzly was chosen because he was a native of the new state and an animal who minds his own business if no one tries to mind it for him—and then he fights to the death.

This Bear Flag revolt was bloodless but important. It set in motion events that led swiftly twenty-five days later to Commander Sloat's raising of the Stars and Stripes and the taking over of California as part of the Union.

So this year from June 14 to 16 in Sonoma that important episode of a century ago will be the inspiration of the California Bear Flag Centennial Celebration sponsored by the Sonoma Parlor No. 111, Native Sons of the Golden West. The sons and daughters of today are bringing the old days back with zest and joy—with barbecue and parade, dancing and carnival, music and pageant, but with baseball games and a golf tournament and an aerial circus as the modern touch.

The high point of the Centennial Celebration will be the production of a brilliant drama, "Romance of the Bear Flag Republic," directly sponsored by the Sonoma Parlor of the Native Sons. Written by Charles E. Pressley, the noted pageant director, the historically correct drama will tell the story of Sonoma from time of the Indians to the raising of the Bear Flag and the Stars and Stripes in 1846, the discovery of gold, the Gold Rush and the admission of California to the Union in 1850. It will be given each evening of the celebration with a cast of more than 350 players.

The Bear Flag Centennial is the first of a series of centenary observances extending from 1946 to 1950 and it will draw thousands to Sonoma, a city of rich historical significance and interest.

There is much in the "Cradle of California" to delight the traveler. "Sonoma," an Indian word signifying "Valley of the Moon," is the name given to this entire area between the St. Helena range and the sea by General Vallejo himself, and it was afterwards given international fame by Jack London's novel, laid in this valley. London himself lived only a few miles away near Glen Ellen. Not far away is Mt. Saint Helena itself where Robert Louis Stevenson lived for a summer and drew strength into himself as he wrote "Silverado Squatters." At Santa Rosa the great Luther Burbank creator of miracles in plant life, lived for many years. General "Fighting Joe" Hooker lived on a ranch near here before the Civil War; General Henry H. Arnold, chief of our Air Forces in World War II, lives near Sonoma now (and has said he would like to ride a donkey in one of the centennial parades). Sonoma is the site of the Sonoma Mission, furthest north of all the great chain of California Missions. The Bohemian Club's Grove where its famous Grove Play is produced each summer is not far away in the delightful Russian River country—and not far away on the Sonoma Coast at Fort Ross, where the Russian Trading Company flew its flag as an outpost of the Russian Empire from 1809 to 1841.

That Russian flag and the Bear Flag are two of eight flags that have flown over California in these last three centuries. Cabril raised the Spanish flag in 1542; and Sir Francis Drake the English flag in 1579. The flag of the short-lived Mexican Empire under Iturbide flew in 1822; of the Mexican Republic eight months later; of a raiding party from Buenos Aires in 1816; and finally the beloved Stars and Stripes of our country was raised in 1846. Second only to the American flag in the affection of all Californians is the Bear Flag, official banner of the state, raised for the first time in old Sonoma on that historic day of June 14, 1846.

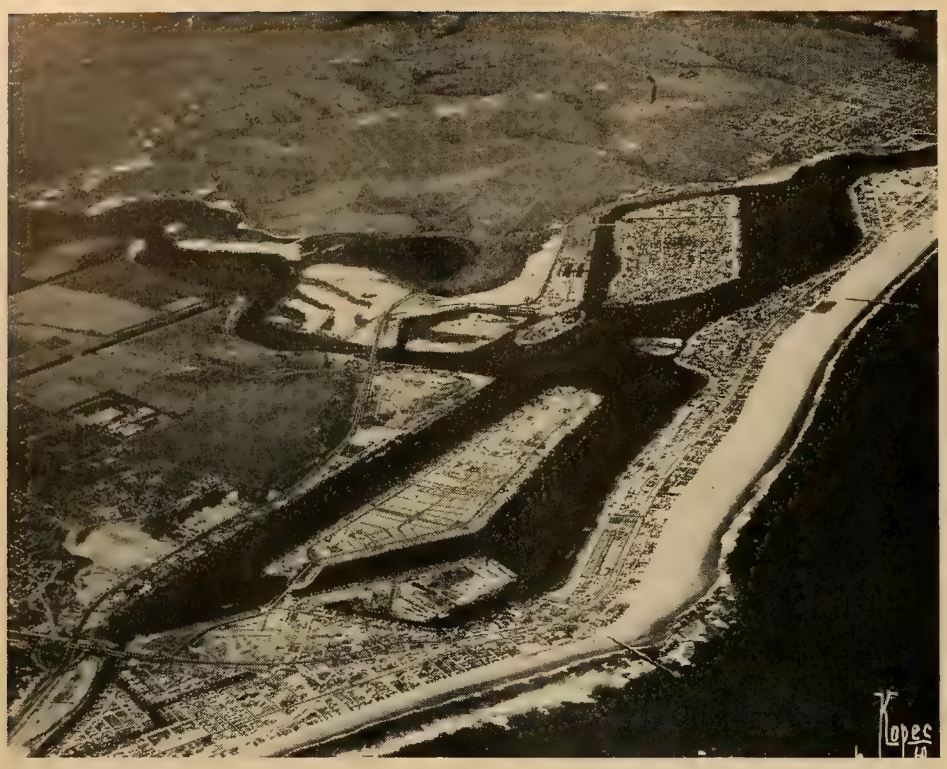
HOW TO REACH SONOMA

Governor Warren to Head List of Notables at Sonoma



It is announced that Governor Earl Warren will head the list of State and National notables who have been named honorary chairmen of the California Bear Flag Centennial Celebration to be held at Sonoma, on June 14, 15, and 16—in observance of the 100th anniversary of the raising of the famous Bear Flag and the establishment of the unique California Bear Flag Republic.

General Henry H. Arnold, retired chief of U. S. Army Air Forces, and Admiral Charles E. Cook, commanding the U. S. Seventh Fleet, both of whom maintain residence in the Sonoma Valley, are among those of national prominence who have accepted Centennial honorary chairmanships.

Others include, Congressman Clarence F. Lea, State Senator Herbert Slater, Assemblyman Richard McCollister, Mayor Roger Lapham of San Francisco, Joseph Knowland, State Park Commissioner; William Randolnh Hearst, Mrs A. B. Spreckels; Frank Bartholomew, Vice President, United Press; Archbishop John J. Mitty; E. D. Coblentz, Publisher, San Francisco Call Bulletin; Leo Carrillo, State Park Commissioner; Lee Ettleson, Gordon Tevis, Richard McCarthy, Past Grand President, Native Sons of the Golden West; Ethel Enos, Grand President, Native Daughters; Mrs. Jack London, Joseph T. Grace, President, Sonoma County Fair Association, and Herbert Waters, Editor, Santa Rosa Press Democrat.

FLASH!

The Bear Flag Centennial Committee advises in wire just received before going to press, that the parade will be held Saturday at 2:30 p.m. instead of Friday as originally scheduled on invitations. Please advise all planning to attend.

Saga of Old Newport

How the changing moods of the Santa Ana River helped to make one of America's finest fishing and pleasure harbors

By HARRY WELCH

MOST people think of a River as something stationary and immovable, but California rivers are not always that way. They have their moods and in Southern California, like the good housewife, some rivers change their beds quite frequently. For instance, the Santa Ana River has rambled over a lot of territory once it got beyond the restraining influence of the Coast Range, from the point where the river enters the coastal plain it has changed its course often. At one time the River found rest in the Pacific Ocean near the San Pedro Hills and between the San Pedro Hills and its present outlet near Newport Beach, it has within recorded history entered the Ocean in at least half a dozen places.

At Newport Beach, man has entered the picture and helped nature by making for the river, a short cut to the Sea. Man did this in order that the river waters at flood times might, in the future, be kept out of Newport Bay which the river had helped to create in its many years of searching for an outlet.

Newport Bay was brought into existence by silt and other materials carried down from the interior with the flood waters of the river. When the river flow reached the body of salt water it was not halted all at once but was diverted in a direction south and east, and parallel to the Coast. Slowing up of the river flow caused the solids to be deposited in banks a short distance off the mainland, thus making a new channel for the flow of the river water between the bluffs on shore and the new land.

This was not the work of a few years, nor of only a few flood periods, but was the effect of many years, some marked by heavy rainfall and great floods. The river continued to carry silt and other solids until a Peninsula was created a few miles long, and roughly parallel to the mainland. This eastern section of the Coast was lined with bluffs averaging 80 to 100 feet in height, in marked contrast to the shore area to the west, where the Coastline, in general, is flat and low until it reaches the San Pedro Hills about 30 miles away.

This was the picture of Newport Bay in 1865. The sand spit or Peninsula extending parallel to the shore but about a mile or more distant. In between the sand spit and the bluffs starting with a dangerous entrance, was a devious and uncertain channel which wended its way to the foot of the bluff at what was then known as Newport Landing.

About this time, the calm and unruffled days of Early California were interrupted when a little sidewheel steamer, the Vaquero, came puffing its way into Newport Bay. It made occasional trips between San Diego, "The Harbor of the Sun" and Newport Landing, bringing a miscellaneous cargo of supplies for the ranches and taking back hides and tallow from the great cattle ranges. The first official map of Newport Bay is a U. S. Coast Survey made in 1875 so the little "Vaquero" probably did not have much of a chart to go by.

Newport Landing also welcomed occasional lumber schooners from San Francisco. After unloading, the lumber was hauled from the landing far into the interior by ox teams. It is said that some lumber was hauled as far as Salt Lake City, but it is well known that the first homes in the San Bernardino area were built from lumber which arrived in this way. The name of the landing was later changed to "Port Orange."

In those days lumber was brought into the Bay in small quantities and with great difficulty. The trip through the Bay was uncertain, boats got stuck in the mud and on sand bars. Some times lumber was unloaded on to barges outside the entrance to the Bay. This was a tough job and the barges often stuck on the mud. Cables were called into use to get loads to the landing and a variety of other methods were used, all of them difficult and most of them eventually proved too expensive, but things did not move very fast in those days. This lasted until 1887 by which time handling lumber through the Bay proved too uncertain and unprofitable.

Local people then decided that a pier should be built into the Ocean off Newport which had in the meantime grown to a Community of fishermen with a number of summer residents from inland who camped on the beach for months during the warmer seasons. The pier program was successful. Many times eight or ten lumber schooners, both steam and sail, were tied up at the pier or anchored nearby waiting to unload. The lumber business grew and brought a railroad from Santa Ana and a town was born.

The City of Newport Beach was incorporated forty years ago, September, 1906. From the beginning, early settlers realized the future of the area was definitely tied in with the development of a Harbor, and efforts to interest the Federal Government in Harbor plans were made. Attempts to secure help in a financial way were carried on without ceasing but with little result. But after a lot of urging, the first Federal recognition was secured and a survey of Newport Harbor was made in 1888 and then other Harbor studies were made in 1907 and again in 1912. After still more pleading, during 1913 Harbor Lines were established and things began to look a bit brighter. But still no Federal funds were forthcoming.

With a lot of courage, the City of Newport Beach spent the first money on Harbor work, by voting $125,000 with which to build a jetty. This was in September 1916. At that time, it was believed that a single jetty on the west side of the entrance would be sufficient. Unfortunately, a single Jetty did not solve the entrance problems and the Jetty which had been built was not adequate to the task expected of it. In later years, Orange County was interested in the Harbor. The passage of legislation necessary to enable the county to vote bonds was secured through work with the state legislature, and in due time the aid of Orange County became a fact. This aid was first rendered by a County Bond Issue of $500,000.00 voted in 1919.

Again the Harbor works were not adequate to the needs of the project and it was realized that more funds were necessary so the City of Newport Beach again voted Bonds for dredging, repair of the Jetty and for the construction of a Jetty on the east side of the entrance. Improvements were ade from time to time until by the end f 1933, the City had spent in all $1,072,-30.00. At the same time, private interests ithin the Harbor had spent around $605,-00, and Orange County had spent $585,-00.

There were certain established channels, ut they were not too clearly defined and ot adequate. During 1933 other interests rom outside Orange County came to the id of the Harbor and plans which had been repared in advance were available for a roject which would provide for furnishing dequate water over the entire area to a inimum depth of ten feet at lower low ater with rebuilding and enlarging both f the Jetties and dredging an entrance hannel which would be safe and usable at ll times and tides. Appeals directed to Vashington were this time, more success-ul because of the interest the Government as then taking in creating employment, nd the program as submitted for the en-re Harbor project was accepted in full.

This improvement program called for an xpenditure of about $2,000,000 and with he help of the Board of Engineers of the nited States Army, who recommended a 0% contribution, and the WPA which ffered further financial help if the project ould be started promptly, a local contri-ution of $640,000 would complete the nancing. A vigorous campaign was made nd the appeal to the County of Orange as successful. A few days before Christ-as, December '33, the Orange County eople voted by a large majority in favor f the $640,000 contribution.

Even then, the task was not finished as any efforts to divert Federal funds to her purposes had to be prevented. Bids nd then contracts for dredging and for ock for the Jetties, all had to be arranged nd it was not until December 1934 that ll of this planning and contract letting as completed and the actual work started.

The first load of rock was dumped in De-mber '34, and on January 9th, '35, the rst of three giant dredges arrived to carry ut the dredging program which called for he removal of over eight million cubic ards of sand which were taken from the ottom of the Bay and went to build up ean beaches.

The Harbor work went on uninterrupt-edly until May 23, 1936, when the Harbor was officially opened by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, when he pressed a button at the White House and in this way signalled Coast Guard boats stationed at the entrance, to proceed into the Harbor.

That the improvement was a good invest-ment and is paying off, is clearly indicated by the increase in the number of craft which now make Newport Harbor their home port. In 1934, before the work started, the number of boats using the Harbor, totalled 693, of which, 81 were fishing boats and 612 were other types of craft. These vessels had an estimated assessed valuation of $500,000. The figures today, taken from the Harbor Master's report, show that there are now in Newport Harbor, Custom House Numbered Vessels, 1428, Documented Ves-sels, 176, miscellaneous Sail Boats, 631, row boats and other small craft, 867, total by actual count 3,102. At the same time, there were estimated stored and not then in the water, some 300 boats with 38 fish-ing boats out of the Harbor at the time the count was made, and 531 miscellaneous un-registered craft, making a total of about 4000 in all. The valuation of these craft as estimated for assessment purposes is given at around five million dollars.

The City of Newport Beach, also, shows a population growth worthy of special note. The Federal census of 1940 gave a total of 4438 persons. A special census made under Federal supervision in April, 1943 gave the resident population as 9396 persons, This, of course, is the permanent resident popu-lation and does not cover double the num-ber or more who are here in Newport Bal-boa and its many subdivisions during the summer months.

Newport Harbor is today, America's finest recreational and residential Harbor. It is known throughout the nation for the great number of sail boats and sailing en-thusiasts. Many of its yachtsmen are known over the world for their sailing skill and they have been outstanding winners in Regettas and Yacht races every-where. The area is also well and favorably known because of its interest in encourag-ing younger folks to sail. The variety of small boat classes is almost unlimited. Some of the classes have very large fleets, The "Snowbird" class, which is particu-larly popular in Newport Harbor, has over 350 boats listed and the annual "Flight of the Snowbirds," which is staged on the first Sunday in August each year, will find a fleet of 100 to 150 boats on the starting line. In August, 1945, the number of boats which actually sailed in the "Flight of the Snowbird" Race was 135 and over 100 boats finished the six-mile course on the Bay.

Practically every well known sailing class popular on the Pacific Coast, is rep-resented here at Newport Harbor as well as many sailing classes which are in evi-dence only on the Atlantic Seaboard.

Races for both large and smaller classes are held every month in the year, with of course, the greatest activity during the summer season, but every month some class will be holding a contest of sailing skill.

Brought together into a compact unit at Newport Harbor are attractions which one cannot find elsewhere. Five major com-munities are grouped around the Harbor area, Newport, Balboa, Balboa Island, Lido Isle, Corona del Mar, Newport Heights, and several other sub-divisions, all attrac-tive, smart and distinctive with many new areas anxious to join.

Here are Ocean and Bay, low lying sandy beaches and highland mesas, islands and peninsulas, with comfort and conven-ience everywhere. If you wish to live close by and hear the roll of the surf, you can. If you like the quiet of safe inland waters, with a pier and your own boat in your own front yard, that wish too can be granted. Should you prefer the high lands,

OLD TIMER RECOLLECTS

By HAR LAR

Old Timer glanced up from his newspaper and gazed intently over his spectacles.

"See where the sheriff warns auto drivers to lock their cars in order to stop these here automobile thieves."

He frowned a moment in recollection.

"We didn't have such robbing and stealing in the old days. Reckon what present law and order needs is a few of us old Vigilantes.

"Ever hear tell how they busted up a gang of horse thieves that operated around these parts?"

The white haired patriarch and pioneer of an earlier day tossed aside the newspaper contemptuously.

Horses got so they would disappear out of the pasture or barn without leaving a trace. Nobody'd see 'em go. Did remember, one farmer who swore he saw somebody leading his horses down the river lane. Still he was a mile and a half away so he couldn't be sure. But when he got home he was mighty certain that his team was gone.

"Only thing that seemed to bring them back was when a big enough reward was offered. Seemed like then some Mexican would come in and tell how he'd seen a horse answering that description running wild in the hills.

"Now there was one Mexican named Pablo Ruiz who lived in the foothills. His property extended up a rocky canyon that led back into the mountains. Though there were three or four riders on the place Ruiz ran little or no stock which was sort of unusual for a young vaquero who seemed never to be shy of spending money.

"So when in response to rewards advertised or posted for missing horses it would be Pablo or one of his henchmen who would bring back the missing critter, the citizens began to feel that the incident was becoming entirely too regular to be longer considered what you might call coincidental. Then one day a beautiful stallion as softly colored as creamed coffee up and disappeared from a locked stable and through a six foot corral fence. A posse of Vigilantes rode directly to the ranch of Pablo Ruiz.

"The Mexican was alone on his own veranda taking an afternoon siesta. Out in the corrals they found only a skinny cayuse that was known to belong to Ruiz. Not a fresh track anywhere on the place could they find but they accused Ruiz of horse thieving anyway.

"'I have not seen such an animal,' he denied.

"They tied Pablo to his own horse and took and rode him into town. They took him into the livery stable and gently hung him to a rafter and let him dangle. There weren't no jerks, just a gentle pull and they considerately cut him down before the life was plumb strangled out of him. Even such strenuous persuasion didn't induce Ruiz to talk.

"But when they threatened to "string" him up and leave him while they left to eat supper, Pablo Ruiz confessed. Not Ruiz but his friends would steal the horses and drive them far into the hills. If the reward was high enough Ruiz would claim that he had found the horse, otherwise it was ridden out of the territory and sold.

"It should be stated to the Vigilantes' credit that Pablo Ruiz was not lynched but went to jail and served three long years in the San Quentin prison."

LET'S GO FISHING

By CHARLES A. GRIFFIS

"You know what"? Bill said the other ight, "Ol' Man Spring Fever, has got me." was about to recommend sassfrass tea, ulphur and molasses or some of the new angled, high power vitamins, when Bill ontinued: "nothing will cure me but a fish- ng trip, on the old Briney, and you're going vith me."

Now me, I'm a fresh water guy, and my ocean fishing consisted of walking out on a ier, and watching Grandpa catch some erch or maybe a mackerel. So I, right way quick had my neck in a bow. Huh! h! None of that for me. Boy O Boy, did I ave objections. No making flying leaps rom a pier gangway to a boat, or from a oat to gangway. I'd seen the kind of tackle ome of them used. Compared to my 4½ unce fly rod, some of those poles looked ike derricks. Huh! Uh! no fun in that, be- ides I had been on the pier, when some of hose boats came in. Boy did they smell to igh heaven. No Sir, I'd be glad to go trout shing, or after bass, or even be satisfied vith a few crappie or catfish, but ocean shing: No Sir, not for me.

Bill gave me a pitying look, and brushed ll my objections aside. Look, he said, "we'll et our boat at Newport Harbor, it's still s a mill pond, and you can step from the oat to the boat, with no effort at all, no ock, no swing, no sway. Why last year, I shed along side of a blind man, darn good sherman too. Came down from up Oak- and way, in fact, comes down every year, o have a go at those big white sea bass. Ie won the jackpot too, and I never en- oyed seeing anyone win a jackpot more in ny life."

Yeah! I said, and I knew I was weaken- ng, "but I still don't see the fun of yanking hem out with a telephone pole and a well ope."

"That's because you've never seen any- ne fishing with real light tackle." "Now ook here, and Bill opened a closet door. hese rods have seven and a half foot tips, nd weigh less than six ounces, and with hese light free running reels and six thread ne, they'll cast an anchovie from one to wo hundred feet, depending on the skill of the caster, and when you hook a fish, look out, he'll give you a battle, that will make you forget all about your trout."

I took one of the rods, felt its balance, ran some line through the guides and tested its backbone. My resistance was almost gone.

Seeing that he had me whipped, Bill put over the knockout punch. "At Newport Harbor," he said, "the boats are up to the minute, and clean. Why Man, they're washed and scoured every day, so you can spread your lunch on the deck. Oh I don't mean after the fish start coming in." Bill's eyes twinkled, "you're too busy then, to want to eat anyway."

I threw in the towel, "OK, when do we start?" "The boat leaves the dock at seven, in the morning, we'll start, so as to get there about six-thirty. Time enough to get a good breakfast, before the boat pulls out," said Bill.

So there we were, 6:55 next morning, bag and baggage, or maybe I should say tackle box and tacklage. (I never could figure that one out.) Promptly at seven, the skipper started the engine, blew the whistle and we were off. A few minutes' pleasant ride down the harbor, through the entrance, and we were out on the Blue Pacific.

About a half mile off the entrance, we picked up the bait boat, loaded up our bait tank, with scoop after scoop of big, fat, wriggling anchovies and sardines, and were off after the fish.

About an hour's run down the coast, the time passing quickly, rigging tackle, and

ROMANCE OF THE HIGHWAYS OF CALIFORNIA

IS A MUST FOR CALIFORNIANS

This is not a guide book, although it contains beside a road map of the state several sectional maps, but is rather the story of a leisurely trip through our Golden State that you might have taken with the Author.

Commander Scott has the habit of ferreting out strange but true facts about the communities that he visits. These he calls Unreal Realities. Many of these and also some nearly forgotten stories of early California life are woven into the new book.

RAMONA

Some say she did not even live,
Or living, was but simple maid
Of Indian culture, primitive
As those who dwell in hill and glade.

What matters it? Her story wakes
The deep emotions of the soul
To pity for the heart that aches
Through sacrificial love's control.

Her tears are ours; her smile so brave,
When 'neath the budding springtime flowers
Of Camulos her heart she gave
To love's direction—all is ours.

Her hopes, her fears, her trials, her joys,
Are part of life's sweet, stern romance.
We all are puppets—all are toys
Of overmastering circumstance.

She is an epic of mankind,
For all who live must suffer pain;
Yet loving all, like she, will find
That faithful love is only gain.

—Earl M. Dunbar

We are inclined to agree with the late Earl M. Dunbar in discussing Helen Hunt Jackson's immortal book "Ramona."

For Ramona is very much alive in the hearts of the people of Hemet-San Jacinto, who this year revived their famous Ramona Pageant for the 19th season and played to capacity audiences in the beautiful outdoor bowl in the foothills of Southern California.

Here is a pageant unfolding before your eyes a story of early California, once seen is never forgotten. Here, among the hills and valleys of Riverside County, you may search out and find in old San Jacinto, Anza, Cahuilla, Aguanga and Temecula the landmarks that prove that many of Helen Hunt Jackson's characters lived and breathed, loved and died in this golden land.

Here still live people, who remember Ramona, Juan Diego (Alessandro), Sam Temple and others who figured in this novel of early California days.

And a transcript of the docket of Justice of the Peace S. V. Tripp of San Jacinto sets forth exactly what was done about the killing of Alessandro and, incidentally reflects the free and easy manner in which matters of this kind were handled in the justice courts of those days.

The Ramona Pageant, adapted by the late Garnet Holme, is an epic itself, an outstanding example of community cooperation.

There are those in the cast of nearly 300 people who played in the first performances as small children. In this year's production both they and their sons and daughters appeared in the cast with Adrian Awan as executive producer, Jean Innes and Victor Jory as co-directors.

And in passing, we should not forget to mention Frank Felt, who leaves his ranch on the Sespe at Pageant Season to journey southward to play the role of Father Salvedierra. The opening performance this season marked his 102nd appearance in this part.

of Smith. Night after night he dreamed about it. Then one evening he thought of his good ship lying in San Francisco Bay, the ship that had carried him safely around the horn. Yes, he would name the mountain after his good stalwart ship—and Strange but True, the name of that ship was Saint Helena—so for the third time the mountain was christened Mount Saint Helena, this time by an American.

Just before reaching the lovely mountain of St. Helena you start through a strange country of geysers and hotsprings that are a special attraction of this whole district. The geysers are not of the spectacular type found in some regions of the West, but are all kinds of bubbling and hissing cauldrons.

Some are of considerable size, but the variety of their activity will interest you most. At the resort called The Geysers, for instance, you can actually count thirty-five kinds in one small canyon. They spout, they gurgle and they amuse you for a long time as you watch each one with its own peculiarities. In these thermal districts you will need to exercise a little care, not so much because of the steam and hot water but on account of the fragile crusts that cover these steaming kettles. Often times a mere shell of sulphur or earth has been gradually built up around the geyser, leaving an exit for the fountain. Then underneath it is quite hollow, and sometimes if you venture too close, this will give way without warning, and you may find yourself literally in boiling water.

However there are a number of spots where these springs have been found to have medicinal properties, some even comparable to famous European Spas. One of these is at Vichy, a delightful place that I should have missed entirely had it not been for a casual conversation with a complete stranger. He recommended a special visit to Vichy for a wonderful Champagne Bath guaranteed to give you a new lease on life. So if you stop by there, you will have quite a new experience in store for you. Vichy Springs are sparkling natural carbonated waters that tingle and exhilerate. You'll find they possess all you'd ever hoped for in a mineral bath—stimulating and pleasing and well-named the Champagne baths.

Other springs in the region have many strange formations, and I have even heard that in one spring of boiling water, plants were actually found growing—if so, that's a true Unreal Reality. And one of the weirdest of all of the springs is the Devils Inkpot. Here a strange dark liquid comes out of the earth and it is actually black enough to make a very satisfactory ink with which to write. I suppose the explanation is some sort of solution of carbon in the water but it is one of the few places that you can see such a sight. Still another amazing spring is the one in Clear Lake itself—a bubbling soda spring which is actually a geyser at the bottom of the lake pushing its way to the surface of the water. Hence the spot where it is located is called Soda Bay and there is an old Indian Legend about its creation.

Many many years ago there lived, on the shores of Clear Lake, a great tribe of Indians. Their leader was called Chief Konochti, a proud and righteous man and a brave warrior. Chief Knonchti had the fine fortune to possess a very beautiful daughter whose name was Lupiyomi. Across the lake dwelt another great Indian Chief—Chief Kahbel. Although the two chiefs were reputed enemies, it came about that Chief Kahbel met his neighbor's beautiful daughter and the two fell hopelessly in love. After some hesitation they at length decided to broach the subject to the girl's father. So the young warrior went to him and asked for Lupiyomi's hand in marriage. Konochit was infuriated and prepared to do battle, so he stationed himself at the lower end of Clear Lake and began casting huge boulders at the unfortunate lover of his daughter. Chief Kahbel was not to be outdone and he, in his turn, hurled enormous rocks across the lake at his adversary. While the battle went on, the lovely Indian maiden stood grief-stricken, her tears pouring down in such quantities that they formed a small lake that remains today—Little Borax Lake. The fight was surely a bloody one, and the red gashes that you can now see on Red Hill on the north shore of the lake, are legendary evidence of the terrible duel. At last Kahbel was overcome and died in battle, but old Chief Konochti scarcely outlived his enemy. As he collapsed he sank back to the edge of the lake, and now they say that the great Mount Konochti rising there, is the head and shoulders of the Indian Chief himself. His heartbroken daughter had no will left to live, so she threw herself into the waters of Clear Lake, and right there to this day, the Indians can see her tears bubbling up from her water resting place, to form Big Soda Springs.

In the years before the white men's arrival this was a favorite region for the Indians because of its wonderful productiveness. Toward the north end of Clear Lake there were great quantities of tule, whose root was one of the Indians' principal foods. In addition the lake itself was full of fine fish—bass, perch and pike—and the forests were alive with deer and bear, besides birds of many varieties. On the hillsides were great crops of berries to be had for the taking, while various kinds of nuts covered the ground in the fall.

Furthermore, obsidian (that extremely sharp glass-like rock) could be had in quantities from a nearby source, and this provided the very best of arrowheads and spearheads. So, for the Indians it was truly a land of milk and honey. And today the countryside has settled down to fruit growing and agriculture to again present a beautiful picture of peace and plenty. Pears and walnuts abound in the vicinity of Lakeport while farther south, cows and chickens are raised in great numbers. The vacationer is also a consideration here for along the shores of Clear Lake and in the mountains are many clusters of summer cottages for lovers of fishing, swimming, riding, hiking and sunning.

Clear Lake is quite outstanding because of its unusual size. It is twenty-five miles long, making it the largest lake entirely within the State of California. Its shoreline curves in and out for a hundred and twenty miles. Mount Konochti, of the famous Indian legend, rises three thousand feet above its shores and from its great height a glorious vista of the entire region may be had: beautiful quiet slopes dotted with fine oaks; the city of Lakeport spreading beside the water; Russian River country to the west; wild primitive forests still filled with deer, to the north. Out of sight are the surprising mountain lakes like the twin Blue Lake on the road to Ukiah. These are two delightful discoveries, like two priceless gems of clearest blue set in the soft green of the woodlands.

Clear Lake has often been compared to the famous Scottish Lake, Loch Lomond and they do have much in common.

They are nearly the same length and are dominated by mountains nearly the same in height, and are stocked with almost the same kinds of fish. The nearby wilderness is a paradise for hunters; and the great lonesome spaces, the pureness of the silence, and the magnificent dark colors and shadows in the forests and canyons create a lovely symphony—the music of beauty that we can find everywhere along the scenic Highways of the World.

Mount St. Helena at the southern end of Lake County is here pictured in a frame of prune blossoms. The mountain is famous as the home of Robert Louis Stevenson, who camped on its slopes sixty years ago and regained his health while writing his "Silverado Squatters." Three separate parties named the mountain.

After viewing the new issue of th Grizzly Bear I just could not resist th opportunity in taking my pen in hand t congratulate you.

Many times in the past I would ver seldom glance at the contents. Howeve since you have taken it, of recent months I have heard in our parlor so many fin compliments of your handling our stat publication.

I also wish to state that the boys hesitat in discarding the Grizzly Bear now. I an saving mine, the stories and pictures ar fine. Even your ads are read and soun very interesting. I can see a even bette magazine in the future with the strides yo are making.

Some day I hope to see a colored cove This would knock the eyes out of the Na tive Sons throughout the state.

More power to you and I'll be waiting fo my next month's issue.

There's an old saying, "Give praise wher it is due." That's just the way I feel abou the new Grizzly Bear Magazine. You sur have done a wonderful job in making thi a real publication, both informative an interesting. I used to throw the old maga zine in the fire without looking at it, bu not so now. I read every word. You travelogues are fine, but try to get up i Central and Northern California and se some "real" country. Keep up the goo work.

F. W. Zimmerman, Jr.

You're right, Brother. We should go t Central and Northern California wit some of our travelogues. With a limite staff, we have had to work these first fe months with material close at hand. Hou ever, now our eyes are turning northwar and we're looking forward to some gloriou trips. Due to the size of our great state we probably ought, as soon as space wi warrant, run two travelogues in an at tempt to cover California more equally.

SAGA OF NEWPORT

with a glowing garden of gay flowers and shrubs, this wish can be gratified.

Swimming, diving and paddleboard riding, and out on the ocean, aquaplaning or surfboard riding on big rollers. Those who wish can just lie and sun bathe. Health is everywhere, with a sea wind constantly clearing the air and filling lungs with salty sea-tang which comes from China clear across the Pacific.

If your favorite sport is salt water fishing, then here you will find it at its best. Newport Harbor is the center of the sportfishing activities in Southern California Ocean waters. Every kind of fishing is available. Trolling boats for parties, large or small. There are nearly half a hundred live bait boats. Fishing from two Ocean Piers, from piers and from row boats in the bay. The Balboa Angling Club with a large number of sportfishermen members, holds Annual Tournaments with a large number of awards. Owners and operators of livebait and trolling boats have organized the Newport Harbor Sportfishing Association and regularly issue bulletins and information regarding fishing conditions, boat schedules and rates. Fishing tackle, bait and supplies are available at several tackle stores. Every effort is made to have on hand adequate supplies of suitable bait at all times. The King of sportfish, the Marlin Swordfish, is caught in nearby waters and numbers are brought into the Harbor for official recording and weighing every season.

Here is an atmosphere of Joy and Health —youngsters thrive on it—they grow husky and strong with a touch of salt water in their veins.

For the older folks, well its just tops—the climate renews vigor and vim of youthful days. One can rest and relax and laze away the days. Your hobby may be flowers and here they grow without much effort and in great variety and profusion of color with a little work.

There is amusement suited to all tastes and one may indulge an artist's mood by putting on canvas some of the hundreds of picture making possibilities which prevail on every hand.

It is indeed desirable and its attractions are so many and so varied that it is difficult to list them all.

But the latch string is out and you will be welcome at any time. Come and enjoy with us "White Sails on a Silver Sea."

"MEET ME IN SONOMA"— THEME SONG BY JAMES F. GLANN

MEET ME IN SONOMA, June 14, 15, 16, for the centennial in the Raising of the Bear Flag celebration in Sonoma. This is the California Slogan for the year.

MEET ME IN SONOMA is also the theme song for the occasion composed by James F. Glann. The sheet music is now on sale at the music stores. Record will be on sale after April 10.

MEET ME IN SONOMA is a dance theme adopted by the international dance team Roberto and Sarito, who are giving their interpreting dance at the coming celebration and centennial at Sonoma and at all the leading dance clubs and theatres in the San Francisco vicinity.

Native Sons

Grand President's Notes

By R. G. POWER

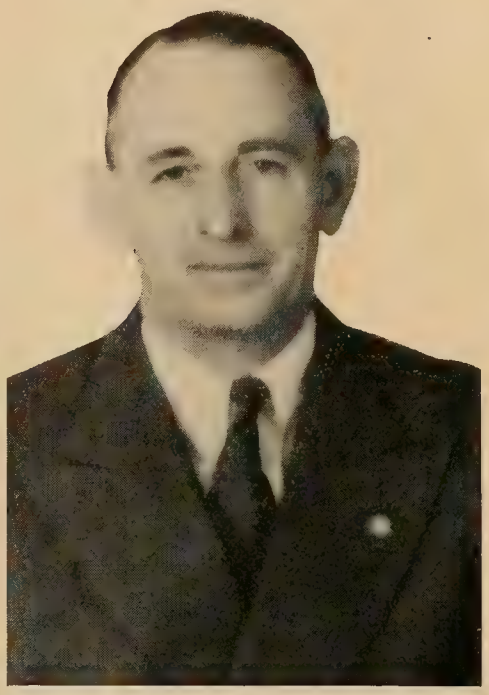
Grand President, NSGW

In continuation of the policy of Junior Past Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, this column will be devoted to items of general interest to every member of the Order.

In accordance with the plan developed some months ago and approved by the Grand Officers, the month of June will be known as "Bear Flag Month." During that time every candidate initiated into the Order will be presented with a desk size Bear Flag and one will also be presented to the sponsor signing the top line of the petition. These flags are approximately 5½ by 4 inches, mounted on a one-foot standard and are very attractive. The purpose of this is to emphasize to all our new Brothers the importance of the famous "Bear Flag Incident" in California history and, in conformity with Native Son's Tradition, to keep forever alive such historical events. In addition, it will also serve to publicize the Centennial Celebration being held in Sonoma, June 14, 15 and 16.

The itinerary for this month reads as follows:

June 2—San Francisco—Grove of Memory.
June 13—San Francisco — Grand Officers Meeting.
June 14-15—Sonoma, Bear Flag Centennial.
June 17-20—Los Angeles County.
District Deputies Organization Meeting.
Institution of New Parlors at South Gate, Huntington Park and Pasadena.



In addition, other District Deputies Organization meetings will be held in various parts of the State, but, as this material has to be in the Grizzly Bear office by May 10th, it is impossible to publish a full schedule at this time.

All Parlors should certainly celebrate FOUNDER'S DAY (July 11th) as that will be the 71st Anniversary of our Order and California Parlor No. 1. Every Parlor should at least have a speaker on that subject on their meeting closest to that date.

There has been some criticism in the past over the alleged failure of the Grand Parlor to assist the subordinate Parlors. Hereafter a mimeograhed Bulletin will be sent to all Parlor Presidents and Recording Secretaries; to all Supervising and District Deputy Grand Presidents and all Grand Officers, with suggestions for activities, programs and other aids. This will probably be on a monthly basis and if the Parlor Presidents will only avail themselves of the material offered, their Parlors should soon assume an active and useful life in their communities, if they have not already done so.

Many of the Parlors have already resumed their Drum and Bugle Corps. That's a fine activity and of interest to a great many members. There is an opportunity here for other Parlors to start one. The season for outdoor events is now here and the public demand for this type of entertainment never drags. Many Native Sons' teams will appear both at the Sonoma and Monterey Centennials. They need our support—we can use their publicity.

NEW GRAND PRESIDENT

R. G. Power of Colusa, named Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, Grand Parlor, Hoberg's, May 20, 21, 23, 24, 1946.

Los Angeles to Observe Bear Flag Centennial

Los Angeles County will observe the centennial of the first raising of the Bear Flag, Friday morning, June 14, at 10:30 o'clock, with appropriate ceremonies to be conducted at the Temple Street entrance to the Hall of Justice, it was announced following a meeting of the Centennial Committee in the office of Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz.

Sponsored by Los Angeles county parlors of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, in conjunction with Star Post-American Legion, the Centennial observance will be held in connection with the state celebration scheduled for June 14, 15, and 16 at Sonoma, where the first Bear Flag was raised over the California Republic a hundred years ago, according to Eldred L. Meyer, chairman of the Los Angeles County committee.

The various historical and civic groups, as well as the Los Angeles Schools, will be invited to take part in the public ceremonies which are an elaboration of the Flag Day services, conducted for many years past by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

COLUSA

Home of the Grand President

CALIFORNIA'S great Sacramento Valley finds its natural center in Colusa County. The picturesque Sacramento River flows along its eastern boundary and Colusa County sweeps upward into the Mendocino National Forest and the Coast Range in its westerly limits. North and south, Colusa joins her sister counties, Glenn and Yolo in the gigantic Central Valley Water Project.

Colusa, a county of some 730,000 acres lying within the One Hundred Mile Circle north of San Francisco and about one half that distance from the State Capital at Sacramento, is basically agricultural. Rice and barley are its principal grain crops with livestock second and fruits and nuts third. The county's agricultural wealth for 1945 will show close to $10,000,000.00.

The County seat is Colusa, a city of about 2500 population. Interest in Colusa and its surrounding area becomes widespread throughout the state in the fall when the migratory flight of wild fowl from Canada starts. Colusa County is in the line of flight for untold numbers of ducks and geese and attracted by the shimmering ponds of the rice fields, the birds settle down for long feeding periods. This together with the ever increasing number of pheasants makes Colusa a meca for hunters.

General John G. Bidwell was perhaps the first white man to travel through the county, having explored the area in 1844. The name "Colusa" is of Indian origin. The largest tribe of Indians in the valley north of the mouth of the Feather River had its principal rancheria where the city of Colusa now stands. They were known to the whites as the "Colus." When the town was founded in 1850 an "a" was added and Colusa became the name of the former settlement.

Colusa is noted for her excellent schools, churches of all denominations, active civic clubs and fraternal organizations. The largest municipal swimming pool in the Valley is located here. Each year the Colusa County Harvest Festival is held on the fifty acre fair grounds property of the 44th District Agricultural Association joining the city on the west.

California State Highway 20 traverses the County east and west, providing entrance to the Redwood Empire and the Pacific Ocean on the west and the Lake Tahoe country eastward.

Colusa is served by the Southern Pacific railroad, the Sacramento Northern Ry and the Greyhound Stage Lines.

"The stately trees that cast their comforting shade along the streets of our town constantly reminded us of the Unseen Creative Power that gives form and life to all that really exists in our democracy."

NOTICE

Due to the fact that it was necessary for the June issue of the Grizzly Bear to go to press before the Grand Parlor at Hoberg's of the Native Sons of the Golden West, reports of the sessions will appear in the July number of the magazine.

Native Daughters

GRAND PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

May 9, 1946.

In outlining our program for the future we must of necessity review the accomplishments of the past, attempting to improve those ideas wherein we have found a weakness, building an even stronger basis upon which our further efforts must stand in the years ahead.

Sincerity of purpose in the development of resources has been exemplified throughout the State by the members and our progress has gained added impetus because of our belief in the principles upon which our Order was founded almost sixty years ago.

Embodied in these cardinal ideals of Love of Home, Devotion to our Flag, Veneration of the Pioneers and an Abiding Faith in God, can be found the very highest heritage which can come to a true Native Daughter.

The fidelity and courage of the Padres and Argonauts of yesteryear have given us a foundation for civilization that was well established. We revere and honor their memory, and their accomplishments.

We hold faith and integrity in carrying on with the problems of the present and have been successful in maintaining an equal balance in the responsibilities of today.

Inspiration and strength given through service in all of our projects assures us a successful future, if we continue to hold fast to the true way of life.

There is no conquest all complete;
No stopping place for human feet;
No final goal.
Onward and upward men ascend
And none of us shall see the end
Of glory's scroll.
But small and trivial is the past,
It is the future which is vast!

PGP Mariana Bertola Honored

Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, N.D.G.W. San Francisco, celebrated their 54th Anniversary on April 27th at the Del Mar Restaurant. Dr. Mariana Bertola, Past Grand President and esteemed member of Buena Vista Parlor was the honored guest, it being her Golden Anniversary Year as presiding Grand President of the N.D.G.W. Over fifty years of continuous service to her Order, she has been a devoted member. She introduced legislation at the eleventh Grand Parlor held in Napa, California, at which she presided, which made the American Flag a part of our ritual. She is often referred to as the "Flag Grand President."

Dr. Bertola is honored throughout the State for her vision, tenacity of purpose and untiring efforts throughout the years in the successful guidance of the destiny of the Native Daughter Home, from the days of its infancy to the successful project it is today. Other guests of honor included Charter Members PGP Mary E. Bell, Gertrude Bury, Lucy Hudner, Permanent Member Georgia Ryan and Susie Platt. Fifty year pins were presented to Josephine Parker and Anna Moll.

The tables were beautifully appointed in golden poppies, gold nugget place cards, with a total of sixty-eight in attendance. Other guests in attendance were PGP Emily E. Ryan, Grand Inside Sentinel Jewel McSweeney, and Deputy Grand President Vera Thompson of Keith Parlor. Presiding at a very successful evening was Margaret Barrett, Chairman, assisted by President Ruth E. Weiman. "1892—May the golden chain of friendship welded through the years, bind us ever closer in a firm and sincere understanding of our valued heritage. 1946" Quotation is from the golden souvenir program of the evening.

Grand President Ethel C. Enos Honored by San Francisco Deputies

The San Francisco County Deputy Grand Presidents honored Grand President Ethel C. Enos at a luncheon, held in the Gold Room of the Hotel Fairmount, San Francisco on June 1, 1946. This was the final appearance of the Grand President in San Francisco. The tables were decorated in the colors of the order, red, gold and white roses, with favors carrying out the same motive. Prominent present and past grand officers of both Orders, civic leaders and several hundred members of the order gathered to honor the Grand President. In charge of arrangement and presiding as Chairman of the day, was Jessie Ormond of Gabrielle Parlor, Supervising District Deputy Grand President of San Francisco County.

Marguerite Parlor NGDW Honors Past Presidents

On April 17 Marguerite Parlor No. 12, NDGW, Placerville, celebrated past presidents' night with 32 members as honored guests. The past presidents put on the opening work and initiated. The president's chair was filled by Bertha Reeg, one of the two 50-year members present. Mrs Reeg had been president in 1905.

Supervising District Deputy Ruth Thomas, Deputy Grand President Maybell Timm and President Lida Snodgrass were escorted during the evening.

An Easter motive was used as decorative theme and each past president was presented with a corsage of violets.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Junior Native Daughters of the Golden West

Elsie C. Amidon, State Chairman

On July 1, 1945, there were ten active Junior Units. On July 28, 1945 La Tijera Junior Unit No. 19 was instituted by Grand President Ethel C. Enos. Placerita Junior Unit No. 16 initiated twenty-five members. La Tijera Parlor officers, President Helen Brandt presiding, installed the Junior Officers.

Again, on November 1, 1945 Lugonia Parlor presented a group of thirty Juniors for institution. Grand President Enos was the instituting officer, and the officers of La Tijera Junior Unit formed the initiatory team. Fern McGinty, president of Lugonia Parlor, and her officers installed the Junior Officers of Asistencia Junior Unit No. 20.

Throughout the state there is difficulty in getting leaders for Junior Units. Those who have served often have carried on with too little assistance and over too long a time. They feel that they have exhausted their ideas of keeping the girls busy and interested. This is a very serious situation, if the Order wishes to sponsor Junior Native Daughters. At this time, when juvenile delinquency is increasing, here is a golden opportunity for the Native Daughters to render constructive service and to gain statewide publicity.

A radio broadcast was given on January 26, 1946, over Station KXLA. All the arrangements and the script were the work of State Chairman of Publicity and Radio Margaret Kerr. Participating in the broadcast were: State Chairman of Junior Native Daughters Elsie C. Amidon, Annette Shaw, president of Aowa Kuja Unit of Burbank and Frances Setterberg, president of La Tijera Unit of Inglewood.

The most popular activities among the Juniors were: dinners—Spanish and potluck, booths at a bazaar, selling stamps in the Homeless Baby Stamp Campaign, making scrapbooks for Children's and Veterans' Hospitals. For social activities they enjoyed: dances, parties celebrating the holidays of the year, swimming, skating, and picnics.

As of July, 1945, there were approximately two hundred fifteen (215) members. On May 1, 1946, there were two hundred eighty-one (281) members and several Units have one more initiation scheduled before the close of the term. There was a gain of eighty-one (81) and a loss of approximately forty (40), including two units that became inactive since July 1, 1945. Unfortunately some units are facing the loss of two-thirds of the membership due to overage. These units will then become inactive. It is their wish that the age limit be extended through the eighteenth year. The seventeen year olds are too young to be interested in the activities and projects of the Senior Parlors, in most cases. Therefore, temporarily at least, they are lost to the Order.

Respectfully submitted,
Elsie C. Amidon, State Chairman,
Junior Native Daughters.

Education Committee

The State Committee of Education and Public Speaking has been doing some research work this year. We have found that a great deal of constructive work is being done by various counties in compiling local histories. We have also tried to ascertain the amount of California History being taught in the schools of our state.

The idea was advanced that our Veterans Hospital Libraries be given books pertaining to California as many of the patients had expressed a desire to read such books. We have compiled a splendid list of such books which may be secured by the subordinate parlors who are interested.

The final phase of our work has been carried out in speaking contests for Junior College Students. The final contestants will meet at Grand Parlor at Hobergs on June 6

I would like to express my thanks to the various committee members who have helped with this work.

Henrietta Toothaker,
Chairman,

Homeless Children CORNER

A Typical Testimonial Letter You'll Be Gratified to Read

We are finding that the general public is appreciative of the wonderful work the Native Sons and Native Daughters are doing, for homeless orphaned babies in California. The testimonial letter below is typical of the hundreds received during our last Baby Fund Campaign. H.B.H.

Hazel B. Hansen, Campaign Chairman,
Native Sons and Daughters,
Central Committee on Homeless Children,
3924 Sunset Blvd.,
Los Angeles 27, California.
Dear Madam:

It is not often that I have an opportunity to write an organization whose activities make me feel more than merely sympathetic.

I am fortunate enough to have a child of my own to take care of and bring up. But I have often heard of the great good work your Central Committee on Homeless Children has been doing for the State of California.

Sometimes when I read in the newspaper about another sympathetic case of a war-born home and a helpless little baby left an orphan, I think, for all I know, and but for the Grace of God, it might have happened to me and my child.

I realize—from my own household experiences with the rising costs of everything—how heavy your financial burdens must be at this time.

I am sending you, therefore, a small contribution to help out in this cause so dear to every mother's heart. Believe me, I wish it could be a hundred times more!

Most sincerely,
Mrs. Lee D. Mill,
University of Southern California.

The Southern California Homeless Children Committee, under direction of Frank Reese, will have charge of the Post War House, Wilshire at Highland Ave., June 6, it is announced.

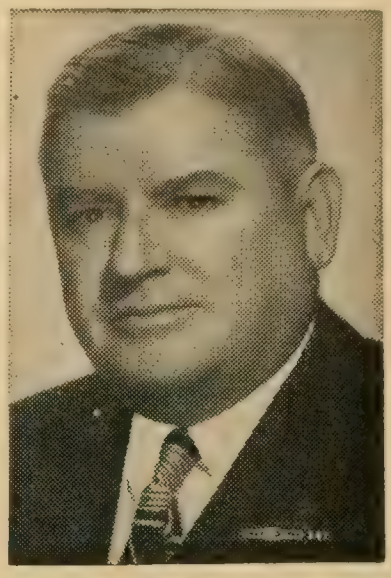
Berryessa Parlor Gives Shower for Deputy



Berryessa Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Willows, gave Lee Callender, deputy grand president, a pink and blue shower recently, honoring James Arthur who has arrived to make his home with Mr. and Mrs. Wright Callender. This is the second baby boy that has been adopted by these good people through the Homeless Children.

The tables in the banquet room were arranged in a V shape with the honored guest seated at the table forming the base of the formation. A collection of story book dolls, miniature bassinett and arrangements of tulips and bridal wreath appointed the table laden with many lovely gifts for James Arthur.

EUGENIA SMITH

For the first time in 39 years, the Long Beach Parlor No. 154 presents a candidate for Grand Parlor office in a strong letter endorsing Eugenia Smith.

In naming the qualifications for the office of Grand Outside Sentinel, Ada Stewart, Recording Secretary of the Long Beach Parlor, ranks tolerance and an understanding and love of people as foremost. She goes on to say, "... the ability to cooperate and get cooperation are most admirable qualities and will go a long ways toward successful office holding. A candidate should be gracious in manner, she should by all means have a love for her work and a deep rooted understanding of its importance."

Pointing out that Eugenia Smith has these characteristics and that she has had the necessary experience to make her capable of holding this office, Miss Stewart continues to say that Eugenia is "just the candidate we've been waiting 39 years to present for the Office of Grand Outside Sentinel."

Since joining the Long Beach Parlor, Eugenia Smith has held many offices. She was Deputy Grand President to Topango, Ontario and Rio Hondo Parlors, in addition to which she was twice Deputy Grand President to East Los Angeles Parlor. She was Supervising Deputy Grand President of Los Angeles County, and also Supervising Deputy to San Diego County. She assisted in the organization of Wilmington and organized Rio Hondo Parlor. Her work for the Homeless Children is well known.

"The record of the parlor reflects the record of its members," is the slogan of Eugenia Smith, "and the Long Beach Parlor record speaks for itself."

ELIZABETH (BETTY) READ

Ursula Parlo No. 1, Native Daughters of the Golden West, of Jackson, Amador County, again presents Elizabeth (Betty) Read, for election to the office of Grand Trustee, for a third term.

Betty Read has been a member of the Mother Parlor for over eighteen years and during her membership has served as an officer for fifteen years and during the past five years as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Parlor. She has served in a competent manner as Deputy Grand President to the Parlors of Amador and Calaveras counties and as Supervising District Deputy Grand President of Amador County. In the interim she has fulfilled the duties of numerous Grand Parlor Committees.

Miss Read is the granddaughter of pioneer residents of California. She received her education in the public and private schools of Sacramento where she was employed by a law firm as secretary, prior to her arrival in Jackson in 1927. Since that time she has been employed in newspaper work and at the present time is associate editor of the Amador Dispatch, a newspaper of general circulation, established during September 1858.

Members of the Order of Native Daughters throughout the state who have had the opportunity of meeting Miss Reed during her visits to numerous Parlors, have come to know of her qualifications and ability as a Grand Officer.

The members of Ursula Parlor No. 1, take pride in presenting Betty Reed for election to the office of Grand Trustee, and feel that if re-elected, she will continue to serve the Grand Parlor with ability and distinction.

ELMARIE HURLBERT DYKE

Junipero Parlor No. 141, NDGW, Monterey, presents Elmarie Hurlbert Dyke for re-election to the office of grand trustee, which office she has held for the past two terms.

She became a member of the Order by joining Amapola Parlor No. 80 in Sutter Creek more than twenty-five years ago, but transferred to Junipero Parlor in 1939, since her home is in the adjoining city of Pacific Grove.

In six years, under the guidance of Elmarie Dyke, the parlor has grown from a faithful group of less than thirty to a thriving membership of more than 160, eighty of whom were initiated during her term as president.

In addition to serving for many years as an officer in the above two parlors, Mrs. Dyke held appointments as deputy grand president in Amador, Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz counties. She has served on many grand parlor committees, having been chairman of two grand parlor committees, in addition to her past two terms as grand trustee. She will be remembered by many delegates to grand parlor since she served a number of times as song leader.

Mrs. Dyke is Monterey County general school supervisor and curriculum coordinator and has held state offices in a number of educational organizations and is now a state chairman for Delta Kappa Gamma, women's national educational honor society. She received her B. A. degree with highest honors from San Jose State College and taught there for seven summers.

During the war Elmarie Dyke organized the Women's Civilian Defense for Pacific Grove, and later she organized the blood donor service for the Monterey Peninsula and secured more than 1500 blood donors personally. She now serves as a Grey Lady at Fort Ord Hospital on Sunday afternoons. Her two sons, Nelson and Robert Hyler, have been returned from overseas duty in naval aviation. Her husband, Clyde F. Dyke, is owner of the Grove Pharmacy.

Governor Earl Warren recently appointed Elmarie Dyke as one of the state's commission to serve for the Monterey Flag Raising Centennial on July 7th.

Feeling that she has the necessary qualities for leadership her parlor is asking the support of subordinate parlor and delegates for Elmarie Hurlbert Dyke as grand trustee.

JEWEL McSWEENEY

Today every civic minded citizen is conscious of the great responsibility that lies before us in the building of a post war world and Native Daughters in particular realize the great future that is before them in the fraternal world and in the building of the glories of our State.

El Vespero Parlor, No. 118, Native Daughters of the Golden West has watched the progress of their esteemed member, Jewel McSweeney, since early childhood and points with pride to her accomplishments in the service of our Order.

In San Francisco County, Jewel is closely identified with the Homeless Children Work, having brought to her parlor and to the Native Daughters of her county the distinction of the first Native Daughter Chairman of the San Francisco Joint Commitee and today is representing Native Daughters on the Central Committee on Homeless Children.

To note each service she has given on state and civic committees and as a Deputy Grand President would be detailed but to say that she has carried through each assignment with credit and distinction reflects the pride we feel so justified in expressing.

We feel the future of our Order is assured in the selection of our leaders and with this thought in mind we take great pleasure in presenting Grand Inside Sentinel Jewel McSweeney for advancement to the office of Grand Trustee.

MARGARET FARNSWORTH

Margaret Farnsworth, candidate for Grand Marshal, was an honored guest at a dinner party held at the San Jose Country Club, Wednesday evening, May 1st. Over one hundred members and guests from Santa Clara County were present to greet Sister Farnsworth and express their sincere hopes for her election at the coming State Convention. District Attorney of Santa Clara County, Leonard Avilla, responded to the call of Toastmistress Dollie Kooser, eulogizing the candidate and giving an historical glimpse of Santa Clara County as the cradle of the State's history, and saying for that reason alone, Santa Clara County should be represented in the Great State Order of Native Daughters by an Officer on the State Grand Parlor Board. Past Grand President Mamie-Pierce-Carmichael spoke of Margaret's accomplishments and devotion to Grand Parlor and told how she came the long way up the Officer's rank having served as Grand Outside Sentinel, Grand Inside Sentinel, and Grand Trustee for the past three years. Sister Farnsworth has had splendid business training in the Business world and is a Past President of Association No. 3 and is at the present time Marshal for the Pioneers of Santa Clara County. By her devotion to civic affairs of San Jose, she has endeared herself to every phase of civic improvements and San Jose is hoping that she will bring home the victory once more as a Grand Officer.

Ray Schilling, a member of Observatory Parlor N. S. G. W. sang several choice selections, dedicating "One Alone" from the "Desert Song" to Sister Farnsworth and "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" to Past Grand Organist Tillie Brohaska, who is lovingly termed "Mother" of Vendome Parlor. Past Grand President Claire Lindsay spoke of Grand Parlor experiences as a Grand Officer and Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler gave an intimate glimpse of Grand Parlor Officer's routine and of Sister Farnsworth's devotion to the Order.

Crystal gifts were presented to the guest of honor from members of Vendome Parlor by the president, Winnifred Laffey and Past President Margaret Morgan offered the blessing at the beginning of the dinner. The Country Club rooms were converted into a Spring blossom show with gorgeous arrangements of roses, Iris and ferns. At the Speaker's table a beautiful arrangement of White Iris flanked with red stock and white tapers greeted the honoree. Deputy District Attorney Allan P. Lindsay representing Observatory Parlor Native Sons presented Margaret with a huge bouquet of red carnations. Dancing concluded the evening's entertainment.

Sisters Margaret Morgan, Past President, Sister Marie Serpa, Trustee and Sister Dorothy Salas, Secretary will represent Vendome Parlor at Grand Parlor Convention in June at Hobergs.

ANNA T. SCHIEBUSCH

For her energetic and enthusiastic work in interests of the Native Daughters of the Golden West a strong movement has been started throughout the state for reelection of Grand Trustee Anna T. Schiebusch, Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 NDGW, to a fourth term at Grand Parlor Session this June.

Particularly Anna is noted for activity in extension of the order. During the past two years, she has organized Toluca and San Gabriel Valley Parlors, reorganized Desert Gold Parlor and has played a large part in institution of La Tijera and Placerita Parlors.

At present she is concentrating on institution of a parlor in Indio, which will embrace the many Native Daughters residing in Imperial Valley and other adjacent territory. Expectations are that the Indio Parlor will be instituted by early autumn.

Recently Anna was reelected vice chairman of the Southern Counties Homeless Children committee. Prominent in many statewide civic affairs, the Grand Trustee is a member of the Los Angeles Bear Flag Centennial Celebration committee and will take a prominent part in the group's activities.

As assistant superintendent of mails in the Los Angeles main postoffice, she has acquired wide executive ability, a quality which she applies in achieving results for the NDGW. Anna now is serving her third term as Grand Trustee.

Annie K. Bidwell Parlor No. 168 Holds Annual Card Party

Annie K. Bidwell Parlor No. 168, NDGW, Chico, held its annual card party Friday evening, March 29, for the benefit of Homeless Children. The well attended affair was under the able chairmanship of Mrs Lucy Girdler.

Participants in ceremonies at which granite monument was dedicated to denote trail taken by Gasper de Portola, California's first Spanish governor. Portola and his retinue went that way in 1769 en route to Monterey. Marker was placed at intersection of Sepulveda Blvd. and Moraga Drive, West Los Angeles, Sunday, April 7. Left to right: Bernice Setterberg, co-chairman, history and landmarks committee, Los Angeles parlor; Anna T. Schiebusch, grand trustee; J. Win Austin, Los Angeles councilman, third district, who accepted marker for the City; Ethel C. Enos, Grand President; Arthur Woodward, chief curator, Los Angeles museum, who spoke during ceremonies; Evelyn Howell, president of Los Angeles parlor; Dr. Owen Coy, director, California Historical Association, who spoke; Ella Steinbeck, co-chairman, history and landmarks committee, Los Angeles parlor. Speakers urged that this be the first of other markers which will be erected to trace the Portola trail from San Diego to Monterey.

YSABEL CAMPBELL

To the Officers and Members of Long Beach Parlor No. 154, N.D.G.W. We your committee, appointed to draft resolutions of respect in memory of our beloved, departed sister, Ysabel Campbell, submit the following:

Whereas, our Heavenly Father has called our dear sister Ysabel to her Heavenly Home, she was truly a Native Pioneer Mother and was devoted to her family and her beloved State, California. She gave to our Order three Native Daughters, one of whom, Lenora Dodd, survives. We mourn the loss of a faithful esteemed member and loving friend.

Therefore, be it resolved, that we extend our heartfelt symnathy to the bereaved family in their sorrow. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, one sent to the Grizzy Bear for publication.

JOHN J. BARRETT
March 18, 1946

Tonight we bow our heads in tribute to the memory of John J. Barrett, past president of Rincon Parlor No. 72, NSGW.

Our hearts are heavy, our souls are sorrowful, and our eyes are dimmed with tears.

None of the beautiful eulogies and tender tributes spoken by man can add one leaf to his laurel wreath, one star to his crown or glory, or one inch to his lofty character.

Heaven is richer. His friends and relatives are poorer.

Jack Barrett is not dead, but still lives.

He has bequeathed a memory, which through the years will blossom in the lives of all of us with a supernatural beauty.

May his life and teachings be an inspiration and guiding star.

Jack Barrett was loved by all.

He was imbedded in the precepts of our order 1000 per cent friendship, loyalty and charity.

He was one of the strong links in that chain of membership in dear old Rincon Parlor No. 72 NSGW.

And Jack, we of Rincon and your many friends and relatives shall surely miss you.

Goodnight Jack, and may God bless you and watch over you.

With deepest sympathy of Rincon Parlor No. 72, NSGW.

MONTEREY TO CELEBRATE FIRS RAISING OF STARS AND STRIPE

—Wm. L. Morgan Phot

Royal Presidio Chapel, Monterey, first church built on the coast, in 1769. On J 7th, 1846, Commodore John Drake Sloat's forces, consisting of marines and sailors, lan from the flagship Savannah, captured the city of Monterey from Mexico, and offici raised the United States Flag for the first time on the California coast. That operat annexed approximately 600,000 square miles, including the present states of Califor Arizona, Nevada, and Utah and portions of New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming, to United States. The Centennial to be celebrated in Monterey July 4, 5, 6 and 7, 1946, co memorates that historic event, which was one of the most important in our natio history.

Editorial

This year we celebrate the first of the Centennials—June 14th at Sonoma, commemorating the famous "Bear Flag Incident," and July 7th at Monterey, where Commodore Sloat of our Navy hauled down the flag of Mexico, raised the Stars and Stripes and took possession of this Western Land for the United States. How important these dates are in California History; what a turning point they made in the destiny of Our Country.

Both of these cities have prepared celebrations, whose publicity is already National and will soon be International. What a tremendous influx of visitors these colorful pageants will bring to California—many of them to stay. The part played by the Native Sons of the Golden West in these two celebrations will be a source of pride and inspiration for future celebrations. Our Parlors in the cities of Sonoma and Monterey have contributed much toward the success of their celebrations: in Sonoma the Native Sons have taken the lead and have furnished many of the Committee personnel; "Sons of California" at Monterey pioneered the Centennial proposal and will take an important role in the program.

While it is our duty, our purpose and our pleasure to venerate and perpetuate the history and traditions of our Great State, we cannot live in or on the achievements of the past. Our Order must, and has a membership so constituted that it can, take not only an active but a prominent part in all current questions and activities, both state and local. This is our year of opportunity. With a population gain of over two million since Pearl Harbor Day, with a financial growth equaled by no other state, the time is here for the greatest increase our Order has ever known. A great future hes before us—what we make of it depends on our ability "to reap the golden harvest." Success begets success but success is dependent upon leadership. We have a program that will go far toward the accomplishment of this purpose; we need only the willing workers to assure results. Given this, we will once again justify our existence and keep faith with our Founders, our Members and the people of the Great State.

LA FIESTA

The mission bells have been polished, the lovely queen candidates are being photographed in gay Spanish costumes, the men of San Fernando are growing beards and sideburns, brightly colored posters are everywhere, poppies are blooming—all these are indications that Fiesta time is near!

The San Fernando Fiesta of 1946 will be one of the gayest, most colorful events of California this year. Not since 1941 has the annual Fiesta taken place. Now with the first peace-time year, the people of San Fernando are endeavoring to bring the spirit of Fiesta time to everyone.

From June 10th to the 15th, events will be held for all residents and visitors. The Queen's Ball and Coronation will conclude the electing of a Queen from seven local lovelies, and she will preside over Fiesta activities. At the picturesque mission, one of the original twenty-one missions founded by Father Sierra, a cast of hundreds will present a pageant from the time of the founding of the mission to the present day, involving all historical characters and events of the San Fernando Mission. A typical Californian barbeque will climax a Spanish and Western Parade. A Whiskerino Banquet (men only) is held to judge the longest, heaviest and most handsome beard grown by fiesta-minded gentlemen.

The week will be crowded with these main events, street dances costumed men and women—all happy with the true fiesta spirit of Fiesta time in San Fernando.

Everyone is welcome to attend and is guaranteed to have fun in Fiesta fashion.

making up a jackpot for the largest fish, the deck hand started chumming, that is throwing some of the bait overboard, to see if the fish were there. Soon a general cry of, there they are—there's a boil, and someone gasped, "gosh, did you see that, must have been a giant white sea bass, it's too early for yellowtail."

The next few hours were too confused for me to tell you much, about what went on. All I know is that I learned a lot about ocean fishing. Thanks to the Skipper and Deckhand, who seeing that I was new to the game, gave me instruction, help and advice. I found out later, that's a big part of their job. Their instructions being to help the beginner, so he will be a friend and fisherman.

No, I didn't win the jackpot, my 29 pound white sea bass, being topped by one a pound and a half heavier, but I did win a side bet with Bill, and the privilege of pouring it on till he beats me, but that will take some doing.

Sure, your dern tootin', I'm going again, in fact Bill and I have chartered a boat, for several week ends, so we can make up our own party, and try for some of those really big ones.

The Native Daughters of the Golden West, the first patriotic California women's organization has embodied in its cardinal ideals:

LOVE of HOME,
DEVOTION to the FLAG,
VENERATION of the PIONEERS and,
FAITH in the EXISTANCE of GOD.

In these ideals may be found the highest heritage that can come to a true Native Daughter.

The aims and objects of the Native Daughters of the Golden West are:

To cultivate State pride, aid State development, and advance State progress.

To promote the study of California's history, and to encourage higher education for women as evidenced by our five scholarships.

To assist in the work of Americanization, and inspire patriotism.

To honor and keep in memory California's Pioneers.

To care, conjointly with the Native Sons of the Golden West for orphaned children of California of whatever class, color, or creed, by placing them in permanent homes through legal adoption proceedings.

If you were born in California and believe in these principles, you should become a member of the Order.

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

Tuesday, July 4, 1871, the ninety-fifth anniversary of America's independence was celebrated in the usual patriotic manner throughout California. In San Francisco, on the sand lots at the west end of Market street, there was an immense display of fireworks at night which was viewed by more than 50,000 people. In their quarters, the Chinese residents discharged firecrackers incessantly for several hours, creating more noise than during the Chinese New Year. In Sacramento, the hackmen loaded their vehicles with hundreds of small children and paraded the streets for several hours. From Mount St. Helena, 5000 feet high, Sam Brannan arranged for the firing of a battery of rockets; the display was viewed for miles.

At Folsom, Sacramento County, the premature discharge of a cannon destroyed the eye of Harry Gibson and sent "Old Billy," a colored handy man, and Milton Rose to the county hospital badly disfigured. From the side of "Old Billy's" body a piece of ramrod nine inches long was extracted. Henry Hildebrand, in San Francisco, discharged a pistol believing it had only a powder cartridge; the bullet struck a girl named Alice Benson in the breast, causing a dangerous wound. A number of minor accidents occurred, but the great disaster of the day was the partial burning of Yreka, Siskiyou County. The afternoon of the Fourth a fire broke out in a Chinese washhouse that rapidly spread and caused the destruction of over half of the prosperous mining town, with a loss of over $300,000.

The political campaign opened July 21, Governor Joe Haight and Jo Hamilton, for the Democratic party, Newton Booth and J. G. Eastman, for the Republican party, making horse-drawn-vehicle tours of the state, the speaking being done at the county seat of each county.

M. Ralston of San Francisco received from New Zealand 62 plants of wanunu, a species of Flax, which he sent to different parts of the state to be experimented with.

Another of Colonel Von Schmidt's water schemes was incorporated. It was called the Alta Water Company, and proposed to bring water from the upper forks of the American River and supply mines and the Sacramento Valley. The Colonel also proposed to the Central Pacific to jointly build a tunnel seven miles long under the summit of the Sierras, to accommodate trains and his Lake Tahoe water-pipe line.

The Buena Vista Vinicultural Company of Sonoma County shipped 20,000 gallons of white wine to a firm in New York, which caused enthusiastic predictions to be made of California's greatness and prosperity as a wine-making state.

An earthquake shock in Inyo County July 5 was felt in Visalia at 1 p.m. It caused a large number of the wells in Inyo County to become dry.

The De Young brothers, Charles and Michael, publishers of the San Francisco "Chronicle," then a dramatic sheet, were having a troublesome time this month. The grand jury indicted them for libel on R. H. Sinton, and both were in custody part of the time. July 3 Charles was caned by Judge McWinstry, on account of an article which angered the latter.

July 18, for the third time this year, the town of Truckee, Nevada County, was burned. Over forty buildings, most of them in the rebuilt section of the March fire, were destroyed with a $90,000 loss.

Vincente Peralta, one of the four sons of Louis Peralta who, in 1822, received a grant from the Mexican government to the San Antonio Rancho in Alameda County, died in Temescal July 1. The rancho was divided by the father among the sons. Vicente received as his portion what is now the site of the City of Oakland. He sold a but a few hundred acres at Temescal fo a few thousand dollars, but this holdin made him a wealthy man. He was 59 yea of age.

The stage from Cloverdale, Sonom County, was stopped by two men July 1 who disappeared with the express box co taining $400. They were captured a fe days later.

Lewis Boyle, July 15 near Knights Ferr Stanislaus County, was stopped by thre highwaymen who robbed him of $242 and gold watch.

J. M. Starr, deputy county assessor Nevada County, met two highwaymen Jul 29 on Poorman Creek and they relieved hi of $50.

A fire in Marysville July 14 destroye the Cosmopolitan hotel and other propert causing a $25,000 loss. This was followe by another fire the 17th which burne Swain's planing mill on D street, sever stores and other factories, causing $100 000 loss.

July 22 a fire on Mission street, nea First, San Francisco, destroyed ten man facturing plants, including Garrett & Co. brass foundry, causing a loss of $275,00

July 4 Robert Ray and eight sheepher ers in Tulare County were driving th flocks into the Sierras and camped tha night on White River. About 11 p.m. tree fell across their camp, killing Ray an seriously injuring four of the herders.

Captain Sorman, on the bark "Glimpe leaving San Francisco harbor July 1, ha a quarrel with a sailor. He struck the la ter with an iron bar; then the sailor drew knife and slashed the Captain's abdome open, inflicting a fatal wound.

The Weske hydraulic mine at Michiga Buff, Placer County, yielded $23,000 th month.

Three Swede miners near Ophir, Place County, discovered a quartz vein that yiel ed $7000 in a few days.

The Great New York circus arrived b rail from the East and began a tour the state at Sacramento July 21. It ha fifty performers and seventy-five horse J. A. Rowe was the manager.

Madame Agatha States returned after a absence of six years with an Italian oper troupe and opened in San Francisco Jul 22. She was a popular singer with Cal fornians.

STARS AND STRIPES CENTENNIAL TO BE CELEBRATED AT MONTEREY

On July 7, 1846, Commodore John D. Sloat first raised on California Soil the Emblem of a Free and Brave People to whom all the world looks today for help and guidance. This event will be observed in that historic city, July 4-5-6-7, in a colorful cavalcade of the Golden West.

By EMMETT P. JOY
Grand Historian, NSGW

THE YEAR of 1846 was epochal in the State of California because that year characterized a memorable series of events. In the month of June of that year the Bear flag revolt at Sonoma had taken place. Upon the raising of the flag it signified California a republic. In the meantime Commodore John D. Sloat was preparing the landing of his fleet on the coast of California to proclaim it for the United States. Sloat's movements were not revealed until the proper time arrived so he could accomplish his purpose.

Hostilities had not ceased as far as conditions were concerned. English intervention appeared possible. Sloat in his ship, the "Savannah," apparently knew what was transpiring. In May the Commodore dispatched the "Cyane," under Captain Mervine, to California. It arrived at Monterey about June 20, 1846, with an important message from Sloat to Larkin. Its contents evidently revealed that Sloat was well aware of the recent land movements and assured all that he would arrive in Monterey when the opportune time came.

On the first of July Commodore Sloat sailed into Monterey Bay. Little is known of the actual events which occurred from the time of the "Savannah" until July 7.

On the morning of July 7 Commodore Sloat sent Mervine ashore with several officers to demand the surrender of Monterey. The demand was delivered to Captain Mariano Silva of the Mexican Army. Captain Silva declared that he had no authority to surrender the post at Monterey and suggested that Sloat take the matter up with General Castro, to whom the demand was sent. On the reply to Captain Silva, Sloat issued orders to his men to prepare to land on the shores of Monterey. The taking of Monterey as given in Bancroft's History of California, Vol. V, page 230-30, is as follows:

"Sloat issued to the crews of all the ships a general order forbidding in the usual terms all plunder and other excesses on shore, and beginning with these words—'We are about to land on the territory of Mexico with whom the United States are at war. To strike her flag, and to hoist our own in the place of it, is our duty. It is not only our duty to take California but to preserve it afterward as a part of the United States at all hazards. To accomplish this, it is of the first importance to cultivate the good opinion of the inhabitants whom we must reconcile.'

"At 10 o'clock 250 men, marines and seamen, were landed from the squadron under Captain Mervine, with Commander Page as second. This force marched directly to the Custom house where Sloat's proclamation was read, the flag of the United States was raised—there had been no Mexican flag flying for two months—three cheers were given by troops and spectators and at the same time a salute of 21 guns was fired from each of the three men-of-war. The proclamation in English and Spanish was posted in public places; two justices of the peace, Purser Price and Surgeon Gilchrist, were appointed to preserve order in the place of the alcaldes who declined to serve; a summons to surrender with an invitation to present himself for a personal interview, was sent to Castro at Santa Clara; duplicate orders were sent to Montgomery at San Francisco; and letters of information were forwarded by Larkin to Fremont, Ide and others in different directions. Thus Monterey became permanently an American town."

Sloat's proclamation was as follows: "To the inhabitants of California: The Central Government of Mexico, having commenced hostilities against the United States of America by invading its territory and attacking the troops—on the north side of the Rio Grande, and with a force of 7,000 men under General Arista, which army was totally destroyed on the 8th and 9th of May last by a force of 2,300 men under General Taylor, and the City of Matamoras taken—and the two nations being actually at war by this transaction, I shall hoist the standard of the United States at Monterey immediately, and shall carry it throughout California. I declare to the inhabitants of California, that although I come in arms with a powerful force, I do not come among them as an enemy to California; on the contrary, I come as their best friend as henceforward California will be a portion of the United States and its peaceful inhabitants will enjoy the same right and privileges as the citizens of any other portion of that territory, with all the rights and privileges they now enjoy, together with the privilege of choosing their own magistrates and other officers for the administration of justice among themselves; and the same protection will be extended to them as to any other state in the Union. They will also enjoy a permanent government under which life, property and the constitutional right and lawful security to worship the creator in the way most congenial to each one's sense of duty, will be secured, which unfortunately the Central Government of Mexico cannot afford them, destroyed as her resources are by internal factions and corrupt officers, who create constant revolutions to promote their own interests and oppress the people. Under the flag of the United States, California will be free from all such troubles and expense; consequently the country will rapidly advance and improve, both in agriculture and commerce, as, of course, the revenue laws will be the same in California as in all other parts of the United States, affording them all manufactures and produce of the United States free of any duty, and all foreign goods at one-quarter of the duty they now pay. A great increase in the value of real estate and the products of California may also be anticipated. With the great interest and kind feelings I know the Government and people of the United States passes toward the citizens of California the country cannot but improve more rapidly than any other on the continent of America. Such of the inhabitants of California, whether native or foreigners, as may not be disposed to accept the high privileges of citizenship and to live peaceably under the Government of the United States, will be allowed time to dispose of their property and to remove out of the country, if they choose, without any restriction; or remain in it, observing strict neutrality. With full confidence in the honor and integrity of the inhabitants of the country, I invite the judges, alcades and other civil officers to retain their offices and to execute their functions as heretofore, that the public tranquility may not be disturbed; at least, until the Government of the territory can be more definitely arranged. All persons holding titles to real estate, or in quiet possession of lands under a color of right, shall have those titles and rights guaranteed to them. All churches and the property they contain, in possession of the clergy of California, shall continue in the same rights and possessions they now enjoy. All provisions and supplies of every kind furnished by the inhabitants for the use of the United States ships and soldiers will be paid for at fair rates; and no private property will be taken for public use without just compensation at the moment. John D. Sloat, Commander-in-chief of the United States Naval Force in the Pacific Ocean."

The American flag was raised in quick succession in other places in California after this historic event in Monterey. On July 9 Commodore Montgomery hoisted the American flag in Yerba Buena, now San Francisco, with a twenty-one gun salute. On July 11 Lt. Joseph W. Revere, on orders received from Commodore Sloat, raised the American flag at Sonoma. It was hoisted in front of the barracks where the Bear flag had flown. On August 4, Commodore Robert F. Stockton raised the Stars and Stripes at Santa Barbara. On August 13, 1846, Commodore Robert F. Stockton and Capt. John C. Fremont took possession of Los Angeles for the United States and hoisted the American flag. It was not long before the Stars and Stripes waved over the entire State of California and it became a possession of the United States.

SITE OF SLOAT'S FLAGSTAFF AT MONTEREY FOUND

The California State Park Commission, through its chairman, Joseph R. Knowland, has announced that following a scientific investigation by experts confirmed by archeological excavations on the ground it has located the position of the original flagstaff on which Commodore John Drake Sloat raised the American Flag at Monterey Customs House on July 7, 1846.

The position of the original staff was found five and a half feet from the northeast corner of the Customs House and on this spot a new flagpole will be erected for the centennial ceremonies this year.

The present staff is on the northwest corner and attached to the building. It was generally supposed that this was the original staff.

Old prints, particularly the one drawn by W. R. Hutton in June, 1846, documentary evidence from the accounts of Thomas O. Larkin showing he had erected a new flagstaff at the Customs House in 1843, and the excavations made last week, leave little doubt that the right location has been found.

The excavations were made by the Department of Anthropology of the University of California. The base of the rotted flagpole was found anchored in rock cairn several feet below the present ground level.

Those conducting the investigation were Vernon Aubrey Neasham, regional historian, National Park Service; Theodore C. McCown, assistant professor of anthropology; Ralph W. Chaney, professor of paleontology, and Herbert E. Bolton, father professor of history emeritus.

CENTENNIAL PROGRAM IN OLD MONTEREY

Government and State officials; high ranking officers of the Army and Navy celebrities of screen, stage and radio; officials of surrounding states; famous writers, artists and editors will take part in what promises to be the greatest celebration of its kind ever presented on the West Coast.

Three radio networks will broadcast the ceremony when the Stars and Stripes will float on the top of the flagpole at the Customs House commemorating the first raising of the American Flag on that historic spot on July 7, 1846, when Commodore Sloat's forces captured the city and proclaimed a vast territory, including all of California, Arizona, Nevada and Utah and portions of New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming as part of the United States, linking the West Coast with the East in one vast empire under the United States Flag.

Newsreel companies and news picture services will have representatives here to serve the nation with photographic descriptions of this historic event.

There will be many attractions not listed on the program, such as street singers, roving musicians, decorations and costumes, all of which will blend into a colorful extravaganza that will be fitting in the celebration of one of the most important episodes in America's history.

The list of events:

July 4—Independence Day

10:00 A.M.—Military parade in which Army, Navy, Marines, American Legion and several bands will take part.

12:00 Noon—Barbecue at the Fair Ground in East Monterey where arrangements have been made to feed thousands of people.

In addition to the above events there will be the Cavalcade of Western Stars Championship Rodeo, the same show that packed 1,000 people in Kezar Stadium, San Francisco, produced by Joe Lynch.

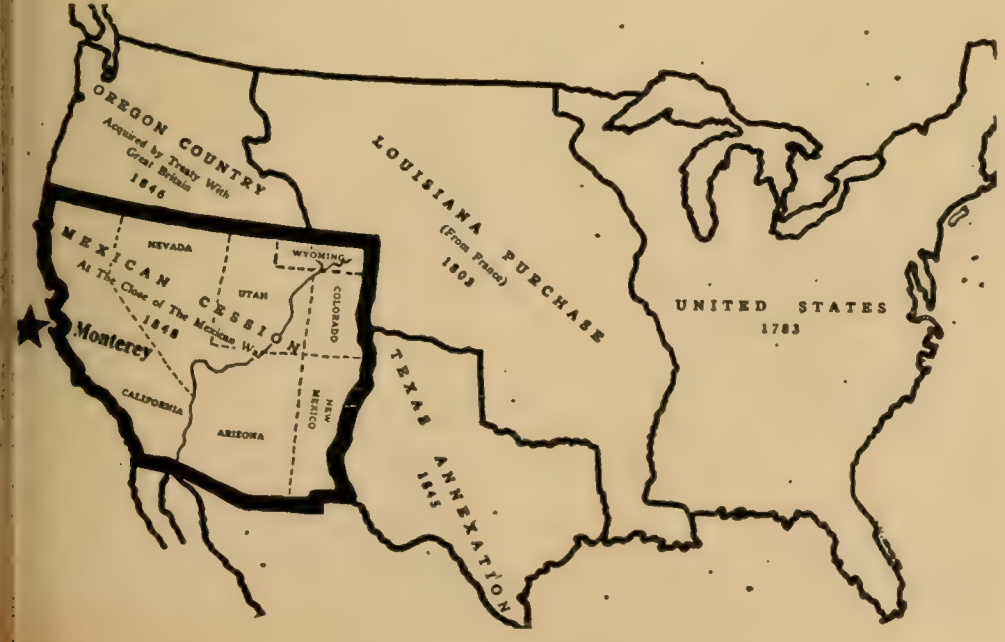
There will also be a big air show put on by the Army, Navy and Marines with almost 200 planes taking part.

DAYS OF GOLD, DAYS OF OLD, DAYS OF '49

The Grizzly Bear presents the speech by George Skaff which won first place in the finals at Hoberg's, May 20, of the state-wide public-speaking contest conducted by the Native Sons of the Golden West, under the leadership of Rey J. Bianchi, chairman of the Grand Parlor Committee. George Skaff is a junior at John Marshall High School, Los Angeles. He is 16 years old. This is his first year at public speaking, but he plans to continue in his senior year and to take a course in radio broadcasting this summer. He says that he had a wonderful trip to Hoberg's and met many purposeful Californians. James Ingalls of Calistoga represented the Northern section of the state, taking second place with a splendid speech on the same subject.

"On the right hand of the Indies, very close to the side of the Terrestial Paradise, there is an island called Califya . . . California; and it is peopled by black women without any man among them, for they live in the fashion of the Amazons. They are of strong and hardy bodies, of ardent courage and great force. Their island is the strongest in all the world with its steep cliffs and rocky shores. Their arms are all of gold and so are the harnesses of the wild beasts which they tame to ride; for in the whole island there is no metal but Gold!" This, written in the sixteenth century by a Spanish novelist, is exemplary of the name California early becoming synonymous with gold, with romance, with charm and with mystery.

It remained until close to the middle of the nineteenth century before la California was destined to live up to her symbolic name. As a point of information, the year 1840 passed with the discovery of a relatively unimportant gold vein in the San Fernando Valley, relatively unimportant because it was nothing more than a strayed jewel from a necklace of jewels. For it was in 1848 that Captain John Sutter, a Dutch immigrant owning a vast domain in the Sacramento Valley and seeing the need for a flour mill to supply the ever-increasing influx of settlers with flour, commissioned one of his ablest men, James Marshall, to build a grist mill on a stream of the American River. There, in the first month of the year 1848, Marshall discovered gold—an epochal event! From a swiftly, rushing stream he panned gold—gold that was part of the veta Madre or Mother Lode, a lode that lay over central and northern California like a giant necklace, filling the streams with golden pollen, ribbing the earth with gold-bearing quartz veins. This swiftly rushing stream was to sweep Marshall and Sutter and their tightly-held secret of discovery into a "river of no secrets" where they would be forced to relinquish it, a river that was eventually to despoil Sutter of everything he had. For within four months, it is now local legend, that a Sam Brannan rode up and down San Francisco's Montgomery Street, almost depopulating the town by waving his gold-filled whisky flask and screaming, "Gold, Gold, Gold from the American River!"



The situation immediately ensuing was aptly told then in a dispatch by a reporter to the New York Journal of Commerce: "At present people are running over the country and picking gold out of the earth here and there just like a thousand hogs let loose in a forest would root up the ground nuts. Some net eight or ten ounces a day and the least active one or two. They make most who employ the wild Indians to hunt it for them. There is one man who has sixty Indians in his employ; his profits are a dollar a minute. The wild Indians know nothing of its value and wonder what the Palefaces want to do with it; and they will give an ounce of it for the same weight of coined silver or a thimbleful of glass beads; or a glass of grog. And white men themselves give an ounce of it, which is worth at our mint eighteen dollars or more, for a bottle of soda-powders or a plug of tobacco."

The whole of the civilized world looked longingly upon this Pandora's box thrown open and whenever and wherever it was humanly possible those who could come availed themselves of the opportunity. An exciting new society, entirely different and without parallel, of lusty brawling camps was born. Tuttletown, Downieville, Placerville, Auburn, Tuolumne built near and preying on the jewels of the necklace, all made up a history far beyond complete delineation. A history of Mark Twain writing the Jumping Frog, of Bret Harte immortalizing Poker Flat, of the chivalrous, misunderstood leader of Western bandits, Joaquin Murrieta, of great men and little men, of desperadoes, adventurers, gamblers, of pioneer empire builders, of quiet, soft-spoken Sonorians—the discoverers of many a great mine. And as unique as was the society that Gold Rush inaugurated were the paradoxes; how did Nigger Hill get its name? A Negro ex-slave had a faculty that was phenomenal in finding gold. However, every time he would find a claim a white man would approach him and, brandishing a revolver, would inquire.

"What d'ya mean by digging my claim; get off or by the Great Horn Spoon I'll . . ."

Finally, as a joke, some of his tormentors pointed out to him a bald knob off in the Last Voyage of the Rio de Janeiro

In the waters of the Golden Gate men still search for the treasure reported to have gone to the bottom in the steamer's tragic end. Here is a first-hand account of that happening many years ago.

By MARY D. VIVIAN
Gabrielle Parlor No. 139, NDGW

TO BE a little girl once more in an atmosphere of beauty, fashion, wealth, music, love and friendship, standing atop Rincon Hill, waving goodbye to the S. S. Rio de Janeiro as she sails majestically through the Golden Gate! How it thrilled us children of Our Lady of Mercy's Academy.

When the great shrill whistle blew, as she sailed down the bay, we thought, in childish fashion, that Captain Ward was bidding us goodbye. As we stood on Rincon Hill waving farewell, we could see him on the bridge of the steamer.

Many of the sea captains knew us and called us the children of St. Mary's because we made visits to the sea faring men who were confined in St. Mary's Hospital which stood on Rincon Hill near the academy.

It was a treat to the men, who could get around the grounds, to be taken by the sisters into the garden that led up to our little school. These men, who spent their lives on the great unruly waters, were happy to sit with these little girls in this peaceful spot, overlooking the water and shipping. They told us many stories of other children in the different lands they had visited.

Because of these contacts, and because of my father, I felt a personal interest in the S. S. Rio de Janeiro. It was my father's duty to load her, look her over after she had loaded, and satisfy the company that the freight was properly set, so that if they met a storm or in case of any accident, the cargo would be properly distributed and firmly wedged, and so that no amount of rolling or plunging through the sea would shift the cargo and cause the ship to capsize.

Every time that we children came home full of glee, certain Captain Ward had seen us as we stood on the highest point of land directly over the sailing point and told father that he had tooted farewell to us, a shadow would cross father's brow.

"If ever she strikes a rock with force enough to put a hole in one of her plates, she will go down to the bottom of the sea and she will never be found," he would say, half to himself.

Child-like, we little suspected that one day Captain Ward's majestic ship would bring the sad memories to the minds of all old San Franciscans, as she has every Washington's birthday, for forty-five years. My story from here on is to tell you how it all came about.

The city was gaily decorated in red, white and blue; everything floating on the bay flaunted tri-colors in the breeze, from the largest steamer to the little row boats. This great national holiday was celebrated in those days with a sham-battle, in which the country's greatest dreadnaughts took part.

The pride of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company came steaming in on the evening of the 21st of February, two days overdue from the Orient on account of storms and rough weather. She was met by a cold fog that rolled down on the Golden Gate like a curtain on a play.

Captain Ward, obeying his company's orders, did not attempt to bring the ship in. He could not reach quarantine in time to have her passed that night.

State Bar Pilot, Captain F. W. Jordan, went aboard to bring the ship in. Captain Ward, who was already uneasy on account of his long and stormy voyage, attempted to dissuade him. But Captain Jordan was considered one of the best and luckiest pilots on the bay and was president of the State Pilots' Association. He was feeling unusually gay on account of the great celebration that was to take place later that day.

Captain Jordan gave the order, half speed ahead. Though the ship's captain had no more control of his command after the State Bar Pilot took charge, it was reported that Captain Ward pleaded with Captain Jordan to wait until the fog lifted. Captain Jordan, with a wave of his hand, assured him in a cheerful tone that he could guide any steamer through the Golden Gate with his eyes shut.

A few minutes after he started, he changed her course and at the same instant gave the order, "Hard to starboard." Before the ship could answer, she struck on an uncharted rock.

"Stop Her!" Captain Ward shouted with a roar that could be heard ashore. In about three minutes time there was a grinding roar, as the liner nosed into the reef with a shock that shook the vessel from stem to stern.

Screams and commands rent the air as the big steamer whistle shrieked its call for help. Captain Ward immediately ordered the boats manned so as to abandon the ship. She slid off and almost toppled over on those who had escaped in the two boats that were launched. Reports were that Captain Ward tied the whistle cord and the shrill noise was plainly heard by the people living on the surrounding hills, who said it finished in a gurgle. In ten minutes from the time she struck she was completely out of sight, diving head first and throwing her stern high in the air.

Of the 205 passengers on board only 77 were saved; 128 were lost.

The pilot stated at the investigation that he went down with the ship and floated on a mail bag under one arm and a board under the other. He and two deck officers, the chief engineer and some of the crew were picked up by a fishing boat that happened to be coming in from an all-night trip. Captain Ward and his first officer went down with the ship.

Fishermen, who had been out all night, returned in the early morning to find many people floundering in the water of the Golden Gate and not a sign of the wreck from which they came. If it had not been for this providential rescue, the fate of the ship or the passengers would never hav been known.

Some witnesses stated that they saw Cap tain Ward jump overboard. It was als rumored that when he saw his ship wa lost he shot himself. One man said he wen to his stateroom when he saw all of th spars fall on one of the two boats that wer launched.

A year after the disaster, after the Pacifi Mail S. S. Co., the insurance company, an private individuals had given up all though of ever finding the ship or the millions o dollars of treasure that were said to hav gone down with her, the cabin came floatin in on the bay with the body of Captai Ward on it. The coroner and others wh examined the body declared it was in wonderful state of preservation, and with out a mark; thus forever settling one point that Captain Ward did not commit suicide

Every little while reports come up whic brings the fate of the Rio de Janeiro t mind. Men drilling for the foundation fo the bay bridge thought they had found th long-lost hull, but this, like all other stories proved to be false. All this happened just year after my father passed away. Wha were the presentiments he had or what wa the trouble with the construction of th ship, he never told us.

When all the people of the city were i wild excitement over this catastrophe, I me one of my father's old friends and told hin that my father always had expected jus what had happened. He said it was becaus the hull was an empty shell, that my fathe insisted that the hull should be built in com partments, so if one or more plates wer broken she could still keep afloat. Ship con struction today uses this plan of dividin the hull into compartments separated b water-tight bulkheads.

Many of the little girls, who cheered th Rio de Janeiro when the first blast of he shrill whistle blew to let all folks know sh was leaving the wharf in days long ago have out-lived the threescore and ten years the allotment of life. Though they hav slightly changed in form and face, thei hearts are still the same—young and gay While passing the time away and drivin along the ocean shore, they gaze on th lighthouse that now stands a mile out fror Baker's Beach, marking the place wher the Rio de Janeiro was supposed to hav gone down. They close their eyes and wit the eyes of their soul they see their beau tiful ship and sadly drop their heads t offer up a silent prayer for the childre who went down to an unknown and water grave without knowing for what the grea whistle was screeching.

The only true story of the Rio de Janeir is that she went down on a foggy mor somewhere around Mile Rock and was neve found. The lighthouse which stands on th rock is a monument to her and a warning t all other ships, that they may not meet th same fate.

In Historic Sonoma

The Grizzly Bear Magazine proudly presents the inspiring message of a True Native Son, Governor Earl Warren, delivered at the Bear Flag Centennial Celebration, June 14, 1946. Sonoma Parlor No. 111, Native Sons of the Golden West, Took the Lead in Putting Sonoma Parlor No. 111, Native Sons of the Golden West, took the lead in putting on this great state event, the first of a series of California Centennials.

I AM privileged today, as the Governor of California, to raise this Bear Flag under the Stars and Stripes, because exactly one hundred years ago a little band of resolute men raised a flag on this spot.

It was a crude flag, fashioned of the rough materials at hand. But it represented the highest kind of ideals. William L. Todd could find only poke-berry juice and lamp-black for his colors, but the star he painted on the muslin was as bright a symbol of liberty as any that ever shone. The roughly-drawn figure of a grizzly bear signified the unyielding determination of the men of the Bear Flag Party to establish the institutions of freedom and to live under them.

The Republic they founded endured but a brief twenty-six days. Then its flag, with the happy approval of those who had raised it, was hauled down for the Stars and Stripes, and four years later a new star was added to the American flag. The thirty-first in the field of blue, it stood for California, the newest State of the Union.

We honor the men who raised the Bear Flag. In this western wilderness they were the apostles of liberty. They were Americans. They had the vision to see that the inevitable destiny of our nation was to span this great continent from ocean to ocean. They were men of action, and they forwarded that destiny.

But they were also men of tolerance. General Vallejo, who had been in command at Sonoma, was treated by them with the utmost courtesy and he lived to become an ardent American and one of the great citizens of our State. His descendants are numbered among our finest citizens today, and, for years, some of them have devoted their lives to preserving this shrine of California history for the inspiration of all our people. During the four years following the Bear Flag incident California achieved full statehood. Those were colorful and significant years. They were packed with tremendous events. Gold was discovered, and thousands of men were drawn westward. Robert Ernest Cowan has said that they "formed the most unusual and the finest body of men the world has ever seen, or will ever again see gathered at one time and in one place.

It was the farsightedness, the enthusiasm and the energy of these men that resulted in bringing our State into the Union. It is true they had been lured here by the prospects of quick wealth. But they also concerned themselves with the future welfare of the commonwealth, and their work was done so well that four-fifths of the laws framed by our first territorial legislature are still in effect. Built upon that solid foundation, succeeding generations of Californians have erected one of the great States of the Union.

It is appropriate that we should commemorate the achievements of the pioneers, in this celebration today and in those which will follow during the next four years—culminating in 1950, in the one hundredth anniversary of our admission to the Union.

Such an occasion as this inspires patriotism for our country and State, reverence for our traditions, and confidence in the future.

The day has a doubly patriotic significance. By one of the strangest historical coincidences on record, the Bear Flag was raised in this plaza on the anniversary of the birth of the American Flag, and today is Flag Day throughout the nation. Today is the day on which Americans everywhere renew their pledge of allegiance to our Stars and Stripes and to everything for which they stand.

Love of one's State stimulates the devotion we have for our country. The first allegiance of Californians today is the United States, just as it was with the members of the Bear Flag Party. They gladly hauled down their crudely wrought ensign when Lieutenant Warren Revere arrived in Sonoma on July 9th to raise the Stars and Stripes. Their mission had been accomplished. They had established the claim of the United States to this territory, and all threats of seizure by some other power ended. They had paved the way for establishing free American institutions on these western shores.

California has always demonstrated its loyalty to the nation. Our gold sustained the heroic and successful efforts of Abraham Lincoln to preserve the Union. In our country's struggle against the Central Powers in 1918, the troops we raised, the food we produced, and the ships we built contributed mightily to the victory. And the record of our part in the recent war is fresh in the minds of everyone.

Loyalty to our country is an expression of our adherence to the principles which brought forth this nation in 1776. We believe in individual liberty. We believe in equal rights under the law. Our State Constitution provides the same guarantees of free speech, free assembly and involability of person that are underwritten by the Federal Constitution. The men of the Bear Flag Party subscribed to these principles. They sought their recognition in California. We maintain them today.

We must always maintain them in California, and in America. We must strengthen them—by giving them greater meaning as we evolve the pattern of our national life.

It is our destiny and our obligation to history to do so. The hope of the peoples of the world is in popular government. Their eyes are upon America. The success of the democratic system in our country has advanced the cause of free government throughout the world, and it will continue to do so.

California is in a strategic position to contribute to the better functioning of democracy. With its shores lapped by the Pacific Ocean, our State is the portal through which an expanding commerce will move. Our physical contact with half the population of the globe will be closer with each passing year. Our influence is potentially tremendous.

It will be greatest if the example we set is one of continuing to govern ourselves so that life is good for all our people. During the one hundred years of our statehood, California has been a wellspring of democracy. We have lived under progressive laws. We have not been afraid to embark on sound programs of social betterment. We provide generously for the education of our youth, the protection of public health and the safety of our workers.

I am sure that the public welfare will continue to be the concern of Californians. Our people are motivated by the same forward-looking attitude that characterized the men and women who came here a hundred years ago. The spirit of adventure still flourishes. We have always had men to match our mountains, and we still have them.

Our confidence in the future is unbounded. We have room in California for the millions whose longing will bring them here. The resources are here to sustain them. We have maintained our preeminence as a great agricultural state, but at the same time we have been able to establish an industrial empire. This was stimulated by the necessity of producing the goods of war for our country, but now hundreds of thousands of our people are skilled in new trades. With such advantages, the years that lie ahead seem bright indeed for California.

If the little handful of men who made up the Bear Flag Party one hundred years ago could return, I am sure they would say that the work of those who followed them had been done well. The torch they passed along has been carried high.

Let us always carry it high. Let us continue to do all things that will make life better in California. Let us resolve always to be worthy of the traditions that have come down to us, and to try with all our might to measure up to our rich opportunities—opportunities that are ours because the Bear Flag was raised here one hundred years ago today.

OLD TIMER RECOLLECTS

By HAR LAR

Old Timer watched his youngest great-grandson shoot off his firecrackers. "Kind of reminds me of early days in the mining camps," he mused.

"Nobody popped off firecrackers in those days, did they, except maybe the Chinamen on their heathen New Year's?" I inquired, just to egg the old man into telling a story.

"They didn't, hey." Old Timer took the bait like an angry bass smashing a plug. "They celebrated the fourth of July in them days bigger and better than folks do nowadays. Why I remember way back in '64 up in Holcomb Valley when they really celebrated Independence Day.

"You say you ain't heard of Holcomb Valley? It was Holcomb Valley that Dadnabbed became the county seat of San Bernardino County. Lost out by a measly two votes it did.

"You see Holcomb Valley was a mining town. Billy Holcomb kind of stumbled onto it when he wounded a bear that led him across a quartz ledge. Bill stopped a-trailing the critter long enough to examine the rock and found it contained gold. He never did get that bear.

"Weren't no time atall before the town of Holcomb sprung up. People came from everywhere when they heard about the gold. Naturally when the fourth of July rolled 'round folks just wanted to celebrate. 'Course the Civil War was a-being fought but it got sort of overlooked up in the mining country.

"So some of the town's leading citizens arranged to have a tough grizzly bear fight a real mean bull. In the afternoon the program called for a horse race.

"Things kind of took a set back when it was discovered there was no U. S. flag in all of Holcomb. So one had to be made. They borrowed a couple of petticoats off the dance hall girls to make the white stripes. The miners themselves contributed their red and blue shirts to make the blue field and red stripes. The stars were cut from a dance girl's tinseled dress.

"'Greek' George, a tough character, claimed that there was eighteen states in the union so naturally the flag would have eighteen stars. A stranger claimed that just before he left New York state, he was certain that there were thirty-five states but he had been on the way a long time, so thought Nevada to have been added since. 'Call it thirty-six,' says he, 'what's one state between friends?' But he hadn't reckoned with Greek George's persuasion. The bad man leveled his forty-five and definitely settled the argument in his favor.

"For the fight between bear and bull a stout log corral was built. Two openings were made, one at each side. Betting was about even as the bear and bull was pushed into position at the gates. Greek George was betting heavily on the bull.

"A little dirty work had been going on even for Holcomb. Somebody earlier in the day sawed off the bull's horns. Consequently when the big brute charged, the bear had little difficulty in applying the well known 'bear hug' and breaking the bull's neck. Greek George was no doubt rightful in his

MEMOIRS OF ELISHA OSCAR CROSBY

Reminiscences of California and Guatemala from 1849 to 1864. Edited by Charles Albro Barker. The Huntington Library, San Marino, California, 1945; pp. xxvi, 118, Index, Portrait, Ills. 80; $2.75.

Elisha Crosby came to California in 1849 at the age of twenty-one, a representative of a New York firm. He was a member of the First Constitution Convention at Monterey and was made Prefect of the Sacramento district the same year. He was a State Senator at the first and second sessions of the Legislature at San Jose and then practiced law in San Francisco until 1860, when President Lincoln appointed him Minister to Guatemala, an office he held from March, 1861, to 1865. He returned to California and became one of Alameda County's leading citizens.

The Huntington Library has published the Memoirs of Elisha Oscar Crosby, admirably edited by Charles Albro Barker, from the original manuscripts in its archives. This brings, for the first time in their complete form to the student of California history, these valuable memoirs, used so extensively by Hubert Howe Bancroft.

Crosby's description of the First Constitutional Convention is first hand material not yet presented—and in a most fascinating style. His discrediting the Fremonts in their claims to any part of the Convention is conclusive. This early pioneer's description of the First Legislature —"The Legislature of 1000 Drinks"—at San Jose is most interesting. His chapter on the United States Land Commission, appointed to settle the Mexican Land Titles, is one of the best dissertations we have seen on the subject and is a scathing criticism of the handling of affairs by that badly directed body, whose actions in many instances brought poverty and ruin to many of the old established families of early California.

The last chapter of this valuable book tells the story of the author's mission to Guatemala, as United States Minister, and of his failure to make negotiations to establish a colony in that lovely tropical country for freed Negro slaves from the United States. The President of Guatemala sent President Lincoln a message to the effect that there was enough unoccupied land in his own country that could well be used for such a colony. But of this intensely interesting book, no part is more interesting than the rollicking appendix—"Anecdotal Scraps," recording incidents of the seamy, yet interesting, side of life in early California that have never before been printed in such forthright terms.

In the opinion of the reviewer, Memoirs of Elisha Oscar Crosby is one of the most valuable pieces of California yet produced by the Huntington Library, and the printers of this fine little volume, The Ward Ritchie Press, are to be congratulated on the beauty of its production.—Reviewed by J. Cregg Layne, courtesy Historical Society of Southern California.

Some of the best fishing anywhere in the world is to be found along our own Californi coast and there's a real thrill for the fisherman when they begin biting as pictured abov

HOW TO HOOK THE BIG ONES LURKING OFF OUR COAST

By Roy Mabee As Told to the Grizzly Bear Fishing Editor

THERE'S some of the best fishing to be found anywhere in the world along our own California coast, emphatically states Roy Mabee, well known sport-fisherman. It would seem that Mr. Mabee should be an authority as he has wet a line, so to speak, in most of the important fishing spots from Mexico north. He hung up a record season catch of marlin at Guaymas down in the Gulf of California. Just two hundred yards off the rocky coast of Catalina he brought to gaff a hundred and eighty-five pounds of piscatorial dynamite. And just to prove conclusively that our own ocean is just about tops when it comes to fishing, he points out that the world's record striped marlin, weighing 692 pounds, was caught off Balboa by A. Hamann, a local resident, away back in 1931. It is doubtful that this record will ever be broken. It might be well to add that 145 swordfish were weighed in last year in Newport alone.

Not every marlin fisherman who goes out lands a fish. Big game fishing is very uncertain. But not all of us aspire to troll a trussed up flying fish in search of the swords and sails. In fact most of the salt water fishermen of our acquaintance would be happy to haul up a 30 to 40 pound halibut or sea bass.

Chances of landing a "jack pot" fish are good. The weather is warming up these days. Already the "live bait" sport fishing boats are bringing in heavy catches. July, August and September are the peak fishing months in the year as far as ocean angling is concerned.

In fact certain fish appear in our coastal waters only when the ocean warms up. Temperatures of 74 degrees bring the yellowtails, marlin and now and then the dolphin up from tropical Mexican waters. The albacore, a fish that is not partial to tepid water, are already running. Tuna also are being caught regularly.

Where are the best fishing spots? Fro one end of our state to the other sma fish teem in the waters along the coas Live bait boats skippered by fishing guide follow the fish and carry ardent spo fishermen to the best fishing grounds. A far south as the Coronado Islands they g La Jolla offers good fishing along the "1 mile bank." Oceanside to San Onofre ar favorite fishing grounds. Farther north bi catches are made from the Dana Point an "Horseshoe" kelp. Catalina Island is famous fishing spot. In fact the broadbi swordfish and marlin are great travele and fine catches are reported off the Sant Barbara Islands.

So much for the where and when of sa water fishing. Equipment is most essentia Pick out a good Calcutta or split bambo pole with plenty of whip. Though it will n pass the Sport Club's specifications, Ro suggests a nine foot pole with the reel se about 18 inches up from the butt. Six t eight chrome guides and tip make up th essential hardware. Buy a good reel, if yo can find one. It should have a 250-yar spool and a star drag to control tensio It will eliminate broken lines when yo hook that big one. A 12 to 9 strand line ideal. A thin three-foot piano wire leade with a No. 4 hook complete the outfit.

Many fishermen prepare their own lea ers. However, there is quite a knack t the job and the inexperienced will do we in laying in a supply of the ready mad Wrap your leader to a small metal rin Don't use a swivel snap. A tuna is a war fish and little things like this may sca him away.

Lively anchovies or sardines make fir bait. You can hook the anchovies almo anywhere but the best way to bait a sa dine is through the nose sideways just b neath the hard bone. Make sure that the bait is lively. Tuna pass up a weak bait so renew the bait often.

The tuna, albacore, yellowtail and barracuda are all surface feeders. Use no "sinker" or at least no more than is necessary to make a good cast. Halibut and black sea bass feed on the bottom and it takes a weight to get your live bait down there.

Practice casting. A few feet beyond the average generally brings in the "jackpot" catch. Fifty to seventy-five yards is a good cast. In the water keep the line taut. Yellowtail, tuna or the "berrys" hit fast. Remember, these fish don't have fingers. They take your hook in their mouths. When they do, set that hook and hard!

A fish usually strikes in the first few moments that the bait hits the water. If he doesn't, reel in a few turns and keep the line tight. Chances are good you'll get a strike on the return.

Maybe it isn't necessarily the most experienced fishermen who catches the fish, but according to Mabee, it surely helps.

wrath. On learning the identity of the party responsible his six gun spoke a second time that day.

"Well, Greek George was having a tough time with his bets, but he had an ace in the hole. He owned a horse that was fast and furthermore the Greek had found a former jockey that he felt knew all the tricks and could win fair or foul. 'Course it was true that another horse, owned by Blacky Johnson, was judged to be equally fast but Greek George figured with his jockey's a'ridin' the race would be a cinch. Naturally he doubled his bets in order to recoup his earlier losses.

"The judge was a man of sterling character. He had been unanimously picked of all concerned. The truck was layed out and the horses lined up. The starter raised his forty-five, pulled the trigger and the race was on.

"It was a beautiful race. The horses came a thundering down the track and out in front and neck and neck came the two favorites. As they flashed across the finish line Black Johnson's horse came ahead to beat the Greek's by a nose.

"In the ensuing argument Greek George shot the judge which sort of wound up the Holcomb Valley fourth of July."

We hate to disillusion our reading public but we have a strong hunch that Old Timer picked his information from the weekly Big Bear Lake newspaper, the Grizzly. The story is really true, having been dug up from the early files at the County Seat at San Bernardino but we've got a hunch that local school students and not Old Timer are entitled to the credit for the digging. Furthermore, Greek George finally "took" it like he gave it. In Deadwood, Dakota, he made the fatal mistake of trying to shoot it out with that famed early day sheriff Wild Bill Hickock. Otherwise he might have lived to be as old as Old Timer.

NATIVE SONS HAVE

HUNTINGTON PARK + SOUTH GATE + PASADENA

HISTORY-MAKING INSTITUTIONS CONDUCTED BY GRAND OFFICERS

For the first time in the history of the Native Sons of the Golden West three new parlors were instituted in three days when Grand President R. G. Power and his staff of Grand Officers conducted installation ceremonies for Huntington Park Parlor No. 294, Monday evening, June 17; South Gate Parlor No. 295, Tuesday evening, June 18 and Pasadena Parlor No. 296, Wednesday evening, June 19. This also marks the first time that a Grand President has had three new parlors instituted in the first 30 days following his elevation to that office.

Organization work on the three new parlors was begun during the closing days of the term of Grand President Richard McCarthy, under the direction of Bernard G. Hiss, organizer; Dr. John A. Schwamm, SDGP, with Hugh Spaulding as special deputy helping with Pasadena; Walter E. Brown, special deputy helping with South Gate and Clyde Harry Davis as special deputy helping at Huntington Park. Co-ordinators of organization work were Woodrow W. Wade, Howard Woodward and John M. Johnston.

Charters for the three new parlors were granted at the 69th Session of Grand Parlor, Hobergs, May 20. Huntington Park No. 294 was instituted with approximately 55 Charter Members; South Gate No. 295 with 70 Charter Members and Pasadena No. 296 with some 175 Charter Members.

HUNTINGTON PARK

Readers of the "Grizzly Bear," and especially the members of the newly organized Parlor in Huntington Park, will be interested in a brief history of the community, as gleaned from "History of Huntington Park," written by Carson B. Hubbard, prominent local attorney, in 1935.

Rancho San Antonio (1810-1906)

A hundred years ago Huntington Park was California prairie land. Cattle grazed on present day business and residence lots. A dusty trail or two ran through the present city area. There were trees and grass and water—for the Los Angeles River roared down to the sea every spring in a new-made river bed it created for itself. Here was some of the finest cattle land in the west.

The present site of the city was marked only by a watering trough through which flanked the highway leading from the home of Vicente, son of "El Viejo" Lugo, to the Pueblo de Los Angeles.

Along the narrow wagon track gay parties often traveled. At other times herdsmen, in the pay of Don Lugo, sweating as they twisted in their saddles, drove cattle along its dusty outline.

Age of Romance

It was a romantic age in which these early Californians lived. But even in their wildest dreams they never could have envisioned the almost spontaneous growth of cities which since that day have been founded on the rich San Antonio Rancho. Least of all did they expect to see that watering trough blossom into the flourishing city of Huntington Park.

In 1810, Don Lugo, for service of the King of Spain, was granted a rancho of 29,514 acres adjoining the pueblo Los Angeles on the Southeast. Included in this grant was the area now known as Huntington Park.

All day the Lugos could ride without setting foot off their own land. On the north the Rancho San Antorio was bounded by what is now Monterey Park and on the south by the present community of North Long Beach.

Famous Ranch

Of the famous family and its holdings it has often been said "No horses so fast, no cattle so fine, no land so fertile, no rancho more famous than the Rancho San Antonio. No family more prominent, no hospitality more welcome or as freely pa taken, no hacienda more lovely, happy n prosperous than the Lugos."

They saw the rise of the mission cha to the height of its glory; the passing the Spanish control; the rise of Mexic its fall; breaking up the mission chain a the coming of the Stars and Stripes.

Wars and governments came and passe The Lugos withstood them all and ke their rancho intact. In pueblo de Los A geles, Jose Del Carmen Lugo as mayo kept up the beautiful adobe facing t plaza. There the social life of the city ce tered.

But American ways and American pro perity, this old Spanish family could n withstand. As the country grew, bit by b they lost their vast ranch by sale, for closure and litigation.

The Lugo properties began to disappe in 1865 with the sheriff's sale of the hom place of Vicente Lugo, for a considerati of less than one dollar an acre. (This loc tion is part of what is now the site of t Firestone Tire and Rubber Company plan which sold in 1927 for a consideration $7,000 an acre).

During the next thirty-five years the are of land, which was to be the original tow site of Huntington Park changed han many times. Much of it went to the mone lenders who preyed on the great Spanis landholders when the latter were force into rough straights.

Rancho Divided

Among the first to obtain a parcel ground in this district were Henry Warte bury and Wolf Calisher. From then changes in titles were often and owne included many of the prominent early Cal fornia leaders.

A few of the more outstanding were Joh G. Downery, Civil War governor of Cal fornia; Secondo Guasti, head of the famou family of San Bernardino County, gre vineyardists and wine makers; O. W. Child builder of the first Los Angeles opera hou and owner of huge tracts of land in an around the pueblo; Isias Hillman, earl banker and father of Irving and H. W Hellman, prominent in Los Angeles bus ness circles; and Remi Nadeau, patriarc of the old Southern California family of t same name, and who made his fortune a owner and operator of a stage line betwee Los Angeles and the Cero Grodo mine.

Control District

In the years between 1900 and 1906, Bu bank and Baker, a firm of real estate su dividers, obtained control of the Huntingto Park district, south of what is now Ra dolph Street, and named it La Park. Bus ness and residential lots were offered f sale from $75 to $350.

Huntington Park today has a populatio of 35,000, fine streets, public building parks and homes, with no blighted area It is the trading center for an addition

SOUTH GATE

The City of Contentment

South Gate has every advantage to offer you. Typically Southern Californian, its hospitality and beauty are exceeded only by its material advantages. Nestled in the very heart of Southern California's endless attractions, this "fastest growing city" reflects the progress of the entire West.

Broad, multiple lane highways of the finest type lead to all parts of the Southland—its superb climate brings to the fullest the joy of living. Its cultural institutions and churches, representing practically every faith, boast of their own handsome buildings. Utilities include the Southern California Edison Company, bringing abundant Boulder Dam power, and Southern California Gas Company, and South Gate municipal ownership and operation of its own deep well water system providing pure water at rates among the lowest in the state.

South Gate is located away from the nuisances of industrial noises, odors and smoke, and yet its industry right at hand. Its generous sized lots and its racial and building restrictions insure the safety of residential investments.

The City of South Gate has had a phenomenal growth from the date of incorporation in 1923 when its population was only 500, to an estimated population of 46,000 today. This steady and sound progress has resulted from long term, well considered planning which guarantees the future development of the City.

To industry, both capital and labor, South Gate offers every advantage. A survey of 57 of our 109 industries reflects a capital investment of $50,311,293.000 employing better than 15,000 of our satisfied citizens, who receive an annual payroll of better than $41,000,000.00

Thousands have made their happy homes in South Gate. Why not you?

No time nor place has been selected for meetings as the Grizzly Bear goes to press.

PASADENA

World-famed for its mid-winter floral fete, the Tournament of Roses, and the celebrated Rose Bowl football game, which has been held on New Year's Day for over fifty years, Pasadena's experience in entertaining the millions who come to witness these events has brought her recognition as a city of hospitality.

Tourists delight in a climate which permits out-of-door activity the year 'round. Golf, tennis, hiking, horseback riding and numerous other outdoor sports are available within the city limits. Less than half an hour's drive over the Angeles Forest Highway brings you to the mountains, where comfortable lodge and camp accommodations may be found and various forms of entertainment are provided. Los Angeles can be reached in fifteen minutes via the beautiful six-lane Arroyo Seco Parkway. Pasadena is the hub of all vacation activities of the Southland, with an array of scenery and a diversity of attractions unexcelled.

Pasadena abounds in cultural institutions and rare indeed is the week that some cultural program does not take place at the beautiful Civic Auditorium. Also nearby is the Huntington Memorial Library and Art Gallery which contains nearly two hundred thousand rare books and upwards of one million original manuscripts. In addition there are many other cultural institutions in Pasadena such as the Pasadena Playhouse, the Art Institute, Public Libraries and the San Gabriel Mission.

A very highly specialized industry has been developed in Pasadena during the past five years. As part of the Chamber of Commerce long range planning program an objective has been set down that will develop Pasadena as a center of scientific research and light manufacturing specializing in scientific instruments and precision products. This type of industry would be free from fumes, noise and smoke and would fit into the overall character of the city.

DAYS OF GOLD, DAYS OF OLD

distance and told him, tongue in cheek, that whatever he found there was his with none to trespass.

"Is you sho' none of genlemens care?"

"Every ounce of what you find thar is yours, Nigger Joe; we swear to it.

And saying: "Thank you, sirs!" he set off, with his mining equipment, while the prospectors thought they would split with merriment. But as the sun arose the next day, the prospectors were surprised and chagrined indeed, to see Nigger Joe triumphantly stumbling back with a bucketful of gold nuggets, an assurance that the supposedly sterile knob was one of the richest veins in the county.

The personality of this unique society was undoubtedly the child of its environment; it combined a high sense of chivalry, devil-may-care gullibility, uncouthness with a peculiar standard of justice that considered homicide a lesser crime than banditry, thievery. It evolved into the personality of the Californian today, forged out of the imaginative, indomitable spirit of Mexican and the aggressive, searching personality of the gringo . . . the American.

As the sixties waned the only mining of importance became hydraulic quartz mining —routine humdrum mining still continuing today. Yet that mining today and the once-fascinating ghost towns serve to remind us that those day of gold, days of old, days of '49, will never live again but that their memories were too encompassing in pageantry and drama ever to die.

SAN FRANCISCO PLANS TO MARK STARS AND STRIPES CENTENNIAL

San Francisco will observe the 100th Anniversary of the raising of the American flag in Portsmouth Square, July 9, 1846. The Navy will re-enact the raising of the Stars and Stripes with Native Sons and Daughters, including Grand President R. G. Power of the Native Sons of the Golden West, having prominent parts in the program. Webster K. Nolan of Stanford Parlor, has been appointed by the Mayor as chairman of the day.

Native Sons

By R. G. POWER

JUNE 10, 1946

June remains June, but "Bear Flag Month" is not proving the success that was anticipated. Even more candidates than we expected will be initiated but, so far, there are no Bear Flags to present to them. An initial order for five hundred was placed early in May and we were informed that three hundred of them were on hand and ready for delivery. When we called for the three hundred the first of June the bad news was given us that there were none available! However, a promise is a promise, and we will endeavor to make good on the flags to all candidates initiated during June and their first sponsor.

In the same way, we are declaring July "Stars and Stripes Month" and all candidates initiated and their first sponsor will eventually receive a desk size Old Glory. In addition, any member presented with a Bear Flag in June and who is the first sponsor of a candidate in July will also receive holders for his two flags so that they may be properly mounted.

The itinerary for this month is:

July 6-7—Monterey, "Stars and Stripes Centennial."

July 9—San Francisco, "Stars and Stripes" Centennial."

July 11—San Francisco, "Founders Day Celebration at California Parlor No. 1."

The big celebration this month is, of course, the Centennial at Monterey. Last December the city was reluctant to put on a one-day celebration, but under the inspiring leadership of Edgar W. Cochrane, a newspaper columnist, it has not only grown into a four-day celebration (July 4, 5, 6 and 7) but also into one of the largest, most interesting, and best publicized celebrations in the United States. Your Order can take some credit for urging the city to not neglect the golden opportunity which they were, at first, inclined to do.

Oc a special historical significance is the finding of the remains of the original flagpole on which Commodore Sloat first raised the Stars and Stripes. This excavating in front of the old Customs House was done at the insistence of Joseph R. Knowland, Chairman of both the State Park Commission and our Historical Landmark Committee. The Grand Parlor has proposed the erection of a new flagpole on the original site for use in the re-enactment of the original scene, the flagpole and base to be dedicated by your Grand Officers as a part of the Official Ceremony.

In addition to the itinerary as listed last month, your Grand President has also the following engagements:

June 3—San Francisco, District Deputies' Organization Meeting.

June 5—Hoberg's Native Daughters Grand Parlor.

June 8—Sonoma, Grand Officers' Initiation.

June 12—Fruitvale, 36th Anniversary

June 26—Sacramento District Organization Meeting.

June 27—Vacaville, Institution of New Parlor.

June 28—Petaluma, District Deputy Organization Meeting.

The new Parlor at Vacaville will be initiated with about 50 members, due to the excellent work of Deputy-at-Large Ernest E. Coleman of Geyserville, and marks the second new Parlor in the far North in the past two months.

For this term, appointments as Deputy-at-Large will be issued only to those field men engaged in the organization of new Parlors. Their organization is entirely separate from the District Deputies in charge of existing Parlors and there will be no "courtesy" appointments; each one is a working appointment. The only exceptions will be the Grand Secretary and his assistant, who have need for the additional authority in the regular course of their work.

July is the month for installations and the sooner the new officers are in the chairs and at work the better. To assist those assuming the highest station for the first time, the Bulletin will contain a number of suggestions and a few words of advice.

On Saturday evening, June 8, 1946, the Grand Officers, NSGW, headed by Grand President R. G. Power, initiated a class of 20 candidates, 19 for Sonoma Parlor No. 111 and one for Napa Parlor No. 62. The following participated in the ceremonies: President R. G. Power, Grand President; Sr. Past President Raymond D. Williamson, Past Grand President; Sr. Past President James F. Stanley, (76); First Vice President, Edward J. Wren, Grand Trustee; Second Vice President, John T. Regan, Grand Secretary; Third Vice President, Peter T. Conmy, Grand Third Vice President; Marshal, Louis Pellandini, Grand Trustee; Inside Sentinel, Lewis A. Giegerich (10); Organist, Miller Markey, Grand Organist.

IMPRESSIONS OF A NATIVE SON AT GRAND PARLOR — HOBERG'S

Officially, the 69th Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, held at Hoberg's, May 19-23, is history, but to those Native Sons and their wives attending the sessions and festivities, the event will long live in memory.

A good deal of legislation came before the Grand Parlor this year due to curtailment of activities during war years. Due to space that would be required to convey all of this information, we are not dwelling too much on it, but leaving it up to the Parlor delegates to report to their respective Parlors. Instead, we are confining our remarks mainly to impressions of the Grand Parlor.

From the presentation of the American Flag Sunday evening by George Hoberg to Grand President Richard F. McCarthy in recognition of "I Am An American Day," until the close of the Grand Parlor, Thursday afternoon, there was something doing every minute of the day and far into the night. And in the opinion of many this was one of the most successful and best Grand Parlors in the history of the Order.

The election this year was a spirited one with electioneering early and late. When the smoke of the battle had cleared away there were the necessary disappointments, but, characteristic of the Native Sons of the Golden West, the hatchet was buried for another year and all turned their attention to the advancement of the Order.

This yearly election is a remarkable thing in the eyes of those outside of the Order. For in no other like organization is such an interest taken in the naming of the officers for the coming year. The seriousness with which this part of Grand Parlor is taken could account for the large number of Native Sons who hold elective public offices in California.

The keynote of Grand Parlor was the "Centennial Years," with all the speakers dwelling on this theme, and a great deal of enthusiasm being aroused among the delegates to go back to their respective communities and help to do their part in seeing that these important events in our State's history are properly observed.

Underlying the whole session was the feeling that the Native Sons of the Golden West are facing the best years in the history of the Order. With the return of servicemen and the initiation of new members new blood is being added. In turn,

GRAND PARLOR HI-LITES

High among the pines at Hoberg's in Lake County, California, the 60th annual Grand Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, convened from June 4th-7th inclusive.

Mrs. Ethel C. Enos of Modesto, retiring Grand President, graciously presided throughout the sessions which concluded her year in office.

14 Grand Officers, 20 Past Grand Presidents, 117 visitors, and 357 delegates from 49 counties representing 190 NDGW Parlors (aggregating 17,000 members) were in attendance. Grand President Enos welcomed delegates from four new Parlors, instituted by her in her term, in: Live Oak, Huntington Park, Huntington Beach and Benecia. She further reported induction of two new Junior Native Daughter Units at Inglewood and San Bernardino.

Grand President Enos shared platform honors the opening day with Dr. Mariana Bertola of San Francisco who had presided as Grand President fifty years previously, and Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs of Hollister whose silver anniversary it was. A memorial tribute to the 176 members who had passed away during the year, concluded the morning session.

Preservation of California's redwoods and historical landmarks, and conservation and extension of forestry preserves and State Parks were keynoted throughout the convention, preliminary to the forthcoming Bear Flag, Monterey and other centennial celebrations.

Commander A. W. Scott, noted world traveler, author, lecturer and featured radio commentator, aroused a new interest in Old Shasta, Mt. Saint Helena and other remote areas in his informative address, "California—the Tourist Mecca of the World," as he described numerous attractions which natives do not always recognize as "unreal realities." A further highlight in the Grand Parlor Sessions was Commander Scott's review of the recent "War in the Pacific" the following evening. By a unique map mosaic, Commander Scott synchronized the Japanese advance and their eventual forced retreat into Tokyo. His first-hand knowledge of much of the territory covered, as a member of a joint military Allied Commission following World War I, added greatly to his graphic description.

Colonel Rex Hardy of Los Angeles, who returned from Europe in February, where he served as Chief of Branch of the United States Army for Displaced Persons of Europe in the ETO (European Theater of Operations), addressed the NDGW Grand Parlor on its second day. Colonel Hardy stressed the need for a strong America, prompt dispatch of relief to destitute millions and world-wide education as free men as essential to world peace. "Americans can protect themselves and the world from the desolation of another war only by staying strong, unified and generous," declared Colonel Hardy in his gripping first-hand account which he entitled: "Europe—there but for the Grace of God is America." Colonel Hardy returned to civilian status and became Assistant City Attorney for the City of Los Angeles on Colorado River Matters, June 1st.

Messrs. Robert Williams of the U. S. National Forestry Service and Wm. Mattoon of the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation, both stationed at Shasta Dam National Park, gave illustrated lectures on developments there. Professor Don C. Fischer of the Modoc National Park Lava Beds presented early Indian historical events collected in that area, and Mr. Clyde Edmondson, General Manager of the Redwood Empire Assn. gave an illustrated lecture, during subsequent evening recess periods.

Minnette Ker Higgins, Director of the School Section of the U. S. Treasury Saving Bonds' Division of northern California, pleaded for continued purchase of Bonds, to combat inflation by deferred spending. She further asked assistance in stamping out the black market.

Joan Jones, Pacific Area Director of the Red Cross Service in Veterans' Hospitals, appealed for continued Camp and Hospital and other Red Cross aid.

Resolutions Adopted

Grand President Enos was unanimously authorized (by rising vote) to extend congratulations to Governor Earl Warren, a distinguished Native Son, upon his re-election as Governor of the State of California, at the June 4th primary.

Resolutions were adopted endorsing the initiative measure sponsored by the California Teachers' Assn. and the P-TA to increase salaries for teachers in the public schools of California and support an increase to $120 per year per pupil in average daily attendance—to be voted on in the coming November General Election. Two resolutions presented by Los Angeles 124 were adopted as follows endorsing President Truman's Highway Safety Conference and National Safety Council, and authorizing markings of the Portola trail in Coastal Counties as commenced by Los Angeles Parlor this spring.

GRAND PRESIDENT CAMERON'S MESSAGE TO GRAND PARLOR

GRAND PRESIDENT LORETTA M. CAMERON

Worthy Supreme Grand Officers, Past Grand Presidents, Grand Officers and members of this 60th Grand Parlor, members of Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185, my family and friends:

In accepting the leadership of the Native Daughters of the Golden West for the year 1946-1947, I do so with a deep feeling of gratitude and humility, fully realizing the honor attached thereto, and the responsibility involved therein.

The Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West had its first beginning in the small mining town of Jackson, Amador County, in September of 1886, when a group of young women, possessing great courage and vision, laid the foundation for an organization that was destined to become Statewide and outstanding in its achievements.

Basing their belief in an Ideal, and being gifted with the power to see the part that women were to play in the building of California, and the places they were to attain by sheer determination and ability, these young women marked their humble beginning by giving to us the four basic principles of our beloved Order—"Love of Home, Devotion to the Flag, Veneration of the Pioneers and an abiding Faith in the existence of God." That their belief in an Ideal was justified is demonstrated by the record of achievements accomplished by the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

The projects sponsored and maintained by the Native Daughters are many and varied, giving to each member the opportunity to serve in the capacity in which she is best fitted.

Our University Scholarships, our Native Daughters Home, our Homeless Children work, Young Women's Activities, Veteran's Welfare, Americanism, Civic Participation, Extension of the Order, Restoration of the Missions, are but a few of the many projects we sponsor. Surely, in some one of these fine works, a member may find that in which she is most happily fitted and most interested, and thus serve both our Order and our State.

During the years just ahead California will be preparing for the observance of the Centennials of the many outstanding events which occurred just prior to its inception as a State; beginning with the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma on June 14th, through September 9th, 1950—the 100th Anniversary of California's Admission into the Union of States.

In every city and village plans are being formulated for the commemoration of these outstanding events in the history of California, and it should be the aim of every Native Daughter in each community to see that our Order is represented on every program planned. Start now to plan—let it not be said "we were too late."

I call to your attention the young women who laid the foundation of this Order—they were not "too late"—they had faith in an Ideal and the courage to pioneer for the future of California born women. Are we then, made of less sterner stuff than they, in that we permit others to take from us that which is rightfully ours? Let us plan now for the future of our Order, using every means of endeavor to further its interests and promote its welfare.

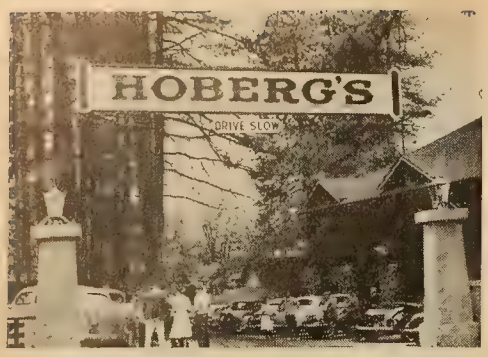
During the coming year it will be my aim to advance and promote the projects of our Order throughout the State, and, as is always the hope of every Grand President, to increase our membership. To that end, I humbly ask the assistance and cooperation of each member of our Order in making this year outstanding in the history of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

I am sincerely grateful to the members of our Order who have made it possible for me to attain this high office, and for the privilege of serving our beloved Order as its Grand President. It shall be my earnest endeavor to carry on along the lines of my distinguished predecessors who have done so much for the advancement of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

To my official family, I extend sincere congratulations; I look forward to a year of friendship, and a deeper understanding of the high ideals and purposes of our Order.

My sincere thanks and appreciation are extended to the members of Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185, for the privilege of serving as their representative in the Grand Parlor, and for their encouragement and assistance during these nine years.

To my husband and family, for their consideration at all times, their love and understanding and, above all, their patience, I am deeply grateful.



At the opening ceremonies of the 60th Grand Parlor, N.D.G.W., Dr. Mariana Bertola, Past Grand President, Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, San Francisco, was honored on her Golden Anniversary as Grand President of the Order, presiding in Napa at the Eleventh Grand Parlor. Bertha Briggs, Past Grand President, Copa de Oro Parlor, Hollister, was honored on her 25th Anniversary as presiding Grand President at San Francisco in 1921. Left to right: Past Grand President Mariana Bertola, Past Grand President Ethel C. Enos, and Past Grand President Bertha Briggs.

HOLD ANNUAL REUNION

The annual reunion dinner of the Past Grand Presidents Association, N.D.G.W., was held in the Maple Room at Hoberg's Among the Pines, on Wednesday evening, June 5, with plans in charge of San Francisco Past Grands.

Emily Ryan was received as the baby member of the association and presented with the proverbial toy. Mary Noerenberg, unable to attend the 1945 reunion, was welcomed into the group.

NATIVE DAUGHTER PARLOR IS INSTITUTED AT BENECIA

At elaborate Institution ceremonies, Benecia Parlor No. 287, Native Daughters of the Golden West, was instituted as the newest link in the chain of parlors of the Order Friday night, May 31, in the Odd Fellows Hall, Benecia.

Grand President Ethel Enos was assisted by Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler in her official capacity, Past Grand President Estelle Evans, Past Grand President Mary E. Bell, Grand Trustee Edith Cavagnarro, acting as Grand Marshal; Grand Organist Frances Simas, as well as Organizer and Installing Officer Juliet Bliss, Vallejo Parlor No. 195.

Fifty-seven Charter Members were initiated by the following ritual team of prominent Native Daughters of the district: President, Lois Juarez, DGP Eshcol Parlor No. 16; Past President, Elizabeth Semie, Calistoga Parlor No. 145; First Vice President, Anita Land, Eshcol Parlor; Second Vice President, Emily McFarland, Vallejo Parlor No. 195; Third Vice President, Ruby Molinari, La Junta Parlor No. 203; Marshal, Layol German, President Vallejo Parlor; Recording Secretary, Ella Ingram, Eshcol Parlor; Financial Secretary, Anna Johnson, Vallejo Parlor; Treasurer, Ann Pocai, Calistoga Parlor; Inside Sentinel Katharyn Fitzgerald, Vallejo Parlor; Outside Sentinel, Alma Holzworth, Vallejo Parlor; Trustees, Gertrude Briggs, Guilda Keller, Matilda Pappas, Vallejo Parlor; Senior Past President, Emma Parnasari, La Junta Parlor; Junior Past President, Dee Gonsolin, Eshcol Parlor. Assistants to the Marshal were Mildred Prakshot, Ethel Smith, Helen Anderson, Kay Kleckley and Jackie Coats, all of Vallejo Parlor.

Following the Institution ceremonies installation of the Charter Officers of Benecia Parlor took place, with Mrs. Bliss of Vallejo Parlor as Installing Officer, assisted by Grand Trustee Edith Cavagnarro, who acted as chairman, Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Past Grand President Estelle Evans, Past Grand President Mary E. Bell, Grand Organist Frances Simas and other prominent Native Daughters of the district, with Anita Land, Eshcol Parlor, Acting Grand Marshal, escorting Grand President Ethel Enos to a seat of honor.

Installed as Charter Officers of Benecia Parlor No. 287 were Gladys Blum, President; Helen Johnston, Past President; Elizabeth Dill, First Vice President; Phyllis Drummond, second vice president; Spronsa Gaiske, Third Vice President; Winifred Poole, Recording Secretary; June Lord, Financial Secretary; Mabel Hunter, Treasurer; Lorraine Dill, Marshal; Agnes Drennon, Dorothy Drew and Alma Pometta, Trustees; Rose Perry, Inside Sentinel; Katherine Smith, Outside Sentinel; Helen Arneson, Organist.

Mrs. Bliss presented all Grand Officers and Charter Officers with corsages of sweet peas and pansies and she in turn was the recipient of a beautiful orchid gift from her husband, Leland S. Bliss.

At the conclusion of the Installation ceremonies Grand President Ethel Enos received a beautiful floral muff in which was concealed a monetary gift. The Grand President outlined the projects of the Order in responding and announced the appointment of Juliet Bliss as Deputy Grand President for Benecia Parlor. Mrs Bliss was presented with a beautiful handkerchief which concealed a merchandise order, by President Gladys Blum in behalf of Benecia Parlor.

Presentations to the new Parlor were made as follows: Grand President Ethel Enos, a beautiful ebony and silver engraved gavel; President Layol German in behalf of Vallejo Parlor No. 195, a large American silk flag and standard; Katharyn Fitzgerald, Recording Secretary, Vallejo Parlor, a white satin altar cloth; Anna Johnson, Financial Secretary, Vallejo Parlor, a copper dish for use in penny marches. Organizer Juliet Bliss and her husband, Leland, presented the new Parlor with the Holy Bible. Other Parlors in the district intend to present the new Parlor in the near future.

A colorful drill then took place, comprised of the following members from Vallejo Parlor No. 195: Layol German, Mildred Prakshot, Helen Anderson, Kay Kleckley, Ethel Smith and Jackie Coats.

Upon adjournment all present gathered in the banquet room where long tables were set and decorated with bowls of mixed flowers and tall gold tapers setting in pastel-colored holders. Delicious refreshments were served by a committee of Benecia Parlor, under the chairmanship of Dorothy Bishop and President Gladys Blum.

Parlors represented at the Institution were Morada No. 199, Aloho No. 106, Gabriele No. 139, Vallejo No. 195, Eshcol No. 16, La Junta No. 203, Calistoga No. 145, Sterling No. 146, Antioch No. 223, Mary E. Bell No. 224, Las Juntas No. 221, Wilmington No. 278, Long Beach No. 154, Oro Fino No. 9. Native Sons Parlors represented were California No. 1, Benecia No. 89 and Vallejo No. 77.

BEAR FLAG CENTENNIAL BALL HELD IN SOUTHLAND

Gay cabelleros and flashing eyed senoritas mingled with bearded frontiersmen and calico clad beauties in poke bonnets at a Bear Flag Centennial ball Friday evening, June 21 at the Royal Palms hotel, sponsored by Los Angeles Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West and Los Angeles Parlor Native Sons.

In addition to southland members of both organizations, the public was invited to attend the gala event. They wore early California costumes or informal modern attire. Don Ricardo's orchestra furnished music. Juanita Porter and Harry Davis headed the committee in charge of the successful affair.

Bear Flag Presented to Casa de Adobe by Californiana

The Bear Flag was presented to the Casa de Adobe of the Southwest Museum Sunday, May 5, by Californiana Parlor No. 247, N.D.G.W., on the occasion of the annual May Fiesta, which, with the exception of 1943 and 1944, has been observed since 1925.

Miss Mabel Wigdal, president of the parlor, made the presentation, recalling events in the Casa during the war years, when dinners and entertainments for servicemen in the early California manner were sponsored by her parlor. At the outset of the war a memorable dinner and Christmas tree, replete with Santa Claus, was held in the patio for the women of Wake and their children.

Florence Dodson Schoneman, chairman emeritus of the Casa committee, member of Rudecinda Parlor, San Pedro, accepted the banner in behalf of the Casa and the Museum.

Mrs. Schoneman presented a new Spanish flag in memory of her mother, Rudecinda Sepulveda de Dodson, for whom the port parlor was named. Her gift was received by Dr. Frederick W. Hodge, director of the Museum.

A Mexican flag was presented by the Catholic Youth Group, Nicolas Ramos, chairman of the committee for Casa de Mexicana, making the presentation. Josephine Sanchez, a member of the Casa committee, received the emblem.

The grand finale was the presentation of a new American flag by Pasadena Post No. 13, American Legion, honoring the memory of General George S. Patton, by Col. Charles W. Ketterman, a member of the Americanism Committee and a general staff officer for Patton in the European theater. Dr. Frederick W. Hodge, director of the Southwest Museum, accepted the gift.

The fiesta was presented by A la California Club and Ruiz California dancers, Spanish era; Pan American Dance Group, Mexican period, and Los Fiesteros de Los Angeles—American pioneer.

Isabel Fages, Californiana Parlor, is general chairman of the Casa committee and directed the fiesta. Marcella Palethorpe, also of Californiana, is resident hostess of the Casa.

Dinner Planned at Casa de Adobe Saturday, July 13

The committee of hostesses of the Casa de Adobe of the Southwest Museum will stage a dinner in the patio of the Casa, 4605 North Figueroa, Saturday night, July 13. There will be no admission to the Casa but there will be contributions toward the upkeep of the Casa which will be asked of the guests.

The Casa, built in 1914, is an exact and authentic replica of an early California ranch house representing the period of 1800 to 1850. Native Sons and Daughters who wish to make reservations for the dinner may call Mrs. Harold J. Palethorpe at the Casa, CApital 8653.

"He also jumped." One of the six losers entered by Tuolumne Parlor, No. 144, N.S.G.W., in the famous Frog Jumping Contest at Angels Camp Sunday, May 19, raises the Bear Flag for members of that parlor.

The six frogs, filled with water, grass, mosquitoes and the ability to jump, were carried to Angels Camp, each especially trained by a member of Tuolumne Parlor. Hi Muller and "Native Son" were first on the white spot, followed by Jim Bucci and "High Voltage," Harry Dunlap and "Leaping Lizzie," Leslie Terzich and "Eureka," Chas. P. Jones and "Sonora," and Fred Dunlap with his champion (of the six). None of the frogs seemed to know much about what they were there for, and jumped from three to ten feet, after a few blinking pauses.

Dr. James E. McConnell entered "Columbia State Park," and, like the Natives, this pop-eyed specimen was a flop as a jumper. Winner of first place was "Slow Poke" from Stockton, leaping 14 feet, 4 inches.

NATIVE DAUGHTER PARLORS

Marguerite Green of Compton Parlor No. 258 and Peter Lippert were married at Taft May 11. The bride was the honor guest at a shower given recently by her Parlor at the home of President Harritte Stallings.

Commander Scott, Grizzly Bear writer and famous radio commentator on "Romance of the Highways" will speak on "California" Wednesday evening, July 10, at the meeting of San Gabriel Valley Parlor No. 281, 19 West Main St., Alhambra. Commander Scott's talk will be at nine o'clock following the regular business session of the Parlor and will be open to the public.

At the regular meeting of Califia Parlor No. 22, Sacramento, Tuesday evening, May 14, in the Native Sons Hall, Memorial Services were conducted by Catherine Kelly, Edith Kelly and Mary Paladino.

East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266 held a very interesting meeting Wednesday evening, June 26, at which time "Secret Pals" of Parlor members were revealed.

Eshcol Parlor No. 16, Napa, recently held a reception honoring Marian Brien, who was elected Grand Trustee at Grand Parlor, Hoberg's. On June 24 the Parlor celebrated its 59th Anniversary, a dinner preceding the business session. The Parlor also had a decorated automobile in the parade at Sonoma, June 15th.

Margaret Burch, SDDGP, a member of Long Beach Parlor No. 154, suffered a broken arm Saturday, May 25, while changing a tire on her car. The Supervising Deputy was on her way with several other Native Daughters to Modesto to attend Grand President Ethel Enos' official visit to her own Parlor.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE STATE WITH NATIVE SONS

The bowling team of Stephen M. White Parlor No. 263, Wilmington, recently won the sweepstakes in the West Coast Bowling Congress and placed way up in the League Play, according to announcement made on the floor of Grand Parlor by Delegate Geo. Gligo. High score in the Sweepstakes was 2906. Members of the winning team were Paul Gligo, Joe Ivelia, Pete Sabano, John Storti and George Gligo, anchor man.

Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, Anaheim, one of the Order's younger parlors organized during the war years, will hold two regular meetings a month in the future, it is announced. Due to the return of many of its servicemen this Parlor plans many more activities than were formerly carried on. At one time more than 25 per cent of Mother Colony's membership was serving in the Armed Forces.

Stanford Parlor No. 76, San Francisco, held a week-end outing at Alpine Lodge, Marin County, June 29-30. The program included a picnic at Bootjack Camp Sunday with Chairman Charles A. Roberts in charge of arrangements.

The Native Sons Annual Fourth of July Barbecue will be put on again this year by Arrowhead Parlor No. 110, San Bernardino, at its Crestline Clubhouse. Dinner will be served from 12:00 to 2:00 p. m. The invitation is to come early and stay late. Incidently, Arrowhead No. 110 is now the largest Parlor of the Order.

The Grizzly Bear Magazine congratulates Piedmont Parlor No. 120, upon its Parlor Bulletin which is now entering its 25th year. The first issue was published in 1922.

Fruitvale Parlor No. 252, Oakland, recently celebrated its 36th Anniversary.

Why Editors Grow Gray: The Grizzly Bear is in receipt of a parlor bulletin, "The Sizzler." Very well written, but what parlor does it belong to? Careful check of the items appearing would seem to indicate that it belonged to Redwood No. 66, Redwood City, but we can't be sure.

Arrowhead Assembly No. 14, Past Presidents' Association, met Sunday, June 23, at the home of Grand Inside Sentinel Walter Hiskey, Santa Ana. The affair marked the official visit of Governor General Guy F. Foulks of Sacramento, accompanied by Mrs. Foulks. Brother Foulks showed movies of the 1945 Crestline General Assembly.

According to the parlor bulletin of University Parlor No. 272, Los Angeles, 57 new members were initiated during the year just closed. This is one of the up-and-coming parlors of the Order.

One of the highlights of the 69th Grand Parlor at Hoberg's was the address "The Future of Our Order," by Walter Carpenetti of Guadalupe Parlor No, 231, San Francisco. This Parlor is one of the liveliest in the entire Order and made one of the biggest gains in membership the past year. The Grizzly Bear has asked Brother Carpenetti for a copy of his address and will publish it at an early date, as we believe that it will be of value to other Parlors.

Members of Hanford Parlor No. 37, Native Sons, and their families attended a picnic Sunday, June 23, at Money's Grove, given by the Native Daughters.

Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles, celebrated its 59th Anniversary and the Bear Flag Centennial at Campo de Cahuenga Sunday afternoon, June 16, with a picnic for Natives, their families and their friends. Past President John B. Haas was chairman of arrangements, assisted by Second Vice-Pres. C. Stanley Hunter and all chair officers.

Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, in true Western style atop old stage coach, holds the American Flag presented to him by George Hoberg for use at the 69th Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, held at Hoberg's, May 19-23, 1946.

PESCADERO FESTIVAL AND RODEO SCHEDULED FOR JULY 13-14

The Fifth Annual Pescadero Festival and Rodeo will be held Saturday and Sunday, July 13-14, under sponsorship of Pebble Beach Parlor No. 230, Native Sons and Ano Neuvo Parlor No. 180, Native Daughters.

The program will open with dancing Saturday evening at the I. D. E. S. Hall in Pescadero. There will be a parade starting at 11 a. m. Sunday, followed by a rodeo featuring calf roping, single and double steer roping, bull riding, bronc riding, team roping and a stock horse class.

Memorial Plaque Dedication Takes Place at Plymouth

A bronze plaque bearing the names of five former pupils of the school who lost their lives in World War II was dedicated at the Plymouth Grammar School, Amador County, on Memorial Day, Plymouth Parlor No. 48, N.S.G.W., and Forrest Parlor No. 86, N.D.G.W., making the presentation.

The plaque was presented in honor of Clement Castro, Thos. D. Davis, Jr., David Rey, Donald R. Robin and John P. Seavey.

Speaker of the day was Past Grand President Henry S. Lyon of Placerville, who was accompanied by Grand Trustee Ellsworth Williard.

Native Daughters Mourn Passing of Former Grand Secretary

Miss Alice H. Dougherty, who served as Grand Secretary of the Native Daughters of the Golden West for 12 years, died April 5 in Oakland.

She was a member of Livermore Parlor and was prominent in all activities of the Order, being at the time of her death an honorary member of Grand Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West. Daughter of a Livermore farmer, Miss Dougherty was graduated from Livermore High School and the San Jose Teachers College. She began her teaching in Merced County, became a member of the Merced board of education and principal of the Merced School . She returned to Livermore, became vice principal of the Livermore grammar school, then—in 1910—entered the Oakland school department.

While serving as Grand Secretary of the Native Daughters she continued to teach in the Oakland evening schools and at the time of her retirement six years ago, after 28 years of teaching in the Oakland schools, had taught in many of the area schools.

Even after her retirement she continued to work for the establishment of a teachers' pension and for benefits for fellow educators. She served as a member of the State Board of Education for 10 years, accepting the appointment from Governor James Rolpr, Jr., in 1932, relinquishing the post in 1943.

EMMA PERERIA

To the Officers and Members of Hayward Parlor No. 122, N.D.G.W.:

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions in loving memory of our beloved sister, Emma Pereria, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Our Divine Father has called our dear sister to her Heavenly Home and the Golden Chain of our Fraternity has been severed.

Resolved ,We pay loving tribute to her memory and extend sincere sympathy to her bereaved ones.

Be It Further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our parlor, a copy be sent to her family, and a copy thereof be sent to the Grizzly Bear for publication.

Born at Hayward, January, 1875.
Died at Hayward, April 2, 1946.

Respectfully submitted,
Ethyl Young,
Mildred Schilling,
Gladys Donahue,
Committee.

ESTELLE ENEA DAVI

To the Officers and Members of Stirling Parlor No. 146, Native Daughters of the Golden West:

We, your committee appointed to draft this resolution of respect in memory of our departed member, Sister Estelle Enea Davi, herewith submit the following:

Whereas, God in His Infinite Wisdom has called to her eternal reward our late dearly beloved Sister Estelle Enea Davi;

Whereas, We who knew her and loved her kindly gentle ways and pleasant smile deeply regret her untimely passing and extend to her bereaved husband, her parents and entire family our heartfelt sympathy and trust that their abiding faith in the existance of God will help assuage their grief.

Sister Davi's passing is an irreparable loss to her family, our beloved Order and the City of Pittsburg, which she dearly loved and took a keen interest in any project that was for the betterment of her community. Placing her personal feelings lastly in any enterprise and endeavoring always to assist and take part in helping mankind. As a scholar, a friend, a woman, she was an outstanding example that has been equalled by few and surpassed by none.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, a copy be mailed to the family and that a copy be mailed to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Committee:
Rose E. Noia, Rec. Sec'y;
Vera Laederich, Fin. Sec'y;
Mary Reber, President.

Signed this 29th day of May, 1946.

Oldest Native Son Dies at Palo Alto

Leon Felix Fournier, 92, accorded the distinction of being the oldest member of the Native Sons, died Thursday, June 13, at Palo Alto after an extended illness. Born at Goodyear's Bar, Sierra County, he lived on the same ranch near Sierra City for 85 years before coming here recently to live with a daughter, Mrs. Marion M. Westall. Other survivors are three sons, George F. Fournier, of Los Angeles, and Edward and Andrew, both of Sierra City.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

By Leonard Schwacofer

We wish that someone would set publicity writers right on the route of the old Butterfield Stage Line. We see by the press in accounts of the meeting held recently at Highland Springs, Beaumont, Riverside County, of the Western States Horse-Drawn Stage Drivers' Association, that the two-day session was highlighted by a coach ride from the old Butterfield stage station, which still stands at Highland Springs.

For years there has been an argument over the route of the Butterfield line. Palm Springs has insisted that the old station standing there is a relic of Butterfield days, basing its contention on the fact that early accounts mention a "Palm Springs" on the route. This, in spite of the fact that early Butterfield stations are definitely located at Carrizo Creek on the desert side of the mountains in eastern San Diego County; at San Felipe, San Diego County; Warners Ranch, San Diego County; Oak Grove, San Diego County; Aguanga, Riverside County; Temecula, Riverside County; Elsinore, Riverside County; and so on in a line to Los Angeles.

We might call attention to the fact that there are many groups of palms in the desert country of California, and thus, other "Palm Springs" appear on early maps. One such was in the vicinity of Carrizo Creek, This is slightly confusing to those who do not have the opportunity to dig up the historical facts, nor the time to trace these early stage routes out.

...True, there are stage stations stretching across the desert country to Palm Springs, Riverside County and on up the San Gorgonio Pass, where Highland Springs is located. But these are of a later stage line, "The Bradshaw Line," which has a fascinating history all its own, much of which has never been told, although perhaps, it doesn't have the romantic background of the Butterfield route.

Harry Oliver, the Desert Trader of 1000 Palms, Riverside County, accused us the other day of pirating one of his wood cuts for illustrating the Grizzly Bear feature, California Books."

"Where did we get it?" we wanted to know.

"I'll show you," he says, and drags out an ancient scrap book of 20 years ago. There were articles clipped from the Grizzly Bear written by Oliver. To show that he is a booster for the Grizzly Bear, Oliver gave us another wood cut to illustrate the Old Timer series, and then went out and sold an ad for us.

...The Old Desert Trader has written a number of books. Some of the stories are all yarns, but never-the-less they make good reading. His latest venture, besides building a desert trading post of adobe, modeled after a ruined California mission, is a magazine called "Harry Oliver's Desert Scrap Book."

Editorial

NATIVE SONS PROTECT NATURAL RESOURCES

That the Native Sons of the Golden West are alive to the need for preserving and protecting the natural resources of the State of California is indicated by the following resolution introduced by Grand Second Vice President Walter N. Bailey of Wilton and delegates of Elk Grove Parlor No. 41 to the 69th Session of the Grand Parlor at Hobergs and adopted.

WHEREAS, the mining of gold by the operation and method known as dredging, has caused the complete and irreparable destruction of orchards, fertile river bottom and pasture lands in California, and

WHEREAS, with the ending of wartime restrictions placed upon the mining industry, dredging operations in all its various phases is being resumed on a larger scale and an anticipated advance in the price of gold makes possible the dredging of lower grade soil, and

WHEREAS, not only is the natural beauty and the fundamental utilization of the soil with its generations of probable production forevermore destroyed, which is in direct contrast to our National Government plan of reclamation and conservation, these lands are eventually removed from the roll of taxable properties for all time to come, leaving behind a heritage of desolation and destruction to our natural resources, from which has been derived only monetary well-being for an extreme few,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that we, the 69th Grand Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, do hereby petition the Honorable Board of Supervisors in all counties to enact such ordinances or other legislation as is necessary to compel those persons engaged in the extraction of gold by any method of dredging to replace all top-soil, sub-soil, gravel and rock to at least the same depths that were originally occupied by them, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that copies of this resolution be presented to the Governor of the State of California, Members of the State Legislature, Boards of County Supervisors and to all Parlors of the Native Sons and Native Daughters, requesting their support and concurrence to publicize this resolution to the fullest extent in order to preserve our natural resources.

Impressions of a Native Son

those of us who have been in the Order a number of years, are re-dedicating ourselves to the work that lies ahead.

Charters for three new parlors, Huntington Park No. 294, South Gate No. 295 and Pasadena No. 296 were granted at Grand Parlor. News of their institution is carried elsewhere in the Grizzly Bear. Three new parlors instituted in three days and within 30 days since R. G. Power became Grand President—something that has never been done before in the history of the Order. And what makes it more important is that the pre-organizational work on these three parlors was done while Richard F. McCarthy was Grand President, showing a splendid spirit of cooperation between the previous set of Grand Officers and the one that we now have.

One of the most valuable contributions of Grand Parlor is the opportunity of making contacts with other Native Sons. Finding out first hand what other Parlors are doing, re-newing old friendships and making new. A cementing of fellowship that binds the Order together and makes us realize that the Native Sons of the Golden West is something big and fine, of which our own little individual Parlors are an important part.

Grand Parlor would not be complete without the ladies. The Hoberg's made a special effort to see that the wives of the delegates and members attending Grand Parlor, had a good time every minute that they were there. This contributes greatly, not only to the success of the Grand Parlor, but also to future Grand Parlors, in that our wives have a chance to meet the wives of other delegates, compare notes and decide whether they are going to let us go next year. Perhaps, we shouldn't mention this angle, but we think that most of the Native Sons will agree that there is a word of truth in it.

Anyhow, we know at least one little lady who wants to know where the next Grand Parlor is going to be held and is anxiously awaiting the time when she can again meet some of her friends from other parts of the state.

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

During August, 1871, the political campaign developed into one of the most strenuous and energetic California had ever experienced. The gubernatorial candidates—Newton Booth, Republican, and Governor Henry F. Haight and Jo Hamilton, Democrats, assisted by a score of stump-speakers, traveled over the whole state, and processions and hilarious crowds were of frequent occurrence in the towns. Driving behind a team over dusty and rocky mountain roads and getting the limited fare and accommodations of the interior hotels made a strenuous duty. Hannibel Hamlin, Vice-president of the United States during President Lincoln's first term, came to the state August 17 and made several speeches for the Republican party, as did Congressman John A. Bingham of Ohio and Senator J. W. Nye of Nevada. Aiding the Democrats were "Brick" Pomeroy, the noted editor of a Democratic Eastern journal and Congressman "Sunset" A. Cox of New York.

A quartz boulder found in a hydraulic mine at St. Charles Hill, Sierra County, weighed seventy-seven pounds and contained over $12,000 in gold.

Don Abel Stearns, who came to California in 1828 and at one time owned an immense ranch near Los Angeles, died in San Francisco August 23. He found gold in San Francisquito Canyon in 1843 and sent it to the U. S. Mint in Philadelphia, but it attracted no attention.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, a talented actress, arrived from the East August 28 to fill an engagement at the California theater, San Francisco.

Seven thousand barrels of flour were shipped to China August 1.

John W. Bidwell's ranch at Chico, Butte County, harvested 76,000 bushels of grain and the flour mill there was running night and day filling an order for flour from China.

Strawberry peaches from Coloma, El Dorado County, pronounced to be the finest ever seen, were selling in San Francisco for 10 cents a pound.

A fire on King street, San Francisco, August 4, destroyed several manufacturing plants with a $30,000 loss.

A fire at Emigrant Gap, Placer County, August 10, destroyed a store and hotel and half a mile of snowshed.

The stage for Visalia, Tulare County, from Gilroy, Santa Clara County, August 11, was stopped by four road agents and the passengers robbed of $400. Contrary to the usual procedure, the highwaymen did not take the express box or make any search for it. The robbery was committed by a gang of Mexicans led by Tiburcio Vasquez, who afterwards robbed a Democratic candidate named Moore of $55 and several teamsters.

An attempt was made by three masked men to stop the Cloverdale, Sonoma County, stage on August 11, three miles from town. The driver applied his whip and the horses, dashing away, frustrated their plan. August 20 evidently the same highwaymen repeated the performance. There were ten passengers on the stage and the driver, Sandy Woodworth, attempted to again whip and dash away, but a bullet fired by one of the robbers hit his cheek and stopped him. A passenger named Truett then opened fire

Here We Come

Eyes of all Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West are focused on San Francisco for Admission Day, September 9, where one of the biggest celebrations in the annals of the Order will be held on that historic day. San Francisco is planning as only San Francisco can, to make the 1946 observance one long remembered throughout the state.

Reports from other parts of the state indicate that many parlors are sending delegates to the big event in San Francisco. Southern California parlors in the Los Angeles area have formed an Admission Day Committee and plans are made for a large representation.

Theme of the celebration this year is the Centennials, with the Admission Day parade in San Francisco scheduled to start at 11 a. m. It will form in the vicinity of the Ferry Building, proceed up Market St. to Grove St., via Larkin St. to McAllister, via McAllister to Polk St., pass the reviewing stand at the City Hall, and proceed to the dispersing area at Hayes St.

Various San Francisco parlors will hold open house after the parade and a great deal of activity will center around the Native Sons Building.

Co-chairmen of the general committee are Manuel Rehfeld of California Parlor No. 1 and Myrtle Hutchins of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68. The following parade committee has been formed: Beatrice Nishkian, chairman, Golden Gate Parlor No. 158; Audrey Cohen, Dolores Parlor No. 169; Thresea Pearce, Sans Souci Parlor No. 96; Ann Duddy, Presidio Parlor No. 148; Connie Warshawer, Mission Parlor No. 227. Native Daughters of the Golden West; John Lewis, chairman, Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214; William James, California Parlor No. 1; Harry Romick, Castro Parlor No. 232; Edward Wren, National Parlor No. 118, and Robert Pyne, Guadalupe Parlor No. 231, Native Sons of the Golden West.

A hotel accommodations committee has been set up to secure rooms for members of the Orders and their guests.

SAN FRANCISCO OBSERVES YERBA BUENA FLAG RAISING

(San Francisco Chronicle)

The sun-drenched greenery of Portsmouth Square was the stage July 9 for another of the centennial celebrations with which California teems this year.

This one commemorated the one hundredth anniversary of the raising of the American Flag in the square, then Yerba Buena Plaza, by Captain John Berrien Montgomery, U. S. N.

Mayor Lapham struck the keynote of the event when he said:

"How wonderful it would be to view San Francisco as it will be 100 years from now. We haven't even begun to see the beginning of things. Our children and grandchildren will reside in a real city of destiny, the center of the great Pacific area."

Several hundred persons viewed the ceremony, which was marked by typical San Francisco offhandedness. Impish Chinese kids squirmed under police lines. Seven-year-old Billy Hunter somehow wormed his way into the show's climax and stood saluting as the Flag went up to the accompaniment of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The Caldwell murder trial, in the Hall of Justice across the street, adjourned for the morning and several of the jurors went over to watch the ceremony.

A parade of 70 bluejackets marched to the square from Montgomery and Washington streets, original landing place of Montgomery's detachment.

Speakers included Edward D. Keil of the Society of California Pioneers; Commodore R. W. Cary, U. S. N., and Webster K. Nolan, chairman of the day. Joseph Tissier of the Bohemian Club sang "Yankee Doodle" and other period songs.

Commodore Sloat's proclamation, and Captain Montgomery's historic letter to the Mexican alcalde of San Francisco, were read by District Attorney Edmund G. Brown and Municipal Judge Leo Cunningham, respectively.

The day was sponsored by the Native Sons and Native Daughters, the California History Board, NSGW, Junior Chamber of Commerce, California Historical Society and other civic and fraternal organizations.

Editorial

Leaving the suite of offices in the Wilcox Building, 206 So. Spring St., Los Angeles, that it has occupied for more than 30 years, the publication and business offices of the Grizzly Bear Magazine are now located at 338 West Center St., Anaheim. Decision to make the change was reached by the board of directors of the Grizzly Bear Publishing Co., when they were confronted with the second 100 per cent increase in rental within the past 12 months.

Your magazine now occupies modern offices on the ground floor in a building on the main street of this thriving little Orange County city. The rental is almost at the pre-war level and we have a long term lease on the building.

Located away from the bustle and noise of a great city, yet close enough that we have all the advantages, we will not only be able to cut operating expenses considerably, but believe that the magazine can be of greater service, due to the ability of the editors to obtain a better perspective of the entire state.

The City Council, Chamber of Commerce, newspapers and the people of Anaheim have received the Grizzly Bear with open arms. It means a good deal to them to have a publication such as yours, with the position that it occupies in California and its circulation, to locate in their city. The Grizzly Bear takes this opportunity to thank them for the many courtesies extended in making the move.

It is impossible to move the publication offices of a periodical without some upsetting of general routine. So, if any difficulties arise regarding changes of address, etc., we hope that you will bear with us during the next few weeks. We are sure that under the new setup the general efficiency of our office will be improved over what it has been in the past.

And, above all—You can help greatly by seeing that your records are changed so that all mail is correctly addressed to our new offices at 338 West Center Street, Anaheim, California.

LOS ANGELES PREPARES FOR CENTENNIAL OF FLAG RAISING

(Los Angeles Herald-Express)

Los Angeles is making elaborate plans for a civic Centennial ceremony commemorating the first raising of the American Flag in Los Angeles, a flag raising directed by Commodore Robert F. Stockton and Lieut. Col. John C. Fremont on August 13, 1846.

Observance of this important anniversary is worth while.

Few of the hundreds of thousands who call Los Angeles their home city are well informed of this city's past history or the important and spectacular part it has played in the development and the growth of California and Western America.

Few of those who live in Los Angeles know that more than 100 years ago the Congress of Mexico, recognizing the important position Los Angeles was destined to hold in California affairs, enacted a law making Los Angeles the capital city of California.

To many the names Figueroa, Pico, Bandini, Carrillo, etc., carry little import, but to those who know California's early history each name carries a story in itself.

It is well for us to pause in our busy life, to read and study the past, and to gain new respect for the pioneer families who established, governed and maintained the Pueblo de Los Angeles in the sleepy, colorful days of the Dons.

Native sons as well as those who have come to California to make their homes will profit by taking the time to familiarize themselves with the early history of this city as Los Angeles prepares for its Centennial ceremony commemorating the first raising of the Stars and Stripes.

For three days in August of each year the citizens of Santa Barbara don gay costumes and entertain thousands of visitors from all over the world. Fine horses, music and dancing and gay senoritas and cabelleros are everywhere about the fair city.

Fiesta Days

By HAROLD C. CURRAN

MORE than a century and a half ago the Franciscan Fathers and Spanish Grandees transplanted to Santa Barbara the spirit of Old Spain and a pattern of gracious living that is followed today.

It was a charming land, even in that day, enjoying a wealth of nature's bounty of beauty that must have inspired people to create new beauty to add to that of mother nature and to show their appreciation by singing and dancing in colorful Fiesta.

Today's modern city of Santa Barbara spreads fanwise from a curving beach, its streets running to low mesa lands on the west and winding upward on the north and east among wooded canyons and over the lower slopes of the Santa Ynez mountain foothills to elevations of 850 feet. In the background the Santa Inez mountains form a picturesque barrier to unfriendly winds, permitting a sheltered setting of unrivalled beauty and an equable climate of much fame.

This city of approximately 40,000 people is home for many internationally known writers, painters, sculptors and musicians and for plain people who have chosen to live in this atmosphere of beauty. Many magnificent estates and colorful gardens are enjoyed by rich and poor alike through "garden tours" arranged by community spirited citizens. The people of Santa Barbara are easy going and fun loving. There is always an atmosphere of ease and comfort as seen by the visitor to the annual Fiesta, held in the full of the August moon.

The city streets are gaily decorated in Fiesta red and yellow and its citizens have shed their daily workaday clothes for colorful Spanish costumes of a hundred years and more ago. Music is everywhere, with strolling musicians visiting from one group to another and visitors joining in with the spirit of hospitality. Every night of Fiesta there are street dances lasting until midnight. A pageant in two acts is presented in the county bowl which nestles in a natural amphitheatre on a hillside overlooking the city, and a colorful presentation of singing and dancing is staged in the Court House gardens.

The Fiesta opens officially with a historical pageantry parade. The groups and floats depict accurately each colorful episode in the city's early history—from the days of the Chumash Indians to the coming of the Spanish Conquistadores down to the raising of the Stars and Stripes on July 14, 1846. The equestrian section of the parade achieves the magnificent and spectacular. World travelers have declared that nowhere else are to be seen so many superb horses, such skilled and gaily comparisoned horsemen, so many rich saddles and trappings. Flower girls strew the path of the parade with fresh blooms. Ox-carts, carretas, stage coaches, ornate carriages of pioneer families, sheriffs' posses, golden Palominos, sleek Arabians and the trusty cow ponie add color and authenticity to this two hour event.

As in the old days the Fiesta is ushered in on the toll of the Old Mission's evening angelus, the Wednesday evening before the parade and official start of the Fiesta. In front of the historical "Queen of the Missions" townspeople and guests gather to receive "La Fiesta Benediction," to hear the chanting of the brown robed Franciscan choir, and to join in the folk dances of old Spain.

How Water and Oil Mixed to Build a City on the Pacific Beside the "Gospel Swamp." This Is the Home of Silver Sands Parlor, NDGW, and of Paradise Parlor, NSGW.

By WILLIAM GALLIENNE

HUNTINGTON Beach, the modern little city located on the Orange County Coastline just 35 miles south of Los Angeles, has an interesting history, even if one confines himself to the rather recent developments here. The citizens of this seashore community have demonstrated to the world that "oil and water mix," for the rich petroleum deposits which were discovered 30 years ago have as yet failed to take away Huntington Beach's appeal as a vacation paradise. Thousands of visitors come here each summer to spend a day, a week or a month away from hot inland climates or stuffy metropolitan areas. But, let's not get ahead of our story.

Many are the names which have been applied to Huntington Beach. In the beginning it was one of the few spots in this section boasting a patch of land here and there that was high and dry above the "Gospel Swamp." For Huntington Beach was a part of this historic swamp which covered the coastal area extending from the Newport mesa to Bolsa Chica mesa and into the back country as far as Bolsa, a distance of over seven miles. This entire territory was considered worthless, its only valuable asset being the many fresh water lakes formed by artesian wells and utilized during the migrating season as a resting place for thousands of wild birds. The abundance of fine water, shade and wood made it a cool pleasant and unmolested camping ground for religious organizations to hold vacations and protracted revival meetings.

The mesa land upon which Huntington Beach now stands, was entirely surrounded by the "Gospel Swamp." Except for native Indians and the few hardy pioneers who knew the country like a book, the only means of reaching the mesa was along the beach front. But the very fact that this was the one high spot in this vicinity eventually led to the establishing of a city here.

"Shell Beach" was the city's first official name and was derived from the fact that the entire strand along the ocean-front bluff was littered with millions of multi-colored sea shells. As the city began to grow, the name was changed to Pacific City which maintained until the present name was adopted.

In honor of H. E. Huntington who sponsored the building of railway lines into the city in 1904, the name was changed to Huntington Beach. Thus came into being a city destined to take her place as one of the leading communities of Orange County.

That was nearly forty years ago . . . when sheep and cattle grazing was the mesa's principal industry. Today, Huntington Beach is a thriving community with an assessed valuation per capita which compares favorably with the richest cities in the world, and is a rich oil, farming and manufacturing center. The city is a meca for vacationists, the local beach drawing over a million summer visitors last year.

Transition of the community from a grazing country to a substantial city began about the turn of the century with the La Bolsa Title Co. composed of P. A. Stanton, Sen. John A. Anderson, W. F. Newland, which bought the Huntington Beach mesa land from Col. Bob Northam of Hollywood. This syndicate subdivided a portion of the mesa. The land was later sold to the Huntington Beach Company which negotiated the deal with Mr. Huntington whereby the railway line was installed.

From 1904 the city developed so rapidly that in five years it boasted the required number of residents for incorporation. A vote of the people favored incorporation under the present boundary lines in February, 1909. Ed Manning, who was elected as the first Mayor, is still a local resident.

Oil Discovered

One of the history-making events was the discovery of "Black Gold." The first well was started by Standard Oil Company in the fall of 1919 and brought in west of the reservoir hill in the spring of 1920. Bolsa No. 1, which blew in November 6, 1920, with four million cubic feet of gas and 1742 barrels of oil per day, put Huntington Beach on the map. The population doubled in size within a period of a few days. Following rapid development in the "oil field," the Huntington Beach townlot section was thrown open to drilling in 1926. Hundreds of homes were moved off beautiful homesites which commanded one of the most charming views of the blue Pacific to be found anywhere along California coast. But "Black Gold" was here to stay, and every man intended to get his share.

Whipstock drilling was introduced here in 1932 and has continued up to the present day. The city of Huntington Beach is receiving approximately $3,000.00 per month in bonus payments from Southwest Exploration Company which taps the under ocean pool by slanting wells under the sea from pumping units located several hundred feet away from the high tide line.

Although the discovery of oil along the ocean front gave Huntington Beach one of its greatest business booms, it did not in any way slow down the building of homes. During the past five years Huntington Beach has taken on new life in the matter of civic pride, and new buildings in the Civic Center have been completed, many new business blocks, and a large number of attractive homes.

Fine Bathing Beach

Huntington Beach boasts the finest bathing beach in Orange County and ranks with the best along the entire Pacific Coast. The City has marvelous parks, one of which is located in the heart of the residential district and known as Lake Park. The beautiful retreat was once low marsh country and was reclaimed by city workers. This park provides our citizens with a very unique clubhouse, a rustic Boy Scout cabin and the finest fly-casting pool in the county. Facilities are available for barbeque and for picnics of all kinds, including playground equipment for children. It is an array of color all during the year.

Huntington Beach's seashore facilities provide visitors with all of the conveniences a beach enthusiast could desire. In the first place, the surf itself provides a smooth gentle sloping contour which builds up the long even breakers so dear to the hearts of "shooter riders," surf board enthusiasts and just plain bathers.

Improvements installed along this beautiful three mile beach front have cost the city thousands of dollars, and every penny of the money spent has provided enjoyment of our own citizens and our guests far in excess of the original outlay.

Recreational Center

Huntington Beach's 1821-foot concrete pleasure pier is a paradise for fishermen who come for miles to partake of their favorite sport. Beautiful new Pav-a-lon Huntington at the foot of Main Street and adjacent to the pier entrance, has a street-level deck where regular dances are held twice weekly with an average attendance of 1,000 young folk. Below at beach level is a picnic deck, equipped with tables, gas stoves and all the other paraphernalia necessary to the discriminating picnicker. Just south of Pav-a-lon Huntington is the newest ocean front improvement, a huge open air amphitheatre where all kinds of outdoor entertainment and pageants are held, including Easter Sunrise Services, the Annual Bathing Beauty Parade, and the Twins Convention.

Tent City

Tent City, pride of the City Council for many years past, is located near the east city limits. Here an average summer population of nearly 3,000 park their house trailers and enjoy the carefree atmosphere of the seashore. The city operates Tent City charging a nominal rental fee for the parking privileges. All modern conveniences are provided by the municipality, including recreational facilities, wash rooms, showers and even barbecue pits on the sands just a "hop, step and jump" from the waves.

Municipal Government

The Huntington Beach has a population of 4,000 persons with approximately 8,000 persons in the summer time. The municipal government operates under a charter granted by the State Legislature in 1937, after being adopted by the people at a special election. A five-man council directs the city's governmental agencies. One of the councilmen is chosen as chairman and is known as the Mayor. Other elective offices are those of police chief, city attorney, city judge, city clerk and city treasurer. All other department heads are appointed by the council. The city is one of the smallest in the state operating under a charter form of government.

Excellent Schools

The city has wonderfully equipped and staffed school plants for children of elementary and high school ages. The elementary school was rebuilt after the 1933 earthquake and is one of the most nearly earthquake proof public buildings in the state. The high school building was erected about 15 years ago. Both schools boast excellent swimming pools, gymnasiums, manual training shops and many other facilities usually available only in the larger cities.

HOMELESS CHILDREN WORK MAJOR PROJECT OF ORDERS

By Edward J. Wren, Grand Trustee, NSGW

Member Homeless Children Central Committee

A few weeks ago I had some visitors rom the East and as usual took them to ur Telegraph Hill to view the city of St. rancis and its great harbor. The Bay was illed with ships, but my eye was attracted o one, a great white mercy ship with its ed Cross emblems, on its way out the Gol- en Gate to bring back those who have allen the victims of War. And as I watched his majestic ship finding its way through he lanes of commercial and war vessels, I ompared this with our Homeless Children ork.

This ship sailed empty but for crew and ttendants—it surely cost as much to op- rate as any commercial vessel and close o the operation of our mighty war ships. t must have its crew and attendants. It, nd many like it, have made trip after trip n these journeys of mercy. No cargo—no aid passengers—no cannons. But on its re- urn it brings a cargo of passengers that re entitled to everything they can have nd at any cost.

So with the work of our two orders, the ork of caring for the helpless, friendless abe. Our ship carries what may seem to e a small passenger list yet it must have s experienced crew and attendants and hey must be the best obtainable as our assengers are valuable human beings in eed of every care until they are safely laced in the proper home.

It is difficult to see the volume of intang- ble details that must be carried out be- ore an adoption is completed.

While most people agree the work has een well done, questions come from all ides on

Why the delay in securing a child for doption?

Why are the children kept so long before doption?

Why is the cost of the work continually sing?

The answers to these and many other uestions would take much more space han can be provided in this article, but ay I try to answer some of these questions ery briefly?

. The discouragement of persons who ish to adopt, due to the long wait.

This is natural, but we must remember, s an example, in the year 1944 the Central ommittee received an average of 103 ap- lications per month. These applications ame from every part of the state. In No- ember, 1945 we received 192 applications. n contrast to the 103 applications per onth, approximately 60 mothers of babies r babies to be born came to us monthly) ask our help in planning for the adop- on of these babies, and remember, many f these 60 change their minds after the aby is born and there are many we can- ot place for adoption for one reason or nother. Surely this briefly answers this uestion.

2. Children are kept too long under care y the committee.

It is always our endeavor to place a child when it has reached the age of six weeks to two months. This is not always possible —legal technicalities, medical reports, the possibility of mothers changing their de- cisions.

3. The high cost of board which is one of our major expenses.

We are dependent on local institutions such as Babies Aid in San Francisco or Foster Homes. The Babies Aid cost which includes the care of trained personnel is $100 per month per child. If placed in a foster home the cost ranges from $50 to $75 per month. We must determine which care the child should have. Prior to the War we could secure foster homes at $35 a month. However, many foster mothers secured employment for themselves out- side the home, rented the room the baby used for a greater income, or took care of a grandchild or children of relatives or friends. Also the rising cost of living made it imperative that those who took children to board had to raise the price, and with the great shortage we had to pay it. It must be remembered that foster mothers who accept the care of infants must be willing to care for the child as prescribed by the doctors or hospitals, schedule feed- ings throughout the 24 hours. They do this for a few weeks for one baby then accept another from the hospital. One answer to this problem might be our own nursery, but an initial cost of at least $220,000 plus the maintenance and operation of the same is far beyond our means.

3A. Administrative costs are excessive.

First, the Central Committee gives of its time and talents at no cost and the com- mittee is composed of many persons rec- ognized in the welfare field. Then we op- erate under a license from the State of California and the law demands, and right- fully so, a thorough investigation of all de- tails; the visiting of the homes of each applicant, verification of marriages, di- vorces, deaths, employment, financial abil- ity, health and contact with references.

Interviews with an average of 60 natural parents wishing to relinquish their child, with the diversified problems, the verifica- tion of their health, marital status, infor- mation on family history all requires the time of workers.

Our staff consists of 3 trained social workers in the San Francisco Office and 2 in the Los Angeles office, to cover the state —an impossible task—3 clerical persons in San Francisco, 2 in Los Angeles.

Transportation must be provided for travel throughout the State, we must have office space, rent, equipment and personnel, and records must be maintained in the proper form.

If this great humanitarian work is to continue, if we are to stop unscrupulous persons, who place profit above human wel- fare and happiness, we must ever be ready to do our part in the support of this hu- manitarian project of our orders.

Historic Big Bear Valley

While most of California is getting ready to celebrate first centennials, Big Bear Valley is running into its 101st year. Benjamin D. Wilson, for whom Mt. Wilson is named, was the first white man to set foot in the 6,750 foot elevated mountain valley.

In 1845 Don Benito, as he was affectionately called by the early Californians, farmed the Rubidoux Rancho near Riverside. The raiding Indians were making inroads on the heavily cattle-stocked ranches. A posse headed by Don Benito was organized to put a stop to the redmen's cattle rustling.

Don Benito himself tells the story:

"In 1845, about July or August, the Mojave and other Indians were constantly raiding the ranchers of this part of the country, and at the request of Don Pico, who had promised me a force of 80 well-mounted men, well armed, I took command of an expedition to go in pursuit of the Indians.

"I organized the expedition in San Bernardino, sent the pack train and soldiers (less 22 which I retained with me) through Cajon Pass, myself and 22 went up the San Bernardino River through the mountains and crossed over what is now Bear Lake. Before arriving at the lake, we captured a village, the people of which had all left, except two old women and some children. On the evening of the second day we arrived at the lake. The whole lake and swamp seemed alive with bear.

The 22 Californians went out in pairs, and each pair lassoed one bear, brought the result to camp, so that we had at one and the same time 11 bears. That prompted me to give the lake the name it now bears."

It is doubtful that Don Benito today would recognize the valley that he discovered. The high gear road with its streams of holiday celebrants on the way to southern California's famed vacationland, is a far different mode of transportation to the dangerous trails that the Wilson posse used in climbing the mountain. The thriving, jubilant town of Big Bear Lake, once called Pine Knot, is filled with happy, carefree vacationists. Even the dimensions of the lake have grown by leaps and bounds.

In 1883 the farmlands in the valley demanded more water. In the valley of the bears a dam was built. As the years passed more acreage was placed in cultivation and more water was sorely needed. In 1911 a new dam was completed below the old. This multiple arched cement barrier is 72 feet high and dams up a spread of 72,000 acre feet of water to make a lake 7½ miles long and a mile wide.

BIG BEAR'S NORTH SHORE

Ask any resident on the north shore and he'll tell you the same thing. The fishing's better. It's cooler in summer and warmer in winter. In all seriousness they'll tell you that they aren't annoyed with the traffic noise of the village. Be that as it may, we'll throw in a boast or two that they may have forgotten. Framed by beautiful evergreens, the view across the blue waters of Big Bear Lake to the sun reflected snow-topped San Gorgonio is a breathtaking sight long to be remembered.

The north shore road winds through stands of timber to follow the shoreline. Spotted on the edges of the lake among the bays and coves are numerous fishing camps. Some of them were built long before the meandering road that leads past their door.

These modern fishing establishments are a far cry from the first rough camps built to accommodate sportsmen a decade ago. Today these camps boast all the modern conveniences so essential to the happiness of the fisherman's wife. The better known camps such as Gray's, Wilsted's, Moon Camp, Goodluck and Lighthouse are equipped with everything necessary to meet the needs of the vacationist.

This is a residential section where many vacation homes have been built. Along the roads leading up on the wooded hillsides are rustic cabins blending unobtrusively into the landscape. The lazy smoke from the fireplace chimneys curling up among the pines manifest mutely the snug comforts enjoyed inside.

On this side of the lake there is but one town. It is a delightful little village catering to vacation folks. Its dozen or so commercial buildings in no way mar the surrounding scenic beauty. Fawn Lodge, modern in every respect, is the outstanding hostelry in the town. Fawnskin is a year around resort that may be enjoyed both summer and winter.

A story of the north shore would hardly be complete without the mention of Holcomb Valley. This was the location of southern California's own gold rush. The ruins of booming ghost towns are buried under her lush forest carpet.

We visited Holcomb Valley by way of the north most tip of Baldwin Lake. It's a fairly stiff climb and leads directly over Old Mountain. Here, sixty years ago Lucky Baldwin dug into the mountainside in quest of the yellow metal. Today this shaft stretches a half mile into the mountain. Though it hasn't been operated since before the war it will be worked again, for there is gold still hidden in its rocky seams.

The road leads past the forgotten town of Doble and over the mountain to descend into the flat. Great stands of timber tower majestically heavenward. Here and there green carpeted mountain meadows are bathed in sunlight. It's hardly conceivable that once this whole area was heavily populated.

The Burnt Flat Road is clearly posted. Under the great pines one feels dwarfed and alone. Somewhere near here George Holcomb wounded the bear that led to the discovery of gold. Great outcroppings of granite make the concealed valley even more picturesque. A short distance to the west, a side road leads directly to the Holcomb cabin.

Perhaps it measures eight by twelve feet on the inside though that's a guess. The cabin has stood for nearly a century. Its square logged walls chinked with mud and rock are weathered to gray white. The shake roof still sheds the rains.

The door is on the north wall and is so low that everyone who enters has to stoop. There's a gloomy shadow inside for the tiny window gives little light. The old rock fireplace still looked usable though it was half full of ancient ashes.

FAWN LODGE

A beautiful rustic lodge, newly modernized, located on the north shore in the very center of Fawnskin. Open the year around that you may enjoy both summer and winter sports. Here among the pines you will find all the comforts of a city hotel. Some of the finest fishing on Big Bear Lake may be had among the coves and bays adjoining Fawnskin.

Fine food is served in our restaurant. Chef Glenn's meals are indeed an epicure's delight. Choice steaks served before the huge blazing fireplace make dining doubly enjoyable. To add zest to your meal visit our Bambi Bar and enjoy an appetizer before dinner.

On your vacation, plan to stay at Fawn Lodge where you may hike, hunt, fish and still have all the comforts of home.

VACATIONLANDS

The dude ranches of Lucerne Valley are giving their guests a full measure of enjoyment. At the C-Bar-H and Bill Stillwell's it was hard to decide which was the most enjoyed, horseback riding along desert and foothill trails, swimming in the crystal clear pools, eating family style in the rambling ranchhouse or just lounging about in some of that caressing desert sun.

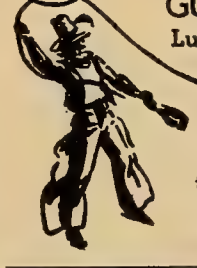
Running Springs halfway between Arrowhead and Big Bear is holding a rodeo on the 24th and 25th of August. Bronco busting, steer riding, musical chairs and a barbecue are scheduled. The whole town is entering whole-heartedly into the fun. There'll even be a donkey ball game to add to the two days of hilarity. Vacationists who attend will enjoy the west at its best with all its thrills.

We stopped in at Lakeshore, Pleasant Point and Boulder Bay and according to proprietors of these various boat landings up at Big Bear Lake the fishing is the best in years. Although no record big fish have been brought in, there are plenty of limits being caught daily. This is the first season that trolling has been exceptionally good. They're using flatfish, troutorenos and various spinners. It's believed that law enforced non-chumming is responsible for better fishing conditions in general.

Three of the Langlois cabins are truly old timers. Built from trees that measured over two feet in diameter, they were notched at the corners and erected log cabin fashion. Built in the gold rush days in 1882 by Gus Knight, these cabins mark the first settlement of the pioneers in Big Bear Valley. Guests at Langlois occupying these cabins are protected by the walls that housed the original post office and grocery store of Pine Knot. There are three new owners now at Langlois, Lyle M. Titus, Rex H. Johnson and Elmer A. Reiner.

It's a brand new Stillwell's Resort that's building up on the shores of Big Bear Lake. Already a chop and steak dining pavilion has been added, together with a cocktail terrace overlooking the lake. The dance hall that burned down is being rebuilt and will be three times the size of the old one, according to the new owner, Wade Miller.

Just in case some of northern Orange County Natives have missed that popular Fullerton peace officer, J. H. (Johnny) Trezise, he's turned up as the new owner of Big Bear's Harbor Cove resort. He's the proud proprietor of a dozen of the finest housekeeping cottages on the lake. He's situated on the tip of Metcalf Bay where many of the prize winning trout are annually caught.



Edgar Bergen stayed at Pine Knoll Lodge for the better part of the "Fourth of July week." He flew up with his wife. However, he left his talkative companion, Charley McCarthy, at home, explaining that he was up for not only a good time but a rest.

Another newly constructed lodge is that of Mildred and Milton Owens. It's lavishly equipped with the best of everything and inside and out it's all brand new.

Andrews Lodge needs no introduction to Big Bear fans. However, ask the Carrs to show you that photogenic wooden horse all saddled up and ready to ride. It's worth a couple of films at the least.

White's Camp is now owned by a young couple, Charlotte and Bert Sherrell. They're swell people and they'll keep the camp open the year around.

FISHERMAN MATCHES WITS WITH BIG SEA BASS

The six thread line ran gracefully out in a wide arch to settle the lively anchovy baited hook in the blue Pacific for a perfect cast. The young sportsfisherman Rudy Wilson, waited expectantly as the weighted line sank deep into the sea, the lively bait swimming excitedly around, making an enticing lure for a hungry fish.

Suddenly a short jerk came unmistakeably up the long line. Automatically the fisherman snapped his reel into gear and reared slightly back to sink the hook.

The sharp barb brought action. The light pole bowed as the reel stripped line.

The mate atop the live bait tank watched the tug of war. Twenty minutes went by and thirty. The hooked fish was no nearer the boat than before and was causing young Wilson considerable trouble. Forced to follow his fish around the boat under and over other people's lines, the fisherman was having a bad time. It looked like it would end in a bad tangle.

The mate approached the skipper. "That fellow's tied up with a big black sea bass. He's been fighting him a half hour. How about putting him overside in a boat?"

"Go to it! Find out if he can handle the skiff. We'll pick him up when he's got that fellow whipped."

The mate lowered the dinghy and brought it alongside the struggling fisherman. "Hop in."

The big fish gained plenty of line but the youth made the boat. As he reeled in slack he knew that his fish was still there. Like a "bronc" hitched to a light wagon, man, boat and fish set off toward the far horizons.

"See you at Catalina," shouted a companion.

The fish moved out in a wide circle. Out across the waves the parent boat looked a long way off. A sweating fisherman was still fighting fish but they were going around in small circles. The reel was no longer dangerously low but had fattened out. The fish was geting nearer. The live bait boat started its diesels and moved in closer.

Suddenly a black whirl showed twenty feet starboard. Wilson was gaining line easily. The skipper maneuvered the big boat alongside. The mate was hanging over the rail gaff in hand. Distance between skiff and fish closed in.

The silver streak of the sharp hook flashed momentarily in the sun as the mate expertly gaffed the big fish. It took help to haul the big jew-fish or black sea bass over the gunwale.

It's a story to raise the blood pressure of any red blooded sport fisherman. The fish tipped the beams at over a hundred pounds. It happened on one of Orville Dant's boats out of Huntington Beach. We got the story direct from a couple of Rudy Wilson's fishing mates who were along that day.

There's more fish fighting action packed into one brief half hour of live bait boat fishing than you'll find in a whole day of ordinary angling.

If you don't believe it drop around the docks when the sport fishing boats pull in. Watch the grins of the passengers as they lug their fish off the boat. We're beginning to understand why they refer to some halibut as "barn doors" and certain big barracuda as "logs." Frankly, we didn't know they got that big.

The weather is warming up and what's more important, ocean temperatures are rising. The warmer those ocean currents become the better is the fishing. Yellowtail are already moving in and the boats are reporting numerous catches.

Never before, old fishermen tell us, have the albacore been so plentiful. From Catalina south school after school have been sighted. Known as the "chicken of the sea," they are one of the tastiest of all game fish.

Live bait boats out of Port Lido, operated by Fred Kemper, have been bringing in heavy catches. Normally it's the jig fishermen who bring in these prize beauties but not this run. The schools are ignoring the "feathers" except for an occasional few. They're striking hard on live bait.

Skippers from the Lido boats add a word of caution. An albacore swims like greased lightning. When they take the hook, set it hard. Don't try to bring them in too fast. Let them run themselves tired. Tightening down on the drag and hauling in, like your fish was so much stove wood, nine times out of ten means a lost fish. Let a few of these babies get hooked and get away and the whole school is gone.

Thirty-five albacore, averaging better than thirty-five pounds apiece, was the record take of Earl Tibbetts, owner of Earl's Landing and his charter party of four. Finding themselves in the very center of a big school and using light tackle, they fished the school for three hours. The two fisherwomen in the party brought in three of the fighting beauties apiece while the men accounted for the rest.

THE STORY OF THE FOUNDING OF THE NATIVE SONS . . .

The Order Conceived and Organized by General A. M. Winn as a Living Monument to the Early Pioneers and the Days of Gold in California

By EMMET P. JOY
Grand Historian, NSGW.

THE year of 1875 in California was a memorable one. It marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the admission of California into the Union. It also witnessed one of the greatest historic events in California. This event well known to all was the founding of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West by General Albert Maver Winn.

General Albert M. Winn was born in London County, Virginia, on April 27, 1810. When a small boy his family moved to Ohio, where he worked several years on his father's farm. In 1834, when twenty-four years of age, he moved to Vicksburg, Mississippi. While in Mississippi he was commissioned Colonel of the First Regular Mississippi Militia in 1845.

General Winn left Vicksburg for California on February 14, 1849, traveling through Texas and Mexico. He arrived in San Francisco on May 28, 1849, and in Sacramento on June 15 of the same year. After remaining in Sacramento for some time he became the city's first mayor.

Governor Burnett appointed him Brigadier-General and he was re-appointed by Governor Bigler in 1854, taking a great interest in the State's National Guard.

Besides organizing the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West he assisted in organizing the Society of the Sons of Revolutionary Sires, and the first Odd Fellows Lodge in the state.

The history of the founding of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West dates back as far as 1869, according to an article written by General Winn, he says—"While Grand Marshal in San Francisco for the Fourth of July in 1869, I thought an exhibition of young Californians would be an interesting part of the procession so advertised a time and place of meeting for them. They came in large numbers, but were too young to appreciate organization."

Six years later, in 1875, preparations were being made to celebrate the Fourth of July in San Francisco. General Winn again issued a call and a meeting was held on June 29 in the Twelfth District Police Court Room and a preliminary organization effected. Myles O'Donnell was chosen Chairman and Louis D. Patrick, Secretary. It was resolved to perpetuate the organization under the name of the Native Sons of the Golden State. The society was formed and resolved to turn out for the parade to be held on July 4th.

A second meeting was held on July 1 in the Twelfth District Court Room. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Myles O'Connell. Also present at the meeting was General Winn who stated there were fine prospects for an association of Native Sons. William Spear was chosen to act as Marshal for the 4th. Mr. Spear was said to be one of the first born under the American flag in 1846. J. A. Steinback and G. W. Fenn were elected aids. Mr. McDermott and Mr. Harmon were appointed Standard Bearers.

Other meetings were held in the Twelfth District Court Room on July 2 and 4 to complete arrangements for the parade. The celebration was held on Monday, July 5th, the 4th falling on a Sunday. As the parade passed through the streets of San Francisco no feature attracted greater attention than the small band of Native Sons in the ninth division. Some wore miners costumes depicting the early mining days. They carried a stuffed bear and the American and Bear flags. The enthusiastic young Californians were marshaled by William D. Spear.

On July 11 the newly organized group of Native Sons met and adopted a Constitution and By-laws. The name "Native Sons of the Golden West" was decided upon. This meeting was held in Anthony's Hall on Bush Street; and thus the formal organization of the first parlor, and the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

The preface of the first constitution contained a statement of the aims and purposes of the Order. The Order began with twenty-one enrolled members. A much larger number participated in the parade, but many were too young to be accepted as members of a fraternal society.

John A. Steinback was elected President of the Parlor; Jasper Fishbourne, 1st Vice President; G. F. Fenn, 2nd Vice President; S. P. Harmon, 3rd Vice President; C. H. Smith, Recording Secretary, and Wm. L. Jones, Financial Secretary.

General Winn was elected an honorary member of the Order, as founder, under a provision of the original constitution.

The original band of Native Sons voted to call their group a parlor. The first By laws fixed the dues and made a provision for sick benefits.

General Winn did succeed in the founding of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West; when he saw the completed organization of the first parlor, he said "For twenty years my mind had been running on some lasting style of monument to mark and perpetuate the discovery of gold I could not think of anything that would not perish in the course of time. At last, it came to my mind that an order composed of Native Sons of the Pacific Coast would effect the object and be sustained by pride of nativity, while it would be an imperishable memento, an institution that would last through all time."

In 1877 the San Francisco group decided on expansion and on December 17, 1877 calling themselves Charter Parlor No. 1 instituted Oakland Parlor No. 2.

The first Grand Parlor was called by Charter Parlor No. 1 to meet in San Francisco on November 29, 1878. At this time Charter Parlor No. 1 changed its name to California No. 1.

SEVENTY-FIRST FOUNDERS DAY OBSERVED BY CALIFORNIA NO. 1

Founders Day, traditionally conducted by the Charter Parlor, California No. 1 was observed on the seventy-first anniversary of the founding of the Native Sons of the Golden West, July 11.

Past Grand President Jesse H. Miller chairman of the affair, explained the policy of California Parlor No. 1 in celebrating these anniversaries and emphasized that each observance is being enlarged to include civic leaders along with our grand officers, increasing the tempo each year b pointing for the Diamond Jubilee in 195 with national coverage our goal.

Judge Clarence W. Morris made the address of welcome to the grand officers and to the several hundred representatives of Parlors throughout the State. He stated that he was proud that one of his candidates for membership was Past Grand President Miller.

Recording Secretary L. F. Elower gave the history of the founding of the Order based on the works of Grand Third Vice President Peter T. Conmy and the late charter member William H. Staniels, historian of California Parlor.

A brilliant and thought provoking talk was given by Grand Third Vice-President Peter T. Conmy, including a resume of the Order in the past and its prospects for the future. He illustrated that these founders were young men without high office, power or special privilege, who by their youth and enthusiasm were able to create the monument conceived by General A. M. Winn, a living monument dedicated not only to our native State but to those pioneer fathers and mothers who migrated west to build the empire we now enjoy.

A motivating leader in the past observances, Junior Past Grand President Richard F. McCarthy expressed his views of Founders Day as follows:

"This affair conducted annually by California Parlor No. 1 should be observed throughout California. Founders Day must be brought to the attention of all Californians to show our growth and to insure our fu ture. These anniversaries must be expanded to have the State and its municipalities join in an annual civic celebration here in San Francisco under the auspices of our Charter Parlor, California No. 1."

The seventy-first anniversary celebration was honored by the presence of Grand President R. G. Power, who, in his remarks, stated: "On this seventy-first anniversary of our Order let me tell you that this Native Son business has a booming year ahead of it. In my first thirty days of office three new parlors were instituted and we are working on fifteen new parlors which we hope to establish in the immediate future. To adequately cover the many activities in the State the grand president needs an airplane to meet the demands and responsibilities of his office."

President I. Edward Unger of California Parlor stated that while he was president of the Parlor on the thirty-first anniversary, he was very happy to be again serving in that same office on the seventy-first anniversary.

Past Grand President Miller had the following brothers of California Parlor serving on the anniversary committee: Fred Ehlers, L. F. Elower, William H. James, Armen Nishkian and John Slattery. Serving the turkey dinner were Armen Nishkian, Henry Rickleffs, Joseph and Marvin Domenigoni.

Grand President Power delighted the assemblange when he presented two hairless, wireless and invisible Mexican pups to Junior Past Grand President McCarthy and to Manuel Rehfeld (No. 1), chairman of the San Francisco Extension of the Order Committee. The amusement was further increased when California Parlor also made a humorous presentation to these same brothers.

The affair was held in the Grizzly Bear Club of the Native Sons Building in San Francisco.

LA FIESTA DE SAN GABRIEL

This oldest mission community north of San Diego and south of San Luis Obispo is preparing to celebrate the 175th anniversary of the founding of Mission San Gabriel Archangel, on Sept. 7, 8 and 9. This three day community observance centered about the age-old stone church and quaint plaza will mark the coming of Christianity to Los Angeles County in 1771. The commemoration of this early Christian event will feature religious and civic observances, with all San Gabriel organizations taking part in this first of the post-war Fiestas.

A queen contest among the prettiest senoritas, a mile-long horse parade, real California barbecue, a two-day Rodeo, Grand Fiesta Ball, presentation of the "Bells of San Gabriel" in Mission Bowl, Outdoor Mass, concerts and reception of Pioneer Families are the highlights of the three-day event, with the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West graciously joining the celebration on Admission Day, with all southern Parlors represented. California's 96th birthday will be observed in grand style by the Natives, and the community of San Gabriel, as well as the Mission, look forward to welcoming them, as brothers of San Gabriel Archangel Parlor No. 291, of which unit they are very proud.

San Gabriel Native Sons are sponsoring as their candidate in the queen contest, Senorita Velma Mata, daughter of Brother and Mrs. Ted Mata of San Gabriel Archangel Parlor No. 291.

Centennial Observed on July 11 At Historic Sutter's Fort

The American Flag was unfurled over Sacramento for the first time 100 years ago July 11.

The historic event was reenacted in a ceremony at Sutter's Fort on the original site of the first unfurling of the Stars and Stripes on July 11, 1846.

As Superior Judge Peter J. Shields raised the Flag over the Fort, the significance of the original ceremony was recalled. The little settlement of New Helvetia, now a museum, stands between 27th and 28th, K and L streets, a memorial to Captain John A. Sutter.

The raising of the American Flag at Sutter's Fort followed closely upon the Bear Flag revolt June 14, 1846, when a group of American insurgents captured Sonoma from the Mexican garrison. Prisoners, among them General Vallejo, were removed to Sutter's Fort.

The flag of the short lived California Republic was replaced July 9 by the Stars and Stripes. The American colors were raised first over Yerba Buena, then over Sonoma, and on the night preceding July 11 they arrived at Sutter's Fort.

"At sunrise the next morning," Sutter reported in his Reminiscences, "I hoisted it over my fort and began firing guns. The firing continued until nearly all the glass in the fort was broken."

New Helvetia, whose founder became a naturalized citizen of Mexico in order to obtain land grants, was transferred overnight into an American outpost.

The ceremonies, commemorating the event, were sponsored by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West.

A patriotic speech on the topic, "The Flag as the Symbol of Democracy," was delivered by Philip C. Wilkins of Sacramento No. 3. Myrtes Orr sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" while the flag was being raised.

According to Carroll A. Hall, curator of the Sutter's Fort museum, the central building at the fort is the single remaining structure of the original stronghold.

The Red Bluff, Tehama County, and Yreka, Siskiyou County, stage was stopped near Cottonwood, August 21 by four masked men armed with Henry rifles. They took the express box, containing $4,300, and decamped.

A farmer named Haskell in San Joaquin County heard a disturbance in his hen house one night and went there to investigate. Seeing nothing to alarm the hens, he noticed a setting hen became agitated and, putting his hand under her in the nest, grasped a rattlesnake, which he threw on the ground, but it immediately returned to the nest. Getting fire tongs and a shovel he again removed and killed the snake. It had a newly hatched chicken in its mouth, which prevented it from striking Haskell with its fangs.

A newspaper man in Los Angeles saw, while strolling in his garden, a wasp and a tarantula in mortal combat while a toad interestingly looked on. Finally the combatants rolled close to the toad, when flip out went its tongue and in went the fighters. But the toad did not enjoy the meal long, for it soon died in great agony. As no post mortem was held, it was not ascertained which one of the insiders caused the demise.

"Bells of San Gabriel," a Historic Play of Early Mission Days

"Bells of San Gabriel," written and directed by Cora Montgomery and produced by Raoul Lugo de Ramirez at the newly created Mission Bowl, located in the gardens of Old San Gabriel Mission, is an absorbing play based on actual historical incidents climaxed by the dread secularization of the missions.

The cast selected from players in the Mission Arts Theater, is composed entirely of native California professional dancers, singers and actors, and brings to Mission Bowl audiences the authentic songs and dances of early California. The presentation, which will be shown every week-end until September 22nd, brings to life people and events of the days when the Franciscans brought the light of faith and civilization to the then benighted land of Alta California.

Native Sons and Daughters familiar with the mission will be happy to know that the Bowl is so arranged that, along with the famous gardens, part of the restored workshops, the historic campanile, and the north wall of the old mission church form the backdrop against which the action of the "Bells of San Gabriel" unfolds.

A portion of the proceeds from the production is going to the mission, and Father Joseph Nuevo C.M.F., Pastor, plans to use the fund for additional restoration of other historic parts of the original mission quadrangle. Thomas Workman Temple II is technical advisor of the play and suggests a Native Sons and Daughters "Night" at Old San Gabriel Mission Bowl. Tickets are on sale at all Mutual ticket agencies, and at the Southern California Music Company, Los Angeles.

Elaborate Festivities Mark San Diego Centennial Program

San Diego marked the 100th anniversary of the raising of the American Flag there July 30 with a program in the Plaza exactly where the flag was originally raised and at approximately the same hour as near as historical records reveal.

The invocation was given by Mayor Kit Carson of Coronado, a descendent of the early Indian scout. Greetings to the visitors were given by Mayor Harley Knox of San Diego, followed by the raising of the Spanish flag and a short talk on its history by Dr. A. P. Nasatir, past president of San Diego Parlor No. 108, NSGW, and professor of history at San Diego State College.

The Mexican flag was raised with appropriate remarks by Professor Lewis B. Lesley, chairman, history division, San Diego State College. The Bear flag was raised by Hazel Bruschi Hanson, past grand president, NDGW.

Vice-Admiral J. B. Olendorf, a Native Son, commandant Eleventh Naval District, San Diego, spoke at the raising ceremonies of the American Flag. Address of the day was given by Governor Earl Warren.

The Festivities opened in the morning with the crowning of the queen of the event, followed in the afternoon by a large parade depicting the history of the times down through the years. There were floats showing historical episodes, a whaleboat manned by U. S. Navy men, as was done by members of the U. S. S. Cyane under command of Captain Rowan on July 30, 1846. Other features included a Native Son and Daughter float emphasizing the aims of our Orders, such as restoration work, Homeless Children, preservation of landmarks. Prizes were awarded for each of the divisions in the parade.

A dinner was held in the Crown Room of the El Cortez Hotel in the evening, followed by a fiesta and dancing at Old San Diego.

Supervisor DeGraff Austin, past president of San Diego Parlor, acted as master of ceremonies.

The committee in charge of the big event was composed of members of San Diego Parlor 108, NSGW, San Diego Parlor No. 208, NDGW, the San Diego Historical Society and the Old San Diego Chamber of Commerce.

Los Angeles Inter-Parlor Plans Float Benefit Dance August 9

The Float Committee of the Southern Counties Inter-Parlor is sponsoring a dinner dance at the Valley Park Country Club on Friday evening, August 9, dinner being served from 7:30 to 9. As this is the only function sponsored by the Float Committee, all parlors are asked to give their full cooperation. Anyone able to take guests and those requiring transportation are asked to phone Ella Steinbeck, TH-8834. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

A CALIFORNIAN RECOUNTS EVENTS FOLLOWING RAISING OF BEAR FLAG

Letter of Francis P. F. Temple, Published on the Eve of the Centennial Celebration of the Unfurling of Old Glory Over Los Angeles, Reveals Some Interesting Sidelights on that Historic Event 100 Years ago, August 13.

This letter of Grandfather F. P. F. Temple, dated at the Pueblo de Los Angeles, on February 7, 1847, gives a condensed account of the American conquest of Alta California from the Bear Flag revolt of June, 1846, to the taking of the Pueblo by Commodore Stockton and General Kearney on January 10, 1847. It is addressed via overland government dispatches to his brother, Abraham, at Reading, Mass., with whom he kept up a regular correspondence since leaving his native New England on board the "Tasso," January 18, 1841, and becoming a resident of the Pueblo with his older half-brother, Jonathan, or "Don Juan," in July of the same year.

Since the letter is as nearly a contemporary account of the exciting days of a hundred years ago, as has appeared so far in this first year of California's centennial, I hope it will be of particular interest to all Native Sons and Daughters. The letter is but one of ten, the first one dated at the Pueblo May 11, 1842, that were carefully kept by cousin Ellen Temple Bancroft, daughter of Abraham, of Reading, who graciously gave them to her first cousin, my late father, Walter P. Temple, in 1926, when my brothers and I were attending Harvard University and Dummer Academy.

Grandfather was named Pliny Fiske after a favorite Congregationalist Divine of his native Reading, in Middlesex County, Mass., and was the youngest of eleven children of Capt. Jonathan Temple and Lucinda Parker Temple. His older brother, Jonathan, had come to the Sandwich Islands around the Horn in 1826, first setting foot at San Diego late in that year and becoming the Pueblo de los Angeles' first merchant, a year later. "Pliny," as he signed his first letters home in 1842, was to take on the additional name of "Francisco" on August 20, 1845, when he was baptized into the Catholic faith at the Mission San Gabriel Archangel, Hugo Reid, Scotsman from Rancho Santa Anita, standing sponsor. Although he afterwards signed his name F. P. F. Temple, his many Spanish-speaking friends chose to call him "Templito," because of his five feet six inch stature. It was on Sept. 30, 1845, that he married Senorita Antonia Margarita Workman at the Plaza Church, an event whose centennial our family happily celebrated last year.

THOMAS WORKMAN TEMPLE II.

Letter of F. P. F. Temple to his brother, Abraham Temple, at Reading, Mass.

Pueblo de los Angeles,
Feb. 7, 1847.

Dear Brother:

Since I wrote you last (which was, I think, in November of 1845) the country has been for most of the time in a horrible condition—the American flag now waves on every flagstaff from one end of the coast to the other; in June of last year the American revolution commenced, a "Bear" flag was hoisted in the northern part of the country which had a bad tendency, as a great many more of the country people raised in arms against them than would have done, had the Commodore come and taken posession in the first place, as he ought to have done.

On the 7th of July the American flag was hoisted in Monterey. At this time (previous to his knowing of the Americans taking Monterey) the Governor, Don Pio Pico, had left this place with a war party to attack General Castro at the windward. He had arrived about half way up the coast when he heard Monterey was taken; then the two parties united and came down to this place, and here remained until the Commodore arrived from the windward. He landed his Marines and Sailors at San Pedro and arrived at this place on the 13th of August—the "Star Spangled Banner" was hoisted—the country people made no resistance. The Governor Commander-in-Chief of the California Military forces left the Country and have probably gone to Mexico.

The Commodore, after remaining here some two or three weeks, left the place with all his naval forces and left a person by the name of Gillespie with a small force of forty or fifty men to take charge of this district; he did so but for a short time. About three weeks after the Commodore left, the people generally in this section of the country raised in arms against the American Government, and obliged Gillespie with his party to leave the place. There was one man died with his wounds on the American side and on the side of the Californians, a number were slightly wounded.

Gillespie and his party embarked at San Pedro aboard a merchant vessel, and there remained until a man-of-war vessel came down the coast. On the 7th of October they disembarked from both vessels about three hundred men and marched toward the Pueblo. On the 8th they had a brush with the natives, four of their men died with their wounds received from the cannon of the Californians. They being all on foot and without artillery, returned back to San Pedro and embarked; the natives received no injury. Genl. Kearney in December with an advance guard of one hundred Dragoons were attacked by these people a short distance from San Diego—they were just arriving off a long journey from New Mexico—seventeen of his men were killed on the battlefield, and quite a number wounded. Since the parties embarked at San Pedro the second time, there were no more attempts to enter this place until last month, on Sunday morning, the 10th of January.

The Commodore, with a party upwards of seven hundred men from San Diego, marched into town. Two days previous to their arrival here they were attacked by the country people, about 500 in number—all mounted on their best horses; their principal weapons were lances—the fight continued a part of two days. We heard distinctly the cannon and on the second day the small arms and could see the flash of the cannon. On the third day in the morning the party marched in without any further resistance. I supposed by the way they were shooting that about half of each party would be killed, but as luck would have it, there were a few only killed on either side, and a considerable number wounded on the part of the natives. Lieut. Col. Fremont arrived here a few days after the battle with a party of nearly five hundred men.

Everything is quiet and peaceful at present and think the country will remain so, unless Mexico should send troops here. I think she has territory of more importance to fight for, nearer home—it is reported that Genl. Taylor is still continuing his march toward the City of Mexico.

Lieut. Col. Fremont is Governor pro tem of the territory of California—you will probably see it in print before you receive this. I have sent this across land with the government dispatches. A large emigration arrived in the northern part of the country last season and there is expected a much larger one the coming season.

We have had seasonable rains this year and the grass is growing beautifully. There have been great losses sustained by foreigners residing in this section of the country since the rebellion commenced in September by the natives, all or nearly all their horses were taken and a great number of their cattle killed; when or by whom the damages will be paid is not ascertained.

I am told there is great talk in the U. S. of a railroad being constructed across the mountains to this country. I hope when it is completed I shall have the pleasure of making you a visit.

When I wrote you last I told you I was married to Antonia Margarita Workman—you may judge for yourself what I am going to say now—let me tell you I have a fine hearty boy between two and three months old—his name is Thomas Workman, named after his great-grandfather. Margarita enjoys very good health; brother John and his family are all well.

Remember me to our affectionate and dearly beloved Mother, your family, brothers, sisters and all enquiring friends, & receive the kind regards of Margarita and myself.

Remaining your ever affectionate brother
FRANCIS P. F. TEMPLE (rubric).

Los Angeles Natives Hold Bear Flag Celebration

Los Angeles County's annual Flag Day services this year were elaborated to include the observance of the 100th anniversary of the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma, June 14, 1846.

Held in front of the Hall of Justice, a good crowd heard a stirring address by Appellate Justice Thomas P. White, prominent Los Angeles Native Son. Featured was a program of Latin-American music and dances. As has been the custom for many years past, Los Angeles County Native Sons presented a Bear Flag to Star Post No. 309 of the American Legion and the Native Daughters presented an American Flag to the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

Sponsored by the Native Son and Daughter Parlors of Los Angeles County, the committee in charge of the affair was headed by Past Grand President Eldred L. Meyer.

Native Sons

Grand President's Notes

By R. G. Power

July 13, 1946

The summer months are supposed to be a time for slackening of all activities in fraternal organization but the Native Sons have failed to recognize the season. Your Grand President traveled over 5,000 miles in the first thirty days in office and all on Native Son business! The big feature of this month was the Stars and Stripes Centennial at Monterey and the Celebration was one of the finest on record any place. The particular part alotted to the Native Sons was the dedication of the new Flag-pole, erected through the cooperation of Joseph R. Knowland and the State Park Commission, on the exact site of the original flag-pole used by Commodore Sloat. This project was suggested to your Grand Officer early last winter by Mrs. Mary Green, Curator of the Customs House and to her we extend our sincere thanks and appreciation. A large and enthusiastic crowd attended our ceremony of dedication on July 6th.

Initiations and Activities for August will probably include Initiation at Santa Barbara and attendance of the Fiesta there from August 6-8th. Woody Wade is on the loose again and has planned about a week of activity for the Grand Officers during this month.

In addition to the engagements for July listed last month, your Grand President has also the following:

July 8th—Oakland, Alameda County District Deputy Meeting.

July 10th—San Francisco, Twin Peaks Parlor, Grand Officers Initiation.

July 15th—Chico, John Bidwell Parlor, Initiation.

July 17th—San Diego Parlor, Initiation.

Sacramento Parlors reinacted the raising of the Stars and Stripes at Sutters Fort on July 11th before a large crowd with appropriate speakers. This location is along the lines of pilgrimages to historic spots and is not only extra publicity, but a fine method of attracting candidates. The Curator Carroll Hall is giving regular historical talks on the radio which are proving very attractive. Even the State Librarian reports a tremendous request for Centennial Material. Martin Charles, the Supervising Deputy, tied in a joint Installation at Sutters Fort on July 10th with the above program—Clever Idea.

The resignation of Harmon D. Skillin, PGP, as a member of the Grand Parlor Homeless Children Committee has been received and Edward J. Wren of National Parlor No. 10, has been appointed to fill out the unexpired term.

The last Grand Parlor authorized and ordered the publication of a pamphlet containing the names of all our members who served in the armed forces during the period of actual war and also all those who lost their lives. The Parlor Secretaries are ordered to prepare these lists and mail them to the Grand Secretary. If this hasn't been done already, it should be attended to at once.

Through the courtesy of Guy G. Foulkes, Governor General of the Past Presidents' Assembly and Sacramento agent for the Oldsmobile, and the cooperation of Eric C. Sankey, Colusa agent, your Grand President is now driving a brand new 1946 Model "76" four-door sedan; in fact the wheels turned 1,100 Native Son miles in the first ten days. And is that hydromatic wonderful!

Centennials due soon include San Diego, July 30th, and Los Angeles, August 13th.

START PREPARING FOR SEPTEMBER 9TH ADMISSION DAY NOW!

Fred H. Greely Past President's Assembly Meets at Oroville

The Fred H. Greely Assembly of Past Presidents met at the ranch of Frank Boyle in Oroville on Monday, June 24. This was the first meeting of the Assembly since June 26, 1945. After having a year of rest, and with the return of numerous veterans, considerable enthusiasm and interest was shown for reviving regular monthly meetings, promoting interest in the various Parlors, and securing a radio program to further Native Sonism throughout California. New officers were nominated, and Past President John R. Manville, Ernest L. Shuman, Francis St. Louis and Len Mannee all of Colusa Parlor, and Tom Kuris of Argonaut Parlor were initiated into the Assembly.

Following the unusually spirited meeting presided over by Governor Tony Casci, of Quartz Parlor, the host, Past Governor General Boyle served those in attendance with the usual delicious "Boyle-style" banquet. Grand President R. G. Power, an active member of the Greely Assembly, attended the meeting and also received a handsome cocktail set, as a gift, from the members of Argonaut Parlor No. 8 at Oroville. Bert Reid, President of John Bidwell Parlor, issued an invitation for the Greely Assembly to meet at Chico on July 15 when Colusa Parlor No. 69 will put on the initiatory work for a class initiation.

Piedmont Parlor No. 120, Oakland, will hold its annual picnic at La Honda Bowl, Contra Costa County, Sunday, August 11. There will be dancing to the music of George Collins' band, games, races and other events will complete the day's fun. Free coffee will be served by Duke Brause and his refreshment committee.

RETIRING PRESIDENT HONORED FOR SERVICES TO PARLOR

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE STATE WITH NATIVE SONS

A golf club is being formed in Stanford Parlor No. 76, San Francisco, for the brothers who are interested in the game of chasing the little white ball. The club is not for experts but for any brother who enjoys the game, whether he hits in the 60s or the 160s. It will promote both better golf scores and a lot of fun.

At joint installation ceremonies in the Native Sons Auditorium, San Francisco, Wednesday evening, July 31, officers of Mission Parlor No. 38, NSGW, and Mission Parlor No. 227, NDGW, were installed.

Winifred McGrath was installed as president of Mission Parlor No. 227, NDGW, together with other officers-elect, by District Deputy Dorothy Frye.

District Deputy Bob Pyne of Guadalupe Parlor No. 231, NSGW, installed Ralph D. McIntosh as president of Mission Parlor. Other officers to serve with McIntosh are John Klement, first vice-president;; Albert Masry, second vice-president; Al Hufnagel, third vice-president; Andrew J. Camous, recording secretary; Sidney Bernstein, financial secretary; Raymond J. McGrath, treasurer; Fred Klement, marshal; William Hamburg and Ad Bilay, trustees; Frank Barker, inside sentinel, and Hugh Barker, outside sentinel.

Edwin A. Meserve, dean of past presidents of Ramona Parlor No. 109, received an ovation as he witnessed. with his son Shirley, the initiation of two grandsons in a class of nineteen June 21. Candidates from other parlors were also initiated and heard Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, Ramona's historian, recount highlights of California history.

San Jose Parlor No. 22 chartered a bus to take their Drum and Bugle Corps to Monterey to participate in the parade.

Brother John A. Corotto, grand treasurer, and Mrs. Corotto of San Jose were injured when their car blew a tire as they were leaving the Grand Parlor at Hobergs in Lake County. The car went over the bank, injuring Mrs. Corotto the most. She was confined in the Lakeport Hospital for about three weeks.

Joint installation of officers of Hollywood, Los Angeles 45 and Glendale Parlors took place July 25 at Hollywood Parlor's meeting hall, 1089 N. Oxford Ave., Hollywood. District Deputy Willard Allen of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, was installing officer. Entertainment followed the installation ceremony and refreshments were served.

Stanford Parlor No. 76 will have its annual picnic in the latter part of August at one of the picnic grounds in the Bay area, according to present plans.

Members of Hanford Parlor No. 37 enjoyed a potluck dinner at Coe's Park Thursday evening, July 18. Charles F. Braton is the new president.

Chair officers of Observatory Parlor No. 177, San Jose, recently visited Santa Clara Parlor No. 100 for the purpose of putting on the initiatory work for 16 candidates who availed themselves of the opportunity of enjoying the benefits and fellowship of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

On Wednesday evening, July, the grand officers initiated a class of forty-five candidates for Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 at their regular meeting hall. The following grand officers participated: Grand President R. G. Power, president; Junior Past Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, junior past president; Past Grand President Wayne R. Millington, senior past president; Grand Secretary John T. Regan, first vice-president; Grand Trustee Louis Pellandini, second vice-president; Grand Third Vice-President Peter T. Conmy, third vice-president; Grand Trustee Edward J. Wren, marshal; District Deputy Grand President William E. Hawley (157), inside sentinel. The address of the evening was made by R. G. Power, grand president. A banquet and entertainment followed the initiation.

We are receiving many more parlor bulletins at the Grizzly Bear office than formerly. One of the latest to reach us is the newsy little sheet, the "Cabrillo Log" of Cabrillo Parlor No. 114, Ventura. But let's hear from more of you.

TO INSTITUTE NEW PARLOR AUGUST 15 AT WHITTIER

The corporation of Johnston, Woodward and Wade today announced that Whittier Parlor No. ..., Native Sons of the Golden West, will be instituted on Thursday evening, August 15, at the William Penn Hotel, 309 East Philadelphia, Whittier. The initiation of candidates will be under a ritual team composed of members of University Parlor No. 272. The grand officers, headed by Grand President R. G. Power, will conduct the institutional ceremonies. SDGP David Stuart of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 will act as installing officer.

Whittier Parlor is the fifteenth parlor to be organized by the above trio—who work without pay—for the expansion and betterment of the Order.

SEQUOIA AND ARGONAUT PARLORS TAKE THIRD PLACE AT SONOMA

With Marjorie Welsch of Argonaut Parlor as drill captain, the Green Patrol drill team of Sequoia and Argonaut Parlors won third place in the parade staged during the Flag Day observance in Sonoma. Other members of the Parlor were in authentic costumes.

During the July meeting of the 11, Edna McQuesten was initiated into the Parlor with Hannah Bradehoft and Helen Garrison in charge of the obligations.

With several grand officers as guests and with a musical program presented by the popular choral, Sequoia Parlor had a public installation on Thursday night, July 25, in the large hall of the Finnish Brotherhood Hall. Those seated with an impressive ceremony, included, past president, Vera Giodrano; president, Martha Gohl; first vice president, Hannah Bradehoft; second vice president, Eleanore Garrison; third vice president, Nellie Homewood; secretary, Alice Gilligan; financial secretary, Edna Williams; treasurer, Lola Bradehoft; marshall, Estelle Martinelli; trustees, Clara Barton, Regina Tamba, Lena Dias; inside sentinel, Lucy Gulick; outside sentinel, Rose Furtade; organist, Tessie Socker.

During the installation ceremonies, gifts were presented and appropriate talks were given. Refreshments were served following the program. Edna Williams, charter president of Sequoia Parlor was general chairman. All officers wore formal evening gowns in pastel shades and carried flowers to match.

Sacramento Native Sons and Daughters Hold Joint Installation July 10

The largest event of the Summer for the Native Daughters and the Native Sons of the Golden West was the joint installation of officers of six women's and four men's parlors Wednesday, July 10, at Sutter's Fort. The grand officers of both groups and Sacramento city and county were invited.

The presidents of the parlors include Mary Filicchi, Califia No. 22; Alma Soost, LaBandera No. 110; Edna Kretcher, Sutter No. 111; Bernice Parrott, Coloma No. 212; Gertrude Soligan, Rio Rita No. 253; Mildred McDonald, Victory No. 216, of Courtland; Charles Martin, Sacramento No. 3; J. R. Ghelfi, Sunset Parlor No. 26; Dwight Stephenson, Elk Grove No. 41 of Elk Grove, and Leland Stewart, Courtland No. 106 of Courtland.

Supervising District Deputy Grand President Wanda Abele of Woodland named Myrtes Orr the general chairman and Genevieve Didion the co-chairman. Deputy grand presidents participating in the arrangements included Virginia Horrell, Lavinia Blakly, Blanche Vienna and Alice Carpenter.

A program to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the arrival of the Donner party survivors at Sutter's Fort and the raising of the Bear Flag over the fort was presented. Mrs. Orr and Guy Foulks presented the flag to Carroll D. Hall, the curator of Sutter's Fort.

Other numbers were a concert by the Sacramento Firemens Band at 7:30 p. m.; songs by Henrietta Toothaker of Woodland, accompanied by Ruby Lovett, and a drill by the NSGW Drum Corps.

NATIVE DAUGHTER PARLORS

Calistoga Native Daughters won third place in the Fourth of July Parade at Calistoga. Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West played an important part in the success of this event.

Clara Hansen was installed as new president of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, NDGW, at open installation of officers conducted by Nell Brown, DGP, and assisting Grand Officers of La Reina Parlor No. 267, July 10 at the Woman's Clubhouse, San Pedro. Stephen M. White Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, presented the new president with a beautiful bouquet of American Beauty Rosebuds.

San Fernando Mission Parlor No. 280 received second prize in the Fiesta Parade June 29, for its float representing the pioneers. The wagon was the oldest in San Fernando and on it rode four of the city's pioneers, Mrs. Chas. Shaug. Mrs Kate Millen, Mrs. Mary Pico Hendricks and Mrs. Victoria Candelot, all dressed in the costume of pioneer days. The float represented the first Native Daughters meeting.

East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266, NDGW, are now meeting in their new home at 506½ Whittier Blvd., Montebello, on the first and third Tuesdays of each month.

Dolores Parlor No. 169 Drill Team, San Francisco, participated in the Fourth of July festivities at Redwood City. The Drill Team also took part in the Pescadero Rodeo and Parade, Sunday, July 14.

Charter members of El Tejon Parlor No. 239, Bakersfield, were honored guests at the June social meeting of the parlor. Seven charter members, Katherine Kincer, Louise Herod, Ernestine Edwards. Georgia Sanders, Millie Phelan, Ona Moffett and Etta Borgwardt were present. Evelyn Towne of Miocene Parlor, Taft, and Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, both of whom helped institute the parlor 20 years ago, attended.

Among recent occurences in Orinda Parlor No. 56, NDGW, San Francisco, was the presentation of a N.D.G.W. 50-year pin by Mrs. O. Giannini to her mother, Mrs C. Gunther, and to her aunt Mrs. Louise Kumph.

Talented Helen Heineman of Orinda Parlor played her newest piano composition "Down Lovers' Lane" over radio station KFRC for consideration in the "Write a Song" contest. Mrs. E. Maggi has again been named a deputy grand president, the appointment this year being to San Francisco No. 261.

Orinda Parlor will put on a rummage sale, August 12, 13, 14, in the social hall of St. Episcopal Church, 120 Julian St., between Valencia and Mission Streets, and between 15th and 16th Streets.

At joint installation ceremonies in the IOOF Hall, July 12, officers of Sebastopol Parlors, Native Sons and Daughters, were installed. New president of Sebastopol Native Daughters is Fay Kurlander, Santa Rosa, while Raymond Kitchell heads the Native Sons.

At the American Legion Hall, San Bernardino, Wednesday, July 10, officers of Lugonia Parlor No. 241 were installed by their DGP Doris Jacobson and her corps of officers from Grace Parlor No. 242, Placentia. Lillian McGinty, newly elected president, presented Marian Pierce from Ontario Parlor No. 251 as Lugonia's DGP for next year; also Isabel Fages from Californian Parlor No. 247 as SDDGP.

Friday evening, July 12, Mrs Blanche Davis was installed as president of Fruitvale Parlor No. 177, Oakland, by Mrs. Irene McNiece of Brooklyn Parlor No. 157, DGP. The ceremonies were public and President Davis carried an arm bouquet of pink snapdragons and the escort team carried old-fashioned bouquets. Arrangements are being made for Fruitvale Parlor to take part in the Admission Day, Sept. 9 Celebration to be held in San Francisco with Rowena Fernandes the parlor chairman.

Float of San Bruno Parlor No. 246, NDGW, entered in the San Bruno Posie Parade, May 19. The parade was very colorful, consisting of floats covered with flowers. Conducted for children under 15, it might well be termed a regular Junior Tournament of Roses. The San Bruno float was covered with red geraniums with letters formed with white lilies.

Minstrel Show Put On By Buena Vista No. 68, NDGW

"Is you is or is you ain't, Oxide, and how do you find yourself this evening?"

"Madame Interlocketer, find myself I didn't even know I was lost."

And so went an evening of fun and music when Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 of San Francisco recently entertained their past and present deputies with a first class minstrel show.

Leslye Hicks (Oxide), State Chairman of Publicity and Deputy of Golden Gate Parlor, Margaret Barrett (Scissorlegs), Secretary of Buena Vista Parlor, Mary Growney (Soup Bone), Past President, and Jessie Collins (Buzzsaw), Outside Sentinel and Deputy of Minerva Parlor with Martha Field, Trustee acting as interlocutor and director of the show.

Dorothea Heuring directed the music of the show which opened with "Dinah" and "Oh! dem Golden Slippers" and included ensemble numbers of "Louisiana Hayride," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," "Onsey Twosey," and "Carolina in the Morning."

The cake walk was beautifully danced by Deputy Vera Thompson and Jessie Collins replete with ruffles, top hat and cane. "My Little Black Baby" was impressingly rendered by Mary Growney. George Gershwin's "Summertime" was artistically sung by Leslye Hicks. "Polly Wolly Doodle all de Day," was sung and enacted by our little eight year old Joanne Rosenlund and her Auntie Eda. Joanne's terpsichorean art promises a future for real Hawaiian dancing.

Jokes and more jokes followed by "One Sunday Morning" were quite the hit of the show when told and sung by the team of Margaret Barrett and Flossie Bartlett, Dorothea Heuring and Martha Field added to the variety of the program with the rendition of two duets, "Venus Waltz," and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny."

Topsy and Eva interpreted by Carolyn Heuring and Marjorie Barnes were quite true to form in their rendition of "Shortnin' Bread" and "Bumpsa Daisy."

No minstrel show would be complete without "Stay in Your Own Back Yard," which was pleasingly sung by Ruth Bean with Joanne Rosenlund completing the atmosphere as the heart broken pickaninny. And were the mammys colorful as they formed the chorus! Looked just like they had stepped out of the deep South with their freshly laundered ginghams and white kerchiefs and bandanas, and did they sing!!

Deputies honored were Beatrice Nishkean, Supervising District Deputy, May MacDonald, Lucille Keoghan, Vera Thompson, Georgia Nielson, Leslye Hicks and Jessie Collins and Bertha Steffins. The Parlor was honored by the presence of the Grand President, Loretta Cameron, Dr. Mariana Bertola and Mary E. Bell who journeyed from Davis with a caravan of Native Daughters.

Everyone had a grand time finishing up with ice cream, cake and a glorious Hallelujah.

Santa Barbara Native Daughters Play Prominent Part in Fiesta

Santa Barbara is preparing for the resumption of its famed Old Spanish Days Fiesta after lapse of war years and once more Reina del Mar parlor, N.D.G.W. will take over phases of the observance which have been entrusted to it over the years.

The 20th annual Pre-Fiesta tea was held Monday afternoon, July 29, at El Paseo. Honor guests were descendents of pioneers of the Spanish and American Occupation periods, the present directorate of the Fiesta and heads of governmental forces.

Mrs. Mabel Erwin, Mrs. Henry Griffiths and Mrs. Alta Schuld, as co-chairmen, head the committee in charge of this traditional function, members of which are drawn from the parlor's History, Landmarks and Pioneer Roster committees. The first pre-fiesta tea was given in 1926 in the De la Guerra patio. Four years later interest had grown to such an extent that the large Restaurante del Paseo was utilized. La Fiesteras, the parlor's dancing group under Mrs. Terresa Janssens offered a program of early-day dances and refreshments were served in the old Spanish manner with heirloom silver and napery utilized. Members of Santa Barbara Parlor Native Sons in Spanish costume aided the Daughters.

The parlor will present the Saint Barbara float in the Historic Parade of Fiesta on Thursday, August 8, and take part in the opening ceremonies on the grounds of Mission Santa Barbara the previous evening. The parlor held two meetings earlier in the month to work out details of Fiesta participation, Mrs. Anita Harp, chairman of history, presiding with Mrs. Albert Ames, parlor president, ex-officio.

Hollywood Turf Club Gives $2,500 to Homeless Children

Through the efforts of William O. Gilkey, member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, NSGW, Homeless Children Committee, this great work of the combined Orders has been recognized by the Hollywood Turf Club.

On May 30 the following letter was received by Brother Gilkey from the Associated Charities of the Hollywood Turf Club:

Mr. W. O. Gilkey
Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West
1832 So. Hope Street
Los Angeles, California.

Dear Mr. Gilkey:

It is a great pleasure to enclose a check for $2,500.00 in favor of the Native Sons and Native Daughters, Central Committee on Homeless Children for the most worthwhile work your group is doing in philanthropic and child welfare activities.

This money has been made available to your organization by action of the Board of Trustees of the Hollywood Turf Club Associated Charities, Inc., and represents funds derived from charity days held at Hollywood Park during the 1945 race meeting.

With this check members of the Board of Trustees of the Hollywood Turf Club Associated Charities, Inc., combined with horsemen and the California Horse Racing Board, and all others who had a small part in raising this money, wish to express their commendation to you and your organization for their outstanding work.

Cordially yours,
HOLLYWOOD TURF CLUB

ROXELANE SHERMAN

To the Officers and Members of Donner Parlor No. 193 N.D.G.W. We your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed sister, Roxelane Sherman submit the following:

WHEREAS, our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom and love has called our beloved sister to the Great Parlor on HIGH, we wish at this time to perpetrate her memory as an outstanding example of the precepts of friendship loyalty and charity of our Order, Therefore be it resolved that we extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved family.

Resolved that copies of these resolutions be sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine and the Brentwood News for Publication and spread upon the minutes of our Parlor Records, and a copy be sent the bereaved family.

May the memory of her sunny smile and kind ways be an inspiration to us all.

Life was but a sea, and you
A tiny ship that sailed upon its breast.
Faith a compass tried and true,
Guided you on into the distant West.

MEMORIAL TO SISTERS EMILY NUTTING AND STELLA TREAT

Recently Sister Emily Nutting and Sister Stella Treat, members of Camellia Parlor No. 41, Native Daughters of the Golden West, bowed silently and cheerfully to the will of the Great Creator, and passed gently into their long sleep.

They were, for many years, loyal members of the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and to its work they gave the best of their ability, winning the appreciation of its members by their kindly disposition.

Camellia Parlor mourns their passing and extends their sympathy to the members of their families in the loss of one loved and cherished by them. We believe that they have just crossed a bridge into another and fairer land where some day we will greet them there.

Fresno Native Daughters Conduct Memorial Service for Charter Member

On Decoration Day (May 30, 1946) Maude Crosby, Viola Smith, Edna Fitzsimmons, Avis Burke, Jennie Lessman, Bernice Thornwall, Rex Walgren, Harriett Boust and Ella Greene went by auto to Waterford where the ashes of Nancy Brander, charter member of Fresno Parlor No. 187, were buried. It was a very fitting setting for the Native Daughter funeral ceremony to be conducted in the hills where our pioneers settled many years ago. Friends of the family came from near and far to pay their last respects to our Nancy. Two charter members were present, Avis Burke and Jennie Lessman.

PEARL MEEK

To the Officers and Members of Marysville Parlor No. 162, NDGW: We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect in loving memory of our departed Sister, Pearl Meek, submit the following:

Whereas, Our Divine Father has called our Sister to her Heavenly Home and the Golden Chain of our Fraternity has been severed,

Therefore, be it resolved, that we extend our sincere sympathy to her bereaved family; that our appreciation be expressed to the Native Daughters Home for the care bestowed upon her; that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor, a copy sent to her family and a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

Admission Day, September 9, 1871, was celebrated in San Francisco by 150 members of the Society of California Pioneers forming a procession and, headed by a brass band, marching from Pioneer hall to Pacific hall, on Bush street. There, after a prayer by Rev. J. E. Benton, Judge McKinstry delivered an able and appropriate address.

At Sacramento, members of the Pioneer Society celebrated the day with a banquet at Pioneer hall; $500 was subscribed for the relief of James W. Marshall, discoverer of gold at Coloma, El Dorado County, who was reported in need and of being desirous of going East and delivering lectures upon his experiences in the California gold mines.

September 6 the general election for state and county officers was held. Probably due to its closeness, the last week of the campaign of the gubernatorial candidates was one of the most intense ever witnesed in California. Stumping the state in the interest of Newton Booth, Republican candidate, were Henry Edgerton, J. B. Felton, J. G. Eastmon, J. F. Swift, George C. Gorham, A. A. Sargent, and United States Senators Hannibal Hamlin of Missouri, Cornelius Cole of California and Nye of Nevada. Aiding Governor H. H. Haight in his campaign for re-election as the Democratic candidate were Jo Hamilton, Creed Haymond, Senator Casserly, J. D. Hambleton, Dr. Short, J. W. Coffroth, James T. Farley, John R. Conwell, Grove L. Johnson, R. P. Dudley, and Congressman "Sunset" S. Cox of New York. The speakers dramatically exponded the principles of the parties, and warned their hearers that only the success at the polls of the particular party which each represented could save the country from eternal damnation.

Torchlight processions were numerous; one in San Francisco September 4 took several hours to pass, and the same night there was one in Nevada City of 2,000 marchers; both were made up of Republican adherents.

September 2 was a day of fatal political fights. In a saloon row in San Francisco Marion Wilson, a wharfinger, fired two shots at Marxey Gurschinski, a ward politician; both missed their mark, but a bystander, Patrick Burnes was killed. A Marysville Republican club went to Chico; when the train started on the return trip a fight between Democrats and members of the club broke out and resulted in the killing of Phil Rupert, and the wounding of Constable Pouley and C. R. Dilley. A free-for-all in Sacramento cost Timothy V. Lynch his life, and Barney Kiernan was dangerously stabbed.

More than 120,000 votes were polled in the state election. Newton Booth, Republican, received 62,581 and Governor Haight, Democrat, 57,520; Booth's majority 5,061. With the exception of John A. McGlynn, who was defeated by John Rozenfeld, Democrat, for harbor commissioner by 1716 votes, the Republicans elected all state officers. They also elected fifty-four assemblymen and fourteen senators, which gave them control of the State Legislature and the election of a United States Senator.

In San Francisco, the Taxpayer's Union elected Mayor Wm. Alvord and nearly all their ticket. One exception, and a hea betting proposition, was the defeat of A Budlum for assessor by Levi Rosener 18 votes. Friends of Budlum claimed it v done by applying nitrate of silver solut across Budlum's name on the ballot, whi not noticed at voting time, would oblit ate the ink by counting time. This v found to be a fact, but not in suffici number to change the result.

Harrigan & Co., working the Whisl Slide mine in Calaveras County, cleaned $1,802 from a crushing of twenty-five t of rock.

The Blue Point Gravel mine at Smar ville, Yuba County, cleaned up for t month $71,000.

Richard Hoskins of Dutch Flat, Pla County, announced that he had discove that, by lowering cream to a depth of tw ty or more feet into his well, in four ho it changed into butter and butterm without any churning.

Owing to the dry season reducing yield of crops, wheat went to $2.75 a barley to $2.10 a cental and hay to $2 ton. Onions and potatoes were 1 cent pound. Grapes were selling at $20 a ton Los Angeles County, and it was estima 1,500,000 gallons of wine would be m there this season.

Stanislaus County changed its cou seat, by vote of its citizens, from Knig Ferry to Modesto, a growing railroad to which has since become one of the m flourishing little cities of the state.

A fire in Pacheco, Contra Costa Coun September 5, destroyed the Odd Fello hall, "Gazette" office and other buildin causing a $30,000 loss.

The Harpending block on Market Stre opposite Sansome, San Francisco, burn September 23. The building was occupied Redington & Co., wholesale druggists; Jo Rohr & Sons, furniture, and several who sale firms. The loss was over a million d lars, with $400,000 insurance.

Ramon Amador was hung in San Le dro, Alameda County, jail by Sheriff Mo September 22 for killing a hunter nam Hiscock near Pleasanton. It was necess for the sheriff and his deputies to use fo to put on the black cap and get him on t scaffold.

ADMISSION DAY

California Will Observe Her 96th Birthday in San Francisco, September 9th, With a Colorful Parade and Celebration Here Are Some of the Historical Events Leading Up to the State's Admission to the Union in 1850.

By EMMETT P. JOY, Grand Historian, NSGW

CELEBATING Admission Day dates back to the year 1850 for that year in California was a most eventful one. Pioneers were arriving in San Francisco by clipper ships, others were crossing the Sierra Nevada Mountains in their rush to the gold fields. The hills of the mother lode were covered with mining camps and activity reigned throughout the state.

San Francisco and Sacramento were growing day by day as these places were the main supply depots for the miners. Stockton also was developing into a city as this was the starting point to the southern mines. Hosteleries with the best of cuisine were being established in these larger towns. Restaurants and stores were constructed to supply the thousands who were mining in the ravines and along the rivers. Pack trains consisting of mules and horses were a common scene leaving for the gold fields while miners, who were unable to secure transportation, walked to their destination.

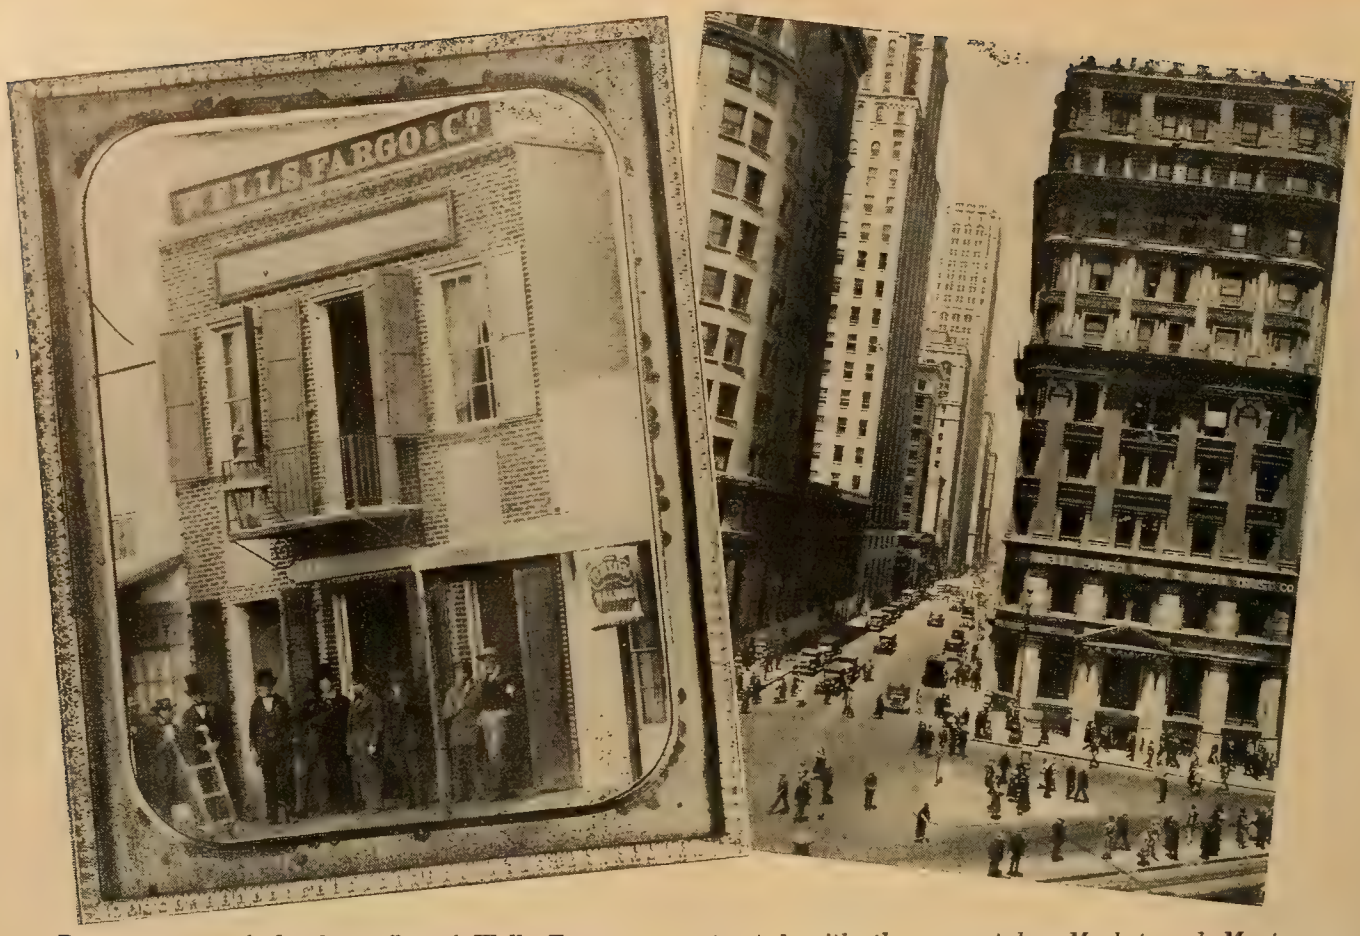
During the month of January when some of the miners were enroute to California and others already in the diggins in an effort to seek their fortunes; the legislature met and elected W. M. Gwin and John C. Fremont as United States Senators. These men, with the representatives to congress, left for Washington to request in the name of the people that California be admitted to the Union.

The discussion in Washington was whether California should be admitted to the Union. Debates were held and the California Constitution calling for the exclusion of slavery met with conflict. The President requested that the California delegates make a joint communication to Congress upon the necessity of admitting California. The request was complied with and the problem was laid before both houses. The struggle continued until August 13 when the bill for the admission passed the Senate by a vote of 34 to 18. On September 7 the House of Representatives passed the California bill by a vote of 150 to 56. The act was approved on September 9, 1850 and California was admitted to the Union.

There were no telegraph or telephone lines across the county in 1850 nor were there any railroads to carry the news of what had occurred in Washington. The news of the passing of the bill had not reached the people of California until the middle of the following month.

Everyone was anxious to know of the outcome and the populace became restless awaiting the arrival of the mail steamer "Oregon." On the morning of October 18, 1850 the "Oregon" was seen entering the harbor of San Francisco. She fired signals making known to the citizenry the glorious news that California had been admitted. People rushed to the wharf to greet the ship. Business of all kinds closed and at night public places of entertainment were crowded with inhabitants celebrating the event. Miners from the mother lode joined in the celebration for many of them had returned to San Francisco to await the news prior to the arrival of the "Oregon."

Preparation for a celebration was started and it included a parade, a display of fireworks from Telegraph Hill and a grand ball at the Union Hotel.



The celebration was held on the 29th of October. The parade marched to the plaza where the Hon. Nathaniel Bennett, of the Supreme Court, delivered an oration and during the day repeated discharges of firearms were heard. In the evening fireworks

On the north shore of San Francisco and inside the Golden Gate is the far-famed Fishermen's Wharf. Our picture shows one of its many lagoons. It is the center of an industry that employs more than 350 vessels and 2,000 men. It is like a bit of the Gulf of Genoa or the Bay of Naples, set down beside blue San Francisco Bay. The street from which its piers extend is lined with popular seafood restaurants, and with steaming cauldrons in which large, luscious crabs are cooked along its curbs. It is also the scene of several well-known night clubs.

Wells Fargo & Co.

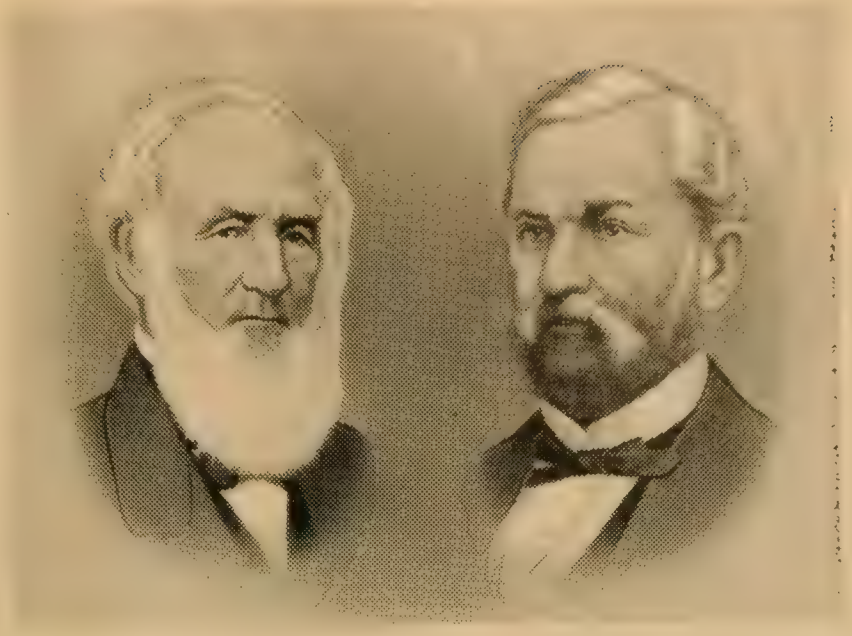
The Story of California Is Closely Interwoven With This Pioneer San Francisco Concern. Founded in the Stirring Days of the Early 50's, Its Name Was Known Wherever Men Mined for Gold. Through the Years Wells Fargo & Co. Has Grown and Kept Faith With the State That Gave It Birth.

By IRENE SIMPSON

"There is no institution on the Coast that has interested me more than the Wells & Fargo . . . it is the omnipresent, universal business agent of all the region from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Ocean. A billiard saloon, a restaurant, and a Wells & Fargo office are the first three elements of a Pacific Coast mining town; its messengers are on every steamboat, and rail car and stage in all these States. It is the ready companion of civilization, the universal friend and agent of the miner, his errand man, his banker, his post office. It is much more than an ordinary express company; it does a general and universal banking business, and a great one in amount; it brings to market all the bullion and gold from the mining regions, its statistics are the only reliable knowledge of the production; and it divides with the government the carrying of letters to and fro." So wrote Samuel Bowles, editor of the Springfield Republican, in his memoirs of a trip West in 1865, "Across the Continent."

Thirteen years earlier, in July 1852, Wells Fargo & Co. introduced itself to booming young San Francisco with the announcement that "W. F. & Co. will also transact a general Banking, Exchange and Collection Business. General and special deposits received. Collections and remittances made in all parts of California, Oregon and the Atlantic States and Europe with promptness and dispatch. Gold dust, gold and silver coin, and bullion, bought and sold. Money advanced on gold dust deposited for transmission or coinage."

Samuel P. Carter and R. W. Washburn had disembarked from the Panama steam packet from New York—Carter as general agent for the express end of the business, Washburn to manage the banking department of the newly founded company. The young institution they represented was established on Montgomery Street, near Sacramento, and like many another newcomer in the world, soon sat for its portrait. A colorful scene that must have been . . . a pioneer daguerreotypist focusing his cum bersome camera on the little banking offic across the way . . . bystanders gathering— bearded miners from the "diggin's", Yanke sailors, in tarpaulin hats, gaily dresse Spanish Californians, a long-cued Chines The daguerreotypist uncovers his lens—th bank staff poses rigidly before the offic during the long exposure. It is over. Th drays and ox-drawn carretas move alon Montgomery Street—the Wells Fargo sta returns to its duties . . . the simple bankin transactions of pioneer California, so eas to list, so hard to carry out amid the law lessness of an untamed frontier!



During Wells Fargo's early days, gol was pouring down from the Sierra and th mining camps of the Mother Lode wer served by this Express and Banking Com pany. At a single Wells Fargo office, i Columbia, during the '50's and '60's, ove $50,000,000 of the precious metal wa weighed. Wells Fargo shipped this treasur east by steamer, via Panama, until Joh Butterfield, associate of the company, me the demand for passage overland. He pro jected a trans-continental stagecoach lin from Little Rock, Arkansas, across th southwest to Los Angeles, thence to Sa Francisco, following the southern rout which the politics of the day dictated Hardly a mile of the route but som obstacle barred the way. Lack of water i the desert . . . Indians on the warpath . . and everywhere, impassable trails to b made into roads. Yet energy and iron wil won. In 1858, the first stages went through California cheered—the East was now onl 23 days away! Three years later, due t the Civil War, the route was moved north via Salt Lake. Soon afterward, the Over and became entirely a Wells Fargo stage ine.

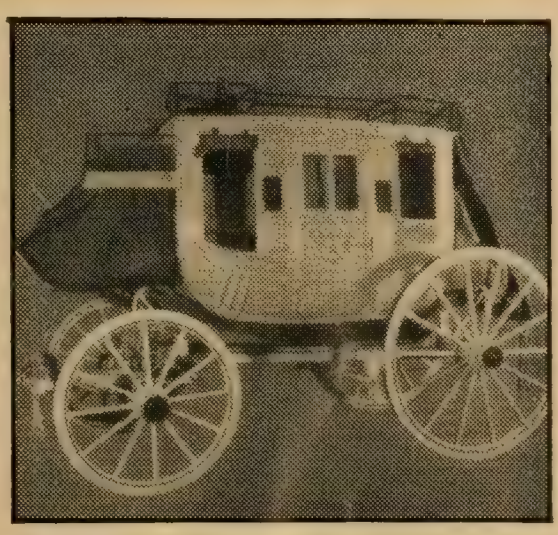
The striving of Westerners for closer nd faster communication lines with their omes and the East fostered another daring ioneer project that in 1861 became part of Wells Fargo's growing business . . . the Pony Express, engineered by Russell, Maors and Waddell—a 2000-mile relay race gainst time, a race in which such fearless ouths as the 16-year-old "Buffalo Bill" Cody and "Pony Bob" Haslam ran the gauntlet of mountain snows, waterless desrts, and hostile Indians . . . to carry the nail from Saint Jo, Missouri, to Sacramento, in 7 days, 17 hours!



Wild country and Indians were not the nly difficulties of pioneer transportation. Jnder the driver's seat of the sturdy Conord coaches, each Wells Fargo driver carried a strongbox—filled with "dust" and ullion, rich prizes to attract highwaymen. Sometimes these rascals were gallant, and would with courtesy reassure nervous lady passengers. More often, they were ruthless, hooting first and talking afterwards. Sometimes the chest was stolen, but more often brave driver or one of Wells Fargo's amous "shot-gun messengers" would outwit r repulse the robbers. Difficulties might nterfere with staging, but not to stop it. That remained for a greater force, the orce of progress. In 1856, the Iron Horse ade its California debut at Sacramento. nd by 1865, the transcontinental railway as begun. Eastward over the Sierra and estward through the Rockies, the rails ushed their way. At Promontory, Utah, he two lines met in 1869. Notables from East and West gathered for the final cereony. As Governor Stanford tapped the st spike into place, it closed a telegraphic ircuit; and throughout the nation, bells choed the hammer strokes. Pioneer days ere over. The modern West was born.

In the years since these colorful beginings, the development of Wells Fargo has aralleled that of the region it serves. Even nto the present century . . . decades after he last stagecoach and Pony Express rider ad disappeared from the Overland Trail . . Wells Fargo & Co. carried on their exress and banking service through a single rganization. Finally, in 1905, the express usiness and the banking house separated. he former is now part of Railway Express gency. The latter, joined the Nevada ational Bank in 1905 to form the Wells argo Nevada National Bank, under the residency of the noted banker, Isias W. ellman. In 1923 came the consolidation with the Union Trust Company, founded 30 years before, the resulting Wells Fargo Bank & Union Trust Co. being the institution of today . . . a metropolitan bank whose 54 departments reflect the complex needs of the modern commercial and industrial West —just as the Wells Fargo of the gold scales, iron-bound strong-boxes, and plunging stagecoaches, reflected the needs of pioneer California.

Henry Wells and Wm. G. Fargo, founders of the famous institution, whose history is so closely interwoven with that of California.—Courtesy Wells Fargo Bank Historical Collection.

A glimpse of the old West may be seen in the Wells Fargo Bank's historical collection at their Market and Montgomery Street office in San Francisco, where many relics and records of California's early pioneer period are displayed. Here may be seen one of the few remaining Concord stagecoaches, a 90-year-old veteran of the Overland Trail. Here also are collections of Pony Express stamps, reminiscent of the days when such letters cost $5 per half ounce plus regular U. S. postage. Early day Colt firearms, old gold mining picks, rockers, mortars and pestles are on display; and an excellent collection of books, photographs, lithographs, manuscripts, reward posters, and other valuable and interesting early records round out the history of those "days of old, days of gold."

Concord stagecoach, a marvel of Yankee ingenuity and craftsmanship, that is on display in the Wells Fargo Bank Historical Collection.

California Salutes Centennial at Monterey of First Newspaper

California observed yet another centennial August 15, when newspaper men and women from all parts of the state met at Monterey to observe the founding of California's first newspaper.

On Saturday, Aug. 15, 1846, the Monterey Californian published its volume one, number one. The Californian was owned by the Rev. Walter E. Colton and Dr. Robert Baylor Semple.

The Californian was a four-page paper, published in two languages—English and Spanish. Page one of the first edition carried this note:

"This is the first paper ever published in California."

On page two, the Californian informed its Spanish speaking readers: "El Californio se publicara cada sabado por la manana. Este es el primer periodico que ha salido a luz en California."

Translated, the notice announced that the California was a weekly published each Saturday morning and was the first to emerge into the light of day in California.

Journalistic and transportation progress were commensurated simultaneously August 15, as reproduction copies of California's first newspaper were flown to Los Angeles, scant hours after they emerged from the same hand press which printed the original issue at Monterey 100 years ago.

Gov. Warren sent copies of the Californian to Los Angeles publishers in care of Trans-World Airline Hostess Vena Thompson, whose plane paused at the pioneer city in its southward trip from San Francisco.

The Monterey-Los Angeles trip was made in 90 minutes. Back in 1846, T.W.A. officials pointed out, it took nine days to cover the same distance on horseback.

The meeting at Monterey was sponsored by the California Newspaper Publishers Association.

LOOK to Greyhound first for PUBLIC RESPONSIBILITY

The people in your community expect the best of Greyhound.

This is as it should be. For when this company undertook, and performed, the job of building a modern, first-class transportation system here in the West, it also accepted, without reservation, the great responsibility that goes with providing a vital public service.

On the strength of its outstanding leadership and its established record of performance, people have a right to expect Greyhound to be the first in everything connected with bus transportation. Greyhound believes that it has lived up to these expectations... that it has proved its deep sense of public responsibility. If this were not so, people would not now confidently expect so much of this company.

Greyhound can be relied upon to continue to justify your confidence. It is part of your community...and proud of it.

ADMISSION DAY

were exhibited from Telegraph Hill and Rincon Point.

The first Admission Day parade and celebration was historic in California, red shirted miners from the diggins, members of Stevenson's Regiment of the Mexican war, trappers and frontiersman helped to make up the colorful group that marched.

The celebration in 1850 had taken place on October 29, because the news of California's admission to the Union came late, but in the years that followed it was celebrated on September 9th.

The Native Sons of the Golden West, since the year they were founded, 1875, have always taken a major part in celebrating this outstanding event, the admission of the golden state of California into the glorious galaxy of states. The Native Sons look forward each year to this historic incident for they are proud of the land of their nativity and take utmost interest in her progress. Their Drill teams, Drum Corps, Drum and Fife Corps and floats have been most colorful. Parades have been held in the larger cities throughout the state such as Santa Rosa, Sacramento, Stockton, Santa Monica, Oakland and others. They will turn out again as they have done in the past on September 9, 1946 to take part in another gala celebration and parade to be held in San Francisco.

The Native Sons of the Golden West will celebrate this event as it commemorates the 96th anniversay of California's Admission into the Union as the thirty-first state.

THE PROGRAM

THE San Francisco Joint Admission Day Committee, Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, reports that the Admission Day Parade, scheduled for Monday, September 9th, is taking form. Many parlors will use Centennial themes for floats. Drum and Bugle Corps and Drill Teams of various Parlors are preparing for their first postwar Admission Day Parade.

The parade is scheduled to start at 11 a. m. Forming in the vicinity of the Ferry Building, it will proceed up Market Street to Grove, via Larkin Street to McAllister, via McAllister to Polk Street, pass the reviewing stand at the City Hall, and proceed to the dispersing area at Hayes Street.

In connection with the statewide celebration in San Francisco, arrangements have been made for the exclusive use of the Margaret Hayward Playground, Golden Gate and Gough Streets, on Sunday, September 8th, where statewide softball competition games will take place under direction of the Grand Parlor Athletic Committee, Lewis A. Giegerich, chairman. A number of trophies have been offered by Grand President R. G. Power and arrangements have been made for twelve teams to compete for the awards.

Likewise, on Sunday, both afternoon and evening, there will be Bowling Contests at the Broadway Bowl, Broadway and Polk Streets, San Francisco, where trophies will be awarded the winners.

On Sunday afternoon the Park Band will present a special Admission Day concert at the bandstand in Golden Gate Park, starting at 2:30. On the afternoon of September 9th, the San Francisco Municipal Band will present a concert at Union Square from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Several Parlors are planning open house during the celebration.

CALIFORNIA Books

The compact volume From Wilderness t Empire, A History of California 1542-190 (Knopf 1944) by Robert Glass Cleland, i a Reader's Digest of California. It bring to the general reader a brief historical pe spective of 358 years that textbook historie obscure in a morass of scholastic detail.

Dr. Cleland, a lifelong student and teach er of California history, thoroughly fami iar with reader-audiences, has wisely dwe with some particularity on such picturesqu phases of California history as the gol rush, the Bear Flag revolt, the bandits c hill and plain, and the barons of financ and railroad; for, in addition to the epi sagas of the Spanish explorers and th Mission Fathers, the Yankee exploits i their time were yet the most lively an moving pages in the story of California.

The period 1900-1940 has been left to new book, as yet untitled, to be publishe next spring, as a companion to the Histor 1542-1900. Each book is to be taken as a entity and may be read independently of th other, but taken together will provide " complete well-rounded history of the State. Instead of dividing the study of the cu tural and literary developments of Califo nia between two volumes, however, D Cleland has reserved this subject for th second book.

The number of sources drawn upon b Professor Cleland is immense, part c which are listed in an Appendix of Desi able Works on California, of some eight eight titles.

Of the Bear Flag revolt, Dr. Clelan says (Josiah Royce notwithstanding), " . . the passage of a century has built abou the revolt a highly romantic tradition, an made it, in the popular mind at least, th means by which California won her inde pendence, and the United States obtaine possession of an incomparable empire o the Pacific Coast."

Dr. Cleland conjures the inevitable Fr mont enigma, and the Pathfinder gains restropective point. Of the state of Fr mont's mind at the crucial moment in 184 when the war with Mexico was imminer he says, " . . . it is clear either that Fr mont considered himself bound, explicitl or by implication, to return to Californi and take such part in forthcoming event as circumstances required, or else that h saw in the situation an opportunity to mak John Charles Frémont the Sam Houston c California." (Italics ours.)

As to whether Frémont made himself "th Sam Houston of California," Dr. Clelan implies the answer in a later chapter dea ing with the ill-fated Yankee filibusters i Mexico of the 1850's, when he writes, "Th imminent annexation of the northern ha of Mexico by the United States, moreove was then generally taken for granted; an that fact in itself was enough to encourag the more reckless and imaginative adver turers to dream of making themselves th Sam Houstons and John C. Frémonts c Sonora or Lower California."

The linking of the names of Houston an Frémont—and in turn with the filibusters— is an illustration of our point when we sa that From Wilderness to Empire is a his torical perspective.

HISTORIC YESTERDAYS ON THE CARMEL-SAN SIMEON HIGHWAY

By HAR LAR

THEY call it the Carmel-San Simeon Highway. It took eighteen years to build and it cost the taxpayers $10,000,000. It's not a high speed road for there are too many awe inspiring sights to see.

It opened up a country that was practically inaccessable. A sea coast whose booming surf and wild grandeur was virtually unknown to land-lubbers. Just to show you what we mean, two herds of the supposedly extinct sea otter were found on this almost forgotten coast. The government protects these sea going mammals together with their fur coats, estimated at a worth of about $1,500 apiece.

Convict labor dug the winding ribbon of road out of the mountainsides. In over one hundred and twenty-five miles the rocky terrain changes from pastel colorings as different as the spectrum of the rainbow.

To the extreme south, where State Highway No. 1 touches Morro Bay, massive Morro Rock towers like the Rock of Gibraltar above the Pacific. It stands 576 feet high. If you stop to take a photograph you are doing only what thousands have done before you, for Morro Rock is one of the most photographed on all our coast.

Some twenty miles north the sparsely covered windswept terrain gives way to green clad hills and you are in Cambria Pines. Years ago this village was settled by Swiss farmers. They came overland, afoot. They tell us that some of the furnishings in these first homes found their way to Cambria around the Horn.

There's a story about Piedras Blancas Lighthouse. It was built in 1874 among the treacherous great white rocks that thrust out into the sea north of Cambria. One of the huge rock formations resembles a giant dog and was so named, "St. Bernard" Rock. Long before the lighthouse was built a lighted tallow lamp was placed each day at sundown on the stone dog's head. The flickering light served as a warning to ships at sea. But when the keeper had returned to his home and retired to bed, pirates would remove the light and place it on shore. They tell us many a ship has cracked up on the white rocks to become easy prey to pirates. Many a chest of Spanish gold has been lost and still lies buried beneath the sands of Cambria's pines.

High on the hill above San Simeon there's a castle. It belongs to William Randolph Hearst. It is an isolated place and visitors are not allowed though there is a private zoo and a picture theater there, built for the guests of the great newspaper magnate. Antiques and statues from all over the world and a famous art collection at one time decorated the halls.

This is cattle country. We saw a bit of the old west when we and some two hundred other cars overtook a "cattle drive." A dozen punchers were hazing a herd of sleek brown white-faced Herefords and their calves to new pastures.

Traffic was slowed to a crawl. Cattle, horses, men and automobiles were milling about in the road ahead. One bawling calf broke away. A well meaning motorist jumped from his car waving his arms to herd it back. A cowboy, swinging a rope,

Hundreds of Native Sons and Daught will journey north by car to help celebr Admission Day in San Francisco. To th that are not in a hurry who like to see w their own eyes the breath-taking sights their beloved California, we recomm State Highway No. 1.

spurred his cowpony about and rode in pursuit. The calf bounded into the brush. A dog, and a sheep dog at that, took the errant one into custody and with a few choice nips at the baby critter's fetlocks herded him back to his frenzied ma.

We made a few technical observations. Cattle will travel at a good five mile clip down hill. Up hill is another story and two miles is a good average. We followed for the better part of an hour before they were turned off the road, a distance of two miles up the highway.

The cowhands, their job finished, sat their horses beside the road. As we leaned out to salute farewell, they waved in friendly return and one voiced a laconical "So long, partner."

It was country that was wildly rugged. The road became a carved shelf along the mountain wall. At times we drove at sea level and again the rocky coast was a thousand feet straight down below us. Great bridges spanned the chasms and suddenly we topped the summit to look down.

They called it "Rio Grande del Sur" for it was the big river to the south of Monterey. Along its banks giant redwoods reach their heads to the heavens. It is the most southernly located grove of redwoods along the coast. These trees are not as old as those in our northmost counties. They are not as high but the largest measures eight and a half feet in diameter which is after all quite a tree. Officially this glorious vacationland is known as the Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. It is located thirty-three miles south of Monterey.

Briefly, the story of the Big Sur began when a trapper named Davis built a cabin. History relates that he sold out to an Indian family by the name of Emmanuel Innocenti. Manuel Mountain was named in their memory.

In 1869 Michel Pfeiffer settled with his family at the mouth of Sycamore Canyon. In those days grizzly bears were far too numerous for comfort. It was a hunter's paradise and beyond the limits of the park it still is. Many of Pfeiffer's descendants still live in this area although John Pfeiffer in 1934 gave and sold to the State of California the land that is now the State Park which bears his name.

No motorist should pass up the Big Sur Resorts. The accommodations are excellent and the meals delicious. It was here that we watched a fisherman with waders and fly rod whipping the stream. Winter finds the big steelhead trout coming up river to spawn. Deer hunters hunt the back country. There are 500 miles of trails in the rugged mountains. Saddle and pack horses are available.

In the park area deer graze peacefully in the meadows. Foxes, 'possums, 'coons and squirrels are numerous. The lordly redwood mingles with sycamore, oak, alder, willow and maple. Pfeiffers Falls make a beautiful picture. There's an old swimming hole to be found at each of the resorts. Frankly, there's nothing so stimulating as a dip in these crystal clear mountain pools.

The road to Monterey is filled with interest. The lighthouse at Point Sur may be visited and arrangements may be made with the Park Rangers to join a conducted tour. It was here that America's lighter than air dirigible, the "Macon," broke up and dropped into the ocean during a storm.

The mailman drives the Star Route to Big Sur three times a week. He snaps his letters tight in the so-called "mousetrap" mailboxes erected by the ranchers. Some of those huge swinging gates that you see leading into the ranches were built years ago. They were made by sinking an Indian mortar rock into the ground and setting the gate's pivot post inside. An iron band around the top of the pivot post and attached to the fence held the gate in position. The Indian grinding bowl made an excellent bearing that did away with hinges.

Point Lobos is another State Park and a side trip worth taking. The largest grove of windswept Monterey cypress is located along this picturesque rugged coast. To movie goers, it was here that they "shot" the scenes of "A Woman of His Own."

There's a road leading inland just north of Point Lobos. It winds its way along Carmel River, up Carmel Valley. These hills are filled with wild boar for they were introduced here some twenty years ago. A wealthy property owner brought twenty-two head from the Black Hills of Germany and turned them loose. Today they stand three feet high at the shoulders and dress out over four hundred pounds. A record set of tusks measured 9⅞ inches in length.

They feed on acorns, fatten up on Carmel Valley corn and summer in the hayfields. It's open season on this wild pork the year around. A conservative estimate places the various droves at well over a thousand head. They actually thrive better here than they did in their native habitat, Germany. It would seem that these boars are armor plated. There's an inch of hide covering the vulnerable spots at neck and shoulders. It takes a high powered rifle to safely kill one and a thirty calibre is just about the right size. Be sure and don't miss. A wounded boar is worse than a grizzly.

OUR COVER

In the 1870's when San Francisco mining and railroad millionaires began building mansions on Nob Hill, Andrew S. Hallidie, a Scotsman and wire-rope manufacturer of this city, invented the cable car to climb the city's hills.

Today, the cable cars, with their jangling bells—often converted into a tune by the "gripman" in a gay mood—are more than a means of climbing up and down the storied hills. They are a tradition of the olden, golden years—a beloved carry-over of yesterday, linking the present with the past. In the '90's there were 112 miles of trackage; today only 23 miles are in use.

This view is of California St. The cars pass through the financial district and Chinatown, and westward to and beyond Nob Hill. In the distance is a glimpse of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

Commander Scott
Dear Sir:

Have just finished reading your "Romance of the Highways" and being a Native of this Golden State, will say it is interesting and very descriptive of the places, as I have visited several. I think everyone should read it, especially the Native Sons and Daughters. They would learn lots of things that they do not know about our state. I take the Grizzly Bear and look forward to your articles in it.

Wishing you success, and hoping all Parlors of the Native Sons and Daughters will secure a copy. It's wonderful for the Historical Committee.

Sincerely,
C. Babcock

INDIAN ARTIST'S WORK TO BE SHOWN AT SOUTHWEST MUSEUM

The Southwest Museum will reopen September 1st with a Special Exhibit of paintings by the versatile Cherokee Indian artist Waano Gano. His work runs the gamut from highly stylized decorative designs drawn from American Indian themes through dramatic but accurate representations of persons, costumes and ceremonies of various tribes, to unique mystical interpretations of Indian folklore and methology. Recently Waano Gano completed some spectacular murals for Western Air Lines and his striking decorations are attractive features of the company's planes. During the war he turned out a number of attractive posters for the Government.

Closed during August for alterations The Southwest Museum will be open daily except Mondays after September 1st from 1 to 5 P.M. It may be reached by the "W" car in Los Angeles. Admission is free.

HISTORIC YESTERDAYS

everywhere set up their easels to paint the lone rock bound cypress. This beautiful but treacherous coast is the graveyard of many ships. Buoys keep up their mourning fog-horn calls, warning the ships at sea that here is danger.

It is on one of these rocky islands that another throaty fog horn bark may be heard. Here the leopard seals reside, sharing their rocky retreat with thousands of sleek black cormorants.

The day was gone when we finally found lodging in historic Monterey. Across the quiet night came a bugle call. On the Presidio taps were being played. We had driven the California State Highway No. 1 and scenically we'll rate it just that way.

You guessed it. Our August cover was an old cypress on Monterey's famous Seventeen Mile Drive. The photo was taken by Julian P. Graham, Menlo Park.

Southern Homeless Children Committee Sponsors Concert

To augment the fund of the Southern Counties Committee on Homeless Children, all Native Sons and Daughters' parlors of Southern California have joined in the sale of tickets for a vocal performance to be given by Maria Kurenko, internationally known lyric soprano, the night of Oct. 1 in Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Every dollar above actual expenses, which are being held to a minimum, will go to the Southern Counties Committee for its highly important humanitarian work, says Mrs. Florence Grass, financial secretary of the committee, who is chairman of the event.

Tickets now are selling in virtually all parlors of NSGW and NDGW throughout the southern counties, with special committees appointed to push the sales. In many parlors large special parties are being formed to include members and friends, who will attend the Kurenko program in a body.

Not only is a splendid evening of musical entertainment in prospect, but an important financial step will be taken in helping raise funds for the Southern Counties Committee's work. The distinguished vocalist, who has American and European triumphs to her credit, is know for her beautiful renditions of operatic, folk and American melodies of the highest standards.

While all members of the Southern Counties committee are working on the project, among leaders in addition to Mrs. Grass are: Woody Wade, chairman; Anna T. Schiebusch and Frank Munro, vice chairmen; Flora Holy, treasurer; Elaine Gillenberg, recording secretary; W. O. Gilkey, Hazel B. Hansen and Frank Ruiz.

NATIVE SONS INSTITUTE NEW PARLOR AT WHITTIER

Impressive Institution Ceremonies Are Conducted in "City of Friends" at William Penn Hotel, With University Parlor Putting on Initiation Before Grand Officers.

With a charter class of 56 members Whittier Parlor No. 297, Native Sons of the Golden West, was instituted Thursday evening, August 15, at Whittier at the William Penn Hotel, in one of the most impressive institutional ceremonies of recent years, by Grand President R. G. Power and his staff of Grand Officers.

The initiatory work of the Order was put on by the Initiatory Team of University Parlor No. 272 in one of the smoothest and most creditable initiations yet given at a parlor institution.

Highlite of the evening was when David W. Stuart of Arrowhead No. 110, San Bernardino, Supervising Deputy of District No. 1, installed the new officers. He conducted the 40 minute installation ceremony charging the officers with their respective duties without ever once having to be prompted or to refer to notes. Assisting Stuart were Donald E. Van Luven of Arrowhead No. 110, acting marshal; and Hugh Spaulding of University No. 272, organist.

The pre-institutional work was done by the capable organization team of Woody Wade, University Parlor No. 272; Howard Woodward, Montebello Parlor No. 277 and John M. Johnston, Mother Colony No. 281. This trio has the largest record for the institution of new parlors in the Order. They were highly commended by Grand President R. G. Power for their work in the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, especially with regard to Whittier Parlor, which marks the fourth parlor instituted in Los Angeles County since the Grand President came into office last May. He stressed the fact that these men serve without pay, but work for love of the Order. The Grand President also complimented Supervising Deputy John A. Schwam of District No. 2 and other members of the Order who aided in the pre-organizational work and in the institution.

Dr. John Norton is charter president of Whittier Parlor No. 297; Roy Rowland, senior past president; Robert J. Allan, junior past president; Robert Amsbury, first vice-president; Eugene R. Conly, second vice-president; Roy Morris, third vice-president; Wilbur Evans, marshal; Joe Smith, inside sentinel; Robert Tudor, outside sentinel; James Dyer, recording secretary; John Bullis, financial secretary; Charles C. Gaylord, treasurer; Ellwood Munger, John Didier and Ken Varner, trustees.

Time and place of meeting of Whittier Parlor No. 297 had not yet been selected as this issue of the Grizzly Bear went to press.

The City of Whittier was founded on May 11, 1887, and was incorporated on January 19, 1897. Whittier was formed by members of the Society of Friends, and was named after the Quaker poet, John Greenleaf Whittier.

The city is built on the gentle slope at the foot of the Puente Hills among orange, lemon, walnut, and avocado groves. It is just a thirty minute drive to Los Angeles and forty minutes from the mountains and beaches.

Whittier is famed for its home and educational advantages, for its horticultural products, and for industries specializing in the manufacturing of oil well tools and equipment.

Educationally, Whittier is considered among the best. The school system is as fine as you will find anywhere in California. Whittier College is well and favorably known as an institution of the highest academic recognition, and even more important with a Christian philosophy of education and a heritage of Quaker concern for the social order.

Homeless Children CORNER

By Leonard Schwacofer

The second annual drive to the general public outside the membership of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, for funds to support the work of the Central Committee on Homeless Children will start September 9th, according to Hazel B. Hansen, Campaign Chairman.

Pointing out that administrative costs have taken another upward swing since last year's drive, Mrs. Hansen emphasized the importance of all parlors throughout California supporting this most worthwhile project which, for the first time in the history of the Native Sons and Daughters, last year appealed for funds outside the memberships of those two pioneer organizations of California-born men and women.

Because of the limitations that the Central Committee might experience in carrying out their work in view of these rising costs, the State Welfare Bureau which regularly licenses the adoption work carried on by the Native Sons and Daughters has issued a license for only the last half of the current year, Mrs. Hansen also stated.

"There is no need to describe the wonderful service the Central Committee has rendered in the past to thousands of orphans and children from broken homes; that story is familiar to nearly every member of the Native Sons and Native Daughters," declared Mrs. Hansen. "But we do need to tell non-members—our friends and neighbors who know little or nothing about the good we have done in the past and are now doing for these poor, unfortunate youngsters. We must cease hiding our candle under a bushel and let others know about this work so they may share in its support. I would like to urge every Parlor to do its utmost to make this year's fund drive through the sale of stamps, an outstanding success so that we can retain our adoption agency and be permitted to continue in this, our greatest work."

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

The biggest news for this month is the announcement of a Membership Contest. Grand 1st Vice President Odemar, Chairman of this committee, and its members have spent a great deal of time and thought on the contest this year. It will be along the lines of the one conducted in 1945. Quotas will be the same as last year to qualify, for prizes, but the candidates for an extra month will be counted. The contest starts August 1 and ends December 31. Placques and prizes will be awarded to the Parlors in the various divisions and in addition individual contests will be included with substantial prizes. Full details will be found in another article in this issue of the Grizzly Bear. All District Deputies and Parlor Officers are expected to be familiar with the contest rules and to aid in every way in its promotion.

ITINERARY

My Itinerary for August was omitted in the "Notes" last issue, so here it is:

Aug. 6—Santa Barbara — Grand Officers Initiation
Aug. 7, 8—Santa Barbara Fiesta
Aug. 11—San Jose — Observatory Parlor Barbecue
Aug. 12—Montebello (Grand Officers Initiation)
Aug. 13—Los Angeles Stars and Stripes Centennial
Aug. 14—University Parlor and South Gate Parlor (Grand Officers Initiation)
Aug. 15—Whittier—New Parlor (Los Angeles County)
Aug. 16—Los Angeles—Deputies at Large organization meeting
Aug. 19—Pasadena—Initiation
Aug. 20—New Parlor, El Cajon (San Diego County)
Aug. 29—Riverside—New Parlor.
Sept. 7—San Francisco — Grand Officers meeting
Sept. 9—San Francisco—Admission Day
Sept. 10—Santa Rosa—Grand Officers initiation
Sept. 11—Fort Bragg—Grand Officers Initiation
Sept. 12—Ukiah—Grand Officers Initiation
Sept. 13—Ferndale—Grand Officers Initiation
Sept. 14—Weaverville—Grand Officers Initiation
Sept. 16—Red Bluff—New Parlor
Sept. 17—Oroville—Grand Officers Initiation

The Los Angeles Trio, Wade, Johnston and Woodward, have come forth with another new Parlor at Whittier. That's four for them already this term. But a little competition is developing under the joint leadership of Supervising Deputy Dave Stuart and Grand Inside Sentinel Walter Hiskey; Cuyamaca Parlor at El Cajon, ten miles west of San Diego, goes in August 20 and, not to stop there, Stuart also has Riverside Parlor slated on August 29. That is certainly a grand showing for the new Supervisor, especially when the map shows El Cajon 100 miles from his home at San Bernardino and Riverside about 15 miles.

Riverside Parlor should benefit greatly by being so close to Arrowhead Parlor at San Bernardino as the latter is one of the largest and most active in the Order. The new Brothers will have a place to visit where there is something doing all the time. On the other hand, Arrowhead Parlor can very conveniently sponsor the new Parlor and help them on the road to a full and active Native Son life. This should really develop into a number of new Parlors in this fine district and don't be surprised if something like that should happen.

RADIO COMMITTEE

Hugh Ryan of Pacific Parlor No. 10 in San Francisco heads a new Radio Committee which we hope will be functioning in the near future in such a way that our Order will receive its fair share of this kind of publicity. The newspapers have always been more than kind to us and the prospects of many fine radio programs seem excellent. The other members of the Committee are Earl Covey, Quartz Parlor No. 58; Guy Foulks, Elk Grove Parlor No. 41; John Schwam, Ramona Parlor No. 109; Lloyd Tiernan, San Luis Obispo Parlor No. 290; Robert L. Owen, Pacific Parlor No. 10.

CENTENNIALS

Still the centennials roll along. The one at San Diego on July 30 was another excellent affair and almost entirely in the hands of the Native Sons from that city. Grand 1st Vice President Walter Odemar delivered one of the main talks on the program there, and his subject was "California's Future" and from all reports was very interesting and timely.

Your Grand Officers are slated for several parts in the program at Los Angeles on Tuesday, August 13, just three days after these "notes" are written. A report on this will be in the next issue.

ADMISSION DAY

In accordance with the Grand Parlor Constitution "Greetings" are hereby sent to all Parlors and all members of the Order, calling attention to Admission Day, which should be celebrated throughout the state. The official celebration this year will be held in San Francisco on September 9 and promises to be one of the biggest and finest ever. All members who possibly can are urged to participate in this great day and action.

PASADENA PARLOR NO. 296 ENTERTAINS WITH BARBECUE

Native Sons and Daughters from all over southern California journeyed to Tournament Park, Pasadena, Sunday, July 29, where the then "Baby" Parlor of the Order put on its first public function, an all-day barbecue, which resulted in nearly $300 being added to its treasury.

An outstanding success, the event was even more remarkable in that a parlor not yet 30 days old, attempted and put across an affair of this magnitude, which should serve as an inspiration to other parlors.

There were ball games in the morning, a splendid barbecue at noon with plenty for all. In the afternoon a fine program of early California days was put on by Los Fiestadores, a group of southland young people banded together to preserve the dances and songs of that by-gone day of the Spanish Dons.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO PARLOR HOLDS FIRST ANNUAL RODEO

On July 27 and 28, 1946 South San Francisco Parlor held its first annual Rodeo, at the Bay Shore Stadium, next to the Cow Palace, in Bay Shore City, San Mateo County, just a few feet from the San Francisco County Line.

The word "rodeo" has always brought to mind cowboys riding wild horses and steers, and other thrilling death-defying acts which chill the blood and freeze the marrow of the city-dweller, whose most death-defying stunt is to jump on a crowded, moving streetcar, which invariably does not stop for more passengers.

This fact is not without cause or reason, for many of the phases of a rodeo do amaze the spectators into believing that the performers are doing humanly impossible feats.

But a rodeo has not always been a show with all its glamour and thrills, which amuse one and all. Rodeos were originally roundups for branding out on the range. Far from the shows which enthrall thousands of spectators yearly were these long days of hard roping, hard riding, little sleep, and branding with a red-hot iron. The rodeo in its present form first made its appearance in Denver in the late eighteen-nineties. The public acclaimed these new types of circuses, and it was no mere matter of chance that they rose to the heights which they today have attained.

From these first crude rodeos, where the show was put on more for the fun of the participants than the spectators, have evolved our present day rodeos with their bands, clowns, and professional riders and ropers, whose prizes sometimes reach the proportions of thousands of dollars in a single performance.

It is proper then, to doff our hats to the men who ride horses which are determined not to be ridden; to the men who wrestle with thousand-pound steers; and to the keen-eyed men who can wrap a rope around a horse's neck or a steer's horns from an incredible distance, for they carry on the traditions of what was once known as the Wild and Wooly West!

Thus South San Francisco Parlor plans to keep another old western tradition alive by planning and conducting a truly western rodeo annually.

REDWOOD PARLOR CELEBRATES SIXTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY

Redwood Parlor No. 66, Redwood City, celebrated its 61st birthday Thursday evening, August 15. Art Blomquist and his Good of the Order Committee had charge of preparing the dinner, with the Hill-Billies having charge of the music and arranging the program.

The Parlor was instituted on Thursday evening, August 15, 1885. The late Dr. Charles W. Decker, then Grand President presided. It was a stormy night, with rain and hail. Still, it is reported, every charter member showed up for the institution. A dinner was served after the ceremonies, which, according to local legend, lasted until early morning.

San Jose Parlor No. 22, NSGW, is now meeting at the Elks Hall, First and St. John Streets, San Jose. The Drum Corps of the Parlor is busy practicing for the Admission Day Parade, September 9th, in San Francisco.

NATIVE SON PARLORS TO COMPETE FOR AWARDS IN MEMBERSHIP CONTEST ENDING DECEMBER 31

Grand President R. G. Power, Native Sons of the Golden West, has authorized the Grand Parlor Membership Committee to conduct a membership contest between the various parlors of the Order, for members initiated between August 31 and December 31, 1946.

The parlors have been grouped into divisions according to their membership on December 31, 1945, and those parlors instituted in 1946, according to the number of members in the respective parlors on the date of the close of the charter. The Grand Secretary's office will send each parlor a bulletin in which will be found the divisions in which all of the parlors of the Order will compete. Each division is given a minimum number of members necessary to qualify for a prize to be given by the Grand President, and each parlor making that minimum will receive a placard indicating its qualification. And the parlor receiving the greatest percentage of net increase between August 1 and December 31, 1946, in each division will receive a cash prize in addition to the placard. Division quotas are the same as last year, but candidates initiated during August of this year shall be counted, whereas, the contest commenced on September 1 last year.

As a special incentive to individual members to go out and work for the parlor, an additional prize in the form of a Government Bond will be given to every member in the parlor who sponsors and has initiated before December 31, 1946, the minimum number of candidates required for a parlor in the division in which his parlor is found.

Individuals belonging to a parlor of 50 or less members who sponsor and have initiated the quota required for their parlors will receive a $25.00 Government Bond and those sponsoring and having initiated the minimum quota in the other division will receive a $50.00 Government Bond.

As an added incentive to members of parlors which did not initiate any candidates during 1945, the Grand President will give an additional award to the member of such parlor, who sponsors and has initiated into his parlor two or more candidates before the end of this calendar year.

The members of the Membership Committee know that it is not necessary to offer personal awards to members of our Order to bring in new members, but feel, nevertheless, that the granting of special awards may in some way compensate the member for such expense as he may be put to in procuring the required number and is a form of special recognition.

The membership records of the Grand Secretary indicate that 1946 is a banner year, and that eligibles throughout the State are anxious to join our Order. The Centennials, which have been celebrated throughout the State this year, have given our Order tremendous popular publicity, and eligibles appear to have more knowledge of the principles and purposes of the Native Sons of the Golden West than ever before.

It is the sincere hope of all of the members of this committee that many prizes will be issued to members in all of the divisions for the efforts shown by them as individuals and that the rivalry between parlors in the several divisions will be keen. Publicity will be given from time to time showing the position of the various parlors in the several divisions so that each may know if his parlor is in the running.

Merit Awards by the Safety Council and American Railway Express were made to Aaron Lewis, Francis McCormick and Donald Schofield, members of Fruitvale Parlor No. 252, NSGW, Oakland, for driving on the streets of Oakland without an accident during 1945. All three are drivers for the Railway Express. Another member of the Parlor, Sergeant Eddie Ray of the Oakland Police Dept., has been appointed lieutenant of the Oakland Police Dept. Air Patrol, the only city that has an Air Patrol.

University Parlor No. 272, Los Angeles, was host to Montebello Parlor, August 14, upon the occasion of the visit of Grand President R. G. Power and his corps of Grand Officers. University also exemplified the ritual at the institution of Whittier Parlor, Thursday evening, August 15. On Saturday evening, August 17, the parlor had an old-fashioned hayride party in conjunction with Centinela Parlor at the Fox Hills Riding Academy.

PACIFIC DRUM CORPS TAKES PRIZES AT SONOMA AND MONTEREY EVENTS

The Grizzly Bear Magazine salutes the Blue and White Legion Drum Corps of Pacific Parlor No. 10, NSGW, San Francisco.

This post-war reorganized aggregation of well trained members of Pacific Parlor, under the able leadership of Hugh E. Ryan, is steadily gaining distinction and constantly winning honors for themselves and prestige for the Parlor.

At the Bear Flag Centennial in Sonoma they drew much applause for their appearance and came home with an attractive trophy.

Going to the American Flag Centennial in Monterey they made an even more spectacular appearance and were awarded the first prize, $50 in cash.

From the moment of their arrival at Monterey, Saturday afternoon, July 6, the Blue and White Legion was busily engaged in performing for the thousands of celebrants gathered there. High-lighting their afternoon performance was their serenade of Governor and Mrs. Earl Warren, at Colton Hall, the first state capital under the American Flag, where a reception was being held honoring our Governor. The Governor and Mrs. Warren were escorted to the balcony of Colton Hall by Lew Giegerich.

Placerville Parlor Observes Founding 65 Years Ago

Observance of the 65th anniversary of Placerville Parlor No. 9, Native Sons of the Golden West was occasion for celebration August 12th when members of the parlor met to greet its only living charter member, George Hofmeister, of Oakland.

Mr. Hofmeister, who is rightly proud of his eighty years entertained the gathering in informal reminiscenses of his early years in Placerville and gave many interesting highlights of the founding of the parlor in 1881. It was he who was instrumental in banding together the first group of Native Sons.

The program was opened by President Gordon Van Vleck who greeted members of Marguerite Parlor of the Native Daughters and other invited guests and presented Past Grand President Henry S. Lyon. Mr. Lyon presented fifty year pins to nine members who have held membership for fifty years or more. Those who were present to be so honored were William F. Kelley, James Keane, S. C. Larsen, T. F. Lewis, Edward J. Sheppard, Perry S. Tracy and William P. Wilkinson. Mrs. Edwin M. Christian accepted a pin in behalf of her husband who was unable to attend.

Other members to whom pins were to be presented but who were unable to be present were E. L. Bosquit, A. S. Fox, J. E. Fox, J. W. Hume, J. F. McKee, W. L. Manning and O. O. Reeg. J. A. Brown was presented with a twenty-five year pin.

Following the responses of the fifty-year members, Elsworth A. Williard, Grand Trustee, spoke briefly to the gathering of some of the history and accomplishments of Placerville Parlor and of the responsibility it has in perpetuating the early history of California and El Dorado County.

Orson Laam during the course of the evening presented a number of songs accompanying himself on the guitar.

The evening was closed with refreshments in the banquet room.

California Parlor No. 1 has a softball team entered in the Native Sons Softball League which opened June 9 at the Margaret Hayward Playground. For the first two weeks it is reported that California's team took an awful dumping. However, on June 23, with a full team in action, they trounced Pete Butti's Castro "B" team, 14-4.

NEW FACE AND FACADE FOR NATIVE SONS BUILDING

The main floor, the mezzanine and facade of the Native Sons of the Golden West Building in San Francisco are undergoing vast changes and improvements.

In the premises, occupied for almost four years by the Stage Door Canteen, there is rapidly taking form a magnificent little motion picture theatre, which will be devoted exclusively to the exhibition of deluxe film productions obtained from the major studios here and abroad.

The theatre has been leased by Irving C. Ackerman, a native Californian, whose parents were native Californians, for many years a nationally known Pacific Coast Theatre operator. It's name will be the Stage Door Theatre.

The auditorium on the main floor, as well as the lounging rooms on the mezzanine, will be unusual in decor, giving one the impression of an elegant, spacious home, with all the comfort of a drawing room.

The theatre is being equipped in its entirety with deluxe loge chairs, an innovation in San Francisco theatre history. Each row of seats is separated a distance of more than forty inches from the row in front, rendering it unnecessary for the patron to rise to permit others to pass into or out of the row. Deep-piled carpets beneath the seats will insure perfect quiet. The theatre will be air-conditioned. And the latest model equipment in the projection rooms will insure perfection of the images on the screen and latest improvements in wide-range sound.

The opening attraction is to be the superb British Shakesperian production, "Henry V", starring Lawrence Olivier. This Technicolor masterpiece, sponsored by the Theatre Guild of New York, was brought to America by the United Artists Corporation, and thus far has been exhibited in but three cities in the United States: Boston, where it is in its eighteenth week, New York, eighth week, and Los Angeles, seventh week, each of these cities holding it over for long runs. The picture will be shown twice daily, at 2:30 and 8.30 p.m., all seats reserved.

The basement of the Native Sons Building, with a separate entrance thereto, is being converted into a modern restaurant, soon to be opened by a company, headed by the well known restauranteur and caterer, Sam Miller. It will be known as "Coffee Dan's". This name for the new restaurant will bring to the minds of the older generation memories of a famous San Francisco institution, which flourished for many years.

Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, NSGW, Anaheim, will observe Adimission Day with its annual joint meeting with Grace Parlor, NDGW, at the Elks Club, Anaheim, Tuesday evening, September 10. Pioneer Days will be the theme with the featured speaker being one of the drivers of the 20-Mule Team Death Valley Borax Days.

On Tuesday evening, Sept. 17, the Parlor will present its first dance and card party of the season at the Anaheim Ebell Club.

Compton Parlor No. 273, NSGW, made a gala occasion of its installation of officers July 18 by Dr. John Schwam. A buffet lunch and dance followed the ceremonies which were well attended. Eppie Gomez heads the parlor for the new term.

The bowling team of Stephen M. White No. 263, NSGW, is still going strong with a few more hits than misses. The Parlor under President Dewey Brickey has a full program outlined for the coming weeks.

Best Wishes!

PAST PRESIDENTS' ASSOCIATIONS HOLD JOINT INSTALLATION

The officers of the Past Presidents' Association No. 1, Native Daughters of San Francisco, and the General Assembly of Past Presidents, Native Sons, were recently installed jointly in the Grizzly Bear Club rooms, San Francisco. 150 members and friends witnessed the ceremonies presided over by Past President Strohmeier and Brother Edward Klease. Anne Godfrey of El Vespero Parlor and Lewis Giegerich of Pacific Parlor became presidents of their respective associations.

The following Native Daughter officials were present: Grand President Loretta Cameron, Grand Trustee Dorothy Donafrio, Grand Trustee Jewel McSweeney, Grand Outside Sentinel Ruth Trusdale, Grand Organist Francis Simas; Past Grand Presidents, Emily E. Ryan, Mae Himes Noonan, Mae C. Boldemann, Evelyn I. Carlson; and S.D.D.G.P. of San Francisco County Beatrice Nishkain. The Native Sons were represented by Grand Third Vice-President Peter Conmy.

Presentations were made to Miss Godfrey by Grand Trustee Jewel McSweeney and Audrey Cohn, president of Dolores Parlor.

The program featured vocal selections by Wm. Sullivan and Miss Wardelle May of Dolores Parlor, who were accompanied by Grand Organist Francis Simas at the piano. A choral group composed of Vivien Brown, Helen Lunny and Juanita Moran of Dolores Parlor and Grand Organist Francis Simas, directed their spritely numbers to the past presidents. Mae O'Keefe accompanied the group.

The club rooms and refreshment tables were made attractive by colorful blooms, and the officers of both associations were recipients of corsages and buttoniers made and donated by Augusta Huxsol. The committee in charge of arrangements was headed by Past Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson and James Stanley of Stanford Parlor.

LOS ANGELES PARLOR PLANS TRIPS TO HISTORICAL SITES

Olive Hedges, newly installed president of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW, announces a program for the coming year featuring efforts to encourage increased attendance at meetings and greater participation in parlor activities.

More social events are planned, she said, than in any one of the past four years, when the parlor dedicated itself heavily to war work. She also plans a widespread effort to reinterest members, who although they have paid dues regularly have appeared rarely at recent meetings.

"Trips to southern California historical sites, a carnival, dances, picnics, dinners and other social affairs will be scheduled throughout the year," she announces, "as well as several informal theater parties."

Two events already assigned dates are a party Sept. 18 to follow the regular meeting and an old-style family picnic supper at San Fernando Mission, from 5 to 8 p.m., Sept. 22.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

As many of you know, we were involved in an automobile accident while returning home from the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons' at Hoberg's.

We received a great deal of assistance at the scene of the accident from various members, many of whom did not leave their names, and we were therefore unable to thank personally. During our illness we received more than two hundred fifty letters of sympathy, regards and wishes for a speedy recovery.

It is our desire to sincerely thank every one who assisted us, and also all those who so thoughtfully wrote, telephoned, telegraphed and sent flowers, and we can think of no more fitting way in which to publicly express our thanks than through the medium of the official paper of the Order, and we believe that the fraternal feelings, sympathy and help so freely tendered to us, is a splendid and shining example of the great feeling of brotherhood which our two Orders inculcate into their membership.

Again please accept our sincere thanks.

Fraternally yours,

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Corotto

San Francisco, Calif.
June 30, 1946.

The Grizzly Bear Magazine,
338 West Center St.
Anaheim, California.

Dear Editor Schwacofer: It gives me great pleasure to write this letter of thanks in behalf of the Native Daughters of the Golden West of San Francisco, and the S. F. County Extension of the Order.

Hospitality House in San Francisco was built for the entertainment of servicemen before the war began, and from the beginning the Native Daughters have taken a most active part in its work, staffing the canteen and furnishing excellent refreshments.

Mrs. Emily E. Ryan, Past President of the NDGW of the State of California, was our active member, and Mrs. Ann S. Dipple, State Chairman of Civic Participation, also a fine loyal worker in behalf of these uniformed men and women. Mrs. Ruby D. Bried was appointed Hospitality Chairman by the S. F. County Extension of the Order and has maintained a fine committee of one hundred volunteer workers until the very last of our existence. All these fine Native Daughters have contributed greatly to the success of our work, and between twelve and fourteen million men were cheered and graciously entertained during the trying days of the war, and ever since have continued their diligent efforts to make the boy "feel at home" away from his own home and environment.

The daughters of members have done a fine piece of work in acting as junior hostesses for dancing, both at large formal dances and in the impromptu dancing in Hospitality House nightly.

Again we want to express our deep gratitude for wonderful cooperation with your organization.

Sincerely yours,

ROSE M. McCOOK,
Supervisor of Activities.

ANNA BURR

A golden link in the chain of friendship has been severed and another of our members has passed to the great beyond.

We revere the memory of our sister Anna Burr, a member and past president of Hiawatha Parlor No. 140, an ardent worker who contributed years of faithful service to the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Her devotion to her family, her loyalty to her friends, her pleasing personality, her cheerful manner all endeared her to those who knew her.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the family of our departed sister.

They never quite leave us,
Those who have passed
From the sunlight of earth
To the shadows beyond.
A thousand sweet memories
Are holding them fast
To the places they blessed
With their presence and love.

Your committee respectfully submits the foregoing to be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor with copies to be given to the family of our deceased sister.

ELLA JO EATON

Your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late sister Ella Jo Eaton, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved sister Ella Jo Eaton, and

Whereas, in view of the loss we have sustained and of the greater loss sustained by those nearest and dearest to her,

Be It Resolved: that though we bow in humble submission to the divine will, we deeply feel our loss in being deprived of her presence and loving friendship and know that the memory of her noble life will be an inspiration and help to us for all time, for

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die."

To the bereaved family we extend our sincere sympathy and commend them for consolation to Him who doeth all things well, and

Be it further resolved that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of Hiawatha Parlor and that a copy be sent to the family of our deceased sister.

Respectfully Submitted:

FRANCES HARRELL

To the Officers and Members of
Forrest Parlor No. 86, NDGW:

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late Sister Frances Harrell, do submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has erased from our Roll a most esteemed and beloved member of our Parlor and that her gentle voice, now stilled, will be missed by us, by the public in general who has heard her voice for the past 15 years over the telephone wires of our State and by her family in the home.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved family and to her many friends our deep and sincere sympathy in this great loss, and

Be It Further Resolved, That we send a copy of these resolutions to her family, a copy to be spread on the minutes of the Parlor and a copy sent to the Grizzly Bear for publication.

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

The first two days of October 1871 were the hottest in San Francisco of the year. The thermometer reached 90 in the afternoons and fell only to 68 during the nights. A brilliant meteor, coming from the southeast, passed over the city at 9:49 p.m. October 3 and apparently exploded, with a loud report, over Marin County. As it was seen and heard at Shasta, its place of explosion is in doubt.

A heavy northwest gale began blowing October 8 and prevailed until the 13th, making a disagreeable condition and doing much damage. The new Presbyterian church at Brooklyn, Alameda County, was blown down and a $10,000 loss sustained.

October 17 a terrific sandstorm prevailed in Los Angeles County. It was the worst experienced since '49, and it was followed by another the 28th equally severe; heavy loss to stock-raisers was caused.

The great Chicago fire, which burned that city October 8-9, caused a sensation in the state, especially in San Francisco, owing to many of the citizens having investments and relatives there. $100,000 was raised in a few days in the city and nearly as much in the state outside to aid the sufferers from the calamity. Several fire insurance companies, organized by San Francisco capitalists, were heavy losers on policies issued there, and some were thought to have become bankrupt.

Great forest fires in the foothills and mountains of the Sierra Nevada range were burning from Tehachapi to Siskiyou, and had been blazing for a month or more, causing great destruction and a smoky atmosphere.

The hop kiln on the Bird ranch near San Jose was burned October 2 with ten tons of hops, causing a $25,000 loss.

A fire broke out in the hills near Calistoga, Napa County, that swept with a north wind many square miles of the land thereabout, destroying houses, barns, fences and trees and causing many thousands of dollars loss during the second week of the month.

The small mining town of Pine Grove, Sierra County, October 19 had its business section and Chinatown burned by a fire that started in the woods half a mile away. Two expensive flumes were also partially destroyed.

Wm. Watt, a prominent mining man of Nevada County, wagered a frog-leg breakfast with William Hamilton, the stage-line man, that H. H. Haight would be re-elected governor. He gave the breakfast at the Frog Leg Club House, near Grass Valley, October 1. There were present: A. A. Surgent, Judge Riordon, Rufus Shoemaker and about 30 other prominent politicians and business men invited by Hamilton to be Watt's guests. The menu was superb, the wines the best to be had, and the breakfast lasted from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., with speeches and anecdotes galore.

A lad named Weeks discovered a vein of coal one inch wide on his father's ranch eight miles east of Santa Rosa, Sonoma County. A shaft sunk ten feet found the vein widened to twelve inches, and great expectations were formed of its future development.

The government sent a special car under guard from Washington, D.C., with $3,000,000 in greenbacks to replace the mutilated currency on the Pacific Coast.

A citizen of Vallejo became the owne a game-cock and challenged his friends produce one that could give it a battle. H was willing to wager 2 to 1 on his rooste The defi was accepted by a sporting man and when the fowls came at each other i the pit, the game-cock was soon put out o the fight. Much chagrined, the day after th battle the owner made an examination o his supposed champion and found its ab domen full of bullets.

HOLMANS OF PACIFIC GROVE CELEBRATE 55TH ANNIVERSARY

The Holmans of Pacific Grove are cele brating their 55th anniversary. To relat the history of the largest California de partment store between San Francisco an Los Angeles is to tell the story of Pacifi Grove.

A genial bewhiskered gentleman, R. I Holman, with impressive sideburns, chi whiskers and mustache, arrived bag an baggage on the peninsula in 1888. Success ful in a wholesale business located in Sac ramento, it was his firm intention to re tire.

The butterflies found Pacific Grove a lon time before the Methodists. However, th good church people of San Francisco wer so pleased with the area that they immedi ately settled and in 1887 the city wa founded. Four years later in '91 Holman' Department Store came into being.

It would hardly seem that one of th largest stores of its kind in Californi would thrive in the easy going Pacifi Grove. The little city is definitely a hom folks town. They have no great metropoli aspirations. It's even against the law t chop down on private property, one of th town's lovely trees. Reminiscent of th towns of yesterday is the city's mai street where they still park automobile in the middle of the road.

Be that as it may, Holman's has grow through the years. Today R. L.'s son an daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ho man, are in charge of the store's destin Vernon Hurd is General Manager. Th building covers an entire block three storie high. Contains forty-six departments an a mail order department that caters t customers across the nation.

Governor Earl Warren who heads the Advisory Board of Central Committee on Homeless Children, is shown with group of youngsters for whom foster parents have been found through Central Committee's efforts. Himself a Native Son, the Chief Executive long has been deeply interested in this joint activity of the NSGW and NDGW.

From April 1, 1945, to March 31, this year, 625 children were served by the Committee. Those given nursery or temporary boarding home care, numbered 510, while 2664 were placed for adoption. The number of children under supervision pending legal adoption, who were placed during the previous year, was 237, and the number for whom legal adoptions were completed during the year, was 196. Through the Committee's efforts, 91 children were retained by natural parents, and only 35 could not be placed for adoption.

Governor Earl Warren, himself a Native Son and long interested in the activities of the Central Committee, again this year heads the Advisory Board of the Committee for the campaign. Serving with him are a number of prominent California religious, business and social leaders. They are: J. V. Bare; Dr. Frank F. Barham; Eugene W. Biscailuz; Mrs. H. Bixby; Judge Georgia P. LAUNCH SECOND ANNUAL DRIVE FOR HOMELESS CHILDREN FUND

By MARTIN J. DINKELSPIEL

WITH another year of glowing achievement on behalf of homeless babies to s credit, the Central Committee on Homeless Children, Native Sons and Daughters the Golden West on September 9th unched its second annual statewide public peal for funds with which to carry on its manitarian work.

More than 300,000 pieces of mail went to many residents of California, bearing eets of "Homeless Babies" stamps which e recipients were asked to purchase and e on their correspondence in order to help cus public attention upon the Central mmittee's work. The fund derived therefom goes to defray the enormous cost of rrying forward the work in behalf of lifornia orphans, half-orphans and children from broken homes. California's rapid artime growth has greatly increased the mber of such children, and the cost of ring for them during the period before options are completed, have trebeled and en quadrupled.

In 1910 the Central Committee modestly unched the tremendous task to which it er since has been dedicated. Since then, 55 children have been placed in homes ere foster parents have given them the ring care and proper upbringing which is e sacred heritage of every child. Each of ose 6,655 cases is a story within itself—long for detailed telling, even if volumes space were available for their recounting.

They Welded an Empire Together

The Grizzly Bear Proudly Presents the Story of a Native of the Golden West, the Central Pacific Railroad Company, Known Today as the Southern Pacific. The Building of the Railroad Binding the East with the West in Bands of Steel is an Epic in the History of California and the Great Southwest.

By

ERLE HEATH

NATIVE of the Golden West, Central Pacific Railroad Company was incorporated in Sacramento, June 28, 1861. It has grown into a 15,000 mile rail system under the name of Southern Pacific, reaching through eight states and cradling in a gigantic crescent the West and Southwest it serves.

Central Pacific, forerunner of Southern Pacific, was incorporated to build the western portion of the first transcontinental railroad and to link California more closely to the Union. Such a project was first suggested by a newspaper editor in Ann Arbor, Michigan, in 1832. Subsequently the idea was strongly advocated by such men as Asa Whitney, a New York merchant who envisioned easier trade with the Orient, and by others who like Whitney spent their fortunes and worried themselves into their graves in fruitless attempts to launch the project.

In 1850 the railroad was urged on Congress by the California Legislature, but even this effort was blocked by the rivalry of political factions, and overshadowed for years by other important national questions, until the War between the States brought need for action. President Lincoln, declaring the road a military necessity, signed the charter of the Pacific Railroad (known as the "Pacific Railroad Act") on July 1, 1862. Final and successful pleader before Congress was a young civil engineer, Theodore D. Judah, who in 1856 had completed a railroad from Sacramento to Folsom, the first rail line operated in the far West.

Fired with almost fanatic enthusiasm by his dream of a railroad across the Sierra Nevada Mountains, Judah found and surveyed a practical route that followed the crest of a long ridge rising eastward above the American River canyon to cross Donner Summit. Ridiculed at first, he finally won support for his project from four Sacramento merchants, Leland Stanford, Collis P. Huntington, Charles Crocker and Mark Hopkins—soon to be known as the "Big Four"—and he went to Washington to campaign until the Pacific Railroad Act was passed. He died at the age of 37, shortly after work began.

Breaking of ground for the Central Pa cific was occasion for a gala ceremony a Sacramento, January 8, 1836. The spo where the ceremony was to take place ha been flooded by the overflowing river, bu bales of hay were thrown into the mud t furnish footing for the crowd. After muc oratory, which was typical of the time construction was officially started by shovel full of earth turned by Stanfor then Governor of California.

Strenuous opposition to Central Pacifi developed from men in the already estab lished transportation businesses, such as th stage lines and steamship companies. Thi opposition spread to some newspapers. Me with capital to invest had no confidence i the railroad.

Faith of the Big Four was undaunte They threw their own resources and per sonal credit into the company. Huntingto went to New York and on the strength o his personal credit borrowed enough mone to contract for the iron and other equip ment that was needed to build the first 5 miles—completion of 50 miles of track be ing necessary in order to qualify for federa aid under the Pacific Railroad Act.

This Act, liberalized in 1864, provide land grants to the railroad builders, in cor sideration of lowered rates on governmen shipments, and advanced federal credi (The land grants were paid for severa time over before Congress repealed the lan grant rights effective October 1, 1946. The debt, in the form of federal bonds advanced to Central Pacific, was repaid in full by Southern Pacific in 1908.)

On the western end of the transcontinental railroad Central Pacific faced what seemed to be unsurmountable difficulties—a wilderness with granite mountains 7,000 feet high at Donner Pass, the problem of bringing supplies 15,000 miles around the Cape of South America, and competition of the gold mines for the meager supply of labor.

California's laborers were mostly miners. The first mining excitement would mean a complete stampede of every man from the railroad job. In desperation the Big Four turned to Chinese labor.

Shovel and pick and black powder were the only aids to grading in those days. There were no scrapers, only dump carts that had to be filled by hand. Dynamite was invented in 1866, but none was used on the Central Pacific.

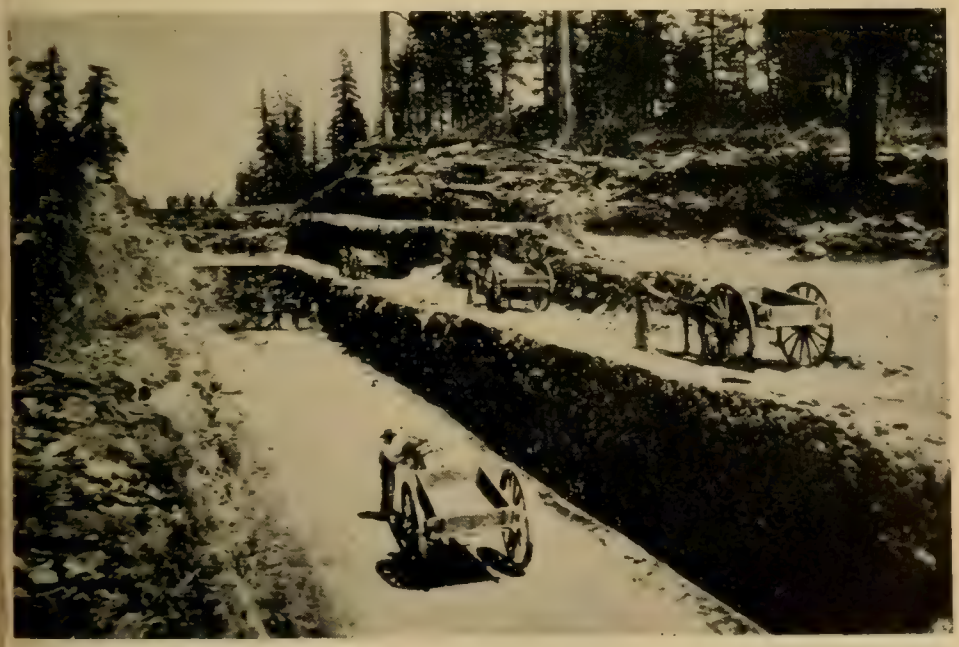
To cross the Sierra 15 tunnels were driven, the longest at Summit being 1659 feet. Work on the east and west portals of this tunnel began in August, 1865. Early in the following year it was decided to work the tunnel from four faces. In order to begin work from the middle it was necessary to sink a shaft. This was drilled through rock so hard that seven inches a day was sometimes the rate of progress.

Working conditions were difficult at all times, but the severe winters of 1865-6 and 1866-7 called for superhuman courage to keep things going. During the latter winter the only work possible was in the tunnels. It was during this winter that Crocker, in charge of construction for the Big Four, directed the tremendous but strategic undertaking of hauling and sledging three locomotives, 40 cars, and material for 40 miles of track, up over the summit and down into Truckee River canyon—along a total of 28 miles of tortuous mountain trails—to the lower levels where light snow made grading and track work possible. It was June 1867 before the forces could be brought back into the mountains, where the grade in many places was still buried under heavy snow packs.

The tiny wood burning "C. P. Huntington" locomotive, which was in operation in the 1860s on the Central Pacific railroad (now Southern Pacific) posed for this picture for comparison with one of the streamlined "Daylight" locomotives of today. The giant oil-burning streamliner is more than 108 feet long ,compared with the C. P. Huntington's 29 feet; weighs 821,300 pounds compared with 39,000 pounds; develops 74,710 pounds of tractive power compared with 3,510 pounds for the C. P. Huntington when it was in first class working condition. The old wood burner now stands in front of the railroad's station in Sacramento, its gay paint and polished metal protected by a special shelter.

Difficulties in keeping the line cleared of snow in the high Sierra region convinced the builders that the problem must be solved before trains could operate successfully, so it was decided to build snowsheds over the tracks. Forty miles of sheds were eventually erected, once prompting a brakeman to remark: "I've railroaded all over the world, but this is the first time I've ever railroaded in a barn." (Powerful rotary snow plows and improved snow-fighting methods gradually reduced the snowshed mileage in succeeding years until today only about eight miles remain.)

The work in solid rock above Donner Lake was completed in the spring of 1868 and the Sierra had been conquered. On June 19 the road was opened to Reno, Nevada, a townsite staked out by the railroad's engineers, and over the easier Nevada terrain a "mile a day" program of laying track was rushed by Crocker's "pets," as the 14,000 Chinese workers were dubbed. One day, in their race to meet the Union Pacific as far to the east as possible, the Central Pacific workers laid 10 miles of track, a record that has never since been equalled, even with the aid of modern machinery. The golden spike was driven at Promontory, Utah, May 10, 1869, completing the transcontinental line seven years ahead of the deadline set by the federal government.



In the face of construction difficulties that would discourage all but the stoutest hearts, purchasing supplies in a war-inflated market with government bonds that were worth only about 74 cents on the dollar in the currency of the time, paying transportation costs that had advanced 275 per cent during the war, the Central Pacific roalroad was pushed through. Untiring willingness to carry on against odds brought the achievement in which the whole West has shared.

Just what the Big Four envisioned as their ultimate railroad system is not known. They had taken certain steps toward expansion west and north from Sacramento, and had become interested in other California railroad ventures, but the future apparently looked none too bright to them. Nevada mining activities went into a temporary decline. Opening of the Suez Canal diverted heavy tonnage of Oriental trade.

Stanford testified in later years that he and his associates would gladly have sold out in 1869 for ten cents on the dollar, but they couldn't because the Central Pacific in operation was no more attractive to "smart" investors than it had been before the first rail was laid.

Faced with the loss of much of the through traffic on which they had counted, they set out to develop local traffic by creating a network of lines and building up the population of the West. Since then Southern Pacific has been guided by the

This picture taken in 1866 when e pioneer railroad was being built over the Sierra Nevada mountains shows the "shelf" ethod of grading used by the builders. There were no steam shovels or scrapers, to aid e grading in those days. Armies of men did the work with pick and shovel, one-horse mp carts and wheelbarrows. Where it was possible the grading through cuts was done starting on three or four levels so that workers would not interfere with each other.

HIGHLITES OF ADMISSION DAY IN SAN FRANCISCO

THE 96th anniversary of California's admission into the Union was celebrated in San Francisco on September 9 with a mammoth parade sponsored by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. Over 8,000 members of each Order marched up Market Street from the Ferry Building to the Civic Center in a parade lasting over three hours, led by Governor Earl Warren, a member of Fruitvale Parlor No. 252 of Oakland, and Grand Officers of each organization.

The parade was one of the most colorful in San Francisco's history reminiscent of the pioneer days of early California. Representatives of the Native Sons and Native Daughters came from all parts of the State to participate by marching units, drill teams, Drum and Bugle corps and floats to mark the first Admission Day celebration in the post-war period. The parade was viewed for the entire length by crowds standing four deep cheering the celebration of another California anniversary.

With the exception of the Army, Navy, Martime Commission Cadet School and San Francisco Fire and Police Department, the parade was composed entirely of members of both Orders and the turn out was the most encouraging sign of the interest of the Native Sons and Native Daughters in the perpetuation of California's birthday.

Prizes were awarded as follows: Sea Point Parlor No. 158 NSGW of Sausalito in their green and white uniforms won first prize for "Best Men's Drum & Bugle Corps;" Piedmont Parlor No. 120 NSGW of Oakland in uniforms of red and white, won the second prize.

Fruitvale Parlor No. 252 NSGW of Oakland won first prize for "Best Men's Drum Corps" (drums only); San Jose Parlor No. 22 NSGW of San Jose won second prize and Sacramento Parlor No. 3 NSGW of Sacramento won third prize.

Guadalupe Parlor No. 231 NSGW, along with Guadalupe Parlor No. 153, both of San Francisco and all attired in costumes of maroon and gold fashioned after the style of the "Dons" won the prize for the "Best Mixed Drum Corps."

Mission Parlor No. 227 NDGW of San Francisco won first prize for "Best Ladies Drum Corps," and El Carmelo Parlor No. 281 NDGW of Daly City won the second prize.

Utopia Parlor No. 252 NDGW of San Francisco won first prize for the "Best Ladies Drill Team;" Bear Flag Parlor No. 151 NDGW of Berkeley won the second prize and Piedmont Parlor No. 87 NDGW of Oakland won the third prize.

Argonaut Parlor No. 3, Jr. Native Daughters of Emeryville, won the first prize for "Junior Native Daughters' Drill Team," and San Francisco No. 6, Junior Native Daughters of San Francisco won the second prize.

Guadalupe Parlor No. 231 NSGW of San Francisco won the prize for "Best Appearing Native Sons Unit" and Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185 NDGWG of San Francisco won the prize for "Best Appearing Native Daughters Unit."

Mission Parlor No. 227 NDGW of San Francisco won the prize for the "Largest Native Daughters Unit."

Special mention was given Orinda Parlor No. 56 NDGW of San Francisco for the best decorated cars.

Twin Peaks Parlor, NSGW, Scores Tremendous Success!

Old timers stated that the Admission Day Celebration by this Parlor was reminiscent of the good old days when Twin Peaks was one of the State's largest Parlors.

A Social and Get-together on Sunday, September 8, was attended by an estimated crowd of 1000. Members of other Parlors were surprised at the arrangements made by Twin Peaks for this affair.

On September 9, a marching unit that was almost a block long represented Twin Peaks in the mammoth parade up Market Street.

After the parade, approximately 200 members and friends, among which were a number of well known San Franciscans met at one of the city's famous restaurants for a wonderful dinner. Those who attended claimed it was the best dinner party they have ever seen.

Now this Parlor is planning an extensive program of social and sports affairs to attract new members. Applications received and contacts made by members show that innumerable "Natives" are anxious to join our organization.

Six bowling teams have been entered in the local Native Sons Bowling Tournament by Twin Peaks. All the teams have practiced hard, and we expect to have some prize winners.

Sequoia Native Daughters Receive Plaudits for Float

Receiving plaudits all along the long march in the Admission Day parade held in San Francisco, Sequoia Parlor, No. 272 NDGW won recognition for its unique float. With chairman, of the Alameda County Admission Day committee of the parlor in charge, Edna Williams, the float depicting the making of the Flag with Betsy Ross at the spinning wheel and George Washington hovering over, made an appropriate setting. The wheel was kept spinning throughout the march. Two young Native Sons and Native Daughters sat beside the large American Flag. The float was outlined in marigold flowers of the Native Daughters colors. Marching in front of the float and led by Martha Gohl, the parlor's president, several members of the Order were dressed in Colonial costumes. The Green Patrol drill team of Sequoia and Argonaut Parlors led the parlor's formation. The float received mention by the judges.

Following the parade activities, members of the parlor, still in costume were entertained at the Native Sons hall in a reception and open house.

Clara Barton acted as Betsy Ross and Marjorie Lowned as George Washington. 5,000 members of the Native Sons and Native Daughters took part in the parade.

At the August 8 meeting, Miss Gohl appointed her committees which included, Admission Day for Alameda County—Edna Williams, chairmen: Alice Gilligan, Emily Ohman, Hannah Bradehoft, Helen Garrison; Admission Day for the Parlor, Edna Williams chairman: Alice Gilligan, Emily Ohman, Estelle Marinelle, Regina Tamla; Homeless children for County—Marian McGuire, chairman; Hannah Bredehoft, Mary Sutter, Nellie Homewood; Homeless Children for the Parlor—Beulah Holland, chairman; Edna McQuesten, Annie Williams; Veterans Welfare—Helen Garrison, chairman; Anna Daly, Hael Navarrine; Good of the Order, Eleanore Garrison, chairman; Lorraine Ohman, Tessie Socker; Civic Committee—Alice Gilligan, chairman; Dena Benson; Americanism—Dorothy Rose, chairman; Marie Yon; Young Women's Activities—Mary M. Calatte chairman; Virginia Callanan, Viola Jones; Press Book—Teresa Taylor, chairman; Marion McGuire; Publicity—Clara Barton, Alice Gilligan; ways and Means—Lola Bredehoft, chairman; Nellie Homewood, Mary Cabatte, Vera Giordano, Eleanore Garrison; California History and Landmarks—Edna Williams, chairman; Helen Garrison, Alice Gilligan; Extension of the Order—Emily Ohman, chairman; Lorraine Ohman, Nellie Homewood, Lucy Gulick; Music, Tessie Socker.

During the meeting of August 22, partial plans were made to assist in restoration of a landmark in Berkeley. The History and Landmarks committee will have charge.

At the meeting of September 26, the parlor began making plans for the official visit of the Grand president, and an enjoyable refreshment hour was held following the meeting.

The choral began its weekly rehearsals in the home of the organist, Tessie Socker, Thursday, Sept. 19. Several engagements have been filled by the popular choral and a musical program is being arranged for the Grand president's visit, in October.

"PARD, THERE'S GOLD IN THEM THERE HILLS"

Martha Field and Jessie Collins of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 as '49er prospectors in Admission Day Parade, Buena Vista Parlor No. 68 depicted an overland covered wagon train. Members on horseback rode as out riders to the wagon.

One of the most interesting persons in the parade and a member of Buena Vista Parlor was Dr. Mariana Bertola wearing a black Spanish shawl belonging to her mother. She was a true picture of the covered wagon days in her calico dress and sun bonnet. Seated proudly in the covered wagon she waved to her scores of friends and admirers as the caravan proceeded up Market Street. Thunderous applause greeted her as she left the wagon to join the other celebrities in the grand stand.

Martha Field and Jessie Collins in typical miners costumes prospected for gold along the route and caused much amusement for the sidewalk spectators with their burro laden with pack saddle and mining tools.

heeling along on a bicycle arrangement comes the flag of California Parlor No. 1, NDGW, in the Admission Day parade of 15,000 at San Francisco to salute California's ninety-sixth anniversary of admission to the Union.

Angel's Camp

IN THE HEART OF THE MOTHER LODE —THE MAKIN'S OF MARK TWAIN

By ROCKWELL D. HUNT
Ramona No. 109, NSGW

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Grizzly Bear Magazine publishes the first of a series of stories on Ghost Towns and mining camps of the early west by a distinguished Native Son. Formerly Dean of the Graduate School, University of Southern California, Dr. Hunt is the author of "The Genesis of California's First Constitution," and "California An American Commonwealth." His "New California the Golden" is studied by students in the elementary schools of our state.

AT THE very outset we must disabuse minds of any who have entertained the idea that here at last was to be found a mining town in the days of the old Mother Lode that was inhabited by heaven-sent angels. Angels Camp was not so saintly a place as that! It was not sentimentality or spiritual exaltation that suggested the name; nor, on the other hand, was the name applied in derision or blasphemy. Prosaic as it may seem, the settlement took its name from a mere man—none other than George Angel, a member of Stevenson's Regiment of the First New York Volunteers.

Angel, with James H. Carson and a large party of prospectors, left Monterey in the spring of 1848. Rich diggings were discovered about midway between Sonora and San Andreas. It is recorded that in one spot of only 200 square feet two brothers "washed out in common sluices $9,000 worth of gold." Along the main creek and in the smaller gulches and flats, gold was found in generous amounts. George Angel established a trading post on the creek; a townsite was founded, which later was formally named Angels Camp.

Angels Camp is located three or four miles north of Carson Hill and ten miles southeast of San Andreas. A few of the numerous towns and mining camps of that vicinity were Tuttletown, Jackass Hill, Roaring Camp, Vallecita, Dogtown, and (of course) Sonora and Columbia. In practically all directions are today to be found spots of historical or romantic interest. Three miles south of Angels, at Albany Flat, are the ruins of the old Romaggi adobe building, erected in 1852. Famous Carson Hill became a lusty mining town "like a bed of mushrooms," almost in a single night, early in 1849. Cherokee Flat (later Altaville) is known as the locale of Bret Harte's humorous poem, "To the Pliocene Skull." Dogtown, once the scene of exciting activities, now lives only in memory. Copperopolis, to the southwest, was a busy division point for the flow of stage coaches. It had its schools, churches, hotels, and stores; but at a later date all these were overshadowed in interest by the hang-out of the gentleman bandit "Black Bart," in the Cobb-Corner Hotel. Even a cursory study, reinforced by existing relics and a lively imagination, will clothe the entire area, of which Angels Camp may be regarded as a center, with sights and scenes of Argonaut days that gave lustre and brilliancy to the miner's life in the Mother Lode.

Mark Twain's Cabin

At the site where Angel made his discovery there has been built an undershot waterwheel to illustrate how the water power was utilized in operating a primitive mill for crushing gold ore, called the arrastra. Raspberry Lane received its name, not because the place abounded in wild berries, but from a man named Bennager Raspberry, an early miner. One day while out hunting—so the curious story runs—the ramrod of his muzzle-loader stuck fast in the gun barrel; so he shot it out, and it landed at the base of a manzinita. When Raspberry pulled the ramrod out he found a rich vein of quartz, from which he took thousands of dollars in gold in just a few days, and ultimately made a fortune. Gold mines were discovered in strange and mysterious ways, sometimes, indeed, by mere caprice.

Take, for example, the Morgan-Melones mine. This had its origin when Henry Comstock, out hunting for quail to regale himself with a quail pie for supper, shot a bird that fell in a dense growth of chemisal. It was while climbing on hands and knees to retrieve his quail that he came upon a rich vein of quartz. It proved to be the Comstock vein, forerunner of the Morgan-Melones. On the evening of November 22, 1854, there was wild excitment when the famous "Calaveras Nugget" was found. This mammoth lump of almost pure gold, about fifteen inches in length, the largest ever found in California, weighed 161 pounds avoirdupois, and was valued at approximately $40,000.

Many notable mines were developed in and about Angels Camp, including the Mother Lode Central, the Utica, and the Marshall. It was at Angels that Jim Fair met John Mackay. They later became associated in the vast developments of the Comstock Lode, which made for them fabulous fortunes.

Enter Mark Twain—but not called Mark Twain among the miners: he was known by his own name, Sam Clemens. Of this, however, we may be sure—Sam Clemens at Angels Camp, and especially while living for three months at Jackass Hill, was "the makin's" of Mark Twain. He had come wes in 1861, after serving as a printer and as pilot on Mississippi River steamboats. Af ter a few years in Nevada, he came on t California and found his way to the Mothe Lode.

He never became much of a sensation a a gold washer; but his experience amon the Nevada and California miners put hir on the high road to fame as America' premier humorist. In the role of a gol miner Sam Clemens proved to be quite successful newspaper reporter! This is no to deny that he really did considerabl mining, after a fashion, most of it of th variety called "pocket-mining." But he pre ferred to listen to tall yarns by Billy Gillis or Ben Coons, or Dick Stoker. To remar that Sam was not overly industrious as miner is to employ a masterpiece of under statement: but then perhaps Dick indulge in overstatement when he pronounced Sar "gol-darned, eternally lazy." Dick's estimat was matched by that of Gillis, who wit something more than brotherly affectio pronounced his friend "one of the finest an laziest men that God ever made."

Sam had a constitutional dislike for pros pecting in the rain—loafing in the bar room of Angel's Hotel was infinitely mor attractive. His disrelish for the food serve at the French Restaurant was unmistakab ly revealed in his personal notes. The cof fee he described as "day before yesterday' dish-water." And he was not the only mine that complained of the quality of the coffe and beans, served with painful regularit for breakfast and dinner every day. Fo January 2, 1865, here is Sam's entry:

> Angels. Rainy, stormy, beans and dish-water, for breakfast at the Frenchman's, dishwater and beans for dinner, and both articles warmed over for supper.

Three days later:

> Rain, beans and dishwater—beefsteak for a change—no use, couldn't bite it.

On a special day he took Dick Stoker t dinner. Great occasions were honored b the Frenchman with four kinds of sou popularly known as "Hell-fire," "Gener Debility," "Insanity," and "Sudden Death" then Sam adds, "but it is not possible t describe them."

It was while he was at Angels Camp tha Mark Twain rated what Ivan Benson ha called "probably the greatest scoop of h career." After listening to Ben Coon's ver sion of the "jumping frog," he conceive the idea of writing it out as a story. Th astounding truth is, "it became the founda tion of his literary fame." The yarn itse was not strictly original with Coon—it ha even appeared in print. But apparentl

Sure, I'm for Proposition 2....

Proposition 2 will legalize greyhound racing in California—under strict State supervision—and turn a guaranteed 4 per cent of all track wagers over to a Veterans Fund administered by the State Department of Veterans Affairs.

That makes sense to me—as a veteran and as a taxpayer.

State-supervised greyhound racing would put at least two million dollars a year into the Veterans Fund. That would pay for all present services connected with the State's welfare and rehabilitation program for veterans. It would provide funds for a needed increase in those services. And it would aid in supporting the Veterans Home at Yountville, or any other State home for veterans that the Legislature authorizes.

Greyhound racing would pay the bill; tax funds would no longer be needed. (Right now, the State has $4,000,000 under appropriation for welfare services and the Yountville home.)

The farmers would also get a break. Their county and district agricultural associations would attract greater crowds with greyhound races at fairs and rodeos.

This is a good proposition. That's why I —along with 200,000 of my buddies in the V.F.W. and D.A.V.—ask you to . . .

PACIFIC GROVE PREPARES TO GREET MONARCH BUTTERFLIES

By HAR LAR

The butterflies are returning to Pacific Grove.

From far off Alaska they are coming. Through Canada's British Columbia they wing their way. As they move southward they are joined by uncles, aunts and cousins by the dozens. From Washington, Oregon and northern California come a pilgrimage of butterflies that number into the millions and they are headed for just one place—the city of Pacific Grove on the Monterey Peninsula. They're scheduled in the latter part of October or the first week of November. No matter what the day, they'll arrive at four p.m. on the dot.

What has Pacific Grove got that no other vicinity has? For one thing, the little community is the only city, we believe in the world, that boasts an ordinance that imposes a fine to protect a butterfly. When it comes to butterflies the city fathers weren't fooling. They put teeth into the law. It's a $500 penalty for either "disturbing or destroying" the fluttering visitors. We, however, doubt that police protection has little if any influence on the "head" butterflies who prepare plans for this mass vacation flight.

The local Chamber of Commerce modestly points out that this community enjoys a winter climate that surpasses the famous spas of the Mediterranean and French Riviera. That the winter days are delightfully warm and balmy we admit willingly but not even the most rabid member of the P. G. C. of C. would claim that the delightfully warm midwinter sunshine smiled exclusively on Pacific Grove. Yet, the surprising fact remains that the flowers of arty Carmel, swanky Del Monte, romantic Monterey are all ignored, for the visiting butterflies take up winter residence in the favored pines and oaks that thrive by the blue Pacific in the very northwest corner of Pacific Grove.

These butterflies, which return to Pacific Grove as regularly as do the swallows to Capistrano, are not the ordinary winged multi-hued flower flitters we generally see on lazy summer days. They are clad in a uniform as distinctive as the United States Marines on dress parade. Monarchs they are named and as monarchs they are dressed.

They have a wing spread of approximately four inches. Their lacy but powerful wings are colored as the maple leaves of autumn, a brilliant reddish orange with a bordering edge of black. White and orange polka dots liven up the somber edging. Their heads and bodies are jet black with contrasting white round dots. The full name of the Monarchs, if you must be formal, is Anosia Plexippus but a lot of common folk from here to Alaska call them the milkweed butterfly.

Where they come from and how they manage to return year after year to the grove of pines between Pacific Grove and Asilomar is just another of Dame Nature's astounding mysteries. It is not mere habit that makes them return. None of them have ever before made the trip. They fly to their winter rendezvous but once. Their average span of life is but a single year.

It is estimated that the Alaska butterfly contingent soared off into the blue skies on or about the last week in August. Weather conditions govern the time of this amazing mass flight. They string out southward in a long flying formation. The pilots never veer off their course. They have reportedly flown through railroad tunnels and even through opened cabin windows rather than detour a point or two off their course.

The Monarchs are skilled flyers. They glide at times like sea gulls. They seem to relish in a bit of acrobatic flying and go through aerial maneuvers as intricate as those of any army or navy fighter pilot. Stamina is their speciality and it is estimated that when the Monarchs are on the wing they cover from forty to fifty miles in a single day.

They fly in a long wavering line a little below the level of the tree tops. From time to time more Monarchs join the flight. As they near their destination the skies appear to be a solid mass of billowing reddish smoke. They have been reported in flights so large that it has taken as many as three days to pass a given point. At times of heavy migration these butterflies can be measured literally by the square mile.

Water offers no terrors to these hardy navigators of the skies. They fly the ocean routes as readily as overland. Somewhere in northern California the main mass will again be seen. Observers will faithfully report their progress until on one day soon they'll be sighted over Monterey Bay and a million butterfly vacationists will be winging into Pacific Grove.

For a hundred years, and no doubt more, the butterflies have winged their way to the Monterey peninsula. That they come a long distance is proven by the fact that they are found only where the milkweed grows, nor is the plant any too plentiful in the Monterey vicinity. It is on the milkweed that mother Monarch lays her eggs. Here's ready at hand, is an abundant supply of nourishment for her coming children. Here also is protection for the unborn larva. Few insects like the taste of milkweed. Perhaps that is the secret of the Monarch's charmed life. For the birds for some reason find the Monarch butterfly a very unpleasant tidbit and consequently seek more delectable and nourishing morsels.

If you visit the Peninsula during late fall you may be on hand to witness the arrival of the butterflies. They fly in lazily and one by one they settle down on the favored trees. As more and more land and take their places the foliage is completely covered. A single wispy piece of Spanish moss is ample room for several hundred butterflies to crowd upon. There they hang in great long clusters one to another, perfectly camouflaged against the green drabness of the foliage. They fold their wings and late arrivals forcefully jam themselves in. Lik a San Francisco cable car during the fiv o'clock rush, there seems always room fo one more.

They tell us too that the Monarch butte flies make excellent weather prophets. Som Pacific Grove residents claim to have pr dicted the severe freezing cold that aide the Russians to successfully defend Stalin grad against Hitler's hordes. It seems th Monarchs that year arrived early in Septen ber. A warm winter to come, on the othe hand, will be heralded by the late date o their arrival.

That Pacific Grove is proud of her butte flies is further shown by the butterfly pag eant staged annually during the first wee of November. The first preview showin was written, staged and directed by Regi ald E. Foster, the city attorney. One hun dred and fifty home town folks annuall take part. It is an Indian legend in hono of the butterflies. Like Ramona Pageant th play, held in the city's outdoor theater, i attracting many visitors from all over th state.

The Monarchs know a pleasant winter va cation spot when they find one. They sta all winter long. Not until March do the start their long journey home. Unlike th purposeful mass flight south, they tak their time on the return trip. Leisurely the start out north, lingering in many a pleas ant meadow along the way. Eventually th Monarchs return to their summer abode It is now that mother Monarch lays he eggs on the milkweed plant for she know that her generation will never again se the Monterey Peninsula.

The Monarchs will soon be returning t Pacific Grove. There are those who sa they come by instinct as do the salmo seeking the headwaters of the creeks an streams where they were born, that instinc and not reason causes them to return yea after year. Yet theirs is the power an ability to fly almost anywhere in the worl Why then have they chosen Monterey Pen insula for their winter haven for a hundre years gone by?

Monterey Peninsula is indeed one of Cali fornia's lovliest winter vacation spots. Na ture has planted scenic beauty with a lav ish hand, basked her oceans, mountains an forests in balmy sunshine. Little wonde that this glorious bit of California has lon been the winter refuge of gorgeous butte flies.

A million Monarchs can't be wrong!

principle that its long time prosperity depends on the long time prosperity of the people it serves. It has been especially active in encouraging agriculture, and today is half owner of the largest fleet of refrigerator cars in the world to protect and speed perishable crops to distant markets.

Expansion of the original system began with completion of a rail link between Sacramento and San Francisco bay by way of Niles Canyon, placed in service September 8, 1869. Previously San Francisco passengers made the trip between that city and Sacramento by river steamer.

Construction of the line toward Oregon started in 1867, was completed to Portland in 1887. Construction problems in the Sacramento River canyon and over the Siskiyous rivalled the Sierra crossing.

The San Joaquin Valley line, including the famous Tehachapi Loop, was opened to Los Angeles in 1876, by which time a new transcontinental route across the Southwest was being laid eastward from Los Angeles by Southern Pacific, with through connection to New Orleans completed in 1883.

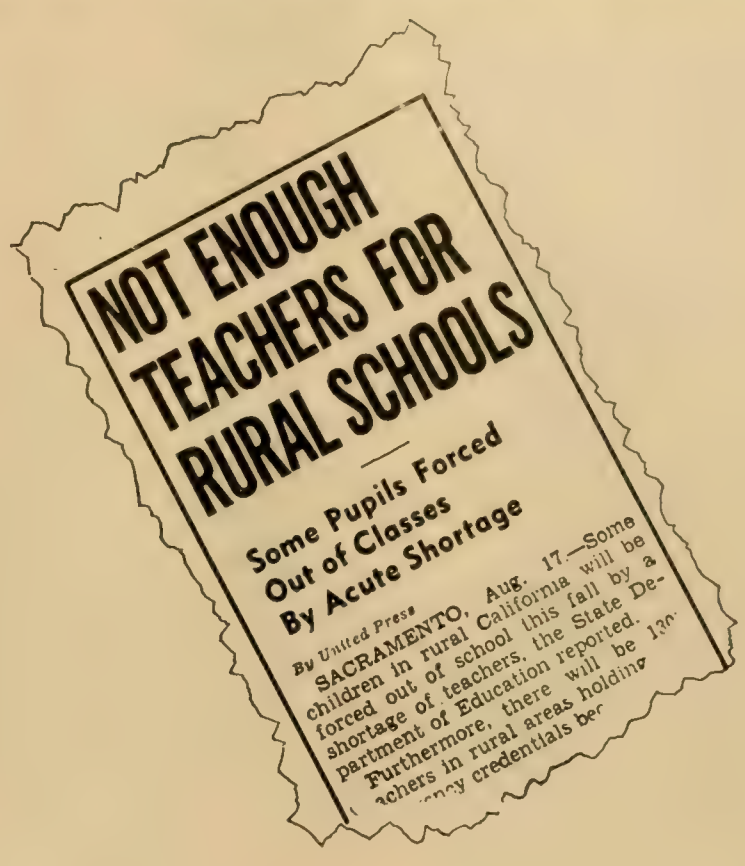
The Coast Line was pushed southward from San Francisco peninsula in the late '60's, and finally opened all the way through to Los Angeles shortly after the turn of the century. For 113 miles this route skirts the ocean shore within view of the surf.

The Great Salt Lake was spanned by the longest trestle in the world to speed the Overland Route connection with the East. About 10 million dollars were invested to give San Francisco better rail service via the Bayshore Cutoff. Another 10 millions went into the Martinez-Benicia bridge, and other millions into double-tracking the route over the Sierra. Almost 40 millions were spent in building the Cascade line and Natron Cutoff to give Oregon a better connection into California and virtually another transcontinental link eastward.

In the meantime, trains were improving.

The earliest types of railway coaches were sadly lacking in the common comforts of modern cars. Seats were straight backed and thinly cushioned. A coal stove furnished the only heat, and candles or oil lamps provided the light. Cars of that day had open vestibules offering little protection in passing from one coach to another. There were no diners in the early trains, and sleeping cars were converted into diners by placing tables for convenience of passengers who brought along their food, or the trains stopped at stations so passengers could buy meals.

Southern Pacific built the first all-steel passenger coach. It was among the first railroads to invest millions of dollars in air conditioning passengers cars and in building streamlined trains. Its "Daylights" and "Lark" have become among the most popular trains in the world, the "Lark" being unique with its diner-lounge 131 feet long without a partition.



Early wood burning locomotives gave way to coal burners, then to oil burners. Great 5000 horsepower cab-head locomotives weighing more than one million pounds with their tenders loaded, and more than 125 feet long, were designed by this railroad for its heavy duty work.

This railroad pioneered in highway truck pickup and delivery service coordinated with merchandise freight trains moving on such speedy schedules that waybills had to be

California's school system is falling apart because of a shortage of teachers—and rural communities are the hardest hit!

No wonder that teachers are leaving their jobs for new and better-paying fields, or that university students are refusing to train for teaching! The present minimum salary for teachers is $1800 a year—$150 a month. Would YOU be willing to spend four or five years of your life training to get a salary like that?

Proposition 3 on the November ballot will raise the teacher's minimum salary to $2400 a year. State funds—already adequate for the purpose—will finance the pay raise. Farm and property taxes will not be increased by as much as one penny because of Proposition 3.

Let's face facts—the future of our children depends on their education.

—Round-up of CALIFORNIA BOOKS

"EAGLES FLY WEST"

Ed Ainsworth, popular feature writer of the Los Angeles Times and frequent contributor to the Grizzly Bear, is the author of "Eagles Fly West," a California historical novel just released by the Macmillan Company, New York.

Jacket design for "Eagles Fly West" By Ed Ainsworth (Macmillan)

Ainsworth has made a hobby of California history. His column "Along El Camino Real," which ran daily for many years on the state page of the Los Angeles Times, was eagerly read by thousands.

In addition to his many other duties, Ed Ainsworth is one of the publishers of what is perhaps the west's most unique newspaper, "The Desert Barnacle," which claims to be the most "low-down paper in the world," being printed at Coachella, Riverside County, near the Salton Sea and below sea level.

A complete review of "Eagles Fly West" will be given in an early issue of the Grizzly Bear, as a feature of California's Centennial Year.

"SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA COUNTRY"

Carey McWilliams, of Prejudice fame, has again tossed a brickbat onto book counters, Southern California Country, (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, 1946, $3.75). Edited by Erskine Caldwell, this fourteenth of the American Folkways series is subtitled "An Island on the Land."

In his littoral allusion to the Southland as an "Island," McWilliams creates the literal illusion that the part of California south of the Tehachapi is his "I" land. The publishers' folkways theme is overborn by the author's political truculence. At the very outset he aptly dedicates his book to Robert Walker Kenny—Native Son.

Yet when McWilliams swerves off center from the folkways path, to the left, he is at his ultra best. It is unfortunate that he chose the opportunity, afforded no doub in good faith by the publishers, to entirel subvert the portrayal of the folkways o Southern California to a rebuttal of th Legislative Report of Un-American Activ ities in California.

Southern California Country, in additio to being an exposition of portside "socio political phenomena," is a gazetteer of th grotesque, and a Baedeker of the bizarre Its 378 pages are choked with trite tidbit from the works of literary lotus-eaters wh have at some time sojourned in the South land and felt the urge to rush into prin with psuedo-psychoanalyses of Los Angeles

Although McWilliams consigns Califor niana to limbo, such historical literature o California as he makes use of is so para phrased in the racy McWilliams lingo a to be unrecognizable to the casual reade unfamiliar with sources, and to give th impression that he is a pretty well-in formed local historian. The inquirin reader will advisedly breeze through th barren, uninspired chapters of Souther California Country, cafeteria style, to loa up on the choice McWilliams a little beyon the midpoint of the book.

But the leaf of the lotus abounds i McWilliams' "I" Land, and the soporifi effect of such a diet on all but the mos avid devotees of the leftist ideology is in evitable.

By Reuben L. Underhill

Enlarged 1946 Centennial Edition

California's Centennial observances ar recalling the picturesque leaders in th drama of the American occupation. Not th least is Thomas O. Larkin whose biograph has been revised by Reuben L. Underhill

Thomas O. Larkin is a man who in hi crowded career distinguished himself fo many "firsts." He was the first and onl consul of the United States to California first chain store owner and land specula tor, first to recommend to easterners th salubrious California climate.

Larkin played a prominent part in th American occupation. When he learned o the contemplated arrival of Commodor Sloat and the American fleet, he dusted of his impressive consular garb, got out hi gold-headed consular cane and went t work. He was on hand to greet Commodor Sloat when he first arrived off the Cali fornia coast and played a prominent par in the American occupation and its after math.

Details for Mr. Underhill's vivid biogra phy were taken largely from unpublishe Larkin letters in the Bancroft library a the University of California.

Gentlemen:

Will you please send me thirteen copies of the Grizzly Bear Magazine for the month of August, 1946.

Members of the Winn family are pleased with the article entitled "The Story of the Founding of the Native Sons," which largely concerns my grandfather, General A. M. Winn, and these copies are for family distribution.

William W. Winn
Sacramento No. 3

San Leandro, California

Dear Sir:

I am very much interested in Emmett P. Joy's article quoting General Winn about the early formation of the Native Californians in 1869. So far as I know I am the last survivor of some two hundred members of that group of young boys. I wrote the details of this and it was published in the Grizzly Bear some years since, at the request of Mr. Lewis Byington, Past President of N.S.G.W.

I have written the story of the five Native Governors of California since 1850 and would be glad to send you a copy if you would care to publish it. Hope that this will be of interest to you.

Southern Pacific was among the nation's first in installing block signals, which today protect its entire main line mileage. It has made heavy investments in a new method of dispatching trains called Centralized Traffic Control, which involves electrical operation of signals and switches wired to a central control board where one man controls the movement of trains throughout his territory. The company has been conducting extensive experiments for the past two years testing the feasibility of using radio in its operations.

Its own research laboratory tests the performance of its equipment and studies how best to adapt to railroading all the latest developments in the arts and sciences that may be found practicable.

In World War II the Southern Pacific served more military and naval establishments thany any other railroad in America. Now it is turning its vast facilities to peacetime service, with speeded schedules, with thousands of new cars on order, with its 100,000 employes trained to put into practice the motto of "The Friendly Railroad."

Riverside, City of Beauty

Here, on the banks of the Santa Ana River, the Native Sons of the Golden West Instituted Riverside Parlor No. 299, Thursday Evening, August 29, 1946

By HARRY A. POWELL

THE city of Riverside is a blend of the beauty and romance of early California with the energy and briskness of modern America. In climate, business, industrial advancement, natural resources, and in everything essential to life and health and human happiness, it compares favorably with any other section.

Riverside is famed for its delightful architecture, reminiscent of its Spanish days; charming homes and gardens, and highly developed sports and recreational facilities which have placed the city in the foremost ranks of year-round resorts.

Located in a fertile valley, Riverside lies 54 miles east of Los Angeles; 348 miles west of Phoenix, Arizona, and 118 miles north of San Diego. Its tree-lined streets and groves of fragrant orange trees never fail to impress the visitor.

With a population of 55,000, Riverside has many distinctions.

Rambling over an entire city block is the world-famed Mission Inn, long a favorite spot for conventions. Picture a castle in Valencia, its gray walls, courtyards, fountains and gardens, its grilled balconies and carved doorways, its halls filled with treasures from far countries, and you have some idea of the Mission Inn. Its architecture and beckoning cloisters make it seem more than a hotel in that it is regarded as a veritable shrine of California's historic past.

Overlooking the city is Mt. Rubidoux, on the summit of which first of all Easter Sunrise Services was held in 1909, a service that has come to mean to the people of Riverside a perennial manifestation of that principle of beauty and life which the Man of Galilee gave to the world long ago.

Riverside is often referred to as one of the garden cities of America; from the air it resembles an immense wooded estate.

Tree planting and home beautification have had a great influence upon the growth and character of the city. The surrounding area is one of the richest agricultural sections of an agriculturally rich state.

But the city has more than agricultural wealth as it is widely known for its cultural background. In schools, art, music, literature, it has always excelled.

It had the first junior college in California, the first polo and golf, and the first Friendship Grove. Its Indian rain cross electroliers, its World Peace Tower, St. Francis Fountain, and Father Serra Cross are outstanding.

Riverside has some of the most striking city entrances on the Pacific coast, the only school of sub-tropical horticulture, the only city park with lakes and all recreational facilities between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, and it is one of the few cities in America which presents Community Grand Opera.

California's $100,000,000 citrus industry had its birth and early growth in Riverside.

The Famous Flyers Wall at Mission Inn has Air Corps Wings mounted by such famous pilots as Capt. Colin P. Kelly, Jr., Eddie Rickenbacker, Lt. Col. Stanley M. Umstead, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Lt. Gen. J. H. Doolittle, and many others.

It was while vacationing in Riverside that Carrie Jacobs Bond wrote her memorable song, "The End of a Perfect Day," in one of the spacious patios of the Inn.

Sailboats skim about on 42-acre Lake Evans, where bass fishing attracts Waltonians in season. Stately palms add an inviting touch to the Evans Memorial Fountain and Reflection Pool at the Redwood Drive entrance to Fairmount park.

United States government has established the Sherman Institute in Riverside, where Indian boys and girls from reservations o the Southwest are given academic, voca tional and agricultural instruction.

For those who dream of living in a lan of semi-tropical loveliness, of sunshine an blossoms, of blue hills and bluer skies, Riv erside has wondrous charm.

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

This important event is well under way and many parlors are off to a flying start. Counting candidates initiated during August will greatly assist all parlors in making their quotas. The individual prizes are attracting the time and attention of a goodly number of Brothers, who realize just how easy it is to sign up candidates right now. Our very successful Centennials and Admission Day Celebration have given the Order publicity and prominence of untold value. The prizes are many, varied and valuable. Willing workers can well make a little effort pay big dividends. All parlors initiating candidates will be listed monthly in the Grand President's Bulletin. Be sure that your parlor is on the list.

Admission Day

Admission Day in San Francisco was one of the finest celebrations on record. Cooperation from parlors throughout the state, made the parade one of the largest, most colorful and interesting in many years. The sensational success of the Centennials paved the way for public celebrations of all kinds and have already made certain that those of '48, '49, and '50 will be the best ever held anywhere. We can well be proud of the Native Sons of the Golden West leadership in all this.

Tour of the North

At this writing the tour is well under way with five Grand Officers on the trip. Planned several years ago, these visits are intended to familiarize the Grand Officers with some of the parlors in the far northern part of this great state. Some of these parlors are among the best and most active in the Order. Some need help and encouragement. It is proposed that the latter will be stimulated by the presenec of the Grand Officers to the extent that substantial gain, both in membership and activity, will result. Class initiations are being held in all cities officially visited.

Public Speaking Contest Plans Should Be Made at Once

Word has gone out from State Chairman, Guy G. Foulks, asking all Parlors to get busy at once by selecting their Parlor Chairman.

School days are here again and superintendents, principals and speech teachers must be contacted and interested immediately before dates for such activities are taken by others who are more aggressive.

A publicity man should also be appointed to secure publicity both before and after the contest.

This is one of the order's most worthy projects and also one in which every Parlor, large or small, can take part with equally gratifying results and benefits for all concerned.

Your success will depend on your start. Let's go now.

SUGGESTIONS FOR STAGING

The files of the Grizzly Bear show that in 1915, Guy G. Foulks, then recording secretary of Elk Grove Parlor No. 41, sold the Parlor on the idea that something should be done to honor, perpetuate and glorify the memory of the Pioneers. It was agreed that Oratorical Contests such as those sponsored by the order on a statewide basis would be the best means of instilling in the minds of the younger generation a greater knowledge and a deeper understanding of those who pushed the American Frontier through the wilderness to the shores of the Pacific and cemented to the family of the nation this great western empire.

The idea spread to other localities and to other organizations until ten years ago, the Grand Parlor took it up and appointed Reynald J. Bianchi as State Chairman. Under his energetic and able leadership, great progress has been made.

The State Champion is determined by the process of elimination, as follows:

1. School Championship.
2. County Championship.
3. District Championship Northern California and Southern California.
4. Northern Champion versus Southern Champion at Grand Parlor.

There are many plans for carrying on these contests but a suggested plan that has proven very successful, is for the local Parlor to present the school with a plaque on which the winner's name is inscribed each year. This is usually kept in the trophy chest at the High School.

The President of the local Parlor acts as chairman of the evening and makes opening remarks, introduces speakers, etc.

It is best to limit the number of student speakers to eight.

The High School band can be used to advantage also; Girls' Glee Club or Capello Choir add variety.

Usherettes dressed in Spanish or Old Time costumes add color to the occasion.

Start program on time and keep it going.

Encourage and help school authorities and speech teachers.

See that there is plenty of publicity both before and after contest.

The results will amaze you.

LET'S DO A GOOD JOB THIS YEAR.

California Papers Give Good Publicity for Admission Day

California daily and weekly papers were generous in space granted to the observance of Admission Day by the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West. More than 500 mats featuring Admission Day in San Francisco were sent out to the press of the state by the Native Sons Publicity Committee, headed by Webster K. Nolan of Stanford Parlor No. 76. Pictured in the mats were Miss Connie Callin, 14, majorette of the state championship drum corps, the "Blue and White Legion" of Pacific Parlor No. 10, NSGW, together with Drum Major Hugh E. Ryan of Pacific Parlor and his charming wife, Minerva of Dolores Parlor No. 169, NDGW, garbed in attractive anti-sun-glare "Foreign Legion" uniforms. The photos were by Fred W. Quandt of Pacific Parlor.

Grand President R. G. Power followed up the publicity committee's efforts with a letter to 350 California editors thanking them for their cooperation on behalf of Admission Day. The widespread news publicity gained for the Native Sons and Daughters in connection with this important event in our state's history is an excellent example of what can be done if care is taken to give the press the type of material that makes news.

Los Ranchos Parlor Helps Mark Site of Battle of Chino

Sponsored by Los Ranchos Parlor, NSGW, of Pomona, Los Angeles County; the Historical Society of Pomona Valley and civic organizations of Chino, an impressive ceremony accompanied the dedication of a monument and plague, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 28, marking the site of the battle of Chino fought a hundred years ago between the Mexican and American forces.

The monument occupies a spot on what is now the grounds of the Casa Colina Home for Crippled Children adjoining the California Junior Republic. It is three miles southwest of Chino and approximately six miles southeast of Pomona.

Colorful entertainment features in keeping with the spirit of the day were a part of the program. Committees in charge of various phases of the dedication were made up of well known pioneers of the section, with Judge Edwin Rhodes of Chino as general chairman, and George C. Seitel, secretary.

Preceding the dedication Los Ranchos Parlor had charge of an old-fashioned barbecue.

NEW PARLOR MEETING DATES

Grand Third Vice-President Peter T. Conmy has had a busy schedule in recent weeks. August 5-10 he attended the Conference on Library Buildings at the University of Chicago. On September 5 he addressed the Redwood City Women's Club on the "Admission of California to the Union." On Admission Day, September 9, he spoke over Oakland Radio Station KLX on the same subject. The Grand Third Vice-President is Oakland City Librarian.

Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267, NSGW, will celebrate its twentieth anniversary and "Gene Biscailuz Night," Tuesday evening, Oct. 22. According to Chairman Reyes, Grand President R. G. Power and his corps of Grand Officers will initiate a class of candidates for the parlor on that occasion. Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz of Los Angeles County is a past president of Santa Monica Bay.

The Los Angeles Friday Noon Luncheon Club, Elwood Bowles, Ramona No. 109, president, Friday, Sept. 13, heard Joseph Choate, Los Angeles attorney and world traveler, give a first hand account of the Nuremberg trial.

In keeping with a policy of enlightened Americanism and the patriotic aims of the Order, Ramona Parlor holds its traditional pre-election Civic Night on Friday, November 1, at the Hall, 1832 South Hope Street, Los Angeles. President Elwood Bowles will turn the gavel over to Judge Ruben S. Schmidt, past president of Ramona—better known at the Parlor as Rube—and the Judge will call upon the candidates or their representatives present to speak in behalf of their candidacy. Judge Schmidt will be remembered for his impartial, non-partisan handling of the Civic Night program at primary election time. The program November 1 will include a talk on the salient points of the propositions to be submitted at the election Tuesday, November 5.

Southgate Parlor No. 295 Changes Time and Place of Meetings

Southgate Parlor No. 295, NSGW, Los Angeles County, now meets the second and fourth Wednesdays at the American Legion Hall, 7627 Santa Fe Ave. Sunday, Sept. 22, South Gate Parlor joined with Huntington Park Parlor, NSGW, and Rio Hondo Parlor, NDGW, in a joint picnic at South Gate Park.

University Parlor No. 272, Los Angeles, took in 11 new members in August. Inductionmaster Solly Smith is now bent upon an all-out membership drive with no holds barred. According to the University Parlor Bulletin, the parlor needs 916 more members, but is willing to settle for 915.

University will hold its Annual Open Forum Friday evening, Oct. 11, while on Oct. 26, the parlor will celebrate its fourteenth anniversary with a costume Hallowe'en dance.

Huntington Park Parlor No. 294 was honored Sept. 18 with a visit from University Parlor No. 272.

Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, Anaheim, observed Admission Day with a ladies night at the Izaac Walton Clubhouse in Fullerton. Speaker was Bill Berry of the famous Berry Family, who entertained with stories of his life and his adventures on the Old Barbary Coast of San Francisco as a messenger and news boy.

Stephen M. White Parlor, No. 263, San Pedro, is sponsoring a bowling team in the Inter-Cities 875 League which will play in several surrounding cities where there are Native Son Parlors. Members of the Stephen M. White bowling team are Joe Ivelia, Elmer Field, Lou Molle, Mike Gregorio and Barney Halverson.

San Francisco County Parlors Hold Class Initiation

Adherring to the directive of Grand President R. Grover Power that each district inaugurate a vigorous membership campaign, the San Francisco County Parlors will hold a Joint Class initiation on Monday evening, October 14th.

Presidio Parlor No. 194, in honor of their Brother, Grand Third Vice President Peter T. Conmy, have accepted the invitation to be the presiding Parlor for the evening and the affair will be held in the Native Sons Bldg., 414 Mason Street, San Francisco.

Supervising Dist. Dep. Grand President Edwin Riegger and his corps of Dep. Gr. Presidents have worked hard in preparing for this class initiation and they promise that it will be the largest ever held in San Francisco.

The initiatory ceremony will be conducted by the Grand Officers, with each one putting on his work as a member of the ritualistic team. The ceremonv will start promptly at 9 P.M.

To strengthen all of the San Francisco Parlors, SDD, Gr. Pres. Riegger advocates united action in preparation for coming events and celebrations. This is an opportunity for the larger Parlors to help the smaller Parlors by their assistance and example.

Immediately after the initiation, the Social Committee will take charge and they will provide refreshments. All are invited to welcome the new Brothers into the Order and to get together with the members of the San Francisco Parlors.

Inter-Parlor Forum Planned In San Francisco Area

An innovation in inter-Parlor relations was instituted by SDD Gr. Pres. Edwin Riegger when he conducted a joint meeting of representatives of the San Francisco Parlors on Sept. 16th.

To make the program beneficial to all a forum program was arranged and presented so that common problems might be recognized and their solutions determined.

The topics of the forum were:

"Membership—the life of your Parlor and the Order" conducted by Bro. Riegger and representatives of Guadalupe, Twin Peaks and South San Francisco Parlors.

"Publicity-Parlor Bulletin, Grizzly Bear Magazine, and the daily newspaper." presented by L. F. "Larry" Elower (California No. 1). "Athletics—stimulator of Parlor activities," reviewed by Lewis Giegerich (Pacific No. 10) chairman of the Grand Parlor Athletic Committee.

In addition to the Parlor Presidents, Secy's., and committee members the forum was also conducted for the Dist. Dep. Grand Presidents.

Nardoni Night Celebrated by Ramona Parlor No. 109

Seven brothers of one family, the Nardonis, became members of the Native Sons of the Golden West on Friday, September 20, when August, Bill, Frank and Cosmo witnessed the initiation of their brothers John, Patrick and Victor into Ramona Parlor 109. A nephew, Victor Michael Mastro, 21-year-old veteran and big league baseball prospect, was also initiated. The Nardoni brothers, born and raised in the Los Angeles Civic Center, are associated in the bail bond, music store, and actors' agent businesses under the general direction of "Gus."

The initiation of the seven Nardoni brothers into Ramona Parlor establishes a record comparable to those of the Meserves and the Dockweilers. Edwin A. Meserve recently witnessed, with his son Shirley, the initiation of two grandsons, Edwin Abel and J. Robert, while Isidore B. Dockweiler shares membership in Ramona Parlor with four sons, Thomas, Henry, Frederick and Judge George.

GRAND OFFICERS MAKE NORTHERN TOUR

Grand President R. G. Power of Colusa and his corps of Grand Officers wound up a ten day tour of Native Son Parlors in the northern part of the state on Sept. 19, with successful meetings held in all cities visited. Purpose of the trip was to initiate candidates in the various parlors, many of which are some of the livest in the Order, and to help with plans for increasing membership and interest in the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Santa Rosa Parlor was host Sept. 10, with 40 members being initiated. Of this group 30 were for Santa Rosa No. 28 and 10 from Napa, Sonoma, Petaluma and Sebastopol combined. A banquet preceded the meeting. Grand Officers participating were Grand President R. G. Power, Junior Past Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, Grand First Vice-President Walter H. Odemar, Grand Second Vice-President Walter N. Bailey, Grand Third Vice-President Peter T. Conmy, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustee Louise E. Pellandini and R. M. Hamb, Finance Committee.

The Grand Officers were at Alder Glen Parlor No. 200 on Sept. 11, when five candidates were initiated. A banquet preceded the meeting. About 30 members were present.

At Ukiah, Sept. 12, eight members were initiated, while at Ferndale, Humboldt County, Sept. 13, six were initiated. The Grand Officers went on to Weaverville, Trinity County, Sept. 14, where two candidates joined the Order.

Ways and means for a membership drive were discussed at McCloud Parlor No. 149, Redding, Sept. 15, with officers of that parlor.

A successful meeting with 25 candidates for membership in a new parlor to be instituted was held in Red Bluff, Monday, Sept. 16. This parlor will be instituted shortly.

The initiation at Oroville Tuesday evening, Sept. 17, was highly successful with 31 candidates joining that parlor and three into John Bidwell, Chico. The initiatory team at Oroville consisted of Grand President R. G. Power, Grand First Vice- President Walter H. Odemar, Grand Second Vice-President Walter N. Bailey, Grand Third Vice-President Peter T. Conmy, Past Grand President Seth Millington, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Henry Corral of Sutter and Dick Hamm. A chicken dinner followed the initiatory work with 150 Native Sons present. Past Grand President Seth Millington acted as toastmaster.

The Grand Officers wound up their tour with an initiation at Nevada City on Wednesday evening, Sept. 18, when candidates from Argonaut, Chico, Sutter, Hydraulic, Quartz and Rocklin Parlors were initiated.

Native Daughters

Social Tea Honors Grand President Loretta M. Cameron

On Saturday afternoon, September 14th, 300 of the Order were guests at a social tea complimenting Loretta M. Cameron, Grand President, Native Daughters of the Golden West, sponsored by the Association of Past Supervising Deputies of San Francisco County. This tea, held in the California Legion of Honor, overlooking the Golden Gate, was a very outstanding and representative affair given in San Francisco. The beautiful and spacious grounds, coupled with the dignity and elegance of the building, made a perfect background for the afternoon. During the tea, a program of music was rendered by Grand Organist Frances A. Simas, William Sullivan, Irish tenor, and a trio of sisters, Mrs. Albert Theusen, and the Misses Marge and Cecilia Galliana. In attendance were the following Grand Officers: Grand President Cameron, Grand Marshall Margaret M. Farnsworth, Grand Treasurer Agnes M. Curry, Grand Trustees Dorothy Donofrio and Jewel McSweeney, Grand Outside Sentinel Ruth Trousdale and Grand Organist Frances Simas. Also the following past grand presidents: Emily Ryan, Ann C. Theusen, Clarice Cook, Amy Carmichael, Claire Lindsey, Mae Himes Noonan and May C. Boldemann.

The Association of Past Supervising Deputy Grand Presidents is a newly formed organization of eighteen members, representing all of the past supervising deputies. The following are the officers: President Mae Himes Noonan (PGP), Vice-President May C. Boldemann (PGP), Miss Ann Godfrey, Secretary, and Ann C. Theusen (PGP), Treasurer.

The California Legion of Honor is one of the outstanding civic buildings in San Francisco, having been presented to the city of San Francisco by Mrs. Adolphe B. Spreckels, following the first world war, and it houses many world famous paintings and other arts.

The Association of Past Supervising Deputies comprise the following members who have given a year of supervision to the Order's activities in San Francisco County over the past eighteen years: Organizer Ann Dippel, Mae Himes Noonan (First Supervising Deputy), Ann C. Theusen, Ann Godfrey, May C. Boldeman, Loretta Cameron, Emily E. Ryan, Kathryn Jensen, Geirgia Nelson, Nan Kelly, Kathrine Keating, Marie Roderick, Agnes Curry, Gertrude LaFortune, Alice Lane, Rena Taube, May L. MacDonald and their newest member, Jessie Ormond.

Grand President Loretta M. Cameron Received by Mission Parlor No. 227

Friday evening, August 23, Mission Parlor No. 227 NDGW was hostess to Grand President Loretta M. Cameron on the occasion of her first official visit since assuming leadership last June. Miss Winifred McGrath, presiding, presented various Grand Officers who included Ethel C. Enos Past Grand President; Doris Treat, Grand Vice Pres.; Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Secretary; Agnes M. Curr, Grand Treasurer; Margaret Farnsworth, Grand Marshal; Grand Trustees, Doothy Donofrio, Jewel McSweeney, Betty Reid, Marian Brian; Ruth Truesdale, Grand Outside Sentinel; Grand Organist, Frances Simas; Emily E. Ryan, Mae Hines Noonan, Evelyn I. Carlson and Dr. Marianne D. Bertola, Past Grand Presidents. Beatrice Nishkian, Supervising District Deputy.

At the conclusion of the presentation ceremonies, a class of six candidates were initiated by the very efficient degree team of Mission Parlor No. 227.

Leslye Hicks rendered a special musical program which included the rendition of her own composition "The Mission Bells are Ringing."

Past President Beverly Strauss on behalf of Mission Parlor Drum Corps and Drill Team presented a beautiful diaper doll and layette set for the Homeless Children, hand made by members of the Parlor.

Over 300 members were in attendance and enjoyed a tasty buffet supper to conclude the festivities.

Past Presidents' Assn. No. 1 Meets in San Francisco

After a two weeks vacation in the Mount Lassen area, Ann Godfrey, president of the Past Presidents' Association No. 1, NDGW, held her first meeting in the Native Sons Bldg., San Francisco, Aug. 19. Distinguished guests present included Grand President Loretta Cameron, Grand Trustee Dorothy Donofrio, Grand Outside Sentinel Ruth Trousdale and Past Grand Presidents Mae Boldemann, Emily Ryan and Evelyn Carlson.

Plans are being made for a shower of baby gifts for needy mothers in the San Francisco Hospital. This work has been carried on for many years by the association. Five dollars was donated to the Homeless Children Committee.

San Francisco Junior Unit Holds Installation Ceremony

Recently members and friends gathered at the Native Daughter Home to witness the installation of officers of San Francisco Junior Unit No. 6, NDGW. Presiding officer was Junior Past President Maureen Mahoney.

The corps of officers installed included Florence Rodrigues, president; June Printer, past president; June Moorhead, vice-pres.; Connie Callen, marshal; Mildred Whalen, sentinel; Alice O'Brien, secretary; Dorothy Bawden, treasurer; Marianne Nyhan, organist; Theresa Schiele, Marilyn Soncini and Louise Lindsay, trustees.

Color was lent to the occasion by these lovely girls in their formals of pastel shades. Each officer carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Vocal selections were rendered by Bill Sullivan and Felice Bettencourt, two young people of unusual talent.

Advisors Constance Warshaw and Past Grand President Orinda G. Giannini were assisted by Grand Organist Frances Simas, Past Grand President Anne C. Thuesen, who presented the Golden Poppy pin to Junior Past President Maureen Mahoney, and Audrey Cohn and Angela DeLucchi.

Rudecinda Parlor Native Daughters Celebrates Admission Day

Rudecinda Parlor No. 230, Native Daughters of the Golden West, celebrated Admission Day at a recent meeting with a costume party and "radio skit" directed by Victoria Schott. The early history of California and San Pedro were given by Dessie Buyo, Edythe Hampel and Victoria Schott dressed in pioneer and Spanish costumes.

Letitia Sarciaux, with the Rudecinda Starlets, consisting of Phyllis Trani, Agnes Bercovitch, Cora Redeen, Nellie Marshall and Beverly Smith, dressed in pioneer costumes, presented "Songs and Dances of Yester-year." Assisted at the piano by Clara Hansen.

Grace Alberts, a direct descendent of the Sepulveda family, was presented with a beautiful basket of dahlias. The stage was decorated with flowers donated from the garden of Victoria Schott, arranged by Martha Miller.

Following the program refreshments were served by Clara Hansen and Pearl Morgan. An ox cart filled by baby asters centered the table, flanked on either side by covered wagons and miniature flags of America and California.

Deputy Grand Presidents Plan District Meeting

The Deputy Grand Presidents of San Francisco County will honor Grand President Loretta M. Cameron at a District Meeting to be held in San Francisco on the evening of October 31, 1946, Forester's Hall. All members of the Order are extended an invitation. Exemplification of the Ritual by the Deputy Grand Presidents, under the supervision of SDDGP Beatrice Nishkian, will be the feature of the evening, followed by a social evening. DGP Nan Kelly of Portola Parlor is Chairman of the evening.

SEEN AT THE BIG PARADE

By LESLYE A. HICKS

Hayward and Mt. Eden Daughters in a Don Castro Adobe House—with a Spanish Senorita dancing girl in lush red velvet . . . accompanied by a Don . . . with a guitar! Piedmont Parlor girls in lovely pastel embroidered pioneer dresses and hats of the long ago—with their Drill Team in large number and very natty red and white uniforms! Aloha Parlor Senoritas, with Spanish mantillas, Senora Sallie Thaler, leading her Parlor, in a gorgeous white Spanish shawl—gay and smiling responsively to all the side-line calls . . . Argonaut Parlor—Emeryville, in the "Wearin' of the Green"—a great big bouquet to that Drill Team winner, "The Green Patrol," Junior No. 3, in green satin uniforms; Sequoia Parlor, Berkeley—a lovely float, with Betsy Ross spinning the American Flag. Spanish girls from Fruitvale Parlor, followed by two beautifully decorated automobiles—golden poppies. Where did those Albany No. 260 girls get those striped gingham pioneer dresses—was there that much yardage in existence? New, too! Berkeley Bear Flag helping themselves to the State's birthday cake—with real, honest-to-goodness candles burning! Santa Clara County Parlors, throwing to the crowds "Prunes" from the Santa Clara Valley (a good plug for the Chamber of Commerce). It took some prunes to toss away up Market Street, and they still had prunes left when they reached the reviewing stand.

San Rafael—from marvelous Marin came Marinetta Parlor, the largest Native Daughter Parlor in the State, with PGP Ethel Begley, in a Spanish costume (red shoes and all) leading the Daughters, with smiles for everyone and receiving a great ovation as she passed. Marinetta Drill Team, perfection in their red, white and yellow uniforms, a Poppy Bell Float with lovely chimes. Grand Trustee Jewel McSweeney leading her own El Vespero Parlor in Rhumba Skirts (?). Portola Daughters in yellow and green formals with a dainty float in the same color scheme. Mission Parlor Drum Corps were outstanding, with Victoria Lucette leading them. Perfect in dress and timing, followed by their Drum Corps.

Golden Gaters No. 158 in very chic modern sport dresses, aqua in color, with off-white hats, gloves and shoes. PGP Claire Lindsey marching with her Parlor and the oldsters in a new jeep!

Orinda Parlor in aqua and white satin gowns, and three matching decorated cars, with PGP Orinda Giannini leading her own Parlor. Twin Peaks Parlor, representing the Donner Party, Junior Native Daughters No. 6, looking natty. Gypsy Girls—from James Lick—Dolores Parlor, merging with the men in plaid shirts, western skirts and hats, lead by PGP Evelyn Carlson, receiving cheers as she passed by. Guadalupe Parlors in large numbers, their uniforms looking as fresh and clean as though we had never had a war . . . Castro in Spanish costumes . . . Buena Vista Parlor—seven Pinto horses with riders, a real covered wagon (housing PGP Mariana Bertola) and followed by two miners (Martha Field and Jessie Collins), with their donkey . . . panning gold in the streets of San Francisco . . . attracted by man-holes, etc., but very realistic in their portrayal of the "Centennial" . . . and last but by no means least, "UTOPIA"—smart and dashing as ever in their green costumes.

Our hats are off and we keep them off to the Native Daughters of the Golden West whose entry in San Francisco's Admission Day Parade left nothing to be desired! A great big bouquet to Beatrice Nishkian, SDDGP of San Francisco County (Golden Gate Parlor No. 158)—Parade Chairman of the Day—for a swell job! Another bouquet to Ann Dippel of Mission Parlor, State Chairman of Civic Participation, who announced the divisions from the reviewing stand microphone . . . another swell job!

NATIVE DAUGHTER NOTES

The Junior Native Daughters of Menlo Park recently motored to Shangri-La, near Los Altos and enjoyed an evening of diversified sports. Arriving at the park at 7 p. m. a full hour of swimming in the beautiful outdoor pool was indulged in by the 20 girls, followed by a barbecue. The evening was closed with dancing under a canopy of vari-colored electric lights. Chaperoning the group were Mr. and Mrs. David H. Carlson.

The Juniors conducted a public installation of officers Sept. 14, with Barbara Ferrarri being installed as president. The new president's mother is a member of Golden Gate Parlor, San Francisco.

The new junior secretary for the Menlo Park Junior Native Daughters is Miss Joan McRae, 399 Atherton Ave., Atherton.

Terminating the annual summer recess, Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105, NDGW, Hollister, resumed activities on Sept. 4, with installation of officers for the current term. The ceremonies were conducted by DGP Myrtle Hughes of Salina, assisted by members of Aleli Parlor.

James Lick Parlor No. 220, NDGW, San Francisco, turned out Admission Day, September 9th, garbed as Gypsies, with a good number of the members in attendance.

Louise Chironi, president of James Lick, recently gave a welcome party of the new Deputy Grand President Ann McWilliams of El Vespero No. 118. The parlor was honored at this affair by the presence of Grand Trustee Jewell McSweeney. There were many prizes and guessing games, with a large cake having the words "Welcome Ann" on it. The surprise of the day came when it was revealed that the next day was the deputy grand president's birthday.

Opening meeting of the fall term for Californiana Parlor No. 247 NDGW, Los Angeles, was held Sept. 24 at the Casa de Adobe with Mrs. Eric Lange, the new president, presiding. The meeting celebrated a most memorable day in the history of the Native Daughters Founders' Day, with past presidents of Californiana asking all members to bring their friends and enjoy a delicious Spanish dinner and entertaining program. Marcella Palethorpe was chairman of arrangements.

San Gabriel Native Daughters Take Prominent Part in Fiesta

Native Daughters of the Golden West, San Gabriel Valley Parlor No. 281, have been "Fiesta minded" during the month of September. Under the leadership of Esther Winsor, president, they have jointly with the Native Sons of the Golden West, Archangel Parlor No. 291, sponsored a booth during the five days of the annual San Gabriel Fiesta, in which was sold tamales and tacos. Lyllia Partridge was in charge of all the arrangements for the booth, and Marjorie Cole decorated it in keeping with the Mexican theme. Different committee chairmen and their members took charge of the selling in the booth during the five days. A hay wagon with Native daughters and their children was an entry in the big parade during the Fiesta.

Monday afternoon September 9, the last day of the Fiesta, Esther Winsor, president of the Parlor, acted as hostess and Dick Sepulveda, president of the Native Sons parlor, acted as host for the Statehood Anniversary Celebration in the Mission Bowl in San Gabriel. Anita Santo, program chairman arranged for Shirley Dietericksen, a Native daughter and a member of the cast of the "Bells of San Gabriel" to perform a dance and Jim Gregory also a member of the play cast to sing. Helen Nieger and Gladys Carlson were flag bearers during the ceremonies. Mabel Bach, junior past president and Louise Cash, past president, were on the stage when Senator William F. Knowland, of California, was introduced and spoke to the assembled crowd.. All members participating were dressed in Mexican costumes.

On September 17th, the Ways and Means Committee under the directior of Shirley Bassford with Mildred Lang and Lyllia Partridge assisting, put on a Pot Luck dinner in the American Legion Hall, 24 N. Stoneman, Alhambra, which is the new meeting place of the parlor. The dinner was well attended and various games were played afterwards.

Modesto Parlors Celebrate Admission Day Jointly

California's Admission to the Union was the subject of a radio program presented over KTRB, Modesto, on September 9 by Gerry Sciarini, chairman of California History and Landmarks, and Hazel McCreary, radio chairman of Morado Parlor No. 199, NDGW.

On September 11, the Native Daughters joined with the Modesto Parlor No. 11, Native Sons, for a social evening open to the public. Letters were sent the local civic and fraternal organizations inviting them to have a representation in attendance. An Admission Day program was presented, with Herbert Paul, Native Son, the speaker. Norman Valpey showed colored pictures of the Missions and gave briefly a descriptive talk on the history of each. An original piano composition, "Dawn at Mission Dolores," was played by George Kelly, NSGW. Tap dancing and a comical skit completed the program, announced by Agnes Frost, co-chairman, with Charles Blaine, who acted as master of ceremonies. Others assisting were PGP Ethel Enos, Henrietta Masciorini, Mary Blaine, William Phoenix and Leslie Lollich. Refreshments were served to about 150, in the banquet room, at tables bright with arrangements of sunflowers. Hall decorations were appropriate to the occasion with a golden replica of the Grizzly Bear and a huge California poppy and buds, sharing honors with the flags of State and Country.

NOTED ARTIST MAKES VALUABLE HOMELESS CHILDREN CONTRIBUTION

One hundred members of East Los Angeles Breakfast Club and friends attended the Breakfast Club program in Poppy Trail Villa on Thursday morning, September 12, 1946. In a gesture of co-operation with the East L. A. Parlor No. 266, NDGW, and Montebello Parlor No. 277, NSGW, the Breakfast club designated Thursday morning to the Homeless Children Committee of the two organiations. Co-chairmen of the morning were Willard Allen, Los Angeles No. 45, Deputy Grand President; Lawrence Camy, Past President of No. 277; Imogene Bonser, Chairman of the Homeless Children Committee of East L. A. Parlor, and Gertrude Hill, a member of the committee, who is also secretary of the Breakfast Club.

The Villa at 4558½ Whittier Blvd. was colorful in flags and flowers of the season, carrying out the colors of California in honor of Admission Day.

Through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Salas, community leaders of East Los Angeles, Jose Arias and his orchestra, in costume, furnished delightful music for the morning. Speaker was Anne Schiebusch, Grand Trustee, NDGW, who gave an interesting talk in which she explained the workings of the Homeless Children Committee.

The distinguished Artist, Paul Lauritz, gave a demonstration, using for his subject, "California Hills." When the picture is complete it will become the property of the Homeless Children Committee of East L. A. No. 266, NDGW.

The contribution of Paul Lauritz attracted the presence of a number of other distinguished artists, eager to witness the brush strokes of the famous artist. Among there were Lucille Bruke, Jesse Luckensmeyer of Hollywood and Nordica O'Orsay, the portrait painter.

In the center of the stage was hanging the exquisite portrait by John Hubbard Rich of "A Native Daughter and Her Daughter," owned by Pauline Pappas, a member of E. L. A. Parlor, and posed by her daughter, Alma Woolman, and her little daughter, Donna. Mrs. Pappas is a sister of Hortense Hill, deputy to Verdugo Parlor.

Through the co-operation of the Public Affairs Committee of East L. A. Parlor No. 266 and the Homeless Children Committee, Lauritz, who is rated in Who's Who of America as one of the four greatest landscape and marine painters in America and is a member of Los Angeles Art Commission, also a Director of East L. A. Art Club, is making arrangements with art groups of the entire Southland for donations to the East L. A. Homeless Children Committee. His only grandson is a Native Son and expects, when of age to do so, to become a member of the organization.

EDNA HERMAN

To The Officers and Members of
Forrest Parlor No. 86 N.D.G.W.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect in memory of our departed sister, Edna Herman, submit the following:

WHEREAS, In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and sister and of the still heavier loss sustained by those, who were nearer and dearer to her

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say, That in regretting her removal from our midst, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard, and that in the death of Edna Herman, this Parlor laments the loss of a sister, who was ever ready to proffer the hand of aid and the voice of sympathy to the needy and distressed of the organiaztion; an active member of this Parlor, whose utmost endeavors were exerted for its welfare and prosperity; a friend and companion who was dear to us all; a citizen whose upright and noble life was a standard of emulation to her associates.

IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED, That the heartfelt sympathy of this Parlor be extended to her family in their affliction; That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this Parlor; and that a copy be transmitted to her family and one to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

California Parlor Conducts Successful Membership Drive

The "California's on the March" membership drive staged by California Parlor No. 1 has earned for the Parlor another delegate to the Grand Parlor.

On Sept. 5th the Parlor initiated ten candidates in preparation for the Grand Parlor membership campaign. The new Brothers are: Edward Brickwedel, Sheldon Cooper, Rex Glissman, Stephen Lalor Jr., Jos. Keosian, Richard Keosian, Aldo Gavazza, Emmitt Deasy, John Contos, and Henry Cailleaud.

Every Thursday night is initiation night in California Parlor because the chairman of the membership Wm. "Bill" James feels that the candidates should be initiated just as soon as possible whether or not there is but one candidate for each class.

To reach a place in the "Big Ten" of the Order, the Parlor has added another slogan, "ONE-A-Day." It doesn't mean vitamin pills but it does mean another candidate for initiation every day of the year.

The Brothers in the Charter Parlor are exerting every effort to keep "California on the March."

Cabrillo Parlor, Ventura, will hold a joint initiation Thursday evening, Oct. 24, with Santa Barbara in this city. Officers of Cabrillo will exemplify the ritual.

Grand President Loretta M. Cameron To Visit Woodland Parlor, NDGW

Loretta M. Cameron, Grand President, will make her official visit to Woodland Parlor No. 90 (Woodland) on October 8, 1946, at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Elks Temple. On the same evening Woodland Parlor No. 90 will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary. Present and Past Grand Officers, Charter Members and Veteran Members will be honored. A large class of candidates will be initiated. Plans for the evening are being made by Louise Ghidossi, President of the local parlor, and her Co-Chairman, Wanda Abele, Supervising District Deputy Grand President and Claire Luhdorff, Deputy Grand President from Woodland Parlor. The evening meeting will be preceded by a 6:30 o'clock dinner at the Elks Temple. Reservations may be made with Maude Heaton, 153 College Street, Woodland, or Henrietta Toothaker, 158 Third Street, Woodland.

Placerita Parlor No. 277, NDGW, Van Nuys, Los Angeles County, meeting in the American Legion Hall, has returned to its fall meetings with renewed zest. On Sept. 10 President Mary Lou Cooke called upon the special committee chairmen who outlined many plans for the coming season. Mary Post, chairman of the Homeless Children Committee, presented plans for the parlor's annual bazaar to be held Nov. 23. Chairman Margaret App has planned a rummage sale to be held in October, while Eunice Darling detailed the Braille Institute work which the parlor will assume. Chairman of History and Landmarks Committee, Grace Williamson, reported upon the successful Spanish dinner held in July in the spacious gardens of Mary Post's home. This parlor will do its part to promote the Benefit Concert sponsored by Los Angeles County parlors on Oct. 1 and in the present stamp drive.

VOTE "YES"—STATE PROPOSITION No. 15

THAT WHEREAS, the people of California by more than a three to one vote, in 1920, adopted the "Alien Land Act" which prohibited aliens who are by United States law ineligible to become citizens of the United States from owning California lands, and that such Act is now the law of California, and

WHEREAS, said law provides for the making of amendments thereto by the California State Legislature, and

WHEREAS, the California State Legislature at its sessions in 1923 and 1943 adopted amendments thereto for the purpose of strengthening and more efficiently carrying out the people's purpose as found in said initiative measure, and

WHEREAS, Number 15 of the State propositions to be voted upon by the voters of California on November 5, 1946, validates the 1923 and 1943 legislative amendments, now therefore

The Board of Grand Officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West in regular meeting assembled on September 7, 1946, unanimously recommends to the voters of California that they vote "Yes" on State proposition No. 15.

Raising of the American Flag in the Plaza at Old Town, San Diego, July 30, commemorating the 100th anniversary of that historic event in San Diego. In the pageant of flags, Leo Carillo, famous Native Son and personal representative of Governor Earl Warren, speaking on the raising of the Spanish Flag over San Diego, called attention to the fact that the flag was raised on hallowed ground and that San Diego is named after a Saint. He decried the abbreviation of the names of some of our California cities. Dr. Lewis B. Lesley, chairman of history, San Diego State College, spoke briefly on the raising of the Mexican Flag.

Hazel B. Hanson, Past Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and director of the Homeless Children stamp drive of the Central Committee of the Native Sons and Native Daughters, spoke on the Bear Flag. Mrs. Hanson is a Native Daughter of San Diego.

The raising of the American Flag was in charge of the Navy, with appropriate remarks by the personal representative of Vice Admiral J. B. Olendorf, a Native Son. As the American Flag in the Pageant of Flags was raised on the stand, the battle scarred flag of the cruiser San Diego was raised on the standard in the Plaza.

The Centennial observance was sponsored jointly by San Diego Native Sons and Daughters, Old San Diego Chamber of Commerce and the San Diego Historical Society.

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

Thanksgiving Day, November 30, 1851, was observed in the usual manner. Turkeys sold at 20c a pound; chickens were $6 and quail $1.50 a dozen, and wild ducks 40c a brace. Eggs were 50c a dozen, and butter (fresh) was 50c, (tub) 25c a pound; potatoes sold at 90c, onions at $1 and beans at $3 a cental; roast beef, mutton and pork were quoted at 10c a pound. Accordingly, there was no "H.C.L." to mar the feasting pleasure of the day.

But 40 inches of rain had fallen up to November 24, when a southeast gale brought a storm that drenched the state and made all happy.

Emerson's minstrels made a tour of the interior this month. "Billy" was now in the zenith of his fame and popularity and drew crowded houses. He was like the popular song he was singing, "Happy as a big sunflower that nods and bends in the breezes."

Charles Kent, a wholesale butcher of Nevada County, contracted with an Iowa firm to ship him to Colfax, Placer County, 1,000 hogs a month for four months at 6½ cents a pound.

A third interest in the "Sacramento Daily Bee," owned by L. P. Davis, was sold at sheriff's sale for $700, subject to a $1,000 mortgage to W. A. Anderson. Had "Alex" kept his purchase it would have made him a wealthy man.

Wm. Land bought the Western Hotel, Sacramento, and became its proprietor November 1. N. D. Thayer, in whose employ Land, as a drummer for the hotel, had been for about ten years, desired to devote his time and capital developing the horse-car street railway system, gave Land a favorable opportunity which he grasped by its forelock. His success was phenomenal; although burned out once, in thirty years he became a millionaire; afterwards made a trip around the world, and posted the sign of the Western on a pyramid of Egypt and in other world-noted places. He was mayor of Sacramento once, and built the Land Hotel at Sacramento. He left thousands to charity and public benefits when he died December 30, 1911. He is Sacramento's most famed philanthropist.

Steve Venard, the nemesis of stage robbers, went to Cloverdale, Sonoma County, from Nevada County, and under the name of Jones, seeking to start a hog ranch, spent several weeks there, ending his sojourn by arresting, with the aid of the officers, six men for robbing the Cloverdale stage four times during the year. In one of the holdups two passengers and one of the robbers were shot and killed. Three of the men arrested turned state's evidence and implicated several others unsuspected in the crimes.

November 28 three masked men entered the postoffice at San Bernardino, held up a clerk, and robbed it of $4000 in coin, currency and stamps.

Henry Thacker, claimed to be the oldest man in the United States, died November 5, at the home of his son on Bear Creek, near Milville, Shasta County. He was born in 1733 in North Carolina; fought with General Jackson at New Orleans, and with General Harrison at Tippecanoe; was a son-in-law of Daniel Boone, of Kentucky fame; came to California in 1861, comparatively young and vigorous.

The wife of a prominent citizen in Sacramento boarded a streetcar enroute to the railroad depot to leave on a train. She wore, as was then fashionable, dangling curls which she had bought and fastened to her hair, not having enough of her ow A strange woman took a seat by her si Shortly after starting, she felt somethi brush her cheek. Reaching up with h hand, she grasped and pulled down a bun of curls. Hastily shoving them into h pocket, thinking her false hair had fall off, she as hastily made her way to t depot waiting room an looked into the mi ror to arrange her hair. To her surpris she saw her curls were in place, so th those she held in her hand were taken fro the head of the strange woman who s next to her and who left the street c unaware of her loss.

California's famous Salton Sea, where each year speedboat races are held. Formed when the Colorado broke through into the Imperial Valley at the turn of the century it is kept at nearly an even level year after year by the drainage from the enormous irrigation projects of the valley. This photo was taken at Desert Beach, Coachella Valley, on the northern shores of the sea. This body of water was used by the government during the war for training purposes. Barnacles, imported on the hulls of flying boats, are to be found in the Salton Sea today.

Ancient Lake Cahuilla

By LEONARD SCHWACOFER

TO the geologist, the rock-hound, the naturalist, and those of us who just like to prowl around in search of old mother nature's oddities, there is probably no more fascinating spot in all America than Coachella Valley, Riverside County, and the surrounding desert area.

True, tourists from all parts of the world, wintering at Palm Springs and nearby desert resorts, go down to Coachella and Indio to see the date palms and irrigated gardens, scenes that can not be duplicated elsewhere in the United States, but the real story of Coachella Valley is apt to be overshadowed by the romance and color of its million dollar agricultural industries

The greater part of this vast valley, called Coachella in the north and Imperial in the south, is below sea level, the bed of the present Salton Sea being some 287 feet below the level of the waters of the Gulf of California. A vast dam, the delta of the Colorado River, at its highest point only a few feet above sea level, separates the Salton basin from the Gulf.

Through the ages this delta, on which the Colorado River has deposited the scourings of Grand Canyon, has played an important part in the geological history of Coachella Valley. Originally the entire basin was a part of the Gulf of California. As the centuries passed the Colorado depositing thousands of tons of silt annually on its delta gradually cut it off from the gulf and the basin became an inland sea receiving the flow of the Colorado, and disapating the salt water over the dam into the gulf. Scientists tell us that at one time the level of Lake Cahuilla, as it is sometimes called, was 10 feet above that of the Gulf of California.

At any rate, when the delta had been built up to a point where it was easier for the river to flow south instead of north, the Colorado changed its course again into the gulf and Lake Cahuilla dried up.

Additional thousands of tons of silt built up the delta until at last the river cut through to the north and again filled the Salton Sea basin with fresh water. How many times this process was repeated we do not know, but geologists tell us that it is possible a great fresh water lake existed here as recently as the beginning of the Thirteenth Century.

We do not find this hard to believe due to the fact that the millions of tiny fresh water shells on the floor of Coachella Valley appear as if left there yesterday. The old beach line of the ancient lake along the southwestern edge of the valley and extending southward to Imperial Valley is so plain that it has been likened to an abandoned road on the hillside.

Then, too, in the early part of this century, after man had started to re-claim the Imperial Valley and make the desert bloom, the Colorado, as if angered at man's puny efforts burst its bonds like a writhing monster, tearing through the Imperial Valley to the broad salt plains, forming the present Salton Sea, a body of water some 30 miles long by 15 wide. Only by superhuman effort, using the vast facilities of the Southern Pacific Railroad, was the Colorado again turned into the gulf. Had man failed in this endeavor, it is entirely probable that the water of Lake Cahuilla would today cover much of this rich agricultural area.

Kowing something of its geological history gives one a greater appreciation of this area, when exploring the ancient beachline or prowling through the camps of a long vanished people. In order to illustrate this, let us tell you the story of the Great Stone Face.

For full ten thousand years and more, the Great Stone Face has gazed steadfast into the vast void of the north, as if hoping to catch a glimpse of something that, perhaps long ages ago, drifted southward out of the harshness of that frozen land into a softer, warmer climate.

The "Great Stone Face" or "Indian Head" as it is known to Coachella Valley people, gave us that impression the first day that we saw it a number of years ago and it has remained with us. This magnificent, natural stone image is located on the north side of Travertine Rock, owned by Russ Nicoll of Valerie Jean, on the main highway, just a few miles south of Indio, on U. S. 99, near the Riverside-Imperial county line. Reared against a background of azure sky, or fleecy cloud it is a sight never to be forgotten.

It was a midwinter's day when we first made our acquaintance with the Great Stone Face. We had come into the desert country that morning from the rain-drenched valleys of the Orange Empire. The wind blew a freezing gale through the San Gorgonio pass, and a blizzard howled around the icy crags of San Jacinto and San Gorgonio. Yet, ol' Sol blessed the desert with his warm, cheerful smile.

Only a light breeze was stirring, bringing on its gentle wings that half-illusive and thrilling scent of salt water from off the broad bosom of the Salton Sea, whose rippling waves sparkled like a thousand jewels in the sunlight. It was a startling and wonderful contrast to what was on the other side of the towering mountain barrier that morning.

We were examining some Indian etchings or pictographs left by prehistoric man in the travertine at the north base of Travertine Rock when we happened to glance up and see the "Great Stone Face," existence of which we were ignorant of up until that moment.

The image was so well formed that we could hardly believe our eyes. An immense bulk of rock, it is, as if it might have been

Top-Flight Golf

WHEN Long Jim Barnes played the Pebble Beach Course for the first time, had sent his first ball screaming down the velvet green fairway, he looked out across the blue rolling Pacific and back toward the great purple shadowed mountains and solemnly remarked, "It's so beautiful, it takes your mind off your game."

Ask any golfer and he'll tell you that Pebble Beach is different from any of the other golf courses of the world. Half of the course is perched atop great cliffs overlooking the sea. Along the other half the sandy beach forms a terrific trap and may fate be kind to the unwary who knocks one into its sands.

It was back in 1915 that Douglas Grant laid out the eighteen hole course. Chandler Egan was the man responsible for its hazards. Many an expert golf architect has looked it over but never has a change been made.

The hazards are not all man made. Unpredictable nature throws in a few. When a gale blows off the Carmel sea more than one has teed off with a solid smash to gaze helplessly while the wind catches the white ball in a fearful blast to send it spinning crazily off course.

In Monterey's own magazine "What's Doing," Talbert Josselyn describes the greatest of them all, Bobby Jones, then both the United States Open and Amateur champion. It was for the 1929 Amateur Open Golf Championship being played a Pebble Beach.

"On his last practice round he shot ey blinking golf. On the long, par five, uphil dog-leg fourteenth, he hit a tremendou drive. Then looking at the distant gree he said to the gallery, Will you stand bac on the right? He was going for it. H swung his brassie . . . his hips and bod seemed to puff out (they had a way doing that when he was hitting with fulle power) . . . the ball sailed over a branch a great pine seventy-five feet above th turf . . . landed on the apron, rolled pas the hole—almost a double eagle—an stopped ten feet beyond. He got his eag three.

"In the first round of the eighteen hol championship matches, Bobby Jones cam along that same fourteenth fairway. H was all even with a thin, pasty-faced, ur known kid from Omaha named Johnn Goodman. He had been two down . . . on down . . . he'd been on the ropes all th way around, with an incredulous, goggle eyed gallery looking on. His drive was goo He hooked his second beneath big oak He set himself for the pitch to the trap guarded green. The great gallery set itsel He shot. The ball soared, dropped into th trap.

"Peter Hay, gallery marshall, leaning o one knee, flung his marshal's stick to th turf.

"That was it!

"One down.

"They halved the fifteenth. The cham pion strode along the fairway of the six teenth toward his drive, and his eyes wer fixed straight ahead, and he was snappin his fingers, both hands . . . snap . . . sna . . . snap . . . snap.

"They halved the sixteenth.

"At the seventeenth, Jones' long put was in for a two . . . and fishhooked aroun and out. Halved.

"They came to the eighteenth . . . Th Finisher. And it was the finish. Halved. Th match; Goodman, one up.

Golfers on the famed Cypress Point Golf Course near Del Monte.—Julian P. Graham phot

"As one sports writer put it: 'Five thousand people walked away as from the scene of a particularly atrocious murder.'

"It is beside the point that a wide-shouldered, seventeen-year-old kid named Lawson Little defeated Johnny Goodman that afternoon. The 1929 Amateur Championship had been completely butched up."

A new state Amateur Champion was crowned last month. Bruce McCormick of Los Angeles won the 35th Amateur at Pebble Beach. The years have seen a parade of champions club their way home to win the coveted trophy. Ernest Pieper Jr., Jack Gaines, Roger Kelly, Jack Gage, Eddie Monohan, John Dawson, Elmer Clites, to mention the champs of ten years past.

Though perhaps the best known, Pebble Beach is only one of four golf courses at Del Monte, each of which has its special appeal for the individual golfer. The others are the Del Monte Course, which was the first to be constructed in the State; the Dunes Course of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club; and the exclusive Cypress Point Club Course. In addition, there is a sporty nine-hole municipal course at Pacific Grove.

The Del Monte Forest is a private park of several thousand acres. Portions of this area have been developed as residential property—sold under restrictions against business—in such a way as to preserve the natural beauty of the country. Most of it, however, is beautiful forest land traversed by over a hundred miles of bridle trails. In it are situated three golf courses—two of them, Cypress Point and the Dunes, are owned by Country Clubs; the other, of course, is Pebble Beach.

The region is one of surpassing beauty. The Seventeen-Mile drive skirts the shore—which has been called by a famous artist, "the finest meeting of land and water in existence." There are long strips of white sand beach, clear glistening white sand dunes, and rocky headlands. The weird and beautiful Monterey Cypress grow to the water's edge. Along the entire strip of water front there is fascinating animal and bird life—sea lions in great numbers barking vociferously, the small leopard seal, cormorants, pelicans, and gulls; and emerging from the forest, herds of timid deer and occasional elk. The land rises from the water line to almost one thousand feet in the course of a mile or two. While most of the area is heavily wooded with pine, cypress and oak, there are beautiful open glades and park-like areas which have been utilized in the designing of the golf courses.

The 7th Hole on the Pebble Beach Golf Course. This course is the scene each year of the California Amateur Golf Championship and in 1947 will be the setting for the National Amateur Golf Championship. It is one of four championship courses operated by Del Monte Properties.—Julian P. Graham photo

The climate is that of Spring. The rainiest month is January, but the average rainfall in that month is less than the average in July in New York. It is never really hot and it is never really cold. There are more than two hundred fifty days of sunshine. The thing that impresses one most is the vigor and youthfulness of the climate.

Monterey Peninsula has been truly described as the Golf Capital of the World. Now, more than ever before, the eyes of the nation are focused on the Peninsula's golf courses. For on one of them—the world-renowned Pebble Beach course—will be held several very important tournaments during 1947. January 11-13 are the dates for the Bing Crosby Open Invitational Golf Tournament.

The really important match, National Amateur Golf Championship will be played over the Pebble Beach Course September 8 to 13 inclusive. This, of course, is sensational news for California! It means that one of the greatest tournaments in America is to be played here. This is the second time in its fifty year history that the National Amateur has been played on the Pacific Coast, and it was Pebble Beach that was chosen the first time in 1929.

By the time the year slips by practically all of the great professionals and amateurs in America will have played over Monterey Peninsula golf courses, which are ranked among the top courses of the world.

Indio: Plans for General George S. Patton Memorial monument, a proposed park to be located on Highway 60 about 30 miles east of Indio near the Army headquarters of Camp Young, were a step nearer realization following a recent luncheon meeting held at Hotel Indio, which the Riverside County Board of Supervisors and heads of various Coachella Valley organizations were invited. Walter Irving, member of the Coachella Valley Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, who are taking a lead in this big project, was chairman of the meeting.

The American Hotel, early landmark of San Andreas, as it stands today.

San Andreas
OF CALAVERAS COUNTY

By ROCKWELL D. HUNT

WE are now in Calaveras County, one of the original twenty-seven counties created by the First California Legislature February 18, 1850—and that was almost seven months before California was admitted to the Union, on the ninth of September! As originally created its area was almost four times its present size. It included the territory of the present counties of Amador, Mono, and Alpine. For a very brief period Pleasant Valley was the seat of justice; then Double Springs; in 1852, Mokelumne Hill; and finally, about a decade later, San Andreas became county seat. "Calaveras" means "skulls." Calaveras Creek, from which the county derived its name, was so called by Captain Gabriel Moraga of the Mexican army, who, early in the nineteenth century observed a large number of human skulls on the banks of the creek, occasioned, in all probability, by a sanguinary battle between hostile Indian tribes.

To the south lies Tuolumne County, in which are found Jamestown, Columbia, and Sonora, the county seat. And to the south of Tuolumne is Mariposa County, of which the town of Mariposa is county seat. Following the Mother Lode in a northwesterly direction, we have proceeded from Mariposa to San Andreas. Continuing in the same general direction, we shall later enter Amador County, whose county seat is Jackson, and finally El Dorado County, with the seat of government at Placerville, commonly called "Hangtown" by old-timers.

The town of San Andreas (St. Andrew) was settled first by Mexican miners, who later found discretion the better part of valor and left under pressure from the growing Yankee population: in other and plainer words, they were driven out of town. The prejudice against Mexicans in the mines was very strong. The Chinese, however, were permitted to remain.

San Andreas gained fame as the most noted and interesting of all the settlements on or near Calaveras Creek. It is northeast of Stockton, south-east of Sacramento, about equidistant from those chief centers. Other mining towns and settlements in the vicinity — to mention but a few — were Brandy Flat, Scratch Gulch, and Calaveritas (to the south), Chile Gulch, Mokelumne Hill, Happy Valley, Jesus Maria, Whisky Slide, and Poverty Flat (to the north and east). Situated between the forks of Calaveras Creek, the chief attraction of the site that became San Andreas was an exceptionally rich deposit of gravel and cement.

One of the foremost landmarks of this historically rich center was the two-story Metropolitan Hotel, erected in 1859; but it was destroyed by fire in 1926, leaving little but the foundation and a huge pile of rubble. It is claimed that the bar-room of this hotel was the original scene of the "Jumping Frog" episode, of Mark Twain fame.

Long before, however, came the story of the beginning of Murieta's unparalleled career of brigandage and murder. Joaquin Murieta is famous as "brigand chief of California." Much of the involved story has long since "mellowed into tradition." But the harsh treatment given to young Joaquin by miners, his violent expulsion from the placers on the Calaveras, his flogging when he attempted to defend his accused half-brother (who was hanged), his implacable vow that he would have vengeance—these have found a permanent place in the opening scenes in one of California's most melodramatic experiences. His was an amazing criminal career. He headed a gang of desperados that ranged for two years over much of California, committing unnumbered robberies and dastardly murders, at length himself to be shot to death in a running fight with Captain Harry Love and his mounted posse, one July morning in 1853. With the passage of years many writers have invested this outlaw murderer with a halo of romantic glamour. The red sash which is said to have been taken from him is one of the choice exhibits in the museum of San Andreas.

One may see on the highway to the west not far from Valley Springs, a part of the ruins of the first county Court House, materials for which had been imported from China in the fall of 1849. Among the older buildings of the town, lining its narrow streets, were the Agostino and Benjamin Buildings, the Odd Fellows Building, the stores of Corcoran and Sullivan, and the Cassinelli adobe. At the quartz mining camps of Sheep Ranch, to the east of San Andreas, George Hearst, afterwards United States Senator and father of William Randolph Hearst, laid the foundation for his fortune. "Old Pioneer Cemetery," two miles out of town to the northwest, is claimed to be the oldest cemetery of Calaveras County.

The spacious bar-room of Metropolitan Hotel, like many another similar bar, was the scene of much drinking. Many a jolly crowd found one or another pretext for celebrating by getting drunk. Such celebrations gained great popularity during the mining days. In this respect San Andreas was no worse and no better than dozens of other centers. In the larger towns the bars ran into dozens, the equipment of the best including "fine mahogany and shining plate-glass mirrors in the best city style." Gambling places were in close association. Some of the most successful professional gamblers refrained from drinking—they knew the value of a clear brain. Not uncommonly bags of "dust" were "staked on the turning of a card, with apparent indifference as to the result." The habitual gambler was certain sooner or later to strike "a streak of bad luck."

FOR VETERANS' WELFARE

VOTE 'YES' on Proposition 2!

The Veterans of Foreign wars and the Disabled American Veterans urge you to vote "YES" on Proposition 2 on the November ballot.

This measure will legalize greyhound racing in California—under strict State supervision—and turn over 4 per cent of all track wagers to a Veterans' Fund administered by the State Department of Veterans' Affairs.

It will perform a distinct service for California veterans, giving them for the first time adequate and guaranteed financing of State-sponsored welfare and rehabilitation services. Further, it will make the operation of this service independent of tax appropriations.

Currently, California finances its veterans' rehabilitation service program from the tax-supported General Fund. But present services fall short of their mark. An expanded program is needed—and further tax appropriations will have to be made if the veterans are to get the help they deserve.

Proposition 2 will meet this problem in two ways: First, it will make available sufficient funds to give California a really ADEQUATE program of veterans' welfare and rehabilitation service. Second, it will relieve the taxpayer of the burden of paying for this program; greyhound racing will pay the bill instead.

It is estimated that Proposition 2 will make available a minimum of $2,000,000 per year to the State Veterans' Fund. This will pay for the expansion of present inadequate State services for Veterans and, in addition, will finance operations of the State Veterans' Home at Yountville, or any other Veterans' Home that may later be established.

This income will be guaranteed—year in and year out. It will provide steady support for a competent and worthy program of veterans' aid.

California veterans ask you to support them in this campaign.

Let's Carry Through—VOTE 'YES' on 2!

LAKE CAHUILLA

sculptured. The features are almost perfect and the face looks due north. We have often likened the "Great Stone Face" to a man with a turban. And, from no matter what angle you look at it on the east or south it is still a man's head.

How long he has kept his solitary vigil, we know not. Perhaps he has seen the great coast and Sierra Madre ranges born. Did he, centuries ago, see a phantom race come out of the north, the people who built Casa Grande (great house) in Arizona and then vanish away?

Twice we know, the waters of Lake Cahuilla covered Travertine Rock until little but the head was left above the surface. And while the waves lapped hungerly at him or dashed against his face when the chill winds came from the north, the "Great Stone Face" gazed steadfast and unmoved by the elements.

A coating of travertine was left on the rocks below, but not on the image. During one of the periods, when the waters of the lake receded, a prehistoric people came and left a story etched in the travertine. Then, as if angry, the waters rose again and sought to destroy the record by depositing another coat of travertine. However, the deadly work was not completed and the curious etchings remain today for us to wonder at and try to decipher.

To find another record of the vanished people, which is not far off your route to Travertine Rock, follow U. S. 99 out of Indio about 11 miles to Valerie Corner. Turn west a few miles until you reach the old beach line. Here are located what is locally known as the "Fish Traps." There is a great deal of controversy over the purpose for which these so-called "Fish Traps" were built, but it seems commonly accepted that a people dwelling on the shores of Lake Cahuilla long ago, faced with famine, were forced to trap fish from the waters of the lake.

The traps were circular stone pens, from four to twelve feet across built along the water's edge reaching just above the surface. Through an opening in the seaward side of the wall the fishes entered, then a swinging gate, which worked like a valve, kept them from swimming out. A very primitive device, yet sufficiently effective.

The traps are still there, in tumbledown condition, eleven rows rising in terraces along the mountainside, and what a tragedy they tell! Plainer than words they memorialize the sinking of the lake; for as it sank a line of old traps would be left high and dry, and a new row had to be built lower down.

After eleven series of traps had been built, fishing failed—probably because the water had become too alkaline for the fish to live in. Whether the shore dwellers perished or moved on, no one knows. But here, as at Travertine Rock, they left their records engraved in the travertine covering the rocks. Just what these etchings mean, no one has been able to figure out. The last tribe of Indians to settle in the valley is the the one there now—the Cahuillas. As to the markings on the rocks they are said to be just as ignorant as we are, although there are legends in the tribal lore referring to the vanished lake.

In many caves human skeletons have been found, representing several tribes, which succeeded one another down this historic valley. In burial, ollas, or clay water vessels were placed beside a corpse, then the cave was walled in to keep beasts from the body. Fresh water seems to have been valued very highly, for the last gift of the

In the canyons and out in the desert bove the high water line are found scat-red groups of palms, always close to ater, probably survivors of the ancient ays of Lake Cahuilla. The most famous of ese palms (Washingtonias) are located in alm Canyon, close to Palm Springs. How-ver, many others give their names to spots n the desert around the Coachella Valley, ch as Two Bunch Palms, near Desert Hot prings, Thousand Palms Canyon and Dos almos.

We have recounted only a few of the onders to be found in the fabulous valley f Coachella with its delightful little towns, he names of which conjure thoughts of istant lands; Indio, Coachella, Mecca, Ther-al, 1000 Palms, 100 Palms, Oasis and Des-rt Beach. Oh, Yes, that's true. There is a each on the shore of Salton Sea, some ine and a half miles east of Mecca, where ou can enjoy a swim below sea level.

The life of the gold hunter, in the ab-ence of home restraints being much alone r with men of his kind, engaged in the ometimes exciting and always highly spec-ulative but arduous labor of mining for old, induced eccentric ways among the ioneers—there were strange obsessions, veird fancies, and unaccustomed phobias. The pattern of life, coupled with a plenti-ul supply of "dust" provided a perfect ettling for the saloon and the gambling ouse. Professional gamblers and saloon-keepers were the best-dressed, most pros-perous-looking men in town. Unconscion-ably large quantities of hard liquor were consumed. As some one said, "Them was the days of great depravitation and plenty of whisky." The saloon, in a very real sense, was the miner's second home. It was warm, well-lighted and comfortable, with high-toned mirrors, pictures on the walls, carpets on the floor, capacious spittoons conveniently near the stove—in short, the best type of saloon was the social center of the town. Life in a typical mining camp was likely to be somewhat dreary to a man of parts. Further out, or on side streets were rows of less reputable "deadfalls." These too did a flourishing business. Here is a glimpse of some of the "gambling hells" with their "lady waitresses," given by Col. William Thompson:

> "These dens of iniquity were only too frequently the scenes of awful tragedies, and the sawdust floors drank up the blood of many a poor unfortunate. If the encounter was between two gamblers the miners paid little attention. But if, as was often the case, some miner, crazed with an over-dose of the 'double-distilled damnation, fell a victim to the revolver of knife of a gambler, there was sure to be something doing.' "

Many writers and numerous pictures convey the impression that of course all the red-shirted miners were hard drinkers —everybody was doing it! Such an impression is erroneous. On the contrary, the prevalence of drinking, which wrecked the life of many a promising youth and brought

"For Jimmie and me—vote 'YES' on 3!
"We're candidates too—candidates for future good citizens of California.
"But California needs many more teachers to help us get the education we need to become good citizens.

That's right, Betty—five thousand new teachers are needed right now to safeguard the educational birthright of our children in this fastest-growing State in the Union.

"Daddy says the reason there aren't enough teachers is that teachers don't make enough money. Most of the teachers in our elementary school are paid about $35 a week. So a lot of them are taking other kinds of work to make enough money to live on. And Daddy says that the young men and women who should become teachers are studying other things instead—things that'll pay more.

The present minimum salary for school teachers in California is $1800 a year and thousands of them are getting just that minimum! Teachers can make more money in plenty of other jobs.

"So Jimmie and I have to go to an overcrowded school room. No wonder we aren't learning things as easily as we ought to. And there are some boys and girls near us who can't go to school at all because their school is closed for lack of teachers.

To be exact, 13 schools had to shut down last year for lack of teachers. Yet a million new babies born during the war years have already entered school or are going to enroll within the next few years—to say nothing of the tens of thousands of veterans who are trying to complete their education under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

"But Daddy says we won't have to worry if everybody votes 'YES' on Proposition 3 on Election Day. It'll be like voting for us.

Proposition 3 raises teachers' minimum salaries to $2400 a year, and provides that State support of the schools shall be at the rate of $120 per year per pupil in average daily attendance. This increased State contribution will not raise local property taxes one cent. Ample State funds are available for school purposes to finance Proposition 3 in its entirety.

"Believe me, if Jimmie and I could vote, we'd see that Proposition 3 went over with a bang! So . . .

"For Jimmie and Me—VOTE 'YES' on 3!"

bankruptcy and despair to thousands, di become a matter of grave concern. Ther were always some who lived lives of sobr ety—even the "teetotaler" was not wholl unknown! Temperance organizations earl made their appearance and became activ in their virtuous endeavors. "The Sons c Temperance" was first to enter this fiel —lodges were organized in even the re motest mining towns. The early newspaper quite generally upheld the temperanc principle; the pioneer preachers were fea less in their condemnation of drink.

In 1854 the Sacramento Union publishe a booklet entitled "The Idle and Industriou Miner," with nineteen woodcuts designe by the distinguished painter Charles Nah In this the distress and bitter remors that engulf the drunkard and gambler ar graphically pictured in crude verse, an the moral of honest toil is pointed—

He tells his friends, that wish to know
The cause of his success,
That those who seek the mines must work,
AND DRINK AND GAMBLE LESS.

Gold miners "put up" liberally for any ne church project, though most of them neve attended a service. There was solid respec for religion, but no relish for a namby pamby sermon. The visiting preacher ofte received generous collections, consistin chiefly of small nuggets. A faithful dea coness told how one preacher at Sonor had the habit of ringing the fire alarm "t warn of the fires of hell."

The round of activities of the industriou miner began before daylight. Mrs. Bate in her fascinating book, Incidents on Lan and Water (published 1857), presents lively picture, from which I quote:

"Before the first dawn of light breaks upon the sky above him, he opens his eyes, rolls over on his hard bed, stretches his stiffened limbs, and, feeling about for his boots, places his hand upon something resembling an icicle, into which his feet are thrust, and the labors of the day commenced. He kindles his fire (that is, if he boards himself), fills and sets on the coffee-pot, fries his 'flap-jacks' and his pork, or warms up his beans, and the morning repast is prepared. It is then quickly eaten; and, by the time it is daylight, the miner is beside his tom. The water is let on, and in half an hour's time he is standing ankle-deep in it, every few minutes a dash of it is accidentally sprinkled upon his back A hard day's work of this kind is not unfrequently closed by the paltry reward of one, two, or three dollars, to be divided between the last named number of men."

But the shout goes up, "Here comes the Sacramento stage!" Even the dogs and the straying chickens seem to share in the excitement as the four beautiful bay horses come dashing down the road, gracefully guided by the "knight of the whip." The arrival of the stage is greeted by the runner from the hotel, the Wells Fargo agent and such idle men as chance to be within easy reach. What passengers will it bring today? What news from the States in the papers? What tidings from the folks back home for the homesick miner?

Los Banos: An Autumn Festival Dance sponsored by the local Native Daughters Parlor, was held Saturday evening, Oct. 5 at the D. E. S. ballroom. Music for the affair was furnished by the Skyliners, a 12-piece dance band, featuring vocalists Ray Cann and Pat Patricio. Composed entirely of Los Banos musicians, the group has just completed a successful series of engagements on the coast.

OLD TIMER RECOLLECTS

By HAR LAR

"So you want a story about the days of '49? Shucks, lad, I'm not old enough for all that. Still there's a story about a prospector I knew that beats any moving picture show you ever saw."

Old Timer settled himself more comfortably into his chair and tilted his high crowned black felt hat so the afternoon sun wouldn't shine in his eyes.

"Yep, Al Stowell was a mining man though he wasn't a '49er by a couple of dozen years. He'd struck it rich at least three times. The last time he made his strike it was tungsten and about the time of the first World War. A hasher from one o' them mining towns helped him run through his pile. Though he had prospected from Randsburg to Nevada, it was in the high Sierras above Sweet Springs where I met him.

"Stowell had staked out some thirty odd claims, mainly for "blackjack," a low grade of aluminum ore. Al was dickering to sell out to a mining syndicate for $100,000. He was living in a cabin that was half cave built under a great protective cliff on the side of a canyon wall."

Old Timer stroked his whiskers thoughtfully.

"It's a fantastic story. Course it's probably took on a bit of color in the telling. I ain't saying it's the gospel and I'm not saying it's not partly story but it was told to me for true.

"Al Stowell started prospecting these mountains a long time before the turn of the century. He was a wild one in those early days, a hard drinking fighting man. He was the kind of a fellow that was for you or against you, and there was no middle ground. When Dolan came into the mountains it was mutual hate at first sight. Nobody knew what started it, but they were like two strange dogs a-growling and a-squaring off every time they met.

"Dolan, you might say, was a man of mystery. Nobody knew from where he came or why. He just came a-riding one day up the trail with a couple of pack animals and he built himself a cabin in a mountain meadow. He wasn't either a prospector or a lumberman. He set out fruit trees and planted himself a garden and undeniably he settled himself down to stay. Maybe three or four times a year Dolan came down off the mountain. Always there would be a letter waiting with a fair sized money order enclosed. He'd buy what he needed and go back home.

"When one day they found Dolan shot dead on his doorstep they just naturally looked for Al Stowell. He was roaring drunk when they found him and took him into custody and brought him to Sweet Springs to stand trial.

"The hearing was brief, Al stayed too liquored up to testify for himself. The jury wasn't long in deliberating. They had filed back to the jury box and the foreman had arisen to pronounce Al guilty or not when a commotion interrupted things at the back of the room.

"A masked rider had come through the front door and he hadn't bothered to dismount. The shooting iron in his hand lent a lot of authority to his voice.

"'That man is innocent. We killed Jack

—Round-up of CALIFORNIA BOOKS

CALIFORNIA YANKEE

California Yankee is the intriguing title Carol Green Wilson has chosen for her excellent biography of William R. Staats, business pioneer and business leader in California from 1888 until his death in 1928. Mrs. Wilson has shown unusual ability in weaving the historical background and development of the economic and social structure of Southern California into her story of William Staats' life. But in this she has shown the skill she used in writing the life of Donaldina Cameron, the noted missionary of old San Francisco Chinatown, her "Chinatown Quest" of a dozen years ago.

Mrs. Wilson had first thought of calling her book—"So Many Worlds"—a title that would have well fitted the story of the many and varied interests that filled the life of William R. Staats.

For forty years Will Staats was in the forefront of social, civic and financial circles of Southern California. Coming to California, as an invalid, at the beginning of the great boom of the 'eighties, Staats —a dynamo of energy—regained his health and became prime mover in many of the great business enterprises of the state.

In this book the author has given us not only the story of the many activities of William R. Staats, but she has written the early history of such great corporations as the Union Oil Company of California; the Southern California Edison Company and the Title Insurance and Trust Company, in all of which Staats was an organizer and developer.

Here we have an intimate picture of the social life of Southern California in the 'eighties and 'ninties—society events at the great boom hotels—the Raymond in Pasadena—the Green—the Metropole, at Catalina Island—the founding of the exclusive Valley Hunt Club, and the origin and development of the great Rose Tournament in Pasadena, an event that has grown into tradition, and is known over the entire nation. We have the history of the organization and development of many cultural phases of Pasadena and Southern California. We have the beginning of Throop Institute and its growth into the great California Institute of Technology—the story of "Father" Throop—the coming of the great scholar, Dr. James A. B. Scherer and his fine work—the advent of the noted scientist, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, who has made this great institution outstanding in the world of science and engineering.

Mrs. Wilson has treated fully the wonderful results accomplished in astronomy in Southern California, beginning with Professor Lowe's work on Mt. Lowe, the building of the famed inclined railway—now a thing of the past—the increased interest in Southern California as a center for the study of astronomy, and the transferring of activities to Mt. Wilson.

A full chapter is devoted to Henry E. Huntington, whose coming into Southern California changed the entire aspect of this charming country—giving it the impetus it needed to become the great industrial and financial center it is today. Mrs. Wilson has pictured the transformation of the old rancho of Don Benito Wilson, the birthplace of our great general the late George Patton, into the now, world famous Huntington Library, Art Gallery and Botanical Gardens.

The history of early hydro-electrical development in Southern California, which has been one of the greatest factors in California's phenomenal growth, is told in full, and the manner in which the author has told the story of the Union Oil Company is intriguing.

And here, too, we find light on the financial world and the development of that great institution, The Title Insurance and Trust Company, and the William R. Staats Company, which is today one of the great bond houses of the nation.

The book, which shows a tremendous amount of research, is of importance both in history and biography, touching as it does so many individuals of prominence throughout the state and nation. It is profusely illustrated with some sixty-seven photographs which make it a most valuable record. Designed by Ruth Saunders of the Saunders Press of Claremont, who may well be proud of her work, and with an index, both adequate and inclusive, its value to the literature of California history is assured.—Reviewed by J. Gregg Layne, courtesy Historical Society of Southern California.

BUILD YOUR OWN ADOBE

by Paul and Doris Aller

Paul and Doris Aller's recital of how they and their daughter, Diane, built their adobe house in northern California from mixing the bricks to adding the final decorative touches is as practical as a cookbook.

However, for all its careful step-by-step explanation, the book is no mere listing of ingredients and processes. It is a happily written, warm hearted, good humored autobiography as well as a handbook. The details of building are all there along with amusing anecdotes of the Allers' struggles with the plumbing, the electrical wiring or on deciding where the fireplace should be.

BUILD YOUR OWN ADOBE illustrates how an age-old material can be adapted today for modern standards of reliability and functional living.

Besides letting one into all the secrets of adobe construction and the fun they had building, the Allers offer much sound homemaking advice and philosophical whimsy that should go into the making of any kind of home.

The authors are artistic people who not only can build their own home but construct their furniture and decorate with beautiful wood carvings and mosaics. Paul Aller is a typographer. Doris Aller, as well as being "homemaker" writes for Sunset Magazine and other homemaking periodicals. Diane is a student of architecture at the University of California, Berkeley.

he valley of Twentynine Palms was known to the nomadic Morongo Indians as the asis of Maru—"the water place of little rain." Cattle men from the famous stock inges in the mountains above the valley knew this never-failing water supply. The sis derived its name from the native Washingtonia Palms, 29 of which were grow- ig here when Col. Henry Washington surveyed for the government. It was he who esignated the place "29 Palms" when describing it in his original field notes. This is said to be the northernmost spot in which the Washingtonia Palms are found

THE OASIS OF MARU

NEARLY 100 eventful years have passed since white men first discovered he sun drenched wonderland that today s known as Twentynine Palms in eastern an Bernardino County.

It was around 1846 that miners came cross this delightful desert retreat, and ven today everywhere in the hills of the rea may be found ample evidence of the easeless hunt for gold in years past. n 1855 this healthful, secluded spot was amed Twentynine Palms by Col. Henry Vashington, a government surveyor.

The name was well chosen, for at that ime there were 29 Palms growing there. As the years rolled on the number of trees ave been reduced in number, due, to van- alism, until today they stand as an oasis n the desert as pictured above.

Nearly 70 years were to pass after Twentynine Palms was named before it eceived its much deserved recognition as ne of the healthiest spots in America. In he meantime it served the Indians as a vater hole and furnished "desert rats" vith their water supply.

It was around 1922—in the post-war era hat followed World War 1—that the Pasa- lena American Legion selected 29 Palms as he outstanding spot where health could e restored to our boys who had been gassed n the war and in later years developed respiratory troubles. Among the many rea- ons for the selection of this spot by the nedical men sent out from Pasadena was hat it has an elevation of 2,100 feet and complete absence of fog. This later is veri- ied by an old timer and typical desert rat who has lived in the area for 45 years and n all that time has not seen fog in the vicinity. No factor here deflects the sun's ray and it is said that Twentynine Palms enjoys more natural ultra-violet ray than any other location on the North American Continent.

Twentynine Palms also has the distinction of being one of the driest spots in the United States. The percentage of humidity is almost NIL—the usual figure being around 5 to 6 per cent. The normal rainfall is about five inches per year—usually coming in the summer in the nature of thunder showers.

The Pasadena Legion erected a camp ground, with the original group of 28 members using the facilities provided. The results were miraculous, with only one member being lost—he refused to remain. The results were not long in becoming known and the Government allowed the area to be homesteaded by ex-service men.

The mature, concentrated growth of Twentynine Palms actually dates back only a few years, for it has been in the last decade that a number of experienced subdividers have intensively developed the area and brought into being a thriving, expanding community that bids fair to outdistance the famous Palm Springs section of the desert. All the facilities of modern living can be found in this quaint desert town with its live Chamber of Commerce and its progressive newspaper, "The Desert Trails."

Twentynine Palms is located at the northern entrance to the Joshua Tree National Monument, and here are the park headquarters. A story of the National Monument with photos by the National Park Service will appear in a coming issue of the Grizzly Bear.

Romance of the Presidio

The Touching Love Story of Concepcion de Arguello

By FABIUS T. FINCH

Editor's Note: "Romance of the Presidio" was recently delivered before Presidio Parlor No. 194, NSGW, by the author, a veteran attorney of San Francisco, a charter member of that parlor and one of its past presidents.

MANY people suffer from the astigmatism of far-sightedness. They can appreciate the beauty of a mustard patch in bloom on a distant hillside, but overlook the violets at their feet. They rave over the biographies of heroes of bygone ages and of distant lands; and are charmed by the romances of old, by such licentious loves as that of Anthony and Cleopatra. At the same time they forget our own heroes who crossed the plains and rounded the Horn, undergoing tremendous hardships, and performing dazzling feats of heroism in the peaceful conquest of this magnificent empire. They see not the more beautiful, more high-minded romances that have been enacted and are being enacted right here in this land of peculiar romantic setting.

I propose to call your attention this evening to one of the sweetest romances ever told, which occurred right here at our own Presidio. The story of Ramona and the story of Count Rezanov and Concepcion de Arguella should be on the lips of every Native Son.

As every member of Ramona Parlor knows by heart Helen Hunt Jackson's beautiful story of "Ramona," a romance which glorifies all Southern California, so every member of Presidio Parlor should know the "one sweet human fancy" that glorifies the old Presidio, after which our Parlor is named. And all the more reason is there that this should be the case, because the love story of the Spanish maiden and the Russian chamberlain is an absolute historical fact of California history, indissolubly intertwined with the Old Presidio, the old Mission Dolores, San Andreas Ravine (where now stands the Spring Valley Reservoir), San Francisco Bay, and the Old Fort Point, then called Fort San Joaquin. We ought to know our own story.

In 1806 Russia and Spain were striving with each other to occupy the Pacific Coast of America. Russia was forcing her settlements south from Alaska, and Spain and sending north her missionaries and her soldiers from Mexico. On April 8th of that year, the "Juno" sailed into San Francisco Bay from Sitka, bearing the intrepid Rezanov, Chamberlain of the Czar—one of the chief courtiers surrounding the Russian throne. Don Jose Arguello, the Spanish Commandante at the Presidio, was away at Monterey on business, and did not return for ten days. In the meantime, the Russians landed at about the foot of Buchanan Street, and were entertained by the Commandante's family with a whole-souled, lavish hospitality that only the Spanish grandees of California knew how to accord. To a people who scarcely ever saw a foreigner, except at great intervals a Yankee trader, the brilliant uniforms and courtly graces of the Russian officers made them most welcome guests. Almost nightly entertainments, either a feast or a dance, were accorded to the visiting noblemen; and those festivities were presided over by the Commandante's charming daughter, Concepcion.

Picture for yourselves the scene:

Rezanov was at the very prime of life, a man who was the personal friend and intimate advisor of the Czar, a man who from youth had been petted by the intriguing court beauties of Europe. He had gone to Alaska in the interests of the Russian-American Company, and there had spent several years in the frozen North among the camps of the seal fishers, suffering indescribable privations of improper food and insufficient shelter. From those scenes of cold and hunger, he came direct to San Francisco Bay in springtime.

What man coming from the foul huts of the fishermen to the hospitable home of the Commandante, from the society of the illiterate sealers to a family fireside, where youth and refinement reigned, could resist the charms of a Spanish beauty?

Concepcion de Arguello, or Concha, as she was called by her family, was fifteen years old, was unusually bright, had been carefully educated, and notwithstanding her youth, she was mature in womanhood. Most Spanish girls of that age are bewitchingly beautiful, but she was the fairest Castilian rose that bloomed at the Presidio. Her simple, truthful, whole-souled manner was so different from the fawning, flattering society belles of the court of the Czar. Her father's home was the old adobe, which still stands near the Chapel at the Presidio, and which is now used as the Officer's Club. It was then the mansion of San Francisco.

When her father, the Commandante, returned from Monterey, he was angry, because he feared that the Russians had come here to look over this fair land with the idea of conquest; his strict orders from Madrid had been to prevent all foreigners from entering this port. He soon found, however, that the darts of Cupid had gained a victory over the Russian Chamberlain, which the old, rusty, flint-lock rifles and impossible cannon of his Spanish soldiers could never have accomplished.

Her parents strongly objected to their marriage, because of their difference in religion—he being a communicant of the Russian Church, and she of the Church of Rome, and also because of the political differences between their respective countries. Her father caused her to be kept in close seclusion at the home of her cousin, near old Mission Dolores, and to be there visited and lectured daily by her priest and confessor. But it takes more logic than that advanced by her father, and more barriers than a one-story adobe to thwart real lovers. Rezanov enlisted her brother Luis in his suit. Luis furnished horses with which the Count rode nightly to her temporary abode; and there, through her latticed window, they held sweet converse, uninterrupted. The stage was specially for them; they could not let the other cupants of the house know of their me ings, hence they could have no light, exce the moon, whose silvery rays throw a gla or over even commonplace incidents; th could not speak loud or make a noise, a there were just enough oppositions and d ficulties to be overcome to add zest the romance.

Instead of her being persuaded by t priest to obey her father and renour her lover, she won the kindly old pac over to be her champion. Rezanov h among his cargo a great many gaily c ored shawls and dainty fabrics, so dear the hearts of Spanish women. These gave away freely to her mother and t other ladies of the Presidio. It was not lo before the stern old father had to gi in, and the betrothal was formally a nounced at a special fiesta, where bu fighting, bear-baiting and dancing held fi sway. The conditions were imposed, ho ever, that before the wedding could ta place, a special dispensation had to be c tained from their respective churches f each to marry out of their faith, and sp cial permission had to be obtained frc the thrones of St. Petersburg and Madri because of the official positions of Rezan and of the Commandante, and because the ambitions of each country on the P cific. Rezanov resolved to go at once person to get the necessary dispensatior He traded his fabrics and other cargo f food for his fishermen, and on May 21s 1806, sailed out of the Golden Gate f Alaska. From there he crossed to Okhots on the coast of Asia, and thence set o ou horseback across the wilds of Siber r St. Petersburg, to get the consent the Czar, and there he proposed to get special commission appointed to the Kir of Spain, thus easily removing the remai ing objections, and without delay he wou set sail for Vera Cruz, Mexico, and con overland to claim his bride.

As the "Juno" passed out of the Golde Gate, the Commandante and his family ar many friends stood at the old fort to wa adieu to the departing lover; militar salutes were exchanged between the ca non on shore and the ship, the fort givin two shots more than the ship, for goc measure. One soul upon that shore uttere a special prayer for his safe and swi return; one pair of eyes scanned the ocea until his ship sank into the horizon. Thos same eyes continued to scan that sea fc forty years in the vain vigil of seeing h return; for forty years that same maide continued her supplications to the Almight for his safety—but he returned not.

On his journey, the Count was throw from his horse in Central Siberia, and die of a fever, superinduced by the fall. Co cha did not know of his fate, but refusin to credit all suggestions that he had bee false to her, she remained true to he troth until the blush of youth had le her face, when she finally joined th Dominican Sisterhood. Her ears were dea to serenades and honeyed words of lov spoken by the gay caballeros of the settle ment, and to all other sounds except th murmur of the waves which were to bea her lover back.

About forty years after Rezanov's de parture from San Francisco, an Englis traveler, Sir George Simpson, was bein entertained at Santa Barbara, when h was told the story of her devotion an of her faithless lover. This traveler kne of Rezanov's tragic death in his endeavo to keep his promise to his little Spanis sweetheart. He hunted her up at the hous of a friend in Santa Barbara, and re lated the story to her. She died in the satis faction that her lover had remained tru to her, and in the knowledge that his de

PRESS GLEANINGS

Benecia—Tentative dates for the Centennial here have been set for June 5, 6, 7, 8, 1947, following a meeting of the centennial committee including Steve DeBenedetti, Frank Passalacqua, Harvey Drummond, Earnest Gallardo and John Benson representing the Native Sons and Milo Passalacqua and Henry White the Chamber of Commerce. Louis Pellandini, Grand Trustee, NSGW, and secretary of the Sonoma Bear Flag Centennial committee, gave an account of the recent celebration at Sonoma.

Anaheim: The Hon. Charles Kuchel, 79, justice of the peace of Anaheim township for 23 years, pioneer resident of this city and one-time co-publisher of the Anaheim Gazette, passed away Tuesday, October 1. Born in 1866, Judge Kuchel had watched Anaheim grow from a tiny frontier settlement to the thriving modern community of today. He was a member of an early Anaheim Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West. Surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Fred Backs and Miss Winifred Melrose; and two nephews. State Controller Thomas H. Kuchel and Ted Kuchel, publisher of the Anaheim Gazette.

Placerville: James E. Summerfield, Jr., of Sacramento, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Summerfield of this city, recently enlivened an otherwise dull day on the Sacramento river near Nerona by landing a 44-pound salmon. He reports there were several other fishermen in the vicinity but that none seemed to be doing anything until he tied onto the big fellow. Jim was sort of spoiling for a fight in the vicinity of Verona since he landed a 35-pound salmon there last year.

Coachella: Full particluars concerning the construction of a new multi-million dollar city in the Valley, Palm Desert, were given to the Desert Barnacle exclusively the first of October for the biggest news story of its kind since the coming of the All-American Canal. This "scoop," which publications like the Los Angeles Times, Life Magazine and others, (including the Grizzly Bear) have tried in vain for months, was given to The Barnacle by Clifford W. Henderson, head of the association undertaking the project and brother of Randall Henderson, publisher of the famed Desert Magazine. The tract of 1480 acres is across from Palm Village at the intersection of the Palms to Pines Highway with the Palm Springs-Indio road.

According to the story given The Barnacle, Randall Henderson's Desert Magaine plant, known to many Grizzly readers, will occupy a 40-acre tract and will include two colonies, one for his staff of 40 employees and one for artists, writers, photographers, painters and other professional artisans.

Randall Henderson is also reported to have purchased two sections of land on Santa Rosa Mountain for building sites to house his staff during summer months.

The Desert Magazine will be housed in a ranch type structure and the lobby will be a desert museum. Clustered around it will be a number of native shops where real Indians will turn out authentic rugs, jewelry, pottery and other souvenirs and novelty objects.

Clifford W. Henderson, dynamic general manager of the Pan-Pacific auditorium, Los Angeles and the Pasadena Winter Gardens the "father" and manager of world-famous National Air Races, reported that Palm Desert City is backed by a closed corporation of 47 of the most influential and wealthy men in southern California, and promises to become one of the most remarkable cities in the country.

"Naturally," he added, "we have a profit motive, but this is not going to be just another high-pressure subdivision. It's more than that. It's the fulfillment of a dream—an entirely new town here on the desert."

Palm Desert will boast a mile-long El Paseo along the Palm Springs road, scores of ranch and modern ranch type business buildings, dwellings for Shadow Mountain Club members, swimming pools, stables, bridle paths, tennis courts, skeet ranges, private schools, exclusive colonies, lodges and private clubhouses.

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

The Membership Contest is off to a flying start; 373 initiated during the month of August and 430 during September. Undoubtedly more than these have been initiated but cannot be counted yet due to the failure of the Recording Secretaries to send the applications to the Grand Secretary's Office. For September very substantial gains were made by Argonaut Parlor No. 8 (Oroville); Hydraulic No. 56 (Nevada City; Santa Cruz No. 90 and Guadalupe No. 231 (San Francisco.) For the two months University No. 272 (Los Angeles) also makes a very creditable showing. The prizes are substantial and are available both to Parlors and individuals. If you are interested and don't know the details of the contest, ask your Secretary or District Deputy.

War Record Pamphlets

Two requests already have been made of the Recording Secretaries to supply the Grand Secretary with a list of the World War II Veterans, both living and dead, who were members of the Order during the period of activity—December 7, 1941 to September 2, 1945. The names can't be printed unless sent in.

Special Legislative Committee

The Special Legislative Committee held a meeting in San Francisco on September 7 and planned an aggressive campaign in favor of Proposition No. 15 on the November ballot. The adoption of this Proposition approves the action taken by the State Legislature in passing the Alien Land Law and the amendments which put "teeth" in it. Be sure to vote "YES" on Proposition No. 15 and get your friends to do so, too.

Bobby Nolan, with the car in which he won the Soap Box Derby at Oakland and placed fourth in the All-American Finals at Akron, Ohio. Note the NSGW, 252, on the rear of the car, denoting that he carried the colors of Fruitvale Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as those of the Post-Enquirer.

STANFORD PARLOR NO. 76 HOLDS MEETING AT ALPINE LODGE

Alpine Lodge, a 30-minute trip from San Francisco, was the setting for the regular meeting of Stanford Parlor No. 76, NSGW, Saturday evening, October 12. The Lodge, which is located on the road to Mount Tamalpais, was the scene of an enjoyable weekend and dinner early this summer. A dinner preceded the parlor meeting.

Saturday evening, November 2, Stanford Parlor will hold a dance at the Century Club, Franklin Street between Post and Sutter, for members and friends.

Tours

The tour of the northern part of the State taken by your Grand Officers' Initiatory Team from September 10 through the 19th was a great success. It revived interest in some dormant Parlors and large Class Initiations were held in many of the others. In fact, the trip was such a success that it probably will be an annual event in the future. The annual Fall Tour of the South, October 22-30, has eight Initiations scheduled, four of them by the Grand Officers.

NSGW Windshield Stickers

These are very attractive decorations for your new car and your Secretary should have a supply on hand. The cost is practically nothing and if the one on your old car is worn out, replace it!

Homeless Children

The Homeless Children appeal has already gone out to the public and the appeal to the membership is due soon. Contribute as generously as you can to our great charity, but send at least $1.00 for your own stamps.

FRUITVALE PARLOR'S SOAP BOX DERBY ENTRANT IN FINALS

Bobby Nolan of Oakland, sponsored by Fruitvale Parlor No. 252, NSGW, won the Oakland Soap Box Derby under the auspices of the Oakland Post-Enquirer recently and went to Akron, Ohio for the All American Finals.

The Fruitvale Parlor entrant had the time of his life in Akron, his red hair mass of freckles and winning smile making him a favorite. There were 112 starters in the original race at Akron and Bobby was defeated in the third round by Harold Hays of Durham, N. C., when there were but 13 boys left in the finals on Saturday August 17, witnessed by more than 100,000 people.

The Oakland champion won his heat hands down in the first round from Glen Kitzenberger of St. Joseph, Mo. The second heat was closer and he won from Rodney Rush, Springfield, Ill., and Ronald Canaday, Champaign, Ill. Young Hays, who defeated Bobby in the third round by half a car length, went on to finish fourth in the finals. Gilbert Klecan from San Diego brought the Soap Box Derby Championship to the Pacific Coast for the first time in America's greatest amateur racing event.

Congratulations are in order to Fruitvale Parlor for the part it played in helping to sponsor an entry which brought fame and honor to Oakland.

Pacific Parlor No. 10 held a 65th Anniversary class initiation October 29 conducted by the parlor's officers. A goal of 400 members has been set by the end of the year.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE STATE WITH NATIVE SONS

Of special interest to all parlors of the Native Sons of the Golden West is the fact that at a joint initiation of Compton, Whittier, South Gate, Huntington Park, Montebello Parlors, held Friday evening, October 25 at Compton, the initiatory work was put on by Whittier Parlor No. 297. This parlor was newly instituted at Whittier, Los Angeles County, August 15. Grand Officers on a southland tour, were in attendance to witness the work.

A first hand account of the effects of the Atom Bomb which fell on Hiroshima was given to members of the Los Angeles Friday Noon Luncheon Club October 4 at the Hotel Clark by Dr. Verne E. Mason. Dr. Mason, attached to the Surgeon General's staff, was in on the ground floor of the official government investigation. The speaker was introduced by John B. Haas of Ramona No. 109, program chairman. Elwood Bowles, president, presided.

Editorial from the Friday Nighter, Fruitvale Parlor No. 252, Oakland; "The Spirit of the West—That indomitable spirit, which inspired the pioneer men and women who crossed the plains in those sturdy covered wagons and caravans, and built up California; and the same Spirit of the West, ever present, has dominated and inspired all early California to make our State the leader in all things that make for good citizenship. That Spirit of the West was the theme of the very fine address delivered by our member, State Senator Arthur Breed Jr., at the Admission Day Dinner in Oakland. Finely delivered, well enunciated, excellently worded. Much praise was voiced for Senator Breed. Arthur, we are proud of you, glad that you belong to our Parlor. Many years may you be Senator. Eddie Schnarr, in his usual friendly completeness, was the Toastmaster at the dinner. Past Grand President Joseph R. Knowland, father of our member, Russ Knowland and of United States Senator Will Knowland of Halcyon Parlor, made a wonderful talk on the coming Centennial celebrations.

Harry C. Sweetzer, recording secretary of Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116, was one of the first Native Sons outside of Orange and Los Angeles counties to pay a visit to the Grizzly Bear's new offices at Anaheim. Harry was accompanied by his son, Paul, another member of Santa Barbara Parlor.

A Hard Time Western Dance was given Saturday, October 12, at the City Hall in San Gabriel. The San Gabriel Parlor of Native Sons sponsored the dance.

Arrowhead Assembly No. 14, Past President's Association, met Sunday, Oct. 6, at Club Oaks in Waterman Canyon, San Bernardino Mountain Highway, at which time delegates to the General Assembly at Sacramento were elected.

Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116, NSGW and Cabrillo Parlor No. 114, Ventura, held a joint initiation Thursday evening, October 24, in Santa Barbara. The initiation work was put on by officers of Cabrillo Parlor.

Santa Monica Bay Parlor No. 267 celebrated "Gene Biscailuz Night," Tuesday evening, Oct. 22 honoring the famous Los Angeles County Sheriff, a past president and active member of the parlor. Initiatory work was put on by members of Ramona No. 109, Los Angeles. Grand Officers of the Order were in attendance on the occasion which commemorated Santa Monica Bay's 20th anniversary.

Humboldt Parlor No. 14 of Eureka, Arcata Parlor No. 20 and Ferndale Parlor No. 93 were hosts to Grand President R. G. Power and his Grand Officers at a joint meeting held in Ferndale, Sept. 13. Brother H. E. Giacomini, whose seventh son was initiated into Ferndale Parlor that evening, was introduced as well as six of his sons who were present.

The occasion marked the 60th Anniversary of Ferndale Parlor, and delicious refreshments prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kistner were enjoyed following the meeting. The beautiful birthday cake was cut by R. H. Flowers who will soon be a 50-year member. Ferndale Parlor No. 93 was instituted Sept. 18, 1886 by Past Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, then DDGP in Humboldt County.

Sonoma Parlor No. 111, Sonoma, held a large class initiation Monday evening Oct. 21, when Grand Trustee J. Walter Kamb made his official visit. The membership drive for Sonoma Parlor was headed by Grand Trustee Louis Pellanini, member of the parlor, who has been very active in all activities.

Hollywood Parlor No. 196 held its "Old Timers Night" Sept. 26, with each past president of the parlor being called upon to preside during the course of the evening. Older members of the parlor swapped yarns and a good time was had by all.

CABRILLO PARLOR CELEBRATES ITS 59TH ANNIVERSARY

Cabrillo Parlor No. 114, NSGW, Ventura, Tuesday evening, October 15, observed its 59th Anniversary with a dinner and program featuring Jose Arias and his Spanish Troubadores. Cabrillo Parlor was instituted October 27, 1887 with a Charter Class of 25 residents of Ventura County. Cabrillo Parlor has grown through the many years until today it has many times the original membership on its rolls.

Pacific Parlor Member Holds High Knights Templar Position

General Henry G. Mathewson, USA Retired for many years a member of Pacific Parlor, NSGW, San Francisco, has the distinction of being the Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of the State of California. In this capacity he travels the length and breadth of this great state, and an itinerary of his travels for these past months, placed him in almost every community from Visalia to the Oregon line—and that's a lot of traveling.

COLLETT BIOGRAPHER TO HAVE PLENTY MATERIAL

When President Charles Elmer Collet of Stanford Parlor No. 76, San Francisco, took a longer bath in the ocean than is healthy, down in the Philippines during the recent fracas, he probably figured he had had enough adventure for one mortal life and would return home to a humdrum existence. He probably figured the best he could do thereafter was to try to avoid regaling each youngster with, "Now when the Japs shot that ship out from under me," and so on.

But things are continuing to happen to Charles Elmer fast enough to supply civilian conversation. So says "The Spirit of '76," official Stanford Parlor bulletin.

August 28th, he was appointed assistant United States attorney, with offices in the Post Office building, at Seventh and Mission streets.

August 9th, Cedric William Collett arrived in this world, the third child and the second son. Cedric attended the September 15th picnic of the Parlor.

September 9th, Charles Elmer Collett was a handsome and striking figure as he passed in salute before the reviewing stand at the City Hall in the Admission Day parade. Many thousands of people marched that day but you could count of the fingers on one hand those who had the mien, the bearing, the carriage, the know-how-to-march of tall Collett.

September 15th, Collett was executive at a picnic of 500 people, a picnic of the kind always to be remembered.

September 28th, Charles Elmer played the role of the Mikado in the Reginald Travers' presentation of the Gilbert & Sullivan Opera at the Greek Theater, on the University of California campus. That is a regal role, to say the least. You must sing in manly fashion and a flunkey must ever keep an umbrella above your head no matter how or in which way you turn your head or body.

Collett continues to be a glutton for doing outstanding things. In the next forty days he has three outstanding events listed for his Parlor and he manages to keep pretty busy outside the Parlor.

PATRONIZE THE GRIZZLY BEAR ADVERTISERS

OBSERVATORY OLD TIMERS HAVE ROLLICKING TIME

Shades of gas lights, burning coal oil lamps, and the presence of Ye Old "Asbestos Curtain," helped to turn back the years at the recent Old Timers' Night of Observatory Parlor, NSGW, San Jose. The halls were crowded long before the meeting got under way, all the old timers getting into the swing of things by donning gay mustachios and browsing through the table heaped with photos of the past events of Observatory Parlor.

The current officers regaled themselves in all modes of outlandish attire, relative to the occasion. One could hardly distinguish them from some of the characters of Bret Harte.

The meeting, after getting under way, was turned over to Arthur Free who presided as chair officer, aided and abetted by Fred Doerr, Charlie Bauer, Howell Melvin, Louie Doerr, Nort Mahon, August Brosius, Louie Dietz and Al Hansen.

Presented certificates for 25 years of service were: Oscar Glans, Joseph Carl Waterman, Ronald G. Stewart, Robert T. O'Hanlon, Louis H. Hansen, Arthur M. Free, William G. Pengilly Harry A. Peppin, Clarence B. Goodwin, Dr. George L. Barry, Milton G. Moenning, A. Emile Benoit, Max Bloom and Ernest W. Johnson.

The Committee, under the leadership of Maxey Taylor, certainly deserves a world of credit for their untiring efforts in making the party the success that it was. Nothing was left undone, we all were treated to a real glimpse into the past, and we know that in the future more parties of a like nature will be in the offing.

Following the meeting, which didn't last too long, the chair was turned over to Herman Mager, the master of ceremonies for the evening. From here on, the party really developed into something worth writing home about. Spike Murphy and Grant O'Neil turned in a skit that was out of this world—the boys are still blushing. A noisy quartette from the First National Bank Building gave out with some of that "Gay Ninety Jive," of course it came from the throats of the Leeses, Russ Carlson and Ernie Shepherd (loaned from the B. of A.)

A musical trio composed of "Off Key" Sullivan, on the fiddle, "Steel Fingers" Hart on the harpsichord, and Don Williams on the strung gut git-fiddle, strolled amongst the gathered whiskerinos giving out with the heart rending songs of yesteryear.

Following the entertainment, the boys ran upstairs to partake of a real sumptuous set-to. Frijoles and chili stewed up by Pisano Gallichotte left the boys smacking their chompers.

SAN LUIS REY PARLOR TO BE INSTITUTED AT OCEANSIDE

San Luis Rey Parlor, Oceanside, San Diego County, will be instituted Thursday evening, November 14, it is announced, the institution ceremonies being conducted by Grand President R. G. Power and his corps of Grand Officers.

Name of the new Oceanside Parlor is taken from the famous San Luis Rey Mission located only a few miles to the east. Oceanside is about 40 miles north of San Diego, and, according to Deputy Grand President Dan E. Shaffer, there are about 700 prospective Native Sons in the area. In addition several members of other parlors reside in this section to add their enthusiasm to its upbuilding.

Record Class Initiated at Redwood Parlor Meeting

Fifty-eight Californians were initiated by a team of past and present Grand Officers recently at Redwood Parlor No. 66, Redwood City, San Mateo County.

A county wide initiation will be held at Redwood City, Nov. 14, with all parlors of San Mateo County to be guests of Redwood Parlor on that date.

Twin Peaks Parlor Honors Grand President Loretta M. Cameron

Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185, N.D.G.W of San Francisco, honored their own esteemed member, Grand President Loretta M. Cameron, with a tea and reception in the spacious lounge of the Native Daughter Home on Sunday afternoon, September 29, 1946. Several hundred members and guests assembled to greet the Grand President. Tea was served preceding the reception in the dining room of the Home, at beautifully set tables and service.

In the receiving line were, in addition to the Grand President, Loretta Schaertzer, mother of the Grand President; Deputy Grand President Nan Kelly of Portola Parlor; Sabina Lagan, President of Twin Peaks Parlor; Merle Sandell, Chairman of arrangements. A musical program was given during the reception by the Franciscan Stringed Trio of which Grand Organist Frances Simas is a member, and two groups of soprano solos by Leslye Hicks of Buena Vista Parlor No. 68, accompanied by the Grand Organist. Of special interest to the guests was the solo "Westward, Ho," with a historical prologue.

The Grand President in responding to an introduction by Merle Sandell, stated that it had long been her hope to have her final reception as a Grand Officer held in the Native Daughter Home and that one of her dreams had been fulfilled. Kay Jensen presented the Grand President with an elegant black velvet sequined evening wrap on behalf of the members of Twin Peaks Parlor, stating that it was their hope that the warmth of the wrap during her travels throughout the State would ever serve to express the warmth of friendship and love of her own members. It was a very warm sunny Sunday in San Francisco, which cast its glow over the group assembled and all felt it was a beautiful and successful afternoon.

In attendance were the following members of the Grand President's Official Family: Grand Marshall Margaret Farnsworth; Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler; Grand Treasurer Agnes M. Curry; Grand Trustees Dorothy Donofrio; Jewel McSweeney; and Marian Brien, Outside Sentinel Ruth Trousdale. Also Past Grand Presidents Mae B. Wilkin, Dr. Mariana Bertola, Anne C. Theusen, Orinda G. Giannini and Ethel C. Enos.

60TH ANNIVERSARY OF NATIVE DAUGHTERS OBSERVED SEPT. 21

Saturday evening, September 21, marked the observance of the 60th anniversary of the order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and the official visit of Grand President Loretta Cameron, of San Francisco, to Ursula Parlor No. 1, hostess at a delicious dinner served by the W.S.C.S. to almost two hundred people who came from throughout the state to attend the official visit and celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the Mother Parlor.

The meeting followed at the Eagles Hall which had been fittingly decorated with large gold "60's."

Following the opening of the parlor session, presided over by Mary Lorenson, the following distinguished guests were escorted to seats of honor: Grand President Loretta Cameron; Charter Member of Ursula Parlor and Permanent member of Grand Parlor, Flora Ferrero, who was presented with an orchid by the parlor; Past Grand President Ethel C. Enos, Modesto; Grand Secretary Sallie Thaler, Oakland, Grand Trustees—Elmarie H. Dyke, Pacific Grove; Jewell McSweeny, San Francisco; Marian Brien, Napa; and Elizabeth Reed of Jackson; Past Grand Presidents—Esther R. Sullivan, Marysville; Ann C. Thuesen, San Francisco; Bertha A. Briggs, Hollister; Claire Lindsay, Oakland; and Edna B. Briggs of Sacramento; Supervising District Deputy Grand President Laura Weston, Plymouth; and Deputy Grand President Adelle Brown of Sutter Creek.

Each honored guest was presented with a white satin bookmark with a hand painted poppy and name of the occasion in gold. The marker was in a folder that carried a reproduction of the Charter members, names, and an article on the founding of the Mother Parlor.

Parlors from the following communities were represented: Sutter Creek, Plymouth, Ione, San Andreas, Modesto, Placerville, Sacramento, Murphys, San Francisco, Elk Grove, Sonoma, Petaluma, Marysville, Susanville, Hollister, Lincoln, Napa, Stockton, Oakland and Monterey.

During good of the order all distingushed guests were extended the courtesy of making remarks and bringing greetings. Among those who spoke was Grand President Cameron, who extended good wishes to the members of the Parlor.

CONGRATULATIONS

Congratulations are extended from Grand Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, to Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer of Los Angeles, who was recently named Chairman of the Finance Committee for the National Business and Professional Women.

Native Daughter President Tells of Childrens Work

The importance of a continuing support of the work of the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee on Homeless Children was explained by Mrs. Loretta Cameron, grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, who was in Placerville Wednesday, October 2, to pay her official visit to Marguerite Parlor.

Mrs. Cameron explained that through the sale of "homeless baby" stamps, the Central Committee on Homeless Children which is made up of representatives of both the Native Sons and Native Daughters, is seeking the general support of the public for its 36-year-old adoption service. A total of 5,566 children have been given homes with foster parents through the committee's work since 1910, when the service first started.

The proposed concert by Maria Kurenko, soprano, to benefit the Southern Counties Committee, NDGW and NSGW on Homeless Children, planned for October 1 in Philharmonic auditorium, was cancelled due to a cold contracted by the vocalist.

Seven Menlo Juniors Visit Redwood In Honor of Grand President

Seven of the Jr. NDGW unit No. 10 of Menlo Park, journeyed to Redwood City the evening of September 26, to make a presentation to Grand President Loretta Cameron on the occasion of her official visit to Bonita and Menlo Parlors. A gift from the Jr. group was presented to Mrs. Cameron by Patsy Carvevale, in the absence of the Jr. President Barbara Ferrari.

Membership and Publicity committee of the juniors are functioning in preparation of Grand Vice President — Doris Treat's official visit sometime in November, when the unit will observe its fifth birthday.

Dorothy Donofrio Honored

In recognition of her fourth consecutive term as grand trustee of the Native Daugters of the Golden West, Dorothy Donofrio, Daly City, was honored with a reception Wednesday evening, September 18, the setting for the special affair being the spacious and beautiful Blue Room of the Masonic Temple.

Several Past Grand Presidents, Grand Officers, and Supervising District Deputies and members of El Carmelo Parlor No. 256, NSGW, were present for the reception, handled by the capable co-chairmanship of Hattie Kelly, secretary of the parlor, and Christine Hulme, financial secretary.

Highlight of the evening's events was the honoree's inspiring talk on San Mateo County, including the history of each town, beginning with Redwood City and ending with Daly City.

Following the reception, some 105 guests retired to the Masonic Hall, where on 20 individual tables tastefully decorated they were served a delicious repast.

Dorothy was seated with her guests at a long table similarly decorated with an African Marigold centerpiece. Her many friends and relatives showered her with gifts.

Carnival and Initiation Planned Spaghetti Dinner Held

A spaghetti dinner meeting for officers and their husbands was held at the home of Peggy Sears, 2nd Vice President of Lugonia Parlor No. 241, in San Bernardino, on September 6. Plans were made for Lugonia's carnival in October and the initiation of 10 new members on September 25 was discussed.

SAN RAFAEL FIESTA

Fiesta Days again held sway in San Rafael, Marin County, Oct. 24, 25, 26, 27. Once again the streets of San Rafael became gay avenues of color, music, excitement and gaiety for a weekend of community celebration -- celebration that is uniquely Marin's own filled with the tradition and pride that comes from San Rafael's heritage of progress.

The fiesta week was originally inaugurated to celebrate the Feast of Archangel Raphael on October 24, in whose honor the city was named. In those early days, that was the annual date for the gathering together of Marin's residents for a carefree week of barbecues, bon-fires and dancing. Distinguished guests and visitors from all parts of California and Mexico attended with Marin's pioneer families as hosts and were royally entertained. Feature sporting events usually consisted of an exciting bull and bear fight with the contestants and bulls brought from Mexico.

After the turn of the century and prior to World War One, the celebration came to consist of private parties and barbecues among the "old timers."

It was not until 1934, and at the institution of Marinita Parlor No. 198, Native Daughters of the Golden West, that the event was revived and relived. The occasion at that time was the 150th anniversary of the death of Father Junipero Serra, founder of the chain of California Missions of which San Rafael is the twentieth. On this anniversary the Grand Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West instituted celebrations in the various Mission locales and historic spots of California to keep alive the spirit of the pioneers who helped to build our state.

The 1946 Fiesta marks the 13th year of this celebration, but this year there was more cause for gaiety than ever—this was a Fiesta which looked toward Marin's future, a bright peaceful future whose progress and prosperity may be seen to outdistance a successful past.

The efforts and work of Marinita Parlor, NDGW, assisted this year by the Native Sons of Mt. Tamalpais Parlor No. 64, to make the occasion one for which Marin County can be justly proud were rewarded by the enthusiasm and co-operation with which the merchants and participants supported the affair.

The Fiesta annually draws more than 10,000 people, being the only affair of its size in Marin County. A feature is a Spanish market where county produce, school crafts, flowers, fancy work, hand-made dolls, animals, home-made cakes and pastrys are exhibited.

One of the Fiesta evenings was devoted to a night parade and a folk dancing festival. Another evening was given over to a U. S. O. dance, crowning of the Senorita of the Fiesta and the judging of the Whiskerino Contest. The last day a big parade was held taking more than two hours to pass, followed by a horse show.

Mrs. Lee Brice was general chairman of Fiesta Days again this year for the third time. She is also president of Marinita Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, largest parlor of the Order. Co-chairman of the event was Walter Mazza of Mt. Tamalpais Parlor No. 64, Native Sons of the Golden West.

No Discrimination in Proposition 15

The Grand Parlor Legislative Committee, Native Sons of the Golden West, headed by Past Grand President Raymond D. Williamson, in making a plea for a "YES" vote on PROPOSITION NO. 15, brings out that the Alien Japanese are whining the familiar old tune that they are being discriminated against by the provisions of the Alien Land Law. Nothing could be farther from the truth. This is their method of confusing the minds of the voters.

The law does not discriminate against the Japanese. It is made applicable to all aliens ineligible for citizenship—members of some 15 Asiatic nations in all. This California law was adopted under the exclusive right granted by the Federal Constitution to the individual States to control the ownership and use of lands within their respective territories.

The present law was adopted in 1920, under the essentially democratic method of initiative, by a majority of 3 to 1. The electorate is only being asked to ratify two amendments to the law for the purpose of strengthening and more efficiently carrying out the people's purpose as found in this initiative measure. These enforcement provisions were made necessary by the constant efforts of the wily Japanese to evade and violate the provisions of the law.

Oregon, Washington, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming and Kansas have also adopted legislation similar and even more stringent than the California Alien Land Law. Why, then, all this howl about the unfair treatment we are allegedly according the Alien Japanese, whose funds helped to furnish the sinews of war for Japan?

There is nothing in the present law that will prevent Japanese-Americans or any other citizen from owning California Agricultural land.

NATIVE SONS DEDICATE PLAQUE ON CABRILLO MONUMENT

Native Sons of the Golden West and city officials of the city of Santa Monica gathered Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 8, to dedicate the plaque placed on the Cabrillo Monument in Santa Monica, corner of Ocean and California streets, honoring the 400th anniversary of the famous explorer's discovery of Santa Monica Bay. The monument was erected four years ago, but formal dedication was withheld until after the war.

Past Grand President Eldred L. Meyer acted as master of ceremonies, introducing Ray E. Schaffer mayor of Santa Monica; Grand First Vice President Walter H. Odemar, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz, past president of Santa Monica Bay Parlor; Past Grand Trustee Bernard G. Hiss. Past Grand Trustee Walter C. Richards, Grand Inside Sentinel Walter Hiskey, Leonard Schwacofer, editor of the Grizzly Bear, Hal Baida, president of Santa Monica Bay Parlor; John H. Crumm, Ysidro Reyes, Aubrey Austin, De Moss Bowers, Commissioner D. C. Freeman, Harry Praeger, George Benton, William Delkner, who spoke briefly, recounting early days in Santa Monica.

The plaque bears the following inscription: "Commemorating the 400th Anniversary of the Discovery of Santa Monica Bay by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo on October 8, 1542, this Tablet is Erected and Dedicated by the Historical Landmarks Committee, Native Sons of the Golden West, with the Cooperation of the Santa Monica Historical Society."

OLD TIMER

Dolan.' He reined his horse around and spurred him down the trail. You could hear the hoof beats of a dozen riders riding fast in the distance.

"Of course they released Al. Later they learned the story bit by bit.

"Dolan, it seems, was a lawyer for a land syndicate. They had gotten options to Federal lands by buying railroad subsidies.

"It was up in what was known as Paradise Valley that Dolan ran into trouble. Families had moved in and had settled the entire valley. As a lawyer it was Dolan's job to move them off. When lawing did no good they tried strong arm methods and brought in gun men.

"It was at a community picnic that some hired thugs attended uninvited hidden in a wagon full of hay. The settlers countered by setting the load afire and smoking them out. They caught them all but Dolan got away.

"What happened to Al Stowell? Why, he came so close to hanging and mostly for being drunk that he never again touched another drop. He sold his mining claims but he kept right on living in his mountain cabin under the cliff because he had found silver farther up the canyon. Then not so many years ago they had an extra rainy spring. There was a landslide that crushed the cabin and Al lies buried in the mountains that he knew so well."

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

Christmas Day, 1871, came on a Monday, and the public Christmas tree entertainments of churches and schools were held on Saturday evening, giving the "kids" two days of enjoyment.

It was a merry Christmas in California, for on the 17th one of the heaviest storms on record commenced with a gale and rainfall that lasted four days. Over eight inches of rain fell in the valleys and 15 inches at Nevada City. The rainfall for the season, up to this storm, was less than four inches, so that it dissipated all fears of a dry season. The Sacramento river rose 17 feet, and the wind and flood waters did much damage in all sections of the state.

This storm was followed by a second, which set in December 22 and dropped three inches more of rain. The weather cleared off for Christmas Day, but a third storm swept over the state beginning December 27 and made the last day of the year the wettest of all; over two inches of rain fell, and showers were noted as the New Year came in. Over 17 inches of rain fell in San Francisco during the month, making it the wettest December on record, and the season's rainfall measured 21.20 inches. The floods washed out the Western Pacific and California Pacific railroad tracks so that, after the 23rd, no trains could be run west of Sacramento and travel to and from San Francisco was wholly by steamboat. A heavy snowfall east demoralized train service in that direction and, with many bridges swept away, travel all over the state was partially suspended.

With the flood conditions came numerous reports of drowning accidents. Butler Ives, a civil engineer in the railroad company's employ, inspecting a bridge near Vallejo December 23, fell into the stream and was drowned. John O'Haroa, a farmer and turkey raiser, after selling his load in Sacramento was returning to his ranch; attempting to cross Pleasant Grove creek, north of Sacramento, December 23, the current overturned his wagon and he and his team were drowned. Edward Hall, a clerk in the secretary of state's office, and Frank White, a stationer, both prominent young men of Sacramento, were missing December 26, and not until their bodies were found floating in the river, miles below the city three weeks later, was their unfortunate end surmised; they were thought to have gone to the foot of "K" street to look at the river gauge, as the river was rising rapidly, and in some unexplained manner fell in. A 12-year-old lad named Gray, from San Francisco, with a farmer named Ross, attempted to cross a stream near Yountville, Napa County, in a buggy December 26; the vehicle was overturned and the boy drowned. William Gray of Stockton, 14 years old, December 29, attempting on horseback to cross Duck creek, was thrown off by the struggling horse and lost. The stage from Calistoga, Napa County, to Clear Lake, Lake County, December 28, crossing a creek, struck a boulder and upset; four passengers got out to safety, but G. Davy, the owner and driver, had his feet caught in a tarpaulin and was drowned.

December 19, in the midst of a terrific wind and rain storm, the citizens of Sacramento, as in duty bound, having the Capitol, gave that social function, the inaugural ball. It was a harvest of coin and wind for the hackmen. The Capitol, brilliantly lighted with thousands of gas jets, was crowded with prominent citizens and their women. Dancing in the Senate and Assembly chambers lasted all night. A supper was served on the first floor, where champagne was in greater abu dance than water. On the 21st the Leg lature recessed over the holidays, a nothing more was done.

The C. and O. railroad line reach Red Bluff, Tehama County, and ran first passenger train to that station D cember 6.

The Central Pacific Company th month absorbed control of the Stockt and Copperopolis railroad.

A coop of California mountain qu was sent to Australia for propagati purposes.

The vintage in Los Angeles County f 1871 was reported as 1,230,000 gallons wine and 50,000 gallons of brandy. Wi was being sold at 25 cents a gallon.

Orland Burris, 14, and Charles Ha 18, Colusa County boys, in the Coa Range went fishing one morning with th dog and a large jack-knife. Climbing ov a hollow log a California lion and t cubs dashed out. The dog caught the a mal by the throat and, while strugglir Orland grasped it by the tail; in t melee, Charles, with the jack-kni reached over the dog and stabbed t panther through the heart, killing it. T cubs escaped that day, but on the ne day were found and killed by the boys.

George F. Miller, an old mountaine came into Yreka, Siskiyou County, f Christmas cheer, bringing pelts of ni bears and three California lions, kill this month, and about 50 pounds of be grease to sell. He had located nine b trees, and was taking orders for about ton of honey, to be delivered when favo able weather came.

HOMELESS CHILDREN

Did you ever stop and ponder
Of the folks, who not like us,
Might have a little bundle
Over which to fret and fuss?

A little tiny baby boy;
Or perhaps it is a girl,
To make the joys of heaven
All around them unfurl.

Through the busy earnest efforts
Of the Native Daughters and Native Son
Many a childless home
Is being blessed with little ones.

So support the Homeless Children,
It is indeed a worthy task,
If the babies didn't need it
You know we wouldn't ask.

This curious rock formation, located in that portion of Joshua Tree National Monument known as the "Wonderland of Rocks," is only one of many, some of them in weird and fantastic shapes, found many places in the Monument.

Historic Desert Lands

Story and Photos Courtesy National Park Service

ONE of America's most unique parks is the Joshua Tree National Monument, composed of some 1310 square miles of high, scenic desert country in Riverside and San Bernardino counties south of Twenty-nine Palms. Ranging in elevation from 1000 feet at the easterly end to more than 5000 feet along the ridge of the Little San Bernardino Mountains the Monument is a notable example of basin and range physiography, which is a geological feature formed by block faulting and subsequent extensive erosion under desert conditions.

The rounded, elongated mountain ranges of the region rise from saucerlike valleys. They do not dominate the landscape with precipitous sides, but rather their subdued slopes sink gradually into the rock debris gathered from their sides.

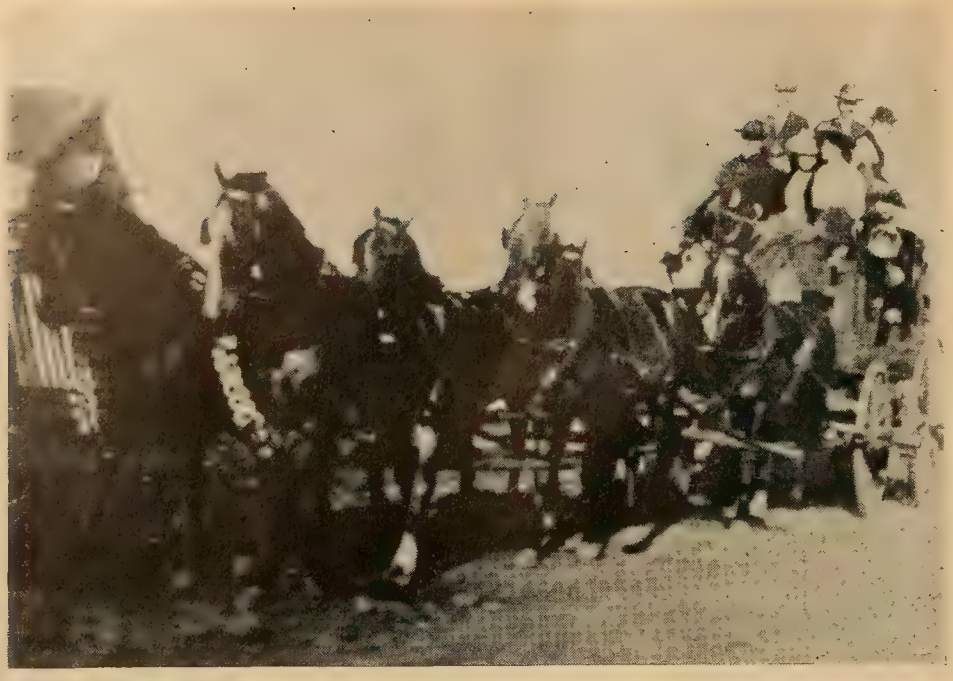
Hundreds of individualistic outcroppings of rock are scattered over a large portion of the Monument, particularly in the wide-spread plateau region which lies at an elevation of approximately 4,400 feet. These piles of rocks have literally been deserted by the hills, of which they were once a part, through typical desert erosion. They, in turn, are being slowly worn down by a combination of heat, cold, wind, and water, and in a decomposed state are gradually building up the surrounding plain. These rocks, with accompanying Joshua-trees, Spanish-bayonet, cacti, and other desert vegetation, combine to make the area a place of beauty.

The weather is delightful most of the year and particularly on winter days. From records available it is estimated that the average annual rainfall is four inches, but there are wide departures from this average. No regular streams of running water are found in the Monument, but temporary streams and waterfalls follow every heavy rain in the mountains and rock areas.

Pinto Basin in the eastern part of the Monument has long been a region of interest to geologists and archeologists. During the Pleistocene, or glacial, epoch this basin was part of an extensive shallow lake bordered by low mountain ranges. After a period of faulting, folding and uplifting, a stream of water ran through the outer (eastern channel) of Pinto Wash. During the ensuing years, decrease in precipitation dried out the basin area and made it uninhabitable. But the presence of various artifacts, all highly patinated flints, along the shoreline of this ancient stream indicates that it was once occupied by a primitive people. Although it is impossible to arrive at a definite figure, it is estimated that humans lived in the Pinto Basin 15,000 or 20,000 years ago, leaving for us to find the well known "pinto point," a flint used on the atlatl, which antedates the arrow.

A branch of the Shoshone Indians made their home in the plateau area in the middle and western portions of the Monument several hundred years ago and has also left artifacts. These consist of flints, pottery, beads, metates, manos, etc. On the ceiling and walls of a few caves are found pictographs in red, white and black.

The last Indians to reside in this area, a branch of the Piutes, left during the year 1913 after the death of one of their number.



Gold mining and cattle running were the earliest activities by white men in this area. Everywhere among the hills will be found the dump of some shaft or tunnel, material laboriously blasted loose and dug out by that supreme optimist, the desert gold prospector. Literally thousands of these claims, once bright hopes for the locators, have been found worthless. But some miners were fortunate and they found veins or pockets rich enough to pay for hauling the ore to mills for reduction. Only in a few cases was the deposit extensive enough to warrant the erection of a mill and piping water many miles to the mine; among those were the Supply Mine and Virginia Dale Mine in the Pinto Mountains and the Lost Horse Mine in the Little San Bernardino Mountains. Here, crumbling buildings and rusting machinery offer mute evidence of the days of great activity and reckless spending. New Dale, now merely a scar in the hills, was once a lively community of more than a thousand persons working in the Virginia Dale and Supply Mines.

The cattlemen have also life their mark in the Monument in the way of numerous "tanks" scattered among the hills. These

W. E. Travis, bus transportation pioneer, driving one of his own stagecoaches in 1896.

Saga of the Highway

By RAY R. SMITH

"Buck" Travis, on the swaying seat of a California stagecoach, the ribbons controlling six plunging steeds gripped expertly in sinewy fingers, possessed vision that saw far beyond the horse-drawn transportation of the 1890's. Yet his most optimistic foresight was, at best, a conservative picture of the amazing evolution of the stagecoach that was to take place within a few short years, and the great nationwide highway transportation system that W. E. Travis was destined to help build.

Neither did Carl Eric Wickman and Andy Anderson envision the tremendous future of the bus business when they began hauling passengers on regular schedule between Hibbing, Minnesota, and the iron ore range two miles away. That was in 1913, and their pioneer project became the cradle of one of the greatest of transportation systems.

A year before Wickman and Anderson started their Minnesota bus line on a shoestring and one Hupmobile touring car, the late "Daddy" Hayes was operating a motor transportation link between Foster and Julian, California. His bus was a fearful contraption with hard rubber tires, open-air seats and canvas side curtains that cut off all the view but let in plenty of rain, wind and weather. (See cut.) This little motor line was the beginning of Pickwick Stages, a western giant of the 1920's that later merged with other companies to form Pacific Greyhound Lines. Pickwick took its name from a theatre in San Diego where the old touring cars parked at the curb to load and unload passengers. The depots came later—all that was needed then was a regular stopping point where the customers could find the buses. Soon Daddy Hayes' cars were serving Los Angeles, El Centro and other Southern California points, and eventually became a coastwide system. Hayes was vice president when Pickwick became part of Greyhound in 1929.

Motor Bus Pioneer

Let's go back to W. E. Travis, nicknamed "Buck" in the "growing-up days" of the West before the turn of the century. With his father he was engaged in highway transportation many years before motor coaches were even thought of and before paved highways banded and crisscrossed the nation. Shortly after the Civil War, Mr. Travis' father, a prominent mail contractor, was operating stagecoach throughout the United States and exte sively in the West. Before the turn of t century he took his son into partnersh and in a few years the elder Travis a young Buck were operating stagecoach with mail and passenger service in exce of 4,000 miles a day, over routes exten ing from Montana to California.

It was quite an adventure to take a lo trip by stagecoach in those early da Seat of honor was beside the driver, w manipulated the six reins and his lo braided whip with seasoned skill a dramatic flourish. Thr faced forward, three rode with their bac to the horses, and another trio sat in t middle. Nine more could ride on top the coach, and it was reported in an ear California newspaper that 35 passenge arrived one day in Shasta City on o stagecoach. In the 80's and 90's a new model was developed for California trav and this was the type mostly used in t Travis enterprise. It was an open-air affa with steel springs and a flat-bed "chassis four rows of seats accommodating fro eight to a dozen passengers. If anythin it was rougher on riders than earli vehicles, for the Concord coach at lea had the virtue of being enclosed. Passe gers still had to get down and walk steep mountain grades; they trembled wi fear during the long loping descents, help at times in righting an overturned coac cowered before the bandits who nev ceased to prey on the stagecoach, a sometimes helped the driver and expre messenger to shoot it out with the robbe

Despite these handicaps, people enjoy traveling by stagecoach. The dust, t long hours sitting upright in a sm crowded vehicle bouncing around over t most primitive roads, and the perils weather and highwaymen were offset the romance, color and excitement of ear day travel in California. Many of t drivers were famous figures of the o West—such men as Hi Washburn, B Wing and Hank Monk. Bret Harte hi self was once a shotgun messenger guar ing the Wells Fargo gold in the boot b neath the driver's seat.

SAN LUIS REY PARLOR IS INSTITUTED AT OCEANSIDE

Marking the seventh new parlor in the southern counties since Grand President R. G. Power took office, San Luis Rey Parlor No. 300 was instituted at Oceanside, Thursday evening, Nov. 14, with a class of 54 candidates.

Charter officers of the new parlor are: Abraham L. Marron, senior past president; Joseph M. Alvarado, junior past president; William F. Salisbury, president; Herman J. Sargent, 1st vice-pres.; John Wesley Trotter, 2nd vice-pres.; Leon W. Williams, 3rd vice-pres.; Melvin F. Johnson, fin. sect.; Sherman H. Freeman, rec. sect.; Arthur J. Lanpher, marshal; Frank G. Telford, treasurer; Theodore W. Wackerman, Jr., inside sentinel; Claude E. Salisbury, Charles A. Anthony, Elwood Thompson, trustees.

The pre-organizational work on San Luis Rey Parlor was done by Dan E. Shaffer, deputy grand president of San Diego, assisted by Supervising Deputy Dave Stuart of San Bernardino and Grand Inside Sentinel Walter Hiskey of Santa Ana.

OCEANSIDE

"On September 16, 1882, A. J. Myers moved on the land embracing the original townsite of Oceanside. A patent was issued June 20, 1882 and a formal survey made on October 13, 1883, whereby the lots were placed in the hands of J. Chauncey Hayes, to be sold. Men were soon to take advantage of the choice location and a rapid and healthy growth was the result."

The above is quoted from a history of Oceanside, written most interestingly in 1888 by the late W. D. Frazee who refers to Oceanside as the "Gateway to all San Diego County and the Wonderful San Luis Rey Valley." He writes, "For beautiful location and fertility of soil, I know of no young city that possesses these advantages to such an extent . . . this place has a population of over 1,000." Were Mr. Frazee here today he would be amazed that the population has now reached nearly 12,000. This would be only one of the many changes which would astonish Mr. Frazee and other pioneers.

San Luis Rey, the "King of the Missions" lies in quiet and solemn splendor in the beautiful valley just to the east of Oceanside. The Mission, even in its state of restoration reflects the glory and splendor that it held over a century ago. In the early spring of 1789, gentle Father Antonio Peyri, solemnly broke the ground that was to be the site of what is now known to the world as Mission San Luis Rey de Francesca.

With patience, courage and devotion to their task the Padres found the Indians willing to help erect the massive adobe walls of the Mission. For thirty years Father Peyri labored among the natives and his happiness was complete with the news that the government had granted freedom to the Redman. Though the missions were confiscated by Governor Figueroa and later sold, the sale was declared illegal and the deed, returning the property, signed by Abraham Lincoln is now on display at the Mission.

With the advent of ever increasing travel to the site of the Mission, a renewed interest was manifest and the major portion of the Mission was rebuilt and a priceless monument was rededicated to the unselfish labors of the gentle Padres.

"EAGLES FLY WEST"

Ed Ainsworth's new historical novel, "Eagles Fly West," just released by the Macmillan Company, is of great interest to all Californians in the Centennial years ahead, for it is a condensed history of those exciting years in our state from 1846 through 1850 interwoven with the threads of a tender love story, typical of those early days when the blue-eyed Anglo-Saxon invaded this golden land to marry the daughters of the Dons.

The story of Shane Malone and lovely Alicia Palomares, their courtship, marriage and settlement on the rancho near Pala, San Diego County, explains the reason so many of the early land grants bear the names of an English speaking race.

It is surprising that a writer could get so much of the story of California in one book. "Eagles Fly West" tells the story of Sam Brannan and the Mormon expedition to San Francisco, Commodore Sloat, Commodore Stockton, Fremont, Gillespie, Thomas Larkin, Kearney, Kit Carson and a host of others who played such an important part in the winning of California.

A vivid account of the Battle of San Pasqual in San Diego County, the hardships suffered by General Kearney and his men, and their rescue by forces from San Diego is given.

The taking of Monterey, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego by the American forces is described. The gold-rush days, the Constitutional Convention, the Vigilantes, are all to be found in Ainsworth's book. Even California's first newspapers play a prominent part.

The trouble between Commodore Stockton, General Kearney and Fremont, and its outcome is dwelt upon by the author, explaining some of the things that have puzzled many students of California history.

"Eagles Fly West" has a tremendous popular appeal, and although it has only been out a short while, the first edition is said to be almost sold out. If you can obtain a copy at your bookstore, we recommend that you read it. For it is a pleasing way to brush up on your California history and will give you a greater insight into the Centennial Celebrations that are now occurring and will be major events during the next four years. Once you start the book you will be loath to lay it aside until you have completed reading it.

Interparlor Committee Will Entertain At Sawtelle

SUTTER CREEK'S FOUNDING

By EMMETT P. JOY, Grand Historian, NSGW

IN the year 1846 Captain John A Sutter of New Helvetia was exploring the vicinity of Sutter Creek in an effort to locate timber for building his fort. It is believed that during the same year he erected a sawmill in the nearby hills. At the time of Sutter's visit to this area, the hills and meadows were a vast wilderness, the only inhabitants consisting of Indians and the wild animal life. Captain Sutter was the first person to make a survey of what now forms the northwestern section of Amador county.

In 1848 Sutter returned to the vicinity to mine for gold along the creek at which time it was named "Sutter Creek." Shortly afterwards hundreds of miners followed eagerly to seek their fortunes and it was a common scene to see the gravel beds being worked by them.

The Placer beds were about exhausted when in 1851 quartz was discovered and a group of miners came to locate quartz claims. Placer mining became only secondary to the great gold bearing quartz deposits found in the Mother Lode gold belt. During the year 1852 permanent families settled and Sutter Creek grew into a large settlement in the course of a very short period.

Sutter Creek's picturesque streets bordered with green trees which shade the attractive homes along with its historic creek flowing through the town on the south end of Main street while to the north and south it is surrounded by hills; presents the atmosphere of some rural New England landscape. On the south side of the town is the well known Sutter Hill which in a past era was used by the twelve Mule teams hauling timber to the mines. The music from their bells could be heard as they pulled the heavy loads up the steep incline. At the summit is the Central Eureka mine and at the base is the Old Eureka or Hetty Green mine discovered in 1852 both having produced millions in gold. In the fifties, Leland Stanford, who later became Governor of California and founder of Stanford University, once had an interest in the Lincoln mine located nearby.

In 1848 other towns sprang up in Amador county, one being Jackson then known as "Bottileas" in Spanish meaning "bottles." It was so named from the number of bottles found near a spring where the Main street is now located. It was also a stopping place for the miners who were enroute to the southern mines. The name was changed to Jackson in honor of Colonel Jackson a prominent figure of the vicinity.

Amador county was created in 1854 and named in honor of Jose M. Amador a miner and Jackson was made its county seat.

Butte Mountain elevation 2,348 feet fills in the background east of Jackson. The Butte is surrounded by ghost towns such as Clinton, Slab City, Butte city and others.

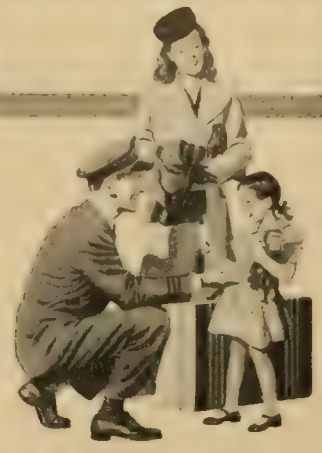
It was in Jackson that Lilly Richling Dyer founded the first parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West on September 11, 1886, the first hall stood where the Weller building now stands, which had the honor of being the mother hall of this order where the first meeting of Ursula Parlor No. 1 was held.

Among the other historic buildings much has changed since the stage coach days. The National Hotel still stands on the south end of Main street. Jackson is the site of the famous Argonaut and Kennedy mines.

Some of the other surviving towns of Amador county are Plymouth, Amador City, Volcano. Ione, Fiddletown and Dry Town all historic mining places. Ghost towns consist of Irish Town, Mule Town, Butte City, Lancha Plana, Quincey and many others.

In these epochal days of the gold rush, one of the most important immigrant roads to the gold fields passed through Amador county. This is known as the Kit Carson Immigrant road winding its way over the lofty Sierras. The pass over the summit was opened by Kit Carson in 1844 at which time he inscribed his name on a tree in Alpine county at the very summit of the Sierras. He was guiding the then Captain John C. Fremont head of a government exploring expedition over the Sierra Nevada mountains during the cold and snowy winter months. This pass which became later known as the Carson Pass was opened up to overland immigrants. The road winds itself to the north of Mt. Round Top, follows along the north ridge of Summit City canyon and on to Plasse's Trading Post in Amador County.

Mr. Peter Plasse a pioneer of this region opened up a trading post in 1853. The Post, of which only a few marks remain, is located on a ridge about four miles south east of Silver Lake. Wagon tires of the immigrant wagons wore a scar into the earth's crust which is still visible today and can be followed through thick forests of Tamaracks and firs.



The old road continues on through green meadows surrounded by patches of snow to Mud Lake. It follows up to a high ridge where the pioneers first looked upon Silver lake. It continues on to Tragedy Springs so called for the three brave Mormon scouts Daniel Brouett, Ezrah H. Allen and Henderson Cox who were supposed to have been murdered and burned by Indians on June 27, 1848. Their graves are covered with granite stones under a grove of tall firs. It continued along a high ridge overlooking El Dorado county on the north and then descended Leak Spring Mountain passing Peddler's Hill and on to the gold fields.

Amador county is rich in historic lure which dates from the days of Captain John A. Sutter who was one of the first to explore it and who first recognized its possibilities of becoming a progressive and producing county in California.

Drawing by Emmett P. Joy of the old Butte City store in the Amador County ghost town, all that remains of the business section. Butte City was located three miles south of Jackson and at one time had a large population.

They'll be cheerfully cared for all the way by GREYHOUND

When you come to think of it, the friendly confidence people have in Greyhound service is rather an extraordinary thing.

Most experienced travelers have come to look on Greyhound as much more than just another bus line. They know it as a warm, very human, very American transportation service made up of many extra things that make a big difference to the fellow doing the traveling.

The fact is that people like Greyhound because Greyhound likes people. The very heart of Greyhound service is the cheerful, personal interest Greyhound folks take in their passengers.

Greyhound remembers always that its job is to carry people... not mail, not freight, but people. That's why careful consideration for the welfare of every passenger is the basis of Greyhound policy.

Today, a mother and child, an elderly person, or people who have never traveled before can enter a Greyhound depot and be sure of getting safely, pleasantly to their destinations... cheerfully cared for all the way by Greyhound.

HISTORIC DESERT LANDS

are small dams of stone or concrete built to retain the rain water in gullies or small valleys to water their stock.

This is an area rich in desert vegetation, not only in quantity but also in the number of species, many of which are extremely rare. Among these is the rapidly diminishing Joshua-tree (Yuca brevifolia), for which the Monument is named, one of the most spectacular botanical features of our western deserts. It belongs to the lily family, as do many other tough desert plants, and attains a height of from 10 to 30 feet. Its cream-white blossoms grow in clusters, 8 to 14 inches long, at the ends of the heavy, angular, erratic branches. It is generally believed that the Mormons gave this giant yucca the name Joshua-tree, seeing in its grotesquely extended arms a symbol pointing to the promised land they were seeking. No one has attempted definitely to determine ages of the Joshua-trees, but circumstances of growth indicate that the larger ones have been in existence several hundred years.

There are several groups of native California palms in and near the Monument. Among these is the splendid group at 49 Palms Canyon, just inside the northern boundary and easily reached by trail. One of the best known is the Oasis of Twentynine Palms, outside the northern gateway, known to the early Indian inhabitants as the Oasis of Maru.

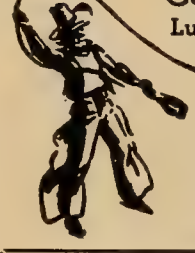
The wildlife of this desert area, too, is a source of surprise to the visitor. The more common of the larger animals observed are the coyote, bob-cat, desert fox and rabbit. The desert mountain sheep, or bighorn, is still here, the latest census showing some 225 of these splendid animals, which have been seen from time to time in groups of 25 or more.

Reptile life is abundant. Testudo, the desert tortoise, leads in point of interest, followed in this respect by a variety of harmless lizards. Birds are also numerous, 136 different birds being listed as of September 1 this year.

The monument is less than 150 miles from Los Angeles and is best approached on U. S. Highways 60, 70 and 99 to a point 15 miles east of Banning, thence to Twentynine Palms and the main entrance where the headquarters of the Joshua Tree National Monument is located. Main roads in the Monument are of a good desert type. Visitors are cautioned to stay on the regular designated roads of travel and, especially during the hot summer months, water should be carried.

Neither meals nor lodging can be had in Twentynine Palms. No regular camp grounds have as yet been developed, but there are several designated camping places within the Monument. Campers must carry their own water and fuel.

The Monument is a sanctuary for all wildlife, and hunting is prohibited. No flowers or any plant life may be gathered, cut or destroyed in any manner.



Persons visiting Joshua Tree National Monument are invited to call at the office of the Custodian in Twentynine Palms for any information that they may desire regarding roads and places of interest.

Native Sons

Compton Parlor No 273
Native Sons of the Golden West takes great honor in presenting this Certificate of Appreciation to
R. G. Power
Grand President

Because you have given so freely of your time, patience and energy in the advancement of our order, because you have threaded the golden strands of spiritual truths through the fabric of our membership; because you are steadily and surely enhancing the standards of the Native Sons of the Golden West and etching into the minds of your brothers those priceless truths of the age-old Golden Rule, the members of Compton Parlor through their Officers tender you this sincere acknowledgment of esteem. May you travel far toward the goal of your cherished ambitions. May the seed you have so cheerfully and carefully planted bring you a just reward that will not only be commensurate with a work well done, but one that will act as an urge to greater accomplishments through the coming years.

October 25, 1946

Eppie Gomez, President
W. E. Zuckweiler, Secretary.

Above is a copy of the Certificate of Appreciation presented to Grand President R. G. Power upon the occasion of his visit to Compton Parlor No. 273, Friday evening, October 25.

South San Francisco Parlor Holds Armistice Day Banquet

South San Francisco Parlor No. 157, N.S.G.W., celebrated the 27th anniversary of Armistice Day with a banquet in Masonic Hall, San Francisco. Four hundred members of the Parlor participated.

The guests of the evening were the members of the Parlor who were in World War No. 1 and those who were in World War No. 2, as well as those who were in other wars; Grand President R. G. Power and Grand Officers.

The principal addresses were made by Grand President Power, Junior Past Grand President Richard F. McCarthy, Past Grand Presidents Raymond D. Williamson and Lloyd J. Cosgrove; Vincent Lovett, who spoke for the Veterans of the 1st World War, and Paul Gallagher, who spoke for the Veterans of the 2nd World War; President Jas H. Maher, Eugene H. O'Donnell, Grand Organist Miller Markey, Grand Historian Emmett Joy, Sheriff Daniel C. Murphy and County Treasurer Thomas McCarthy.

John T. Regan, Grand Secretary, was toastmaster.

Entertainment under the direction of Fred Rasmussen was outstanding and included music by the Bay View Boys Orchestra and many soloists.

Cabrillo Parlor, Ventura, is planning a bazaar to be held at the Civic Auditorium, Ventura, Dec. 13 and 14, the proceeds to go toward the purchase of a "projected book machine" for use in veteran hospitals, and to the Homeless Children Fund. J. G. Cardona is general chairman of a committee of 20 incharge of arrangements, details of which are not available as we go to press.

Millington of Redwood Parlor No. 66 presenting in behalf of that parlor the Bear Flag and the American Flag desk set to Superior Judge Edmund Scott of San Mateo County, at recent ceremonies. In the ceremony before a crowded courtroom, the Bear Flag was borne to the bench by Ralph Dodge, City Clerk of Redwood City and treasurer of Redwood Parlor, while the American Flag was borne to the desk by Marty Flynn, County Assessor, also a member of Redwood Parlor. Judge Scott is a Past President of Redwood Parlor and became Superior Judge on February 19, 1946 upon appointment by Governor Earl Warren.—Redwood City Tribune Photo.

Bay City Consolidates With California Parlor

On October 31, Bay City Parlor No. 104 consolidated with California Parlor No. 1 and transferred their thirty members to the roster of the Charter Parlor. This consolidation was approved by the Grand Parlor prior to the merger.

The committee which completed the action was composed of Past Grand President Jesse H. Miller, William H. James, A. M. Nishkian, Fred Ehlers, Judge Elmer E. Robinson, Martin J. Dinkelspiel, H. Meyer, A. F. Myerson and Dewey Mayerhofer.

Judge Clarence W. Morris welcomed the Brothers into California Parlor and expressed the hope that they would accept and make use of their privileges as fellow members and that the merging of their interests would be mutually beneficial to the members of both parlors.

Judge Elmer E. Robinson on behalf of Bay City Parlor stated that they were grateful that the parent parlor of the Order was kind enough to offer them the opportunity of again being active members and pledged that their efforts would be directed toward furthering the interests of California Parlor and our beloved Order.

As a remembrance of a long friendship now united in one parlor, First Vice President L. F. Elower, on behalf of William H. James, presented Judge Elmer E. Robinson with a beautiful token of his esteem.

Grand Trustee Edward J. Wren was pleased that a class initiation was held for his official visit. Also present were SDD Gr. Pres. Edwin Riegger, DD Gr. Pres. William Keane, Lewis Giegerich and a score of brothers from the San Francisco District.

Annual Homeless Children Dance Held By San Jose Natives

Native Sons and Daughters of San Jose held their annual Homeless Children Dance Saturday evening, Nov. 23, at the San Jose Civic Auditorium with a good crowd in attendance.

Six acts of top-flight vaudeville were featured before the dance which lasted to a late hour.

Each year all the parlors of both Orders in San Jose band together to put on this important civic function for the Homeless Children work. Special efforts were made by the committee to make this year's party a complete success due to the need for funds to carry on the Homeless Children work.

SAN FRANCISCO PRESS CLUB HONORS GRAND PRESIDENT

By WEBSTER K. NOLAN, Stanford Parlor No. 76
Grand Parlor Publicity Chairman

Speedking Power, the boy from Colusa, who has gone more places and seen more things and done more things, than any of the grand Grand Presidents, stopped off one night at a joint that wasn't a Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Just for the fun of it, so he said. He's that way. "Sure, I'll be glad to meet the boys of the press, anytime, anywhere."

Your correspondent has not had sufficiency of time to report the event, on account of because he was busy with affairs of state, shall we say? But, finally, and at last, we get around to reporting an event that was immensely colorful in connection with the grand tours of our grand guy.

It all took place behind the sacred "Black Cat." Nothing ever said behind the "Black Cat" ever can be printed or repeated, and for that reason we cannot disclose the remarks that Grand President R. G. Power made on the occasion of his visit to the San Francisco Press Club, famous for its hospitality and more particularly famous for its "Friday Night Gang Dinners," at which such personages as the President of the United States has felt at home, knowing that no matter what he said and no matter what queer query was thrust at him from the floor, no essence of his answer ever would reach the public eye and no contumely ever heap upon him for his forthrightness in answer to the floor.

That particular night was Sportsman' Nite . . . a fitting occasion for a goo sportsman like R. G. Power to show u We can't report what he said behind th "Black Cat," but we can assure you he di a fine job in presenting the principles o Native Sonism, one of the few health "isms" left, to the distinguished gather ing.

At the high table with our Grand Presi dent were such fellows as: "Red" Strade and Al Sorrell, Del Webb and Jim Barber Joe King, of the New York World Tele gram, sports editor; Ernie Tomey of th '49ers football setup; Jack White, Yanke scout, and Jim Lawson, of Stanford fame Then there were Leonard Cohen, sport editor of the New York Post; Frank Gra ham, sports editor of the New York Jour nal-American, and famous author; Erni Cope, sports editor of the San Francisc Call Bulletin and one swell non-Native; th ever-effervescent and perennially-youthfu fifty-yearish Jack McDonald, who write "Opplesauce," and predicts the "races with a grain of sugar, salt being on th OPA list. Then there was Tony Morabit owner of the San Francisco '49ers, wit whom Powerman Power proceeded to pro cess a "deal." And, at the end of the tabl Dan Topping, the flashman but with n buttons loose, Buck Shaw, topside coach and Ray Flaherty, head coach of the Ne York Yankees.

Do you suppose that, "Black Cat" not withstanding, R. G. Power had any in hibitions when he got to his feet, witho any help. He just spoke, something abou the Yankees and the 49ers, and the rafter were asked to be quiet. And then, press wise and oltimewise, they threw it at hin That ditty we dislike so much, and the sang it with a lusty chorus and a rousin cheerio. Unblushingly and with magnif cent sense of humor, R. G. Power too the bow on that one too. Thereafter h was the pal of pressmen and the hero o the dais that held so many other topfligh sportsmen of the world.

This all took place on the night o September 6th, the only night that forme Grand Trustee Webster K. Nolan coul capture the Grand President for such a occasion. Web Nolan warned Grover Powe before hand that it was the night of th "Black Cat," but R. G. said, "Black ca are my meat these days. Take me to her. But it wasn't a her. But it was meat. An meat is Grover's best grind.

A large number of Nativ Sons and Daughters attended the affa with Pete Butti furnishing the dance musi

Grand Trustee Edward J. Wren too part in promoting the affair, one of th first of a series, which he believes wi have a stimulating effect to unify bot Orders for the great California Centenni Celebration, where the Native Sons an Daughters will play such a big part.

Twin Peaks, NSGW, Parlor Marches on Towards Membership Goal

During the month of October, Twin Peaks initiated twenty new members. Although the Parlor or its members are not "set" on winning any of the prizes offered by the Grand Parlor, we are making an effort to substantially increase our membership.

The new members have taken a strong interest in the Drum & Bugle Corps. If the present enthusiasm continues, the Drum Corps slogan of "50 in 50" will be fulfilled.

Don't be surprised when sometime in the not too distant future, you see our corps—fifty strong—glamorous new uniforms—new and sensational drills—The Best in the State—it will be Twin Peaks, NSGW.

By the time this goes to press, the Twin Peaks Inter-Parlor Bowling Tournament will be well under way. Six teams will be "battling it out" for the Parlor Championship. This promises to be an interesting activity, and all the members will be watching the week to week results.

Twin Peaks will hold its Christmas Social on December 11th. All the boys are expected to be there to wish each other the Season's Greetings.

Like all other Parlors, we are having our elections at this time of the year. This election has created a great deal of interest, as all the members look for the young men, who have returned from the Armed Services, to step in and take an active part in Parlor politics.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 celebrated its 52nd anniversary Wednesday evening, November 21, with a Spanish dinner put on by Robert M. Pesqueira and his committee. The affair was a ladies' night and entertainment followed the dinner hour.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE STATE WITH NATIVE SONS

Suggestion that the new 52nd Division, California National Guard, be named the "Bear Flag Division" was recently made by Brother Clarence L. Mitchell, city traffic clerk of San Jose and retired colonel of the California National Guard.

Colonel Mitchell, a 50-year member of San Jose Parlor No. 22, made the suggestion to Grand President R. G. Power, and proposed that our Grand President communicate with the State Adjutant General. Our brother also suggested that the new division shoulder insignia be a replica of the California Bear Flag. San Jose Parlor No. 22 heartily endorses the efforts of Colonel Mitchell.

Long Beach is hard at work upon the 1947 Admission Day celebration to be held here. Officers of Long Beach Parlor No. 278 recently met with the Grand Officers on the southern tour and discussed plans. Tuesday evening, Nov. 12, representatives of all southern parlors met in Long Beach to further formulate plans for the affair, which even at this early date promises to be one of the largest and best in the state's history.

University Parlor No. 272, Los Angeles, initiated a record class of 50 candidates on the evening of November 13, with Grand Trustee Tom McDermott of Santa Barbara paying an official visit.

At a recent meeting San Diego Parlor No. 108 presented a 50-year membership emblem to Edward Crolic and a 25-year pin to four of its charter members: Eugene Daney, Jr., Stephen Dove, Frank A. Frye, and Edgar F. Hastings. The charter of the present San Diego Parlor was issued on Sept. 22, 1916, after a lapse of many years, the original San Diego Parlor being chartered back in the 1889's or 90's. Brother Crolic joined Ramona Parlor No. 109 on Nov. 11, 1896 and transfered his membership to San Diego in 1920.

The name of the hall in which San Diego Parlor No. 108, NSGW. meets has been changed from "Harvey Hall" to Native Sons Hall." A member of San Diego Parlor recently purchased the property located at 10411 11th Avenue. The parlor meets the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays.

Cuyamaca Parlor No. 298, recently instituted at El Cajon, San Diego County, is reported to have well attended meetings.

Native Daughters and Native Sons of San Gabriel, had a combined food booth and "Knick-Nack" booth at the annual Welfare Carnival held at Garvey-Memorial Park September 27. The Ways and Means Committee, the Veterans Welfare Committee and the Homeless Children Committee co-operated on this booth, to raise funds for their respective committees and the Native Daughters.

Treaty of Cahuenga Signing to Be Celebrated in Hollywood Bowl

With Native Sons and Daughters taking a prominent part in the plans, a pageant will be held in the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles County, Sunday afternoon, January 12, commemorating the centennial of the signing of the Treaty of Cahuenga. The Centennial Committee has already under way a program calling for the participation of all interested historically-minded municipalities, unincorporated areas, chambers of commerce, service clubs, and civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations throughout the County of Los Angeles.

This is the one major event in the series of California Centennials, 1946 to 1950, which took place in Southern California. Peaceful American occupation of California dates from the Treaty of Cahuenga. After January 12, 1947, the scenes of American activity of the Centennial period shift to Northern California. The cities of Sonoma and Monterey have in the past few months commemorated the raising of the Bear and American Flags in California. The Cahuenga date is the last opportunity in the Los Angeles County area to bring before its senior and junior citizens, long time residents and newcomers alike, the stirring episode of the signing of the Treaty bteween Fremont and Pico.

This issue of the Grizzly Bear has been cut to 16 pages due to the increased cost of printing and in an effort to conserve paper due to the ever increasing subscription list. For this reason Rockwell D. Hunt's story of Jackson County, Amador County has been held over until a later date.

Woodland Native Daughters Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Native Daughters from all parts of northern and central California gathered in the Woodland Elks' Club Tuesday, October 8, to honor Mrs. Loretta M. Cameron, Grand President, on her official visit to Woodland Parlor No. 90, and to join in the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the local parlor.

The ritualistic work was exemplified to 16 candidates in an impressive manner by the officers of the local parlor, under the direction of President Louise Ghidossi.

The newly-formed drill team, with Mrs. Edna Bailey as drill leader, made a splendid impression, with the members of the drill team dressed in identical formals of pastel shades and carrying sprays of golden leaves. The officers, escorted by the drill team, carried pastel colored crepe paper muffs with a center of glittering gold.

Fifty year membership pins were presented by Past Grand President Anna Mixon Armstrong of Woodland Parlor to Mrs. Mattie Zimmerman and Miss Lulu Shelton, charter members, and to Mrs. Caroline Simpson, who was eligible for the 50 year membership pin. Mrs. Margaret Hutchings and Miss Harriet Lee, also charter members, were unable to be present, as was Mrs. Lillie Bemmerly, also eligible for her 50 year pin.

Thirty-three veteran members who have held membership in the organization for 25 years or more were presented pins.

Congratulations Extended to Orinda No. 56 Committee

The list of awards for the entries in the Admission Day parade ends with, "Best decorated parlor cars, Orinda No. 56." Congratulations to the designers and executors of the beautifully decorated cars, Mrs. G. Blanchard, A. Klahn and Faye Curtis. Tentative plans for a similar entry at Long Beach 1947 Admission Day celebration are considered.

Mrs. G. Blanchard was hostess to the Orinda Parlor Sewing Club at her home in Redwood City. The change of weather was too much for the San Francisco members, who sizzled along with the barbecued wieners.

December 13, 1946, at 8:30 p.m. at 555 Baker St. in the NDGW Home, is the occasion of our official visit. Thus the successful term of President Loretta Winter, who has governed her parlor with wisdom and graciousness, will draw to a close.

JOSHUA TREE PARLOR INSTITUTED AT LANCASTER ON OCTOBER 19

Joshua Tree Parlor No. 288, Native Daughters of the Golden West, was instituted in the Masonic Temple, Lancaster, Saturday evening, October 19, by Grand President Loretta M. Cameron of San Francisco, with a class of 37 candidates.

Charter Officers of the new parlor are: President, Rosa Lee Beyer of Palmdale; past president, Florence Pickelheimer, Lancaster; 1st vice-president, Ruth Etz, Munz Lakes; 2nd vice-president, Juanita Esquisoain, Lancaster; 3rd vice-president, Phyllis Damann, Munz Lakes; marshal, Dixie Hughes, Lancaster; financial secretary, Theresa Smith, Lancaster; treasurer, Dorothy Dahl, Lancaster; recording secretary, Vera Zarzana, Lancaster; organist, Irene Caswell, Lancaster; inside sentinel, Jeannette Rathbone; outside sentinel, Sylvia Equisoain; trustees, Selma McCargar, Lucy Cotton, Elizabeth Goldwell.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion in chrysanthemums, gladioli and ferns. Besides the Grand President, other Grand Officers in attendance included Past Grand President Ethel Enos, Morado Parlor, Modesto; Grand Trustee Anna T. Schiebusch, Los Angeles Parlor; Past Grand President Grace S. Stoermer, Los Angeles Parlor; Past Grand President Mary Noerenberg, Californiana Parlor, Los Angeles. In the absence of the Grand Secretary, Irma Murray of Aloha Parlor represented that office.

The parlor was organized by Eugenia Smith, past president of Long Beach Parlor No. 154. This is the third parlor to her credit, having organized Rio Hondo Parlor at Huntington Park and assisted on Wilmington Parlor at Wilmington. Eugenia Smith was appointed Deputy Grand President to the new parlor.

Alameda County Parlors Are Active in Many Affairs

With the football season opening, Friday, September 27, the Green Patrol drill team of Sequoia and Argonaut Parlors, Alameda County, took an active part in the three mile long parade during that evening. The team, under the direction of Marjorie Welsch, won recognition along the line of march. The team has won several trophies for its work.

October 12 the team played an important part in the Columbus Day celebration parade in San Francisco.

At the October 10 meeting, Martha Gohl, the president, appointed Marion McGuire, Helen Garrison and Hannah Bredehoft to act on the newly formed Legislation Committee to work with the Legislature at Sacramento. Past Grand President Grace Stoermer is state chairman for the committees of each parlor.

In a colorful ceremony, and with Sequoia Parlor assisting Albany Parlor 260 in entertaining Grand President Lorietta Cameron, a delightful evening was spent October 23 with the Albany Parlor. Mrs. Cameron was making her official visit to the parlors.

Oneonta Parlor No. 71 Celebrates Fifty-four Anniversary

Oneonta Parlor No. 71, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Ferndale, Humboldt County, recently celebrated its 54th anniversary with an old fashioned dress party and program.

Members of Presidio Parlor No. 148, NDGW, were entertained after the regular meeting Tuesday, November 12, 1946.

Bertha Molinari, chairman for the evening, seated the members at a beautifully decorated table and delicious refreshments were served, after which a gift was given to each honored guest.

The bazaar held on Thursday, November 7, was reported as a huge success.

San Fernando Mission Parlor Active in Homeless Children

San Fernando Mission Parlor No. 28(through its Homeless Children Committee and membership recently sent 80 garments to the Homeless Children Central Committee. The parlor also gave a projection machine to the San Fernando Veteran Hospital.

In addition to selling Homeless Children stamps, San Fernando Mission Parlor is also selling Christmas cards, wrappings etc., for the Homeless Children work.

The parlor is also entering a Christma float in the Cavalcade of San Fernando entitled "Pioneers Christmas of Native Daughters." When Grand President Loretta M. Cameron visited the south recently the parlor took part in the group of eight parlors. Eleven members also attended the institution of Joshua Tree Parlor at Lancaster, October 19.

Los Angeles Parlor Plans to Re-Mark Historic Rocha Adobe

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW again will place a marker on the historic Rocha Adobe, 2400 Shenandoah street, Los Angeles, on a date in December soon to be announced. The necessity for a new plaque to replace one put up by the parlor in 1933 became apparent when it was observed the original marker had become defaced by weathering.

Colorful ceremonies are planned, with Miss Olive Hedges, president of the parlor, in charge. Mrs. Lillian Stratton and Mrs. Gertrude Allen, co-chairmen of History and Landmarks, will assist.

The historic building was erected in 186 by Don Antonio Jose Rocha on what was part of the vast Rancho Rincon de los Bueyes, "oxen corners." Now standing in a rustic garden on a paved residential street, it is occupied by Don Rocha's granddaughter, Mrs. Francis Sullivan, and her family.

GRAND PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

To the Officers and Members of the Subordinate Parlors Native Daughters of the Golden West

Dear Sisters:

"Merry Christmas!" "Happy New Year!"

The universal greeting exchanged by peoples of all Nations throughout the World. What greater meaning these words have to-day for those who, but a short time ago, faced the loss of all they held most dear.

As the Yule log casts its glow over the family circle and we hear the laughter of little children as they romp about at play let us remember that first Christmas which lighted the Star which was hope for all the people. From that Star have fallen the sparks that have lighted the Christmas candles of the world, the tapers in casement windows, the logs on Christmas hearths, the light of love and generosity in Christian eyes and hearts.

From the open mouth of that cave in which lay the gift of all divine gifts, the Savior of the world, there poured forth that endless stream of Christmas gifts which makes even the Christmases of unbelievers generous and unselfish.

Let us, then, count the blessings which we have received during this past year and go forth with renewed faith and courage to face the problems of the future.

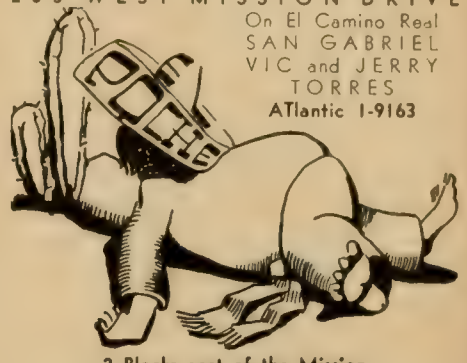
May this Christmas season bring to you untold blessings of happiness, contentment and good cheer.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

LORETTA M. CAMERON
Grand President.

The Menlo Junior Native Daughters were visited officially Friday evening, December 6, by Grand Vice-President Doris Treat at the Central School, Menlo Park, at which time a class of candidates was initiated. At a recent meeting the Juniors donated to the local Community Chest drive as well as purchasing 100 Homeless Baby Seals. The Juniors observed their fifth birthday November 6.

Grand Secretary Convalescing



Mrs. Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Secretary, Native Daughters of the Golden West, who recently underwent an operation, has been seriously ill, but is now convalescing at her home.

Correction: In the October issue of the Grizzly Bear we erred in stating that Mrs. Henry Dippel was chairman of the Admission Day Parade Committee. Mrs. Beatrice Nishkain of Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 was chairman of the Parade Committee. Mrs. Dippel is State Chairman of Civic Participation, and upon the invitation of Mrs. Nishkain, acted as commentator. The Grizzly Bear is glad to make this correction.

Dolores Parlor No. 169, San Francisco, initiated four candidates November 13. At the recent San Francisco County Deputies reception honoring Grand President Loretta M. Cameron, two of Dolores' members, Vivien Brown, deputy to Genevieve Parlor, and Anita Craig, deputy to La Estrella Parlor, were active participants. The drill team of the parlor appeared in the parade at the San Rafael Fiesta.

At a recent meeting of Presidio Parlor No. 148, San Francisco, with President Eleanor Lundy presiding, members whose birthdays occurred in October were honored with a Hallowe'en party. Della Denning was chairman of the committee in charge. With Alice Tuttich at the piano, members enjoyed dancing and community singing.

Bakersfield Parlors Honor 300 Pioneers At Meeting

Three hundred pioneers were honored at the annual tea given recently by the members of El Tejon Parlor No. 239, NDGW, and the Native Sons of Bakersfield Parlor. Chairmen of the event were Madge Fote and William Stine, and master of ceremonies was Roland Curran.

Highlight of the program, and a part that the pioneers look forward to, was the oldtime dancing. The group was composed of Native Daughters, who danced the Virginia reel, Varsuvienne, Rye waltz and a quadrille. It was evident that they enjoyed the dances by the hand clapping to the rhythm.

The program opened with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, accompanied by Bob Stauffer and his orchestra. Marjorie Rouw sang two numbers and William Stine sang two numbers, then William Stine led community singing of "I Love You, California." Ronald Pearson, grandson of one of the members, played a medley of old tunes.

Ella Bozeman, president of ND, was introduced, as was Toney Borges, who represented the NS. Other guests and all pioneers were introduced. Many pioneers plan this as a meeting place year after year.

At beautifully appointed tables refreshments were served.

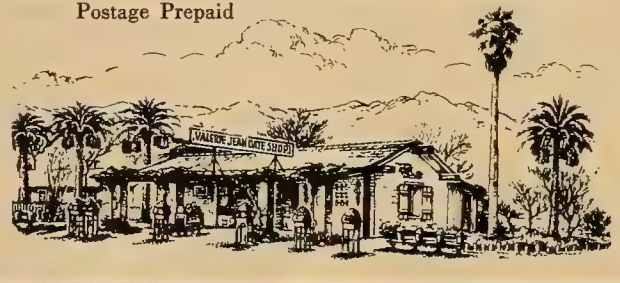
The entire program was comprised of Native Sons and Native Daughters and was declared the finest one ever.

Home of Peter Hardeman Burnett Marked In Colorful Ceremony

On October 19, 96 years ago, San Jos first heard the news that California ha been admitted to the Union, and on tha date in 1946 the home of Peter Hardema Burnett, first American Civil Governor o California, 1849 to 1851, was marked b the San Jose Historic Landmarks Commis sion. The dedication ceremonies were con ducted by the Native Daughters of th Golden West under the supervision o Grand Marshal Margaret M. Farnswort of San Jose.

The words from the NDGW dedicatio ritual contained a tribute to "the uniqu courage and self-confidence of the pio neers" and a statement of the responsi bility to pass on to future generations th benefits constitutionally guaranteed. Th dedication was given by Grand Vice Presi dent Doris Treat, PGP Esther Sullivan and PGP Amy Carmichael. The dedicatio ritual was written by PGP Esther Sulli van of Marysville. The plaque was un veiled by Dollie Kooser, SDDGP of Sant Clara County. Also assisting in the cere monies were Charles A. Payne, chairma of the City Historic Landmarks Commis sion; David M. Burnett, San Jose attorne and grandson of the late Governor Bur nett.

Peter H. Burnett was the first person t bring the news to San Jose after a wil ride from San Francisco, telling that Cali fornia had been admitted to the Union Burnett was returning to San Jose fron Sacramento when the mail steamer, th Oregon, arrived in San Francisco wit word that Congress had passed the bil making California the 31st state of Sep tember 9th. Burnett attended the celebra tion in Portsmouth Square on October 18t and the next day, October 19th, boarde the San Jose stage. After a wild ride amid clouds of dust and cheers in front o San Jose's then famous Mansion House the great news was delivered. It was fit ting that Peter H. Burnett became th first civil Governor of California, assumin office a few days ahead of Congressiona action declaring California a state.



Governor Peter H. Burnett was born in Tennessee in 1807. He was a trader, lawyer and newspaper man. He made the overland trek to Oregon in 1843; later the gold rush lured him to California, where he served as agent for the Sutters. He served as Governor from 1849 to 1851.

This is the first of some forty markers to be placed in the San Jose area under a program sponsored by the Historic Landmarks Commission. Other grand officers of the order present at the dedication were Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Trustee Elmarie Dyke, Mrs. Ann Dippel, State Chairman of Civic Participation, Grand Treasurer John Corotto, NSGW, and eight of Governor Burnett's relatives of the second to fifth generation.

La Reina Parlor No. 267, NDGW, Los Angeles, is having a bazaar on Dec. 12, with a spaghetti dinner preceding the affair. Many articles will be featured. The dinner will be served from 6:30 to 8 p.m., the bazaar beginning at 8 o'clock. Lucille Huddleston, 2nd vice-pres., is chairman. Reservations for the dinner will be taken by Theresa Edwards, president, phone TWinoaks 3348.

La Reina Parlor members are welcoming their new deputy grand president, Ellen Wilson of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124.

LAURA MANUAL

To the Officers and Members of Ruby Parlor No. 46, NDGW We, your committee appointed, to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed Sister Laura Manual, do submit the following:

That while bowing to the will of the Great Ruler of the Universe, our hearts must retain a lasting affection of one so true to her obligations and duties. Be it

Resolved, that in the death of Sister Laura Manual, Ruby Parlor No. 46, has sustained a severe loss of a most faithful member. Her long and continued service to the Parlor will ever be an inspiration. While we render tribute to her memory, we are deeply mindful of the keen sorrow of the bereaved family of which she was a devoted wife and a beloved aunt and to them we extend most heartfelt sympathy. Be it it further resolved, that these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of the Parlor, a copy be forwarded to the bereaved family of the deceased, and a copy be sent The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLOTTE GUNTHER

To the Officers and Members of Orinda Parlor No. 56 NDGW.

We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our late Sister Charlotte Gunther, do herewith submit the following:

WHEREAS, the members of Orinda Parlor are deeply grieved at the loss of our beloved Charlotte Gunther, a member of fifty years of service, who has been called to the Grand Parlor on High. We shall miss her presence amongst us. Our dear friend and Sister was a symbol of all that is kind and beautiful and good.

RESOLVED, that this expression of respect to her memory be spread upon the minutes of the Parlor, that copy be sent to her family, and a copy be sent to the Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days
Sincere and true in heart and mind
Beautiful memories she leaves behind.

Respectfully submitted.

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

New Year's Day of 1872 was bathed with showers in California. It brought the clearing up of a six-day storm, and with streams at flood height, many bridges swept away, roads impassable, lowlands over-flowed and railroad train service demoralized, it was a day for good people to stay at home, and they did so.

Another storm prevailed for two days, the 7th and 8th, precipitating nearly two inches of rain not then needed. There was a depth of twenty-one feet of snow on the summit of the Sierras. No other storm came during the month, but a severe gale from the north prevailed for three days after the 20th and did as much damage as the southeast gale in December.

The storms had an effect on prices. Wheat dropped to $2.30, barley to $1.70, potatoes to 75c and onions to $1.50 a cental, hay to $17 a ton, and wool to 40c a pound. Big crops of all grains were expected and, as usual, a wet winter meant prosperity to all.

Dr. D. Bryant of San Jose had flocks of sheep pasturing on the tule lands of the San Joaquin in Contra Costa County. They were caught by high water and of his band it was estimated 10,000 were drowned.

The California Irrigation Company was incorporated with a capital of $10,000,000 to construct canals and supply farms with water between Red Bluff, Tehama County, and Suisun, Solano County, on the west side of the Sacramento River. Water taken from the Sacramento River and Clear Lake was to be distributed. John B. Frisbie, A. H. Rose, E. L. Sullivan, A. Hayward and other capitalists were named as directors.

John T. Middleton's claim at Yankee Jim's, Placer County, yielded $6000 this month.

A shipment of 1,642 tons of flour, valued at over $100,000, was made this month by steamer to China.

One hundred and sixty-one students registered at the University of California, Berkeley, for the new term.

January 2, W. W. Clark, working in his hydraulic claim near Iowa Hill, Placer County, was buried and carried down a ravine by an enormous land-slide. His right foot, cut off from his leg, was all that had been found of his remains at the end of the month.

The new railroad bridge across the Sacramento River at Tehama was swept away by the flood January 9.

A resident of Oakland noticed a black cat prowling in his checken yard just before bedtime and, going out, attempted to drive it away by stoning it. The supposed cat retaliated by spraying the air and the stoner with a pungent aqua that caused the citizen's wife to make him sleep in the barn that night.

COPY DEADLINE

The Copy Deadline for the Grizzly Bear Magazine is the 15th of the month preceding date of issue at the office of the publication. In order to get proper attention, material should be in the Editor's hands well in advance of that date.

If you have not yet sent in your remittance of the Homeless Baby Seals or made your contribution to the Homeless Children Work, will you please do so at once in order that the results of the drive may be tabulated.

SNOW SPORTS and SKI SLOPES

By HAR LAR

UP in the San Bernardino Mountains the snow is flying. A mantle of white mine blankets the peaks and fir clad hills. 's a Christmas tree land these mountain opes, a serene wonderland of scenic de- ght. From the warm sun drenched valleys the mountain's foot come a pilgrimage snow lovers in quest of fun.

In Southern California, Big Bear Lake omises to be a most popular winter ren- zvous. The forty-seven mile paved high ar mountain highway is alive with pleas- e seekers headed "up the hill" to the ow.

Every car seems to have its snow gear shed to top and sides. Sleds, toboggans, e skates and skiis are standard equip- ent.

The "lake" is seven thousand feet up in ue heavens. There are times when its wa- rs freeze solid. The mountains slope to shores and some of the finest ski runs the west are to be found.

Here it is that the "snow bunnies" flock the bunny hills to have the time of their es on the gentle slopes. On, up above, e slopes are not so gentle. Here it is that e real ski runs are found while ski trails e blazed along the mountain rim. Sugar af, Moonridge, Big Bear Lake and Snow lley are some of the most popular ski ns in the country. Because it's always eas- r to go down hill than up, these popular ots are equipped with a ski tow.

Of interest to skiiers everywhere is the wly organized Big Bear Lake Ski Club. gular meetings are scheduled for the second and fourth Sundays during the snow months. Bud Newman, president, says that any skiier in Southern California is eligible to membership and is invited to join. The principal object of the club is to promote better skiing. George Cable, local ski man, will teach the sport and no fee is charged to club members. Even in summer the group will not disband as some of the members plan to take to the water on skiis.

Just back of the village the Big Bear ski tow is located. A tractor sled starts off from town with thirty of forty ski enthusiasts aboard and climbs the long hill to the foot of the tow. Next year, Judge Cliff Lynn, chairman of the local Park Board, states there will be a chair lift substituted for the old lift. It will take the girls and boys for a five hundred foot ride. The run will be 2,500 to 3,000 feet long. For the overland travelers it will open up some fourteen miles of ski trails on a down hill run to Moonridge all the way.

It is along these tows and ski trails that the recently organized Ski Patrol will prove their worth. Ten of Big Bear Lake's best skiiers have been deputized. Equipped with handy-talkies, these roving ski men are prepared for any emergency. They'll be there in case of mishap or a party lost. These handy-talkies will broadcast a distance of four miles where if necessary a second patrolman can pick up the message and send it on to headquarters. They will be equipped with first aid kits, blankets and toboggans to bring out any injured.

There'll be a winter snow carnival held in Big Bear Lake sometime late January or early February, weather permitting. It's slated for some week end with a big Saturday night dance scheduled where the grand climax will be the crowning of the beautiful "Queen of the Snow."

Trophies will go to prize winners in skiing and skating competition. It is expected that the affair will bring out some of the southland's best. According to those in charge, a snowman sculpturing contest will be held Sunday afternoon. Contestants in a given time will fashion a snowman complete to his silk hat.

This we would like to see. A silk hat is a fair target for any snowball.

Whether you're a down hill slalom or a jump expert, even though you can hardly qualify as a good "snow bunny," there's one part of skiing we all enjoy. Down in the valley on the lake shore, when the sun has set the flames blaze high in the huge lodge hearths. Then it is that the experts swap their yarns. A feeling of comradery steals over professionals and amateurs alike. Maybe you haven't come cannonballing down the mountainside at fifty miles an hour, nor soared like an eagle into blue skies at the ski jumps, but you have breathed pure air untainted by city smog. You have drank in the beauties of a winter wonderland. It's the pleasant end to a perfect day.

PLANS GET UNDER WAY FOR BIG 1947 ADMISSION DAY FETE

Plans for the 1947 Admission Day Celebration in Long Beach, sponsored by the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, are well under way with regular meetings being held by the committee composed of representatives of all Southern Counties Parlors.

At its December meeting held in the Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach, Gary G. Lynes of Long Beach, was chosen general chairman of the Admission Day Celebration of 1947. Lynes served as Southern Counties chairman for the 1946 celebration. Named vice-chairman for the Native Sons was Harvey Webster of Pasadena Parlor. Anne Barton of Long Beach will serve as vice-chairman for the Native Daughters. Joe Sousa of Long Beach was elected general secretary and Eugenia Smith of Long Beach, assistant secretary. Dr. John A. Schwamm of Ramona No. 109, was named treasurer. Clarence S. Hunt of Long Beach and Bernard G. Hiss of University Parlor, Los Angeles, will serve as co-counsel in handling the legal details.

More than 75 Native Sons and Daughters from the Southern Counties attended the December meeting, at which time experiences of past Admission Day Celebrations were reviewed and the organizational set-up completed.

MEALS AND LODGING ARE TO BE HAD AT TWENTYNINE PALMS

"Is our face red!" On page eight of the December issue in the story about Joshua Tree National Monument, it states that neither meals nor lodging can be had at Twentynine Palms. This is a glaring error in proof-reading and our readers have been burning the telephone wires to tell us about it.

The copy turned in read, "Neither meals nor lodging are available in the Monument, but excellent facilities can be had in Twentynine Palms."

Pioneer Logging Scene in Amador County

Jackson...
COUNTY SEAT OF AMADOR

By ROCKWELL D. HUNT

Ramona No. 109, NSGW

AMADOR County did not enjoy the distinction of being one of the original California counties, but was created by legislative act in 1854. Its territory comprised that part of Calaveras County lying north of Mokelumne River. At later dates El Dorado County was drawn upon for additions to the area of Amador. The name was derived from an early Mexican sergeant, Pedro Amador, or his son Jose. By a free translation the euphonious Spanish word means "lover of inanimate things."

The struggle for the prestige of being county seat was characteristically energetic. In the meantime the town of Jackson, named after Col. Alden Jackson, had been the seat of government for Calaveras County from 1850 to 1852. If we may believe the records, it was not until after several exhibitions of "skullduggery" that Jackson finally won the county seat of Amador. The red blood of the present-day bustling town belies any allegation that Jackson is merely another ghost city. Yet it does have a past, and the interest and glamour of that past justify its claim as one of the more important centers of gold mining in the early days of Mother Lode.

At first, beginning in 1848, the place was known as Botellas, or Botilleas, probably because of the many bottles stacked up at the old spring. But the implications of such a name were not relished!

The region between Jackson and Plymouth (some ten miles north) was one of the earliest to be extensively mined in California, specimens of gold reaching Tulesburgh (later Stockton) only a matter of weeks following Marshall's epoch-making discovery at Coloma. From the many camps in this limited region it is said that more than half of all the gold mined out of the entire Mother Lode came.

In the spring of 1850 the settlement consisted of three log houses and seven tents; four years later its population numbered 1500 persons. It rapidly became the center of a fabulously rich gold field, including Ohio Hill, The Gate of '49, Squaw Gulch, and Tunnel Hill. Most celebrated of all is the great Argonaut Mine, discovered in 1850. Operations were continued there down to 1942, only then to be discontinued on account of war restrictions—the mine was being worked more than 6,000 feet underground. It ha yielded $19,000,000 in gold. The Kenned is another mine now more than a mi deep. The Argonaut and the Kennedy a known as two of the most noted gold min in the world.

To the casual visitor Jackson bears bu slight resemblance to a real ghost town- with its bright lights and modern nigh life it may be called the Big Little Cit of the Mother Lode. Nevertheless relics an earlier era are by no means lackin The old Court House still stands on th main street; down at the southern edg of town may be seen the old Marre Hot and the Wholesale Liquor House of th Marre family. The site of Jackson's "Han tree" is marked, but fails to impress whe one remembers that a dozen—perhaps score—of mining towns each boasted i Hangman's Tree. To the south, at Doub Springs, may be seen what remains of th first Court House of Calaveras Count Almost bordering Jackson is Butte Cit with the impressive-looking ruins of th Ginocchio Store. To the east is We Point, where Kit Carson encamped in 184 and where Bret Harte is said to hav sought needed inspiration. West Point now "a glorious ghost town of the past

The town of Jackson was an importan stop for stages and a leading way-statio and rendezvous for freight haulers. An this brings to the fore a question that ha doubtless been in the mind of many reader: how did miners and other peop get about from place to place in earl days? How was their equipage handled How was heavy freight transported those days before the appearance of th steam horse?

In the first place, walkng was good i California—at any rate, a great deal walking was done! Many a prospecto struck out bravely on foot; his only mean of conveying his small kit was by "Fo and Walker's Express." There was such word in his vocabulary as "hitch lain Street of Jackson, Amador County, home of Grand Trustee Elizabeth Read, ND W, who is associate editor of the Amador Dispatch, of which her father, Warren Read, s editor. The Dispatch office is on the right hand side of the street.

iking;" but the trudging, footsore miner as only too glad to have a teamster come long and give him a lift. The prospector ven then usually walked, his outfit being ut on the wagon, drawn by horses or ken. The mileage covered on foot by some f the hardy argonauts would astonish us, uld we but see the true recording of a edometer.

The pack-train had come into use long efore gold was ever heard of. Mexicans sed pack mules very extensively, often oading them down unmercifully and otherise treating them most cruelly. Mrs. D. . Bates, who amused herself for hours udying the ideosyncracies of mule naire, gives us this picture:

"These trains are led by a horse, with bell attached to his neck. He is designated the bell-horse; and these mules have such an affection for him, that they will follow him anywhere he goes. Generally, three or four Mexicans accompany each train. When night overtakes them, they unpack the animals, and form a sort of corral of the pack-saddles, which they place in a circle around the goods, which they lay in piles, each load beside the saddle upon which it belongs. The mules are turned out to graze. In the morning, after giving them their breakfast, at a signal from the Mexicans, each mules places himself in a position to be packed beside his own saddle, and never makes a mistake by placing himself beside his neighbor's.

The early Americans in California made ut limited use of the mule pack-train. Vagon freighting was introduced at an rly date; then it developed rapidly, beoming the regular occupation of a numer of young men of strong body and not fraid of work. Obviously the sudden creaon of dozens of mining camps and mushoom cities required the transportation of ast quantities of heavy building materials nd stocks of merchandise. The rugged amsters took just pride in their well-oomed horses and kept their sturdy waons in prime condition for the rough and ometimes perilous roads.

As one today observes the swift and easy ow of motor traffic on our smoothly-aved highways, it is almost impossible to nceive of the condition of the roads in e hey-day of the Mother Lode. But ads of some sort had to be pushed uickly to the mining centers and (for e immigrants) across the great Sierra wall. Rocks and stumps obstructed the way, terrible ruts almost hub-deep were quickly worn by the heavy iron tires, great clouds of dust arose during the heat of summer, and the winter rains often made the roads impassable—some, as one writer swore, were "not even jackassable." Under such conditions "the stickability of mud" was quite understandable.

The phenominal development of stage lines, for passenger and express service, is an absorbing story in itself. The saga of the stage is a significant bit of the rich American heritage. In California the stage coach was employed between San Francisco and San José as early as the autumn of 1849. There was rapid expansion and improvement during 1850. Sacramento became "the hub for traffic of all kinds" for the central and northern sections of the State. Daylight service to Sutter's Mill at Coloma called for a fare of $32, or "a couple of ounces of dust,"—diggers wanted to get to their claims in a hurry! By November, 1851 there was daily service to Drytown and Jackson. The business expanded with great rapidity, until there was a literal network of stage routes over a large part of northern and central California. Of the interior cities Stockton became a center only second to Sacramento.

Mark Twain pronounced the best type of Concord coach a "cradle on wheels." It was sturdily built, graceful in its lines, capacious—a thing of beauty. A long ride on a stage coach, in company with a dozen other passengers, was an experience long to be remembered. At times it was exhilerating, exciting; at other times it could be anything but thrilling. The mountain roads were likely to be excrable, especially following a heavy rain. A prosaic story is told in the humorous words of a popular old song:

The drivers, when they feel inclined,
Will have you walking on behind,
And on your shoulders lug a pole
To help them through some muddy hole.
They promise, when your fare you pay,
"You'll push and pull the other half!"
Then add, aside, with cunning laugh,
"You'll push and pull the other half!"

Many of the drivers, known as "Knights of the Whip," were picturesque characters. Their consummate skill in handling their four- or six-horse teams was truly remarkable. Their graceful manner in holding the reins and wielding the long whip-lash made them the envy even of the successful miner. Hank Monk was one of the most noted and accomplished of all the "manipulators of the ribbons." Reminiscing about famous drivers, Major Ben Truman waxed eloquent:

Of all the notable California characters . . . the most courtly and gallant, the handsomest and most picturesque, were the stage drivers in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and they were the best and most fearless whips and drove the best stage horses in the United States. They also were the cleanest looking and best dressers . . . their clothes being dark and made to order, generally, and their hats of cream-colored felt; they wore genteelly adjusted cravats and white shirts and collars, their always polished boots fitted like gloves, and their gauntlets were the finest that could be purchased.

The chief means of transporting gold from the Mother Lode was a line of stages

Saga of the Highway

The Grizzly Bear Continues from Last Month the Thrilling Story of Bus Transportation and the History of One of California's Pioneer Companies.

By RAY R. SMITH

"Buck" Travis saw the potentialities of motor stage industry through the maze of disadvantages. In 1920, the ex-stagecoach operator and driver bought the Star Auto Stage Association, consisting of more than 50 independent stages operating between Oakland and Merced and from Merced north to Stockton and Sacramento. Each member of the association drove his own car. Travis brought them closer together, coordinated the individual schedules, improved the equipment and succeeded in molding the group into a complete transportation system. Long distance travel increased rapidly. The following year these and other operations were combined to form the California Transit Co. In 1922 the Western Motor Transport line between Oakland, Sacramento, Martinez, Vallejo and Napa was added. Following that, California Transit extended its operations into San Francisco, purchased the Valley Transit Company connecting Merced and Bakersfield, then bought the Motor Transit Company's rights from Bakersfield to Los Angeles. On May 13, 1926, through motor bus service was inaugurated between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Other consolidations, mergers and extensions followed in rapid succession—the Stockton-Tuolumne-Sonora line, the West Side system between Fresno and Tracy, the Bell Stages from San Francisco to Portland, and finally the Yelloway System, all became part of California Transit Company. In October, 1928, only a score of years after the romantic stagecoach had been forced off the highways, the first transcontinental bus service between the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts was inaugurated by the system under the leadership of W. E. Travis. The following year, 1929, Travis helped to bring together the three major bus operators of the West, Pickwick Stages System, California Transit Company and Southern Pacific Motor Transit, to form Pacific Greyhound Lines, western link in the great nationwide Greyhound System. The controlling interest in Pacific Greyhound Lines was taken over by the Greyhound Corporation, and for many years Travis was president of Pacific Greyhound Line. In 1946, he was elected to the position of chairman of the board. His career has made a permanent impression on bus transportation in America, which has always led the world.

Today, nearly 200 million passengers ride annually on regular Greyhound schedules, traveling nine billion passenger miles. Every week Greyhound buses, averaging six miles to the gallon, burn 1¼ million gallons of gasoline. Every hour of the 24 every day of the year, some 23,000 people board Greyhound buses to go somewhere in America. Many people think that all buses on the highway are Greyhounds. The "Hound" serves 40,000 cities, towns and hamlets along nearly 80,000 miles of America's highways, and for thousands of communities Greyhound is the only form of public transportation available.

How Greyhound Got Its Name

The name Greyhound is an eastern importation. Back in the early days of bus travel when it was every bus line for itself and the devil take the hindmost, the industry used lavish colors and names of birds and beasts to give distinction to their service. There were lines called Jack Rabbit, Royal Rabbit, Oriole, Whippet, Tiger, Eagle, White Swan, Bluebird, Blue Goose and similar names. Others departed from the animal kingdom and adopted such trademarks as Red Star or Green Rocket. A great many, of course, named their lines for the places they served, as the lines known as Okonogan Valley and Marysville-LaPorte, or simply took their own names, as for instance, Bill's Stage Lines.

Back in Minnesota around 1920, so the story goes, an undertaker went out of business and sold his motor hearse to a bus company. It was a White 16-valve car and the bus people rebuilt it and painted it gray. The painter, an original sort of fellow, thought it looked pretty rakish and in a moment of inspiration painted the word "Greyhound" on each side. This wasn't such a far-fetched idea at the time for the bus lines were competitors of the railroads and the names on Pullman cars were the "ne plus ultra" in style. For "Super-Coach" of the early 20's. It operated between Oakland and San Jose.

The 1946 Greyhound Silversides, so-called because of its gleaming stainless steel body, is the last word in highway transportation. It is air-conditioned and Diesel-powered.

while buses were even made with rear ends that looked something like Pullman observation cars.

A bus company in Wisconsin bought the x-hearse, added the figure of a running reyhound to the lettering, and adopted he name. Soon a fleet of gray-and-white uses called Greyhounds were running be-ween Wisconsin points and Chicago. The ompany was Motor Transit Company, but he public preferred to call it Greyhound, r "The Hound." Motor Transit was one f the first lines to consolidate with C. E. Vickman, whose operations had grown in few years to take in most of Minnesota nd were expanding into other states in he late 1920's. The name was a good one, nd as the little highway transportation mpire operated by Wickman and his ssociates expanded, it became the Grey-ound Lines. In 1929, with the formation f Pacific Greyhound Lines in the West, reyhound became a nationwide system.

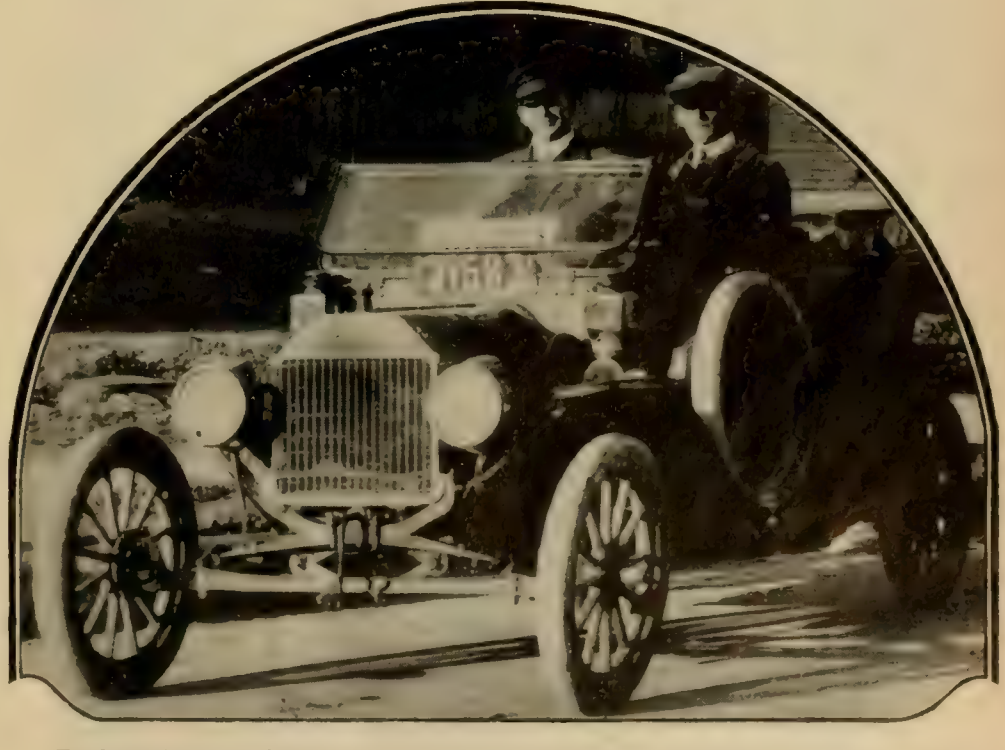
Democracy on the Highway

That Greyhound is a democratic insti-ution is indicated by the men who founded and who run it today: Travis, the entre-reneur who started out with horse-drawn tagecoaches and played a major role in he development of the bus industry to ne point where it carries every year one nd a half times the population of the Jnited States. Eric Wickman, miner and iamond drill operator, now Chairman of ne Board of Greyhound Corporation. rville Caesar, Greyhound Corporation's resident, a bus operator that Wickman ought out and absorbed back in the ex-ting 20's. Ralph Bogan, Executive Vice resident, who started a bus line back in ibbing, Minnesota, when just a boy out high school, Wickman's competitor who oined forces with him when the competi-on became too tough. F. W. Ackerman, resident of Pacific Greyhound Lines, who as spent 26 years in highway transpor-ation. Bus men, every one of them, who rew up with the industry.

Bus passengers, too, represent a cross-ection of America. Sales people on busi-ess trips, workmen going to and from their jobs, housewives bound for market, school teachers on vacation, tourists see-ing the country, old folks enjoying an out-ing, fishermen and hunters headed for streams and mountains—the people who get on and off a bus during the time it travels a hundred miles represent the people of all America. They are more informal than train or plane travelers, wear sports clothes, are more friendly and easier to get acquainted with. To meet America as it really is, take a trip by bus. A story in the August, 1946, issue of The Reader's Digest illustrates this. It is told by William T. McFadden of Decatur, Illinois:

"Sitting next to me in the bus station of a large city was a man so old and frail that I wondered that he was traveling. Before long he turned and said, 'Where are you bound for, son?'

"'Chicago,' I replied. 'Where are you going?'



"'Shucks, boy, I ain't goin' nary a place. A feller can see more sights, pantomimes and melodrammer just a-sittin' in this waitin' room than you could see at any of your movin' pictures. An' it don't cost you a cent!'"

SAN DIEGO OBSERVES CENTENNIAL OF BATTLE OF SAN PASQUAL

Commemorating the battle of San Pasqual a hundred years ago December 6, 1946, on Sunday, December 8, the combined historical societies of San Diego County, the San Diego Historical Society, the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, and the Escondido Chamber of Commerce made a Jornada to the old battlefield in San Pasqual Valley where the only military engagement of importance in California during the Mexican War occurred.

The group met at old San Diego Plaza in Old Town, stopping in Grape Day Park, Escondido, for a picnic lunch, proceeding from there to San Pasqual Battlefield Park. Here Dr. A. P. Nasatir, professor of history at San Diego State College, member of the Native Sons, gave the main address. Music was furnished by the Escondido elementary school band and the final salute was given by a Marine rifleman from Camp Pendleton.

Returning to San Diego the party assembled at the United States Cemetery on Point Loma where the American dead of the battle of San Pasqual are buried. Col. F. D. Waters, base commander, greeted the group, and Mrs. Winifred Davidson, San Diego historian, spoke. At the close of the rites a Memorial wreath was placed at Fort Rosecrans National Cemetery by San Diego Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West.

Ford touring car of ancient vintage was considered an excellent bus around 1912-13.

The Upper Pit River

By EMMETT P. JOY

Grand Historian, NSGW

THE Upper River region covers a large area in northeastern California. Much of the early history of Modoc, Lassen and eastern Shasta Counties centers around this section. It originates in eastern Modoc County west of the Warner Mountains; the north fork starts at Goose Lake, while the south fork and its tributaries originate in northern Lassen and southeastern Modoc Counties. The country in this region is made up of a lava flow created in an earlier day and at present junipers and sage cover the rocky hillsides of Modoc County. To the west are thick pine forests where the historic river finds its way into Big Valley, Lassen County.

The first white men to penetrate this region were trappers. In 1843, Pierson Barton Reading, who subsequently discovered gold on the Trinity River, traversed this route on his way to the Sacramento Valley.

The Applegate road of 1846 was established in northern Modoc County and was used by immigrants coming into California from the north. This road, after leaving Surprise Valley, followed through Fandango Pass around the southern end of Goose Lake and on to Oregon.

In 1846 the Lassen trail was opened and left the Applegate road just west of Goose Lake and followed south and west of Rattlesnake Creek which joins the main Pit River about four miles west of Alturas. Lassen's trail, established by Peter Lassen, followed on down the north side of the river until it reached Stone Coal Valley and then south, recrossing the rive several times until it reached Big Valle in Lassen County. The trail passed nea the present town of Bieber and continue southeastward to Susanville.

From Big Valley the Pit River continue westward to Fall River Mills which i located at the southern end of the Fa River Valley. The river passes throug the Pit River canyon and then into th thick pine forests of the lower Cascade

Pierson Barton Reading in his journa of 1843 describes some of the scenes c the region. For example: the numerou pits that were found which the Indian made for the purpose of trapping gam This river supposedly derived its name fro these pits, thus the name of the India tribes living in this section. These tribe were hostile toward the early immigran trains and many massacres resulted as consequence.

At Fandango Pass on the Applegate an Lassen trail a massacre occurred cause by hostile Indians in which they destroye the entire immigrant train. Several othe Indian attacks were made in later yea resulting in the establishment of Fo Bidwell in Surprise Valley.

At a point where the Lassen trail turne west on the Pit River, about four mile from the present town of Alturas, was th scene of another massacre in which a the immigrants were annihilated and the wagons destroyed. This is known as th Rattlesnake Ranch massacre.

The emmigrant road followed somewh along the present highway to the town Canby. There is a junction in the highwa at this point, one leading north throug the lava beds once the scene of the Mod Indian wars in 1872 and 1873. Not fa north of Canby, Captain Jack, Modoc In dian chief, fought his last daylight batt on May 10, 1873. This was at Dry Lak not far from the present Tule Lake—Canb highway.

At Canby there is a marker on the roa which reads "Evans Valley fight 1861, fiv miles west of here."

On the south fork of the Pit River, Ge eral George Crook and his men fought th battle of Infernal Caverns in Septembe 1867, in which the Indians retreated int a stronghold consisting of caves, but we eventually driven out.

Fall River is one of the main tribu taries which flows through historic Fa River Valley. Lt. George Crook (lat Major General) established a fort in Fa River Valley in the summer of 1857. Th post was established to control the P River Indians as the latter were engage in committing depredations upon the ear settlers. This fort subsequently becam known as Fort Crook and was discontinue in 1864. The buildings are gone, but monument marks the spot which can seen a short distance above Glenburn.

Fall River Mills was at one time an ear outpost on the frontier. The first settle were two men named Bowles and Roge who came during the year 1855. They dro an ox team across the mountains loade with machinery to start a lumber mi Later they were joined by the Lockha brothers. Bowles, Rogers and Willia Lockhart were killed by Indians. Sa

By Leonard Schwacofer

We do not like it any better than you do, but of necessity this issue of the Grizzly Bear must remain at 16 pages. One of the reasons for this is the fact that the Native Son membership has grown so much in the past few months that we were ordered by the printers to cut down on the number of pages in order to save paper and have enough copies to go around. The press run on this issue is 24,000. The other reason is that the printer has informed us of a 25% raise in the cost of printing effective immediately. This is the second raise from this source that we have had since Grand Parlor, having received a 15% raise in the cost of paper some three months ago.

While we have been able to cut the general office overhead considerably even in times of rising prices, the cost of printing is something over which we have little control, and the only recourse seems to be to run fewer pages for the time being. So, if you do not find your favorite feature in the Grizzly Bear or the account of your parlor meeting is whittled down, you know the reason.

Speaking of membership, many new parlors have been instituted during the past few months. This is especially true of the Native Sons, who have just finished one of the most successful membership drives in recent history. Results of the Native Son contest which closed Dec. 31 are not available as we go to press.

Rumor has it that another Native Son membership contest will begin in January and run through April, with awards to be made at the next Grand Parlor. If this is done, we believe that it will be the first time in the history of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West that such a thing has been done just before Grand Parlor.

We've received many stories about Native Sons and Daughters elected to public office. We are all proud to have Natives in the seats of government, for we feel that it is as it should be. But, we feel that we can not run these stories in the Grizzly Bear, first because we do not have the space, and, second, because the Orders of Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West are non-political. We embrace thousands of members of all political parties, banded together to work for the best interests of California.

However, the columns of the Grizzly Bear have been open to Paid Political Advertising, and, as such, plainly marked according to law. In this regard, we must accept paid advertising from both sides of a question, regardless of our personal opinion. A publication may express itself editorially on a question, but it can not prevent the opposition from making itself heard through its columns, providing it wants to pay for the space. The why of this is a lengthy story, best explained by the fact that it involves the freedom of the press.

Grand President's Notes

By R. G. Power

Grand President, NSGW

December 14, 1946

This magazine is too fast for me. The column was sent in for the December issue with a 20th deadline in mind and missed the boat. The editor informs me that the copy deadline is the 15th of the month in the Grizzly Bear office, unless notified otherwise. But with the magazine getting out late, attending the institution of new parlors, and the initiation of many new candidates throughout the state, the situation gets rather confusing, causing a rush in preparing the copy.

Membership Contest

Pertinent suggestions were contained for last month but its too late now. By the time this issue is in your hands, the contest will be over. It should be possible to publish the results in the February issue. If the result from your parlor doesn't look right, check first with your parlor secretary. The Grand Secretary can figure only on what is actually received at his office and that is all that can be counted.

It has produced a great deal of activity. Some parlors initiating a few each month; others concentrating on several big classes. More Parlors participated each month—32 in September; 37 in October, and 40 in November. At the first of December, the net gain for 1946 was 2575 members. Suspensions will write the final story and there have been 636 already this year.

Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, Anaheim, celebrated "Old Timers' Night" Tuesday evening, Dec. 17, at its new meeting place in the Knights of Columbus Hall, with members of pioneer Orange County families swapping yarns about early day happenings. S. James Tuffree, charter president of the parlor, was master of ceremonies.

Enthusiasm is high in Native Sons of the Golden West Parlors throughout the state as they plan for a huge celebration of Admission Day in Long Beach in 1947. Seen talking over plans at a recent meeting in Long Beach are Walter Hiskey, Grand Inside Sentinel, Santa Ana; Gary G. Lynes, Senior Past President of Long Beach Parlor, who served as the Southern Counties chairman of the celebration last year and general chairman of the 1947 observance; R. G. Power, Grand President; Walter H. Odemar, Grand First Vice President; Joseph Sousa, First Vice President of Long Beach Parlor, general secretary of the 1947 committee; and, standing, left to right, Dr. John A. Schwamm, SDGP and Norman Johnson, Junior Past President of Long Beach Parlor.—Julius R. Young Photo.

HIGHLIGHTS ON SONOMA PARLOR

On Monday evening, November 18th, Sonoma Parlor No. 111, NSGW, initiated a class of five members into the Parlor to bring the membership up to three hundred and forty-eight (348). There are also more applications on the desk for another initiation.

The Parlor is very active in athletics having participated in the soft-ball season which just closed and are now entered in a league which has eight teams from neighboring cities entered to form a league. The outlook for Sonoma Parlor is very promising as a number of very good athletes are turning out regularly for practice, under the guidance of Brother Wedeking, who will coach the teams. The Parlor is purchasing new blue and gold uniforms and will really look snappy when they take the floor.

Sonoma Parlor is really stepping out in the Parades also. Under the able leadership of Bill Madden a Drum Corps (with borrowed drums from Sebastopol Parlor) was organized with a group of very green but enthused members on September 1st. They entered the Sept. 9th Parade and have since participated in five additional Parades winning cash prizes and trophies. This group is really going to town after the spring rains so watch Sonoma Parlor's banner in the Parades.

"Old Timers Night" Held by Utopia Parlor, San Francisco

Utopia Parlor, Native Sons, San Francisco, held their first "Old Timers Night" since the start of the war Tuesday evening, Dec. 10, in the parlor hall, 1641 Taraval Street. Highlight of the evening was the presentation of three 25-year pins to Charter Members, Past President Edward B. Cummins, Sr., Albert R. Frank and Frank A. Foppiano. Brother Cummins holds the record of the parlor by initiating the largest number of candidates during his six months term, 40 being members that he brought in himself.

Entertainment followed the meeting, arranged by a capable committee headed by Wm. A. Kennedy and L. Messersmith.

Several of the parlor's returned veterans will assume offices during the new term. Incoming officers are: Louis Messersmith, president; Paul Vega, 1st vice-pres.; William A. Kennedy, 2nd vice-pres.; Elmer L. Smith, 3rd vice-pres.; Bernard J. Kerns, Jr., marshal; Richard H. Miller, inside sentinel; Cylde L. Anderson, outside sentinel; Dan Henry, trustee. First veteran to reach the office of junior past president is the faithful and hard fighting (Sgt.) John M. Toohey who held the 1st vice-pres. office when he was called to service in the Army.

NEW PARLOR INSTITUTED BY NATIVE SONS AT ESCONDIDO

Guejito Parlor No. 301 (pronounced Whaheeto), Native Sons of the Golden West, was instituted at Escondido, San Diego County, Tuesday evening, Dec. 10, by Grand President R. G. Power and a corps of Grand Officers. This gives San Diego County four Native Son parlors, three of which have been instituted this year.

Charter President of the new parlor is Clifford E. Hughes. Other charter officers installed were J. Leonard Cook, senior past president; James V. Mills, junior past president; Thomas H. Rowe, 1st vice-pres.; Carl Lee Ingraham, 2nd vice-pres.; John E. Barnett, 3rd vice-pres.; Wilfred D. Purdum, marshal; Melvin H. Peet, inside sentinel; Freddie V. Rodriquez, outside sentinel; Ray V. Marshman, Martin L. Baker, Donald B. Potts, trustees; William R. Lawson, financial and recording secretary; Theodore H. Ford, treasurer.

Escondido is on the inland route from Los Angeles to San Diego. It is on the "Highway to the Stars," leading to Palomar Mountain where the home of the world's largest telescope is located. With a population of some 6,500 the city is surrounded by a thriving agricultural area. Not far away is the historic battlefield of San Pascqual.

Pre-institutional work on the Escondido parlor was done by Dan E. Shaffer, DGP, of San Diego, DGP, assisted by David W. Stuart, SDDGP, of San Bernardino.

PACIFIC PARLOR CELEBRATES HONORING CHARTER MEMBER

Pacific Parlor No. 10, San Francisco, recently celebrated its 65th Anniversary in Sierra Hall, 414 Mason Street, honoring William Metzner, 90, only living charter member of the parlor and oldest past president.

The honored guest, introduced by President Bob Peeters, recalled to those assembled, the early history of our Order, its humble beginning and its struggles to get under way. His speech was replete with facts and data that could only have been presented by one who was in on the ground floor. Brother Metzner has taken an active interest in the affairs of the Native Sons throughout the years, which should be an inspiration to every member of the Order.

Grand 2nd Vice-Pres. Walter Bailey was present at the anniversary gathering and spoke briefly. A fine delegation from Piedmont Parlor, headed by Junior Past Grand President Richard McCarthy, attended. Senior Past Grand President Raymond D. Williamson of Castro Parlor spoke, while other speakers included Grand 3rd Vice-Pres. Peter Conmy, Grand Trustee Edward Wren, SDDGP Edward Riegger and Carl Boegerhausen, deputy grand president for Pacific Parlor.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of 50-year pins to Frank R. Neville and Charles W. Green of Pacific Parlor. Receiving 25-year pins were Andrew Thuesen, Frank Harusa, Edward Fischer, J. W. Lohmann, Edward R. Murphy, William J. McDermott, P. S. Orr, Harry Alexander, J. E. Johnson, R. A. Werner and J. J. Mahoney. The presentations were made by Grand 2nd Vice-Pres. Walter Bailey.

The committee in charge of the outstanding event was headed by Bert Paolinelli.

UNIVERSITY PARLOR MAKES ASTOUNDING YEAR'S GAIN

University Parlor, Los Angeles, has made one of the biggest gains for a parlor of its size during the past year. On January 1, 1946 the parlor's membership stood at 175. On November 11, University Parlor had a membership of 304, and as of December 11 the total stood at 313, according to Solly Smith, membership chairman. During the year 1946, University Parlor lost 25 members through transfers and lapsation, which means that a total of 163 candidates were initiated during the period.

Compton Native Sons Celebrate Their Fourteenth Anniversary

Thursday evening, Dec. 5, Compton Parlor No. 273 held its annual birthday dinner and celebration in observance of the fourteenth anniversary of its founding.

Following a delicious turkey dinner served by members of Compton Parlor No. 258, Native Daughters, a good crowd of Natives and their guests adjourned to the lodge room for the evening's program at which Walter Hopcraft, past president of the parlor, was master of ceremonies.

Among those present were Junior Past Grand President Richard McCarthy of Piedmont Parlor, Grand Inside Sentinel Walter Hiskey of Santa Ana; Walter Richards, past grand trustee and a member of Compton Parlor at its institution; Dr. John Schwamm, SDDGP; John M. Johnston, DGP, of Long Beach; Bill Reuter of Stephen M. White Parlor, San Pedro.

Walter Richards, now of Wilmington Parlor, which was instituted in honor of his birthday, spoke on the history of Compton Parlor and its institution, as did others who were present on that historic occasion. Attention was called to the fact that Compton was not instituted by a group of Grand Officers, but that the institution ceremonies were conducted by Stephen M. White Parlor.

Redwood Parlor, Redwood City, Thursday evening, Dec. 19, presented a 50-year pin to Charles Durham who joined the parlor March 5, 1896. 25-year pins were presented to Gene Cerqui, Angelo Delucchi, Harold N. Bozzo, Frank J. Haaker, Judge W. H. Thorpe, James DeBenedetti, Henry Worder and Father C. E. Kennedy.

Lockhart at the time of this incident was away from Fall River Mills, but upon his return was also attacked. He built a fortification known as Lockhart's fort in which he was able to hold off the attacking forces until aid arrived. The town of Fall River Mills is a picturesque and quaint place bordered on the north by the valley.

Hat Creek, another tributary of the Pit River, is a beautiful stream which originates north of Mount Lassen and is about forty miles in length, bordered by pines and firs. This creek is of historical importance pertaining to the military of northern California. It was explored by Capt. John C. Fremont, later traversed by Lt. George Crook, and Lt. Phillip Sheridan, all of whom became Generals in the United States Army. Old Station, located on the Hat Creek road, was well known as a stopping place for early travelers. A few houses and places of business still remain.

This region was also explored in 1852 by William H. Noble when the latter was engaged in establishing a route from Susanville to the town of old Shasta, six miles west of Redding. The Noble immigrant road is now marked by several signs along the present road. A monument marks the road at the north entrance to Mount Lassen Volcanic National Park. The Noble Pass road was used for many years by pioneers who were on their way to the northern mines in Shasta and Trinity Counties.

Mt. Lassen, a high peak in the northern part of the state, can be seen many miles away. From Big Valley in Lassen County one can see from Mount Shasta on the north to Mount Lassen on the south and along the mountain range. Peter Lassen observed Mount Lassen as a guide when he established the well known Lassen trail. The mountain is bordered on the north side by chaos crags, a rock formation formed by ancient volcanoes. The first known eruption of Mt. Lassen since the arrival of the white men to this area was on May 19, 1915. This is the only active volcano in the United States.

Snow covered Mount Shasta, lying to the north of the Pit River, was probably noticed by the Spanish on their inland explorations up the Sacramento Valley. This mountain was practically unknown until 1826-27 when Peter Skene Ogden, a trapper of the Hudson Bay Company, made mention of it and camped near its base during one winter.

On the present Mount Shasta-Lassen highway, near Pit River, is Burney Falls. This beautiful sight, one of nature's marvels, is located on Burney Creek. Burney Falls is a state park. The falls, which are surrounded by evergreens, make a sheer drop of about 150 feet. These falls are located about eleven miles east of Burney. The name Burney was taken from Samuel Burney, a pioneer of this region. There is also a valley, mountain and town named in honor of this pioneer. Samuel Burney settled in the valley in 1857; although friendly with Indians, he was killed by them during the year 1859.

The upper Pit River region is noted for its grandeau and history. Today one can drive along the Fall River which flows through the Fall River valley, wide, open and green. During the early autumn golden leaf trees add to the scene. Western meadow larks and Brewer blackbirds are noticed as one moves slowly along the Glenburn road. The song of the lark rings through the air and interrupts the solitude and stillness that prevails in the historic valley.

Grand Parlor 1947

The location must be selected, according to the present constitution, at least 90 days prior to the third week of May, so this must be settled soon by the Board of Grand Officers. One actual invitation has been received and at least one other is pending. If your city is interested, the invitation must be extended right now.

It is highly gratifying to notice the great number of new Parlor Bulletins. All of the new Parlors have adopted this fine medium of publicity and contacting their own members. Most of them are exceedingly well written and very, very interesting. The Grand Parlor Constitution requires that a copy of every issue be sent to the Grand Secretary and all the Grand Officers would appreciate being placed on the mailing list. In that way they can get new ideas to pass on to other Parlors.

I frequently hear the comment that "You are the first Grand Officer, except for the official visit, to be in our parlor in many, many years." That may be very true but don't forget that the greater part of the fault lies with the Parlor itself. First, some occasion worthy of the time and trouble of a Grand Officer must be selected and then the Officer must be invited! Try this formula and see what happens.

You have probably noted the listing of several new Parlors in the past Itinerarys that have not been instituted as scheduled. This is due to a little too much enthusiasm on the part of the volunteer workers in that district. It is quite a sizeable task to get a new Parlor assembled and going and, for that reason, even more praise is due the fine Brothers engaged in the tasks. There are some surprises pending.

"Appointments"

Guejito Parlor No. 301 (Escondido) Visiting District Walter H. Odemar, Grand 1st Vice-Pres.; Supervising Deputy David W. Stuart, District Deputy Burt Pauter (108).

Pilgrimages to Historical points have long been advocated and the Los Angeles Friday Luncheon Club has, this year, resumed their annual over-night trip. The visit to the Palomar Observatory, Pala Mission and Mission Inn (Riverside) was greatly enjoyed and surprisingly educational to members, families and friends, which included myself. So many Parlors could well avail themselves of this means of entertaining their members and bringing important places to the attention of the public. People are traveling now in great numbers and eagerly looking for places to go.

More and more Parlors report special entertainment and nights honoring their Veterans. This should be a must event yearly for every Parlor. Our organization will show the largest percentage of ex-servicemen of any, excepting the Veterans own. Ours will probably be 20 percent or even greater! Besides the honor justly due these Brothers here is a fertile field to sow the seeds for future members. Since 1920, one of our larger Parlors has reserved their meeting night nearest to Armistice Day for special entertainment for their Veterans of all wars. Another Parlor this year tried a joint program with an American Legion Post, which proved highly successful.

I missed in wishing you a Merry Christmas, but I CAN get in on 1947, so here goes—

REINA DEL MAR PARLOR COMES TO CLOSE OF YEAR

Mrs. A. Stanley Clem has been elected to the presidency of Santa Barbara's Reina del Mar parlor to succeed Mrs. Albert Ames who ended her year in office with every major objective of the order met. Other officers of the 1947 board who will be installed formally before the end of January with ceremony at the Woman's City club include:

Mrs. Raymond Romero, Mrs. Anita Saconaghi and Miss Josephine Pagliotti, vice-presidents; Mrs. Ben Dismuke and Mrs. Paul Miller, secretaries; Dr. Anna E. McCaughey, treasurer; Mrs. Alfonso Olivero, marshal; Mrs. Gertrude Thorpe, Mrs. Dolly Hoefling and Mrs. Peter Graham, trustees; Mrs. Robert Phelan, organist and Mrs. Lillian Forbes and Miss Ellen Hayward, sentinals.

The closing program of the year featured a heavily-laden Christmas tree, the gifts on which were not for membership but for underprivileged children of Santa Barbara. Family welfare agencies made timely distribution.

Santa Barbara county's three deputy grand presidents, Mrs. Henry Griffiths and Mrs. George E. Tackaberry of Santa Barbara and Mrs. Anna Elliott of Santa Maria are arranging regional participation at the Southern California district meeting to be held in Los Angeles in January under leadership of Miss Ann Schiebush.

Native Daughters to Mark Historic Roche Adobe

The placing of a new bronze marker on the historic Rocha Adobe, 2400 Shenandoah Street, Los Angeles (near Culver City) by Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, NDGW, has been set for 2:30 p.m., Sunday, January 19, announces Olive Hedges, president, who will be in charge of the program.

Mrs. Francis Sullivan, granddaughter of Don Antonio Jose Rocha, who built the adobe brick and redwood dwelling in 1865 on what then was the vast Rancho Rincon de los Bueyes, will receive the plaque for her family, which now occupies the house. She will relate history of the Spanish Rocha family, which came to Los Angeles in 1815. Her great-grandfather was the original owner of the La Brea Rancho.

Romantic Spanish melodies will be rendered on guitar and piano by Senora Asencion Rocha de Simon, aunt of Mrs. Sullivan, and Senora Anita Santo, a cousin. Frank Santo will be heard in Early California vocal numbers. The history of the early ranchos will be discussed by a prominent California historian.

To reach the marking, motorists have been advised to drive on Robertson boulevard to the 2400 block, then two blocks east to Shenandoah.

Charter members of the new Beverly Hills parlor, NDGW, have been invited as special guests, due to Mrs. Sullivan being a member of the recently organized group.

The marker will replace an older one, which now shows effects of weathering. The original marker was furnished by Los Angeles parlor in 1933.

NATIVE DAUGHTER NOTES

Dolores Parlor No. 169, NDGW, San Francisco, had their Christmas party following their December meeting at the NDGW home.

Gifts were distributed to the members, by Mae Jackson, who acted as "Mrs. Santa Claus" which was followed by tasty refreshments. Visitors at the party were: Dep. Grand President Rita Rorgno of Guadalupe Parlor and PSP Mae B. Wilkin.

During the business session money was advanced so that Parlor's Veterans Committee could conduct a Christmas party at the Letterman General Hospital, also a generous amount of Christmas seals were purchased.

TREATY OF CAHUENGA SIGNED CENTURY AGO

By Ward E. McConnell

John Charles Fremont, although he led a strong military force, the California Battalion, fought no battles in the American conquest of California 100 years ago; yet it was he who received the surrender of the Californios—the natives—and signed the treaty with them at Cahuenga, January 13, 1847, from which dates peaceful American occupation of California. When he became the first American governor of California, Fremont established Los Angeles as the first capital of the territory, January 19.

After the signing of the treaty—which broke an impasse between the American and the Californio forces—and after Fremont's short-lived career as governor ran afoul the "brass" at Monterey, Los Angeles resumed the role of "cow county." Southern California's hour of glory, the capitulation of the Californios to Fremont at Campo de Cahuenga, January 13, 1847, will have slipped back into the limbo to which it has been consigned for nearly a century a fortnight from the start of the New Year 1947.

As a prelude to the treaty, Fremont made an armistice January 12, 1847, as follows:

> "To all to whom these presents shall come, greetings:
> "Know ye that, in consequence of propositions of peace, or cessation of hostilities, being submitted to me, as commandant of the California battalion of United States forces, which has so far been acceded to by me, as to cause me to appoint a board of commissioners to confer with a similar board appointed by the Californians, and it requiring a little time to close the negotiations, it is agreed upon, and ordered by me, that an entire cessation of hostilities shall take place until tomorrow afternoon, (January 13,) and that the said Californians be permitted to bring in their wounded to the mission of San Fernandez, where, also, if they choose, they can remove their camp, to facilitate said negotiations.
> "Given under my hand and seal this twelfth day of January, 1847.
> "J. C. FREMONT
> Lieutenant Colonel United States army, and Military Commandant of California."[1]

The negotiators of the treaty, signed next day, are set forth in the first paragraph of the document, written in Spanish by Don José Antonio Carrillo, as follows:

> "Articles of capitulation made and entered into at the ranch of Cowenga this thirteenth day of January, Anno Domini, 1847, between P. B. Reading, Major Louis McLane, jr., commanding artillery, Wm. H. Russell, ordnance officer, commissioners appointed by J. C. Fremont, lieutenant colonel, United States army, and military commandant of the territory of California, and José Antonio Carrillo, commandant esquadron, Augustin Olvera, diputado, commissioners, appointed by Don Andrés Pico, commander-in-chief of the Californian forces under the Mexican flag."[2]

The seven original articles and one supplemental article of the treaty established peace in California, and guaranteed civil rights and protection of life and property under the laws of the United States. While California became American territory January 13, 1847, the War with Mexico was not settled until February 2, 1848, at the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. Campo de Cahuenga is a landmark at the north end of Cahuenga Pass of which almost as little notice is taken today as the Articles of Capitulation signed there a century ago.

OLD TIMERS ARE HONORED BY SAN JOSE NATIVE SONS

San Jose Parlor No. 22 held Old Timers night recently.

The following oldsters occupied the chairs: President, John A. Cerette; first vice, Simon Semichy; second vice, Robert Wright; third vice, Arthur Bacigalupi; marshal, Tim Sullivan; junior past, Neal Mann; sentinels, Hiram D. Corey and George A. Kelley; trustees, Lawrence F. Hart, Ernest Lorentz, Sr., and Sherman Stephenson; treasurer, Charles T. O'Connell.

A large attendance of members was entertained by a musical trio consisting of Brother R. Stanley Higuera and the Speciale brothers with violin and accordian.

Twenty-five year membership pins were presented to Lawrence Hart and Neal Mann who responded with fond memories of their earlier days in the Parlor.

Silver baby cups for their sons were presented to Brothers Edward Vergudo, Edward Gallagher, Harold Goepel, Frank Hogan and Stanley Higuera.

When members of John Bidwell Parlor, Chico, discovered that the city did not have a Bear Flag, they got busy and presented one to the city council Tuesday evening, Dec. 3.

A county-wide initiation will be held at Observatory Parlor, San Jose, Tuesday evening, January 21, with H. Irving Lee, DGP, in charge of arrangements.

HONOR GRAND PRESIDENT

Ramona Parlor No. 109, Los Angeles, will hold a special class initiation Friday evening, Jan. 17, honoring Grand President R. G. Power. It also has been announced that Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, member of Ramona Parlor, will continue his series of talks on early California at the initiation of new members at Ramona Parlor during the first half of this year. Dr. Hunt is writing an interesting series of articles on early mining towns for the Grizzly Bear.

FERNDALE PARLOR ACTIVE

Ferndale Parlor No. 93, NSGW, enjoyed their annual turkey feed on Dec. 2 with 100 members present. The fine meal was prepared under the supervision of Charles Kistner. Henry Giacomini acted as toastmaster and called on a number of brothers who responded in a most interesting way with both constructive and humorous talks.

Initiation of a class of five candidates was the highlight of the meeting which followed. Brother Jos. Giacomini of the athletic committee reported a team would be entered in the inter-city basketball league. Also that a team would represent the parlor in the Fortuna Bowl winter season bowling league. Humboldt Parlor was extended an invitation to come to Ferndale for a horseshoe contest on Dec. 16.

COUNTY SEAT OF AMADOR

operating between Sacramento and Jackson, San Andreas, Angels Camp, Columbia, Sonora, and way stations. The strong box of Wells Fargo Express was carried under the driver's seat. It was estimated that over this route was carried a total of more than $265,000,000 in gold.

Hold-ups by genteel robbers, known as "road-agents," were all too frequent. There was little security except in the trusty rifle and the bowie knife, added to the skillful driving of the "Knight of the Whip." Brigandage became so grave a menace that in 1860 the governor recommended the death penalty.

The coming of the steam railroad spelled the eventual doom of the stage-coach and the heavy freight wagon. But not all at once. Stages and heavy wagons continued to operate for years over routes not reached by the early railways. Tovey Monument, a few miles west of Jackson, stands there, mindful of an era that was virtually in the past. On the inscription we read: "'Mike' Tovey, Wells-Fargo Messenger, was killed and De Witt Clinton Radcliffe stage driver injured on this spot June 15, 1893, by a lone bandit who attempted to hold up the regular six-horse stage on the old Ione-Jackson stage road . . . "

The pioneer railroad in California was the short line between Sacramento and Folsom, opened in 1856. Other "Bonanza Railroads" followed in rapid succession. It was not until 1869, however, that the first transcontinental road was completed, the electric telegraph having preceded it by several years.

A new era had opened for California and the entire West. What the railroad failed to do was achieved by the motor car and the airplane. Old conditions were done away: all things have become new. Yet many a wistful memory remains and is fondly cherished.

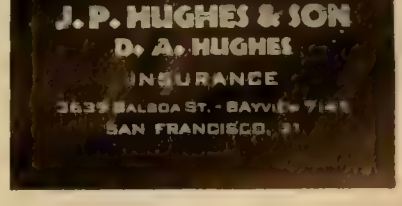
BARBARA HERNSTER

To the Officers and Members of Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126, NDGW:



We, your Memorial Committee, submit the following resolutions in tribute to the memory of our departed sustaining member, Barbara Hernster.

The calling of this member has been a distinct loss to the State and community to which she gave a lifetime of service, and to our Order of Native Daughters, in which she stood out as a real Santa Barbaran, reflecting the culture of founding families.

Therefore, be it Resolved: That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her immediate survivors in their sorrow, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the berieved family, a copy included in the minutes of the Parlor, and one sent to the Grizzly Bear for publication.

OROVILLE . . .

E. R. Reynolds dealt with a careless Los Angeles deer hunter in an effective manner on a recent trip to Plumas County, during deer season. Displaying a bullet hole through his hat, he told of being the target for the Los Angeles man, who after firing a shot began shouting, "I hit it." Following the close call Reynolds dropped behind a log until the approach of the unidentified hunter. When he arrived Reynolds took his gun, broke it and then delivered a lecture on safe hunting practices. Reynolds, undaunted by his narrow escape, returned here with a 200-pound buck—and his "holy" hat.

Assurance that Tuolumne County, mecca for the gold seekers of a hundred years ago, will have its deserved place along the glittering trail in the coming centennial celebrations, was promised by the newly incorporated Tuolumne County Gold Centennial Celebration Committee.

In official language, the committee announced it was incorporated to "promote, encourage, develop and advertise the celebration to be hold throughout the year 1948, '49 and '50 in Tuolumne County in connection with the state-wide observance of the discovery of gold."

Because they do things legal now up this way, the incorporation was voted so that the county could transfer tax-raised centennial funds to the group to be used for such activities as will tend to recall the days and revise the history of this rip-snorting spot.

FIVE NATIVE GOVERNORS--

By George R. Kibbe

It is quite appropriate at this time of celerations in California to consider some facts elating to the five governors of California who ere fortunate enough to have been born here.

Of the thirty governors that we have had nce our first Admission Day, Sept. 9, 1850, five ave been Native Californians; Romualdo Paeco, George C. Pardee, Hiram W. Johnson, mes Rolph, Jr., and Earl Warren.

Governor Romualdo Pacheco was born in Monterey of pure Spanish ancentry. He received is early education in his native town until he as sent to school in Honolulu, as was the custom many families at that time. He finished his hooling in Paris. Pacheco early entered the potical life of Monterey and eventually was elect- to Congress, then Lieutenant Governor of alifornia and at last Governor.

He stood over six feet in height. Handsome face and figure, he was a commanding speaker. attended some of his rallies in the early 70's id he impressed me as a man of fine character. e became the first Native Son Governor of our tate.

Governor George C. Pardee was born in San rancisco. When a small boy his father, who as an eye specialist, moved his family to Oakand. He graduated from the University of alifornia and took post-graduate work in Eupe, returning to practice with his father. ntering politics he became mayor of Oakland id later Governor of California.

Sacramento was the birthplace of Governor iram W. Johnson. He graduated from the Uniersity of California, practiced law and was entually elected Governor of California. A opular political figure, he was elected to serve United States Senator from California, an nor which he held until his death. Hiram hnson was a great orator and much beloved by l his constituents.

Governor James Rolph, Jr., was a native of n Francisco, and was popularly known as Sunny Jim." Mission grammar school in San rancisco is linked with his name. He served n Francisco as mayor for several terms, then nt on to the Governorship.

Our present honored Governor first saw the ght of day in Los Angeles. Governor Earl arren sold papers on the streets of Bakersfield d studied in the common schools. He gradted from the University of California, prac- ed law, served efficiently as District Attorney Alameda County and was elected Attorney eneral of California. His personality and abil- won him the Governorship and after serving e term, his remarkable vote at the primaries t year won him the nomination of both the epublican and Democratic parties.

All of the Governors mentioned were sons early Californians. I doubt if any other state n show five native executives with as good cords as these have demonstrated. Possibly me day in the future a Native of California y be elected President of the United States. ho knows?

CALIFORNIA 75 YEARS AGO

AS COMPILED FROM THE FILES OF THE GRIZZLY BEAR MAGAZINE

February 1872, in California, was fair and warm until after the 17th, when a number of storms passed over the state and gave a couple of weeks of stormy weather. The rainfall amounted to 3.70 inches, making 21.11 inches for the season. The storms were moderate and did not cause flood conditions to again prevail.

The Central Pacific railroad gave the members of the Legislature an invitation to take an excursion over its line to Truckee, Nevada County, February 9. It was accepted and in eleven coaches, state officials and prominent citizens went with the officials of the company, headed by President Leland Stanford, who pointed out to the senators and assemblymen the difficulties met in construction and operation of the road. With twenty feet of snow on the Summit sheds and four feet at Truckee a fine demonstration of snowplow work and winter problems was shown. Sleighing and snowballing at Truckee for a couple of hours and with plenty to eat, drink and smoke at the railroad company's expense, the excursionists had a jolly time.

The mining stock market had the most exciting month of its existence. Opening at $700 a share, Crown Point and Belcher fluctuated around that figure after both had declared a monthly dividend of $15 a share, while other stocks took the leadership in trading. February 5 and 6 were days of great excitement. The caller was unable to finish the list on the stock board, so great was the volume of trading. One broker went insane and had to be forcibly removed. Savage jumped from $65 to $295. Hale & Norcross from $180 to $305, Ophir $65 to $95 a share, and all other stocks jumped to unexpected prices.

Alvinza Hayward, then the largest mining investor in the state, bought 11,000 shares of Savage, averaging $200 a share. A broker during a session of the board was given a verbal order by a client to buy 1,000 shares of Yellow Jacket. He misunderstood him and bought 1,000 shares of Savage instead. This was the day before it jumped. The client refused to accept the stock, so the broker had to keep it and cleared $60.000 in a few days by his error. A break the 29th in Ophir brought its price down to $50 a share and made the market wobble.

Charles D. Semple died at Colusa February 27, aged 58 years. He was a native of Kentucky, and came to California in October 1849. He bought from General John Bidwell a rancho in Colusa County in 1850 and laid out and founded the town of Colusa, as his brother, Dr. Semple, had helped to start Vallejo. The boundary of his property conflicting with the lines of another grant, a series of lawsuits occupied, for many years, his attention and took from him finances that kept him from enjoying the prosperity he would have otherwise achieved from his investment.

J. H. Polhemus sold M. Newhall three leagues of land in Monterey County for $50,000. This was at the rate of about $4 an acre.

C. F. Ellsworth was constructing in Tehama County at a cost of $30,000 a flume 22 miles long from his sawmill on Antelope Creek. He intended to float lumber from the mill to Red Bluff.

Captain John B. H. Cooper, a pioneer of 1823 and a brother-in-law of General Vallejo, died in San Francisco February 9, at the age of 80. He owned a large rancho in Monterey County on which he lived until he removed in the 60's to San Francisco.

Joe Bonvirt, a young man at Grass Valley, Nevada County, took a Sunday afternoon stroll February 12 across Dead Man's Flat and picked up a nugget, washed into view by the rains, that weighed 14 ounces and was worth $250. The heavy rainfall also contributed in other places to lucky finds, of which were reported: That of a miner at Volcano, Amador County, who picked up a nugget weighing 52 ounces and valued at over $900; that of a Frenchman walking along a trail at Norman Bar, Mariposa County, who saw the glint of a nugget which he dug out of the ground with his pocketknife, and which weighed 68 ounces and was worth $1,170; that of Raymond Rogers at Hogg's Diggings, El Dorado County, who found two nuggets, one 5¾ and the other 4 ounces in weight, worth $170.

The Eastside Brewery, on North Main street, is one of Los Angeles' picturesque landmarks. It stands in its dignity, undisturbed by swirling traffic that eddies about it. The old clock on the brewery tower still tells the passing hours as it did before the turn of the century when the city proudly boasted a population of 97,000 persons.

Golden Anniversary - -

By M. W. Shackelford

A Half Century Ago George Zobelein Founded the Eastside Brewery. Today, His Sons and Daughters Carry on the Family Traditions.

IN 1897, just about the time William McKinley was being inaugurated president of these United States, the first glass of George Zobelein's "Eastside Beer" was brewed. The old clock in the brewery tower still tells the passing hours as it did before the turn of the century when Los Angeles proudly boasted a population of something like 97,000 persons—but today the hours move faster, much faster. Those were the days when your grand-daddy got together with the boys and harmonized on "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," "A Hot Time in the Old Town," and "East Side, West Side." When grandma got dressed up for sewing circle she probably wore a "shirtwaist" which she had painstakingly made from the pattern supplied by the Ladies' Home Journal. The Gibson Girl, with her trailing skirts was then in her prime, and embryo artists were assiduously copying the pen and ink style of Mr. Charles Dana Gibson.

We heard nothing in those days about regimentation. It was pretty much every man for himself. But men from labor's ranks were holding forth on soap boxes in the public parks, proclaiming the value of "organization" for the working man. Trade unions were unheard of—as also were many other things in our life of today. There were no radios, no such word as "movie" or "aviator." No tractors, no chain stores, no hair bobs or permanent waves—no cafeterias, no crossword puzzles, parcel post, boy scouts, traffic cops or one-piece bathing suits—but Eastside Beer was easing the parch of thousands of thirsty throats—fifty years ago. People were asking each other if they had tasted that new beer George Zobelein's brewery was turning out, over on the east side of town. Originally known as Zobelein's beer, that name soon gave way to "Eastside Beer." That's what people persisted in asking for—"that Eastside beer," from the big brewery down on the east side.

From a relatively small production volume to supply the demands of those early days fifty years ago, Eastside has steadily increased its output until, with the completion of the new buildings now under way and the installation of acres of new equipment, over 26 million gallons of beer each year will be flowing from their great copper kettles in huge glass-lined storage tanks.

The Zobelein family has controlled the destinies of Los Angeles Brewing Company without interruption since its founding—never a week in all those years has the brewery paused in its operation (even during the arid years of prohibition, when "near-beer" was brewed).

President today is John Graf Zobelein, son of the founder. Vice-President and General Manager is Charles J. Lick, whose wife Rose is the daughter of George Zobelein. Vice-President and Treasurer is Philip Zobelein; Secretary is Ri ard Zobelein. Other members of the fam acting in executive capacity are Eugene, p chasing agent and Oliver, chief chemist, charge of the brewery's laboratory.

Much of the credit for the sustained hi quality of Eastside Beer since repeal, goes Mr. Carlos Fuchs, brewmaster. Son of a mous brewmaster of Europe, Mr. Fuchs spent a long life in this capacity both in Am ica and abroad.

This year Eastside is celebrating its Gold Anniversary — The Fiftieth Year of Easts Beer." Today the old brick buildings look j about the same as they did in that period nostalgic memory, the "Gay Nineties" but w their color softened and mellowed by the s and rain of half a century. A giant sycam spreads its leafy arms over the main front ga It was planted when the brewery was young. T architecture is of a day gone by, but is r in suggestion of that colorful era when a m could raise a healthy thirst on a hot summer and blow the foam from a tall cool lager, kno ing there was plenty more where that one ca from. What wouldn't we give for those g old days! No quotas to plague our waking hou no atom bombs to haunt our dreams. Th juicy steaks tender enough to cut with a fo broiled on oaken planks and festooned with s

Scenes like this were familiar in the days when Grand-Daddy got together with the boys and harmonized on "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," "A Hot Time in the Old Town," and "East Side, West Side." Cave City - - - - - -

Historic Ghost Town of Mother Lode

By EMMETT P. JOY, Grand Historian, NSGW

IN the historic hills of Calaveras County on the mother lode is a historic ghost town known as Cave City.

A short distance from mountain ranch, on the north side of O'Neils Creek, Cave City was once an active and thriving community of central Calaveras. It was so named because of a cave located on a limestone bluff overlooking McKinney's Creek which was accidently discovered in October, 1850 by Captain Taylor.

Upon the discovery of gold in this area, mining activity prevailed and thousands of miners rushed to the ravines which in a short period of time resulted in the formation of this mining camp of over a thousand; so Cave City experienced the glamour of other early mining towns. Gold was taken out in large quantities and the ditches used in mining are still visable on the brushy hillsides.

Placer and hydraulic mining required a large amount of water in order to work the claims, therefore various ditch companies were organized. A group of men mostly from Cave City in 1853 founded the Table Mountain Water Co.

In 1854 the water was diverted from O'Neils Creek into ditches supplying the miners. Subsequently the Cold Spring Water Company was organized by Robert McCall, N. L. Broughton and others who built a ditch diverting the water from McKinney's Creek, below Cave City, to Old Gulch which became known as the Old Gulch ditch. This ditch system was later conveyed to the Table Mountain and San Andreas Water Co. From Gaston Hill or Wyllie reservoir a ditch leads off in a general easterly direction from El Dorado to Cave City and vicinity. All the gulches and creeks along this ditch line were mined.

In 1853 Campbell and company were taking out over a pound of gold a day. According to the San Andreas Independent of March 20, 1858, "Parsons and Ross took $125.00 a week to the hand, Conkin and Co. claim pay them over an ounce per day to the hand. The Scotch Boy's claim has been paying them four to five dollars per day just running a deep cut. They began washing Monday and are getting $20.00 per day to the man with years work ahead."

In the year 1858 Cave City was stricken with disaster. A two story frame building, which was the property of Joseph Smith of Table Mountain, was destroyed by fire.

In the years that followed the cave became an attraction for tourists. A large hotel was built adjoining the cave providing comfort and entertainment for the many visitors. The cave had the appearance of having been at one time a subterranean outlet for a large river or lake as it bore traces of erosion of water. There were twelve large chambers with narrow passages leading from one to the other. The roofs and sides were covered with beautiful formations. A newspaper of the day described these formations many of them three feet in length which glittered in the lamp light like thousands of diamonds. Some of the various chambers were known as the Council Chamber, the Cataract, Bishop's Palace and the Bridal Chamber.

In 1881 a new cave was discovered near Cave City. Upon exploring the interior chambers, remains of Indians were found which apparently was a cave of Catacombs and was known as the Skull Cave. Also a number of flint arrowheads were found on the outside of the cave. Some believe that this was once a refuge for retreating Indians in time of war among the tribes.

In 1883 Cave City was still in existence for a newspaper stated that this "city" consisted of a hotel, a saloon and a haystack. After 1883 little was mentioned of this once thriving town and as the years waned it became forgotten in the gold fields of California.

Here was heard the tempting jingle of cash and here flourished the soul inspiring fandango in all its gaudy habiliments. The glory of this "El Dorado" hath departed.

NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW DATE AT SAN BERNARDINO IS SET

The 32nd National Orange Show, San Bernardino's annual showcase for the multi-million dollar Southern California citrus industry, will be held March 13 to 23. This marks a resumption of the event after an absence of five years during the war.

The mammoth Orange Show exposition hall, stadium and grounds were converted into headquarters for the United States Army and only recently was released back to the Orange Show committee.

A program of face-lifting and construction was launched immediately to restore the facilities for exposition purposes and to add many innovations including a new entrance and a relocated stage.

Plans for the spectacle are rapidly taking form. A preliminary review promises a larger, more beautiful and more interesting show, augmented with top-flight entertainment and amusement features.

The decorative theme is "Melody On Parade" which offers wide latitude of design for the decoration of the auditorium, which will be novel, and for the feature exhibits, sponsored by community organizations. Fred Peachey, chairman of the committee in charge of this phase of the show, reports that applications for feature exhibit space indicate all the Southland is interested in the event.

The more attractive prize awards for growers and packers of citrus fruit should provide the incentive for higher quality.

More space is being provided for the flower and garden displays which will exceed in beauty and splendor all previous efforts.

Officers of the 32nd National Orange Show are: Fred B. Mack, president; R. H. Stockwell, vice-president; J. H. Wilson, treasurer, and R. Z. Smith, secretary-manager.

PIONEER KERN COUNTY EDITOR AND PUBLISHER IS CALLED

Alfred Harrell, 83, editor and publisher of the Bakersfield Californian, died Saturday, Dec. 14. The pioneer editor, whose prestige as an independent publisher grew with the years, and whose editorials were frequently quoted nationally, never retired from his editorial chair. His newspaper plant is one of the most modern in California and talked of wherever newspapermen and printers meet.

Publisher Harrell was one of the outstanding leaders of Kern County. Born in Merced County, he had been active in the Native Sons of the Golden West for many years and was one of the most beloved members of Bakersfield Parlor No. 42.

The Town of Volcano

HOW GOLD MINERS WERE AMUSED AND ENTERTAINED

By ROCKWELL D. HUNT, Ramona 109, N. S. G. W.

WHO ever heard of a California town known as "The Volcano?" Twelve miles northeast of Jackson, on higher, more mountainous ground east from the main road between Jackson and points north is situated the phantom city of Volcano; and Volcano had much to tell us about life in the Mother Lode country during the gold rush days. Here we find what was once a truly picturesque, dynamic mining town.

Its history goes back even beyond the date of Marshall's discovery at Coloma in late January, 1848. But the place was first called Soldiers' Gulch, because a party of soldiers from Stevenson's Regiment had encamped there on a big flat covered with oak and pine timber. But the soldiers were not thinking of gold then.

When a passing trapper brought the thrilling news from Sutter's Mill up at Coloma, however, everything was excitement. Most of the party lost no time in making tracks for the north, not dreaming that they were leaving richer gold fields right there than those they were so eager to reach!

It was not long till men from many lands came hurrying up the hills, like lava flowing from an inverted volcano. There were bands of Mexicans; then people from Europe, from South America, from China, and—of course—there were the Indians. But chiefly, there were the Yankees.

The diggings proved fabulously rich, A single cartload of dirt might contain $250; the richest gravel yielded up to $500 a pan; lucky miners washed out an average of $1,000 a day for several months. Soldiers' Gulch changed its name to Volcano; some of the finest deposits were found near the mouth of what appeared to be the crater of an extinct volcano ,at an altitude of more than 2,000 feet above sea-level. Incidentally, there may never have been a volcano at all, in reality! Men of the settlement were called, appropriately enough, "Volcanics." When Bayard Taylor visited "The Volcano" in the late autumn of 1849 he reported that one miner had dug $8,000 from a pocket in a few days; and he did not fail to note that the diggers had already elected an alcalda and adopted laws for their own government. By 1852 the town had a population of 2,000. Added importance was given to the place by the construction of a wagon road across the Sierra Nevada into Carson Valley, thus making it the first California town reached by overland immigrants coming that way. A year later it claimed 5,000.

The first winter saw great suffering in Volcano. No provision had been made against the storms, which proved severe; nor was there a reserve food supply. In early spring a wagon well stocked with provisions arrived from Sacramento, "just in time," as Louis Stellman remarks, "to prevent Volcano from turning into a graveyard."

In the flush days the picturesque city boasted—or confessed—forty-seven saloons, two breweries, twelve restaurants, five hotels, many stores, and a church. But it could boast something els too. It was in Volcano that the "Little Theatr idea originated; it was there that the first rent library of the California mines was opened; late it was there that eloquent words fell from th lips of Thomas Starr King, as he preached pa triotism and righteousness to the attentive mine under the pine trees, on the beautiful little kno where the church stood.

Hydraulic mining was early developed. A gre stream of water from the tough canvas hose, pr pelled with prodigious force against the mountai side sent lava-like streams of "slickens" dow the slopes, completely covering a settler's farm almost to the roof of the house. This was but foretaste of the vast damage inflicted upon agr culture in California by hydraulic mining opera tions.

* * * *

As lively a town as Volcano, with all kinds people in it, most of necessity have entertainmer —miners craved amusement, and amusement the would have at whatever cost. No need here dilate upon the saloon and gambling—Vol cano was no whit different from other centers i that regard. Some of the miners who made $10 a day just as regularly gambled it away durin the night. But not all of them.

Referring to the manner of life in a settle camp, in the days of '49, Bayard Taylor remarke that it must have been rather dreary to a cult vated mind: "Relaxation of any kind," he sai "is irregular and accidental, rather than pe manent. Women fail; reading (except of politic newspapers) is an obsolete taste; and the sam excess which characterizes labor is too often ap plied to amusements. On the other hand, there is freedom from restraint—an escape from that soci tyranny which is the curse of the Atlantic state —almost sufficient to reconcile one to the loss the other advantages of society. . . ." Call of the Open Range

By HAR LAR

SOME folks believe that a few days' stay on a dude ranch costs plenty of money and only the rich can afford the luxury of such a vacation. Well, maybe there are a few expensive guest ranches that cater strictly to rich city dudes, but those that we have run into are reasonably priced and cost, for the most part, less than the price of an evening's entertainment at some of the better night spots. Right now, in spite of the high cost of living, you can stay at most any dude ranch for the nominal sum of eight to ten dollars per day with food, lodging and horses all included.

Now vacations are a matter of taste. There are some who prefer the big city or possibly an ocean cruise, but to our way of thinking unless you have spent a week at one of California's scenic guest ranches you really haven't completely lived.

Dude ranches are found up and down the State of California. There are big ones and little, but each has its own particular charm. There are some you'll find among the pines of our California mountains and others will be nestled in the sprawling foothills at the desert's edge.

Pehaps the oldest of any of the California dude ranches is located some thirty miles east of Fresno on Kings River at almost the very entrance of the Grant National Park. It is the Wonder Valley Ranch and was recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Hemingway. The five thousand acre spread was primarily obtained that it might be stocked with the black sheep of the Holy Lands, the Karakuls. It should be of more than passing interest to the reader to learn that the Hemingways are producers of the largest flocks of Karakuls in the entire western hemisphere. Located in Ontario, they own and operate an exquisite ladies' salon catering exclusively to women's wearing apparel and these skilled furriers design and tailor these silken curly black furs into beautiful garments.

This pioneer mountain dude ranch will be made ready for guests on March 1. Mr. and Mrs. Peters, known affectionately among thier many friends as Lynn and Eulah, will serve as the ranch host and hostess. Lynn Peters is a musician of unusual ability. His Hammond organ is being sent to the resort and guests will be favored with organ recitals and after dinner dance music.

It isn't often that a dude ranch boasts just about every conceivable outdoor activity. The great pool in the bend of the Kings River makes a wonderful swimming hole. Two brand new canoes are in service for romantic couples who enjoy paddling over quiet waters.

Hunting and fishing are two seasonal sports much enjoyed. The river is well stocked with choice trout while the hills are flush with birds and game. It is a fact that during winter months trap lines are "set" and run by members of the ranch's cowboy crew.

Long before the white men the Indians lived contentedly in Wonder Valley. There were eight Indian villages on the big ranch. The pits where the red man once pitched his teepee are still in evidence. Many Indian artifacts have been found in this locality. Pictured in the columns is a huge mass of rock containing many mortar or grinding holes. It was here that the Indian squaws ground out their corn and acorn meal. There are several such mills.

It wasn't only the Indians who lived in Wonder Valley. It was patronized by early day stage coach bandits who considered it a safe hideout. On display in the main ranch house is an old saddle. The stirrups were made of cast iron and are pretty much rusted away. We were told that once it had belonged to a member of the Dalton gang. While in one of their brushes with the law, one of the brothers was in that saddle when his horse was shot out from under him.

On a dude ranch it goes without saying that horseback riding is the real enjoyment. Those who have never "set a saddle" while a cowboy danced along the trail at a mincing canter have missed one of life's most thrilling experiences. Don't fail to ride. In every "saddle string" there are horses gaited to one's riding ability.

Down south where the Mojave desert touches the back side of the San Bernardino Mountains is located Victorville and the Lucerne Valley, famous for their dude ranches. Rimmed with tall mountains this little valley is studded with Joshua trees and bathed in the soothing warmness of a southern California sun.

Here, too, in this land of mines and mining men was the locale of many an early California story. This is a setting of early stagecoach trails. Across this desert waste the Mormons in covered wagons plodded their westward way. It was they who named those grotesque trees, with outstretched arms as though in prayer, by that biblical name of Joshua. While an early morning sun penerates the canyons of deep shadows the purple mountains change to lav-

Out where the old West will never die, steer riding on the Wonder Valley Ranch furnishes fun for the cowhands and guests alike.

CHARLES H. BROWN, OLD-TIME STAGEDRIVER DIES AT NAPA

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, Jan. 5, in Napa for Charles Henry Brown, 95, one-time Shasta and Napa county stagedriver who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward A. Boan.

Brown, a native of Illinois, came west across the Oregon Trail with his parents, who settled in Oregon.

Seventy-five years ago he came to Napa county, settling in Calistoga, where he was employed as a stagedriver. He later carried the mail from Shasta to Trinity Center on horseback, and subsequently took up cattle raising in the Cottonwood district. He was married to Mary Elizabeth Logenfeldt.

He leaves the following sons and daughters: John F. Brown of Anderson; Laura L. Doyle and Henry H. Brown of Cassel; Stella J. Rathke, Alice A. Boan and Edgar F. Brown of Napa. A brother, Wesley W. Brown, 94, of Baker, Oregon, also is living.

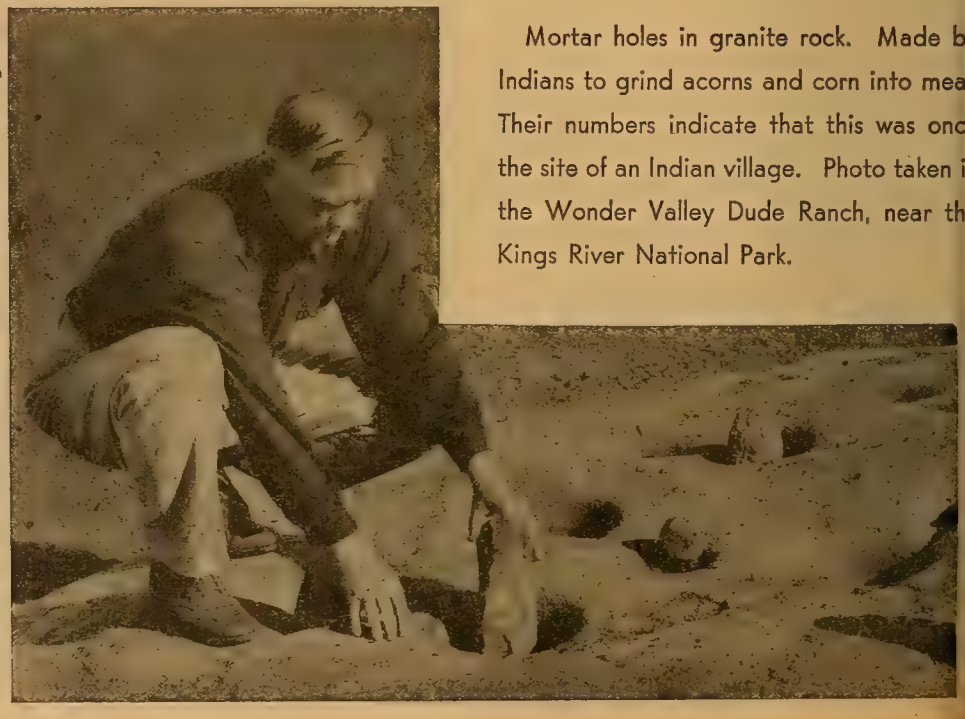
ender, red and blue in ever changing color combinations. Here you will again find western hospitality. As in the days of the Dons the latch string is always open.

It is true that at a dude ranch you are a paying guest. You pay for your rights and privileges, but somehow your congenial host and hostess makes you forget, as the melody has it, that money is the root of all evil.

Take the C-Bar-H for instance. It is run by Mary Coster and is located high on the plateau above the desert town called Lucerne Valley on the road that climbs to the San Bernardino mountain resorts. The ranch buildings from the highway look small and insignificant in all that great expanse of country, but drive up that long ranch road and you'll find the rambling guest house to be truly inviting.

Mary Coster is, as is every guest ranch proprietor, a congenial soul. Her chief motivating aims in life seem to be to make others happy. Maybe that's why one finds the same old crowd coming back time and again.

Most dude ranches are remembered for the food they serve. Maybe it's the invigorating sweet mountain or desert air, perhaps it's the horseback riding or both, but we find that folks gathered about the heavily laden ranch table eat like they never ate before. Maybe it's because there is more variety, that is more lusciously prepared. Certainly the menu is every bit as tempting as any found in our city's fine restaurants. Anyway there are three big meals a day served family style. It's a cheerful meal made bright and interesting with your host ready to tell a story if conversation lags. No wonder folks need no urging when the cook beats the gong "it's time for chow."



Ever ride a horse? If you're one of these people born in the saddle you'll enjoy a spirited mount. On the other hand if you're a rank beginner who never even heard that a horse is to be addressed on his left hand side, there are gentle horses for you too. They'll stand like wooden Indians while you climb aboard and walk off in any direction that you turn their heads. We've watched youngsters who never before had even touched a horse get on and ride awa Frankly, we think some of these patient anima are safer than a kid's rocking horse or the ki that goes round and round on a merry-go-roun

We have one complaint. Somebody ought chart the bridle trails. There are too many poin of interest that people miss. Too many invitin paths lead off along mountain trails and sage a Joshuas. There are too many abandoned min sunk deep into canyon walls with tell-tale sig of ancient mining equipment found on the o dump, of varied colored rock fused in yellows a reds along with crystal like quartz. Men toil and sweat away the hours, hours that stretch into days and months and years. What is the story?

Up on the Wonder Ranch, as down on t Lucerne Valley, the cowpunchers are quick put on an impromptu wild west rodeo. Many them are star performers just practicing up order to be in form to enter one of the comi local "rides." Of course the dudes are invit to watch the show.

The moonlight rides must not go unmentione Many times the guests of several ranches jo forces to ride the range under the mellow lig of a great full moon. Somehow at the end the ride as you sit and eat the luscious barb cued beef prepared by the chuck wagon coo everything seems perfect. Sitting there besi an open camp fire under a silvery moon liste ing to a singing cowboy pluck the strings his guitar, no matter how important you may l in your world of business, such things for t moment just don't count. Your heart is ove flowing with the knowledge that it's great be alive in all the exquisite beauty God gave t world.

You will greatly help your magazine if yo will mention the Grizzly Bear in patronizing its a vertisers. Many who advertise, especially tho who do a mail-order business, judge their resul by mention of the periodicals in which they a vertise. If you do not do this, the credit to yo magazine is lost.

Grand President's Notes

Grand President, NSGW

January 14, 1947

Much has befallen since the last issue and anuary promises to be one of the best of the rm from a membership standpoint. William B. Ide Parlor No. 302 was instituted at Red Bluff on January 10, when 34 charter members were initiated by a team from Colusa Parlor No. 69. Eight more paid candidates await initiation and they expect to sign that many more previous to the initiation scheduled three weeks hence. This was the result of a great deal of hard and effective rk on the part of former Grand Trustee Horace Leavitt, Mt. Baldy Parlor No. 87, Weaverlle. The calibre of the new members is outnding and we may look for this to be a fine, tive organization in that city. Horace J. avitt has been named District Deputy to Red uff Parlor.

The wonder boys, Wade-Johnston-Woodward, pped one over on me again. As a complete rprise they asked me on January 11th to insti- te new parlors at Lancaster, Los Angeles coun- January 21, and Coalinga, Fresno county, nuary 25th. Naturally, that will be done. In addition, Supervising Deputy David Stuart, side Sentinel Walter Hiskey and Deputy Dan affer have now secured 41 paid applications for ula Vista, so San Miguel Parlor No. 303 will in there on January 16. As I made a trip to t city in December in the interest of this new rlor, Grand First Vice President Walter Odeir will institute this time.

Four new parlors in January, plus the eight n June through December, brings the term al to twelve. There are at least four more rlors where the organizational work is about nplete, but all organization activity, except as ted above, will cease until after the meeting the Grand Officers in San Francisco on Febry 1st. The organization fund is not only ke; it is overdrawn and future action, if depends upon the decision of the Board. is caused the cancellation of the proposed and Officers participation in the class initians to be held at Ramona, Los Angeles, and achella Valley Parlor, Indio, on January 17th d 20th. No events are scheduled or will be ed for February until after this meeting.

The incomplete figures from the Grand Secary's office indicate that the net gain in membership for 1946 will be approximately 2400. In cember, 241 were initiated, but 580 were susded, etc., with a net loss for the month of 109. the year, nearly 3700 were initiated with ut one-third being read out for various rea- s. A great part of this is due to the inexable delinquency of the Parlor officers in

Old Timers of Stockton Parlor Receive Their 50-Year Pins

Stockton Parlor No. 7, NSGW, dedicated its Christmas party in honor of its "Old Time" members with a delicious dinner, prepared by Chic. Piccardo and his committee. Following the banquet the large attendance enjoyed an interesting program in which the "Old Timers" were presented with 50 and 25-year pins.

Below is a list of the 50-year members and date of initiation into the Order:

George Catts, June 22, 1882; R. J. Benjamin, Dec. 14, 1883; J. H. Dolan, July 18, 1884; Frank Rose, Feb. 28, 1885; Francis Cutting, Feb. 9, 1886; Karl Brueck, Feb. 19, 1886; H. G. Gischel, Aug. 16, 1886; M. W. Huberty, May, 1887; Charles Lieginger, March 3, 1890; A. E. Musto, Sept. 1, 1890; M. H. Wright, Jan. 9, 1893; W. C. Neumiller, Jan. 16, 1893; Charles Yost, Jan. 16, 1893; H. J. Smythe, Jan. 16, 1893; Fred Eckstrom, Jan. 23, 1893; Frank Lieginger, Feb. 6, 1893; J. I. Hefferman, June 8, 1896; Ansel Knowles, June 8, 1896; C. P. Rendon, June 8, 1896; W. J. Hersom, July 6, 1896; Samuel Marks, Aug. 3, 1896; Thos. H. Luke, Aug. 10, 1896; F. J. Dietrich, Aug. 10, 1896; L. F. Kuhn, Aug. 24, 1896; A. A. Fitzgerald, Aug. 31, 1896.

In addition, 175 members of Stockton No. 7 received 25-year pins. The affair was one of the closing activities of the term of President Henry Bava, which saw an increase both in membership and attendance.

Guejito Parlor No. 301, Escondido, San Diego County, initiated a class of eight new members on Jan. 10th, assisted by members of San Diego Parlor No. 108. President Clifford Hughes and his corps of officers are working hard to make their new parlor one of the most active in the Order.

Santa Clara County Meet At Observatory Parlor

Irv Lee, the silver tongued orator from the "hot corner" is striving with utmost diligence to make the county-wide initiation, to be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 11, at Observatory Parlor No. 177, San Jose, a marked success. Irv, since taking over the reins of Supervising Deputy, has shown the boys that not one blade of grass has grown under his size twelves. Since his inception into this office, he has worked overtime trying to enlarge the memberships in the several parlors under his jurisdiction, and his results are very gratifying.

CLAREMONT PARLOR HOLDS OLD TIMERS' NIGHT

Claremont Parlor No. 240, Emeryville, saw the old year out with an "Old Timers' Nite" and a program which pleased some 80 odd members and visiting brothers. A memorial to deceased members of Claremont Parlor was conducted by Walter Arnold, Marshal, and Firmino Cavalli, Jr. P. P. Trustee Bill Caton introduced members of Claremont Parlor who have been with the parlor at least twenty-four years. Emil Thienger, who was recording secretary for Claremont Parlor for 35 years presented 25-year membership pins to George Viani, John McFarland, Theodore Markert, Peter Joseph and Narcisse Bergeron. Ed Hanson introduced the speaker of the evening, James J. Dignan, who as a D.D.G.P. instituted Claremont Parlor 38 years ago on Tuesday, February 13, 1908. Al Vinther, Recording Secretary, acted as chairman of the evening and as a final touch introduced the Good of the Order Chairman, George Davis, who proceeded to open up the doors to a festivious evening. The parlor is now meeting every Thursday night at the I.O.S.T. Hall, 3525 Adeline St.

Here and There About the State With Native Sons

Governor Earl Warren, member of Fruitvale No. 252, Oakland, bedecked in the latest shooting togs, went out near Merced the opening day of duck season, so we are told. When reminded that the legal limit of ducks has just been reduced from ten to seven ducks, he is reported to have said: "That's all right by me—maybe they'll get the limit low enough so I can get a limit sometime."

* * *

Claremont Parlor No. 240, Emeryville, reports that they have changed their meeting night to every Thursday at the I.O.S.T. Hall, 3525 Adeline St., Oakland 8, California.

Cabrillo Parlor No. 114, N.S.G.W., Ventura, held a guest night for members and their ladies, Tuesday, Jan. 21, in the Elks Building. A dinner preceded public installation of officers and entertainment.

San Luis Rey Parlor No. 300, recently instituted at Oceanside, San Diego County, plans to have a class initiation Wednesday, February 26, requesting the initiatory team from Santa Ana Parlor, No. 265, Orange County, to assist them.

The Piedmont Parlor Bulletin reports that the Joint Committee on Homeless Children will lose their chief means of financial aid if the recommendation of Commissioner Stevenson of the State Athletic Commission is adhered to by the Bay area fight promoters' cancelling collections at boxing shows. This means that it will be necessary for the committee to promote other means of raising the necessary quota. Again the faithful few will make a valiant effort to put over whatever idea is decided upon.

They tell us that one of the most successful meetings in a long time was held in December at Los Banos, Merced County, when Los Banos No. 206, N.S.G.W., was host to a joint initiation with Yosemite Parlor No. 24, Merced, and Fremont No. 293, Gustine. Twenty-four new members were initiated for Los Banos Parlor, two for Fremont and one for Yosemite.

This letter speaks for itself and shows that a member of our Grand Parlor Legislative is certainly on the job and has the Order first in his mind:

State of California
Department of Motor Vehicles
June 18, 1946.

Honorable Louis G. Sutton
Member of the Senate,
State of California,
Maxwell, California.

My Dear Senator Sutton:

Regarding your request that the word "California" be spelled out in its entirety on our 1947 license plates, on my return to Sacramento I found that the plates were not as brittle as the manufacturer had led us to believe and that the word "California" will be spelled out in full.

You may so advise the Native Sons.

Thanking you for your suggestion, I am

Yours very truly,

EDGAR E. LAMPTON, Director.

This year, whenever you read an auto license, you can think of Senator Sutton from Colusa No. 69, "The Heart of the Universe . . ."

Each month, as I finish the "Corner" or "Notes" I think that next month will be shorter, but there seems so much to tell each time. That's the penalty, I guess, for action. Well, that's what I promised; and that's what I gave (as long as the money held out).

PROMINENT NATIVE SON NOMINATED FOR GRAND EXALTED RULER OF ELKS

L. A. "Fay" Lewis, well-known Los Angeles attorney, for many years a member of Ramona No. 109 and a charter member of Mother Colony Parlor No. 281, Anaheim, was nominated by the past exalted rulers and Anaheim No. 1345, Elks lodge, for Grand Exalted Ruler of all Elks lodges of the United States, Wednesday evening, Jan. 8. Elections will be held in Portland in July. Lewis is a member of one of Anaheim's pioneer families, and is a charter member of the Anaheim Elks, holding the first honorary membership granted by that body.

At the same meeting Thomas L. McFadden, charter senior past president of Mother Colony Parlor and charter member of the Anaheim lodge, being one of its past exalted rulers, was signally honored when that Order presented him with the second honorary membership granted.

ARROWHEAD PAST PRESIDENTS HOL INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

NEW MEMBERSHIP CONTEST ANNOUNCED

The members of the Membership Committee of the Native Sons of the Golden West have unanimously agreed that during the period commencing on the 1st of January, 1947 and ending on April 30, 1947 there shall be held a further membership contest between the Parlors. The rules of the membership contest will be those of the contest which ended on December 31, 1946, and the Parlors shall be reclassified into groups according to the number of members in the Parlor at the end of 1946, and shall compete against others in the same group for the various prizes.

Special emphasis and prizes will be given to the individuals who procure and sponsor new candidates initiated during the period of the contest, and prizes to such individuals as well as the Parlors will be awarded during the 1947 Grand Parlor session.

The Membership Committee feels that the efforts being made in our Order in gaining membership should not at this time be relaxed, for members appear easy to get. They are also impressed with the fact that the Parlors that have not initiated candidates for some time did not enter into the competition during the last contest, and special efforts should be made by the officers and members of those Parlors which are and have been dormant to enter this competition and earn a prize as well as build up their Parlor.

San Miguel Parlor No. 303 Instituted At Chula Vista

San Miguel Parlor No. 303, Native Sons of the Golden West, was instituted Thursday evening, January 16, at Chula Vista, San Diego County, with Grand First Vice President Walter H. Odemar presiding, assisted by Grand Inside Sentinel Walter E. Hiskey of Santa Ana, Supervising Deputy Grand President David Stuart of San Bernardino, District Deputy Grand President Dan E. Shaffer of San Diego.

Comprising the National City-Chula Vista area of San Diego County, San Miguel Parlor takes its name from the historical landmark, San Miguel Mountain, just east of that section. Some years ago there was a parlor named San Miguel in the northern part of the state, which has surrendered its charter.

Grand 1st Vice President Walter H. Odemar acted as president at the initiation ceremonies, assisted by the following members of San Diego Parlor No. 108: Albert Vallin, Senior Past Pres.; Henry W. Hache, Jr. Past Pres.; Joseph C. Kelley, 1st Vice Pres.; John D. Cupp, 3rd Vice President. Grand Inside Sentinel Walter Hiskey acted as Marshal and SDDGP David Stuart capably installed the following members as Charter Officers of San Miguel Parlor No. 303:

Senior Past Pres.....Henry Howard Heath
Junior Past Pres. .....Russell Alan Morehouse
President .....Elmer Paul Leffert
1st Vice Pres.....Leslie Franklin Burns
2nd Vice Pres. .....Robert Harold Heckel
3rd Vice Pres. .....Louis Raymond Labory
Rec. Secretary .....Robert Hickman Aynesworth
Fin. Secretary .....Lloyd Hanford Bass
Treasurer .....Bernard Christian Nelson
Marshal .....Robert Crockett Harlan
Inside Sentinel .....George Jesse Taylor
Outside Sentinel .....Rolin Otis Downs
Trustees: Albert Packard, Ernest Linwood Kimball, Eugene LeRoy Miller.

President Elect Elmer Paul Leffert called upon several of the Grand Officers to talk to the new members of San Miguel Parlor No. 303, after which the regular closing ceremonies were held and adjournment taken.

It was agreed that future meetings of the parlor would be on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month.

JOE E. GOMES HEADS LOS BANOS NATIVE SONS

Joe E. Gomes, local dairyman, was chosen by the Los Banos Parlor of Native Sons to head their organization as president for the coming six months. Gomes will have the honor of heading the Parlor during the Annual May Day Celebration, which each year is sponsored by the lodge group.

In becoming president, Gomes will succeed his brother, Tony M. Gomes Jr., who will now be junior past president. Other officers elected were Joe Pinelli, first vice president; Henry Adrain, second vice president; John E. Machado, third vice president; Manuel Gill Jr., marshal; Joe M. Barcellos Jr., inside sentinel; Nick Brandi, outside sentinel; William Foletta, August Barcellos and Cecil Arthur, trustees; Joe Cardoza, recording secretary; Emil Erreca, financial secretary; Ernest Degregori, treasurer; and Anthony Dibiaso, organist.

Installation ceremonies were held jointly with the Native Daughters on Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, at the I.O.O.F. Hall. District Deputy Grand President John V. Azvedo of Gustine was the installing officer for the Native Sons.

UNIVERSITY PARLOR WILL HONOR EUGENE BISCAILUZ

On February 12, University Parlor No. 272 will have its "Gene Biscailuz Night" in honor of the popular and colorful Native sheriff of Los Angeles County. A big class of candidates will be initiated to start University's new membership drive. Slogan of the parlor is "307 new members in '47." Other parlors are invited to attend the big February meeting.

University Parlor also put on a "Sponsors' Dinner" the first of February for all members who had sponsored candidates during the past six months.

GRAND PRES. LORETTA CAMERON AT VENDOME AND SAN JOSE PARLORS

An informal reception and dinner at Hotel De Anza, San Jose, preceded the official visit of Grand President Loretta Cameron of San Francisco, to San Jose and Vendome Parlors, December 19. Other Grand Officers attending were Past Grand President Ethel C. Enos of Modesto, Grand Marshal Margaret Farnsworth of San Jose, Past Grand President Evelyn Carlson of San Francisco.

Mrs. Clarisse Gordon, president of San Jose Parlor and her corps of officers conducted the opening and closing and the escort work, while officers of Vendome Parlor, with Mrs. Emma Nelson presiding, exemplified the ritualistic work, initiating 12 candidates.

Junior Past Presidents, Mrs. Marson of San Jose Parlor and Mrs. Margaret Morgan of Vendome Parlor, gave a resume of the year's work of their respective parlors, which showed that they are strong financially, active in civic understandings and diligent in their support of the various projects sponsored by the Grand Parlor.

After the Grand President's address she was presented with a gift by each of the parlors, and by Past Presidents' Assn. No. 3.

Mrs. Lucille Castro of San Jose Parlor and Mrs. Anna Plasker of Vendome Parlor, were co-chairmen of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Charter Member of Reina del Mar Parlor Is Called

Santa Barbara's Reina del Mar Parlor, NDGW, draped its charter at its Jan. 8 meeting in Woman's City Club in memory of Mrs. Josefa de la Guerra Savin, charter member, who died early in January in her 80th year. She was born in the midtown De la Guerra mansion which is now headquarters for Santa Barbara County Chamber of Commerce.

With Acting President Mrs. A. Stanley Clem presiding and reporting on the parlor's Civics department activities in 1946, which saw unusual cooperation with civic, governmental and post-war planning groups of the Channel City, other reports were made by Mrs. Raymond Romero, education and veterans welfare; Mrs. Fred Acres, revision of by-laws and Mrs. Henry Griffiths on forthcoming installation of officers.

Mrs. Henry Griffiths reported for twenty-nine members of the parlor's past-presidents association which met recently at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Vale Brady and elected Miss Elise Bottiani, president; Mrs. Eugene Ireland secretary for the coming year.

Beverly Hills Parlor No. 89, NDGW, was instituted Friday evening, January 31, at the Beverly Hills Womens' Club House. Full details in the March issue.

Betty Eris Hannis Installed As President Of Annie K. Bidwell Parlor, Chico

Miss Betty Eris Hannis, who was installed as president of Annie E. K. Bidwell Parlor, NDGW, Chico, on January 9th, 1947, has the distinction of being the youngest president to hold the presidential office in the local parlor.

Installing officer was Fay Cavier of Willows, Deputy Grand President, and escorted to a seat of honor was Rosa Crum of the Gold of Ophir Parlor in Oroville, supervising district deputy grand president.

After the grand officers were seated, the officers-elect were escorted by the escort team to their places.

Installed as first vice president was Charlotte Larue; second vice president, Opal Meriam; third vice president, Nell Baker; marshal, Una Hargrove, financial secretary; Ethel Estes; recording secretary, Velma Cuddeback; treasurer, Olive Pearl; inside sentinel, Leone Harholdt; outside sentinel, Myrtle Parker; musician, Dorothy Evans; and trustees, Nora Arnold, Kattie Peterson, and Laura Anderson.

Betty Eris's theme was "With a Smile and a Song" and after she was escorted to her chair, her sister, Nadine Hannis, sang "With a Smile and a Song," and presented a gardenia corsage to the new president.

Mrs. Ira Hannis, mother of the president, presented her daughter with a music box as a gift from her and Nadine. Allen Graves sang, "The Song Is You," accompanied by Mrs. G. K. Laumer at the piano.

Gifts in honor of the occasion were presented to Mrs. Cavier, Mrs. Elizabeth Carpenter, past president; and Bette Carpenter, junior past president, by Miss Hannis. The marshal then brought gifts to the new president from the parlor members. Miss Hannis then thanked her sister, Opal Meriam, and her mother for the hall decorations which they had made, and Olive Pearl and Opal Meriam for the intricate drills.

Members of the drill team who performed were Nadine Hannis, Margaret Carlson, Letitia Sanchez, Phyllis Metzger, Alberta White, Clara Volpato, Lillian Ferguson, Edith Brown, Norma Orrick, Fern Krause, Dorothy Fish, Leona Cerholdt, Theresa Risher, Marjorie Grunberg, Elsie McLain, and Joyce Rose.

After the installation, refreshments were served in the banquet hall which overflowed with members and friends and guests of the president. In charge of the table decorations were Nell Baker, chairman; Josephine Alexander, Florence Handley, Dorothy Grunberg and Elizabeth Carpenter. Catherine Campbell headed the refreshment committee, assisted by Lois Heberlie, Josephine Hughes and Emma Huff.

East Los Angeles Parlor No. 266, N.D.G.W., meeting at 506½ Whittier Blvd., Montebello, had a pot-luck supper Tuesday evening, January 7, honoring new members of the parlor. On January 21 the parlor held a Homeless Children Baby Shower, members bringing some article of baby clothing, which will be turned over to Imogene Bonser, chairman of the parlor's Homeless Children committee.

BONITA PARLOR AT REDWOOD CITY HAS IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES

In an impressive candlelight ceremony on Thursday evening, January 9th, 1947, newly elected officers of Bonita Parlor No. 10, Redwood City, were installed publicly by Deputy Grand President Marjorie Baker of El Carmelo Parlor No. 281, Daly City. Mary Byrd, newly elected president was escorted by members of Bonita Parlor Drill Team in formal dresses and each carried a lighted candle. As they entered they sang "Mary." Dolores Rozzo is now past president; and other newly installed officers are Emary Blood, first vice president; Lois Phillips, second vice president; Maude Canvin, third vice president; Evelyn Hubbard, marshal; Martha Bernasque, recording secretary; Isabel MacPherson, financial secretary; Agnes Casaretto, treasurer; Mamie Glennan, Margaret Jory and Dorothy Sabin, trustees; Shirley Allured, inside sentinel; Frances Gardener, outside sentinel; and Dolly Jamison, organist.

Past Grand President Evelyn I. Carlson, Supervising District Deputy Grand President Helen Meyer of El Carmelo Parlor, Grand Trustee Dorothy Donofrio of El Carmelo Parlor and Mamie Glennan, charter member of Bonita Parlor, were called upon during the evening. Dorothy Sabin, Jr., Past President, was presented with her past president's jewel.

Madeline Wallace, chairman of the evening, presented the program which featured vocal solos by Ronny Carolla, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Inez Carolla, member of Bonita Parlor; piano solos by Gloria Zangari; and a song, "The Mission Bells of Santa Clara," composed and written by June Coy, member of Bonita Parlor, was presented by Miss Coy and a chorus of members of Bonita Parlor's Drill Team.

A large group of Native Sons of Redwood Parlor No. 66 attended the meeting in a body.

Refreshments were served by Margaret Locatelli, banquet chairman, from tables decorated in blue and gold.

SAN GABRIEL PARLORS HAVE SUCCESSFUL JOINT MEETING

A large decorated tree and a jolly fat Santa Claus were highlights of a Christmas party given recently in the American Legion Clubhouse by San Gabriel Archangel Parlor No. 291, N.S.G.W. and San Gabriel Valley Parlor No. 881, N.D.G.W. About 150 members and their families attended.

Elsa Peterson was mistress of ceremonies. Appearing were Olga Perez, dancer; Davy and Terry Santo and Mr. Frank Santo, vocalists; Robert and Marlean Lyden and Mrs. Elsa Petersen, all of whom recited. Rita Hasson and Mrs. Anita Santo were piano accompanists and Mrs. Ascencion Simon played the guitar.

Mrs. Helen Neiger and Jess Fike were co-chairmen of the annual event. Members of their committee were Louise Cash, Minerva Hanford, Vesta Reeves, Gladys Carlson, Anita Santo, Elsa Petersen, Lyllia Partridge, Mildred Lang, June Titus, Maureen Peters, Betty Brown, Milda La Berge, Alfred Mata, Ken Lutcow, Arnold Haehl. The beautiful tree was provided by Mr. Mata.

On January 16, the popular choral group of Sequoia Parlor No. 272, NDGW, Berkeley, resumed rehearsals in preparation to sing on Monday evening, January 27, during the installation of officers of the Past Presidents' Association, No. 2. Mrs. Ragan was installed as its president. A parlor sewing club has also been reorganized by Edna William at which articles will be made for a bazaar to be held in the spring. This group will meet several times a month.

Mission Dolores, founded June 29, 1776, was the beginning of San Francisco. Built on the anks of the little stream which flowed through what Portola called the Arroyos de los Dolores, he mission properly named San Francisco de los Dolores, has been called Mission Dolores. To- ay the old structure stands by the side of a large church in the very heart of the city. In the ission are fine examples of the work of the Indian neophytes—painted ceilings and other decor- tions. Hide thongs, used to hold giant rafters in place, are still in good condition. In the emetery adjoining the mission are headstones of scores of famous people of the early days.—Cali- ornians Inc. Photo.

lans Taking Shape For Big 947 Admission Day Event

The organizational set-up for the 1947 Admis- ion Day celebration in Long Beach is rapidly aking shape, it was learned at the January 14th neeting of the Admission Day Committee for 947, Inc., held at the Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach, under the leadership of Gary G. Lynes, eneral chairman.

Heads of all the essential committee have been hosen. Regular meetings of the General Com- ittee composed of members representing all outhern parlors, will be held the first Tues- ay of each month, with sub-committees meet- ng as often as necessary to accomplish their usiness.

General theme for the giant parade scheduled under discussion, and plans are under way or a big barbecue. A state-wide Drum and Bugle Corps contest will probably be held, as ell as many different athletic events, details of hich will be announced at an early date. Under resent plans, not only will all parlor secretaries eceive bulletins regularly dealing with the cele- ration, but a section in the Grizzly Bear will e reserved each month to carry news of plans all members of the Native Sons and Daughters.

GREAT YEAR PREDICTED FOR TWIN PEAK PARLORS

Twin Peaks Native Sons and Daughters held their joint installation on January 14th. Grand President Loretta Cameron NDGW and Grand Deputy William Hawley NSGW installed the officers for the coming term.

It was a memorable occasion as the lovely Grand President of the Native Daughters, a member of Twin Peaks Parlor, presented the gavel to the new president of her Parlor, the charming Mrs. Worth.

The invitation to install her own officers was tendered to the Grand President by their thoughtful District Deputy Nan Kelley. This was an event that very seldom happens in our organization.

Twin Peaks NSGW new president H. McReynolds took his office and expressed his thanks for being elected to this honored position for the second time.

A social which offered dancing and buffet service was held after the ceremony. Approximately two hundred and fifty members and friends attended.

Twin Peaks foremost activities are in athletics, which the Parlor believes is the best way to interest new and young members.

The Parlor has its own Bowling League. Six teams are "fighting it out" for the Parlor Championship.

If there is any other Parlor in the State that can match this turn-out, we would like to know about it.

Only the spirit and enthusiasm of new members and a certain number of older ones can bring about successful events like this. Twin Peaks' representation in local bowling circles has created a great deal of favorable comment for the Native Sons.

SILVER SANDS PARLOR, 286, NATIVE DAUGHTERS, INSTALLS OFFICERS

Margaret Pontius was installed as president of Silver Sands Parlor No. 286, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Huntington Beach, in impressive ceremonies Jan. 11.

Installed with her were: Margaret Pickering, past president; Lucille Orens, Junior past pres.; Jewell Henricksen, 1st vice-pres.; Gwendolyn Talbert, 2nd vice-pres.; Esther Lindley, 3rd vice-pres.; Zelma Brown, treasurer; Beatrice Bowen, fin. sec.; Jean Coker, rec. sec.; Carrie Harding, Edna Gillis, Geneva Johnson, trustees; Viola Parr, inside sentinel; Annabelle Creswell, outside sentinel; Bettie McLellan, marshal; Evelyn Wardlow, organist.

SOUTHERN DISTRICT INTER-PARLOR HAS PARTY FOR SAWTELLE VETERAN

The Inter-Parlor Committee of the Southern District, Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, wish to thank all the parlors of the Native Sons and Daughters, together with Past Grand President Eldred Meyer, for their contribution to the fund for the veterans' party held Dec. 1 at Co. 8, Sawtelle.

165 disabled veterans from the Spanish-American and World War I were entertained with solo accordian selections by Roger Johnson and group singing by the men assembled, during the serving of ice cream and cake.

The group then visited the blind war veteran where crisp $1.00 bills were presented to 50 men along with refreshments.

Many thanks to all the Native Sons and Daughters who assisted to make the day a success.

THE CITY OF BISHOP BERKELEY

By CLARA M. BARTON, Sequoia No. 272, NDGW

THE man, George Berkeley, in whose honor the City of Berkeley was named, was an Irishman who looked far into the future n establishing educational institutions everywhere he went. He was born in Ireland in 1684 nd at the age of 11, entered Kilkenny School nown as the "Eton of Ireland." At the age of 5, he arrived in Rhode Island in January, 1729. ut prior to his departure from England, his riends promised to secure for his cherished enerprise a House of Commons appropriation of 100,000. He waited three long years for this nd then returned to England, a very disappointed man. Soon after, he was given the title f Bishop of Cloyne but he was also to be known s Bishop Berkeley and George, the Bishop of Cloyne.

It was a glorious day in May, 1866 that the oard of directors of the old College of Caliornia located then in Oakland, and later moved o Berkeley and renamed University of Caliornia, met on the present site of the Campus, ith a view of giving the community an appropriate name. Two historians, the late Clarnce S. Merrill and Dr. W. W. Ferrier, menioned that in the group were Dr. S. H. Willey, rederick Billings, a prominent San Francisco ttorney in whose honor the city of Billings, Montana, was named; Ira B. Rankin, Sherman ay, Horatio Stebbins, Edward McLean and r. Joseph A. Benton. These men played an nportant part in the building of Berkeley.

Various names were proposed and rejected as oon as they were mentioned, such as Ocean iew, Peralta, Billingsgate, Blythhaven, Haverurst and Shelterwood. Then President Willey sked Billings, a native of Vermont and a deep dmirer of Berkeley and who was also in civic ffairs, what name he would suggest.

Billings grinned and without hesitation reeated his favorite words of Berkeley, "Westard the course of empire takes its way." Thus as christened the home of the University city.

The name was adopted almost immediately nd the group proceeded to the home of Dr. Villey, located on the north side of Dwight Way ast east of College Avenue. An hour later, ne board of directors formally approved of the ame of Berkeley.

Dr. Ferrier stated that the newspaper did not ake much interest in the naming of Berkeley. n fact, very little or no comment was made nd it was the Evening Bulletin of San Franisco, which made this observation in 1866. The ewspaper was strong in its comment for it did ot seem to think that a college town with uch a name would be able to cope with the ayme in the odes and bucolics.

The San Francisco Bulletin also made an unavorable comment on the naming of the college own after a "Bishop who was a patron of at east one infant college in America and strove o found another there" but the editorial conued, "there is some fitness in thus giving is name to the College Homestead on the Paific Coast."

Although Bishop Berkeley failed to estabsh an educational institution in America, his ission and his sojourn here were not failures. lis name came westward across the continent long with the westward course of empire.

Historian Ferrier writes, "His name has been nmortalized throughout the land. New York ity has a school named in memory of him as a nissionary who crossed the seas to bring to is land the torch of knowledge." A divinity chool at Middletown, Conn., bore his name or many years until it was merged with Yale Divinity School. Cloyne School at Newport, Rhode Island, was named for him and there is a Berkeley School in Bermuda, where 200 years ago he sought to establish St. Paul's College."

When it came time for the citizens of Berkeley to take part in the actual naming, a festival took place in which only a few stragglers were on the sidelines. Everyone took part, for up to 1866, they had been living in a village without a legalized name and of which they had called it anything they could think of.

The final verse of Bishop Berkeley's immortal poem, "The Course of Empire," a dream during his lifetime, is a reality today. It goes thus:

"Westward the course of empire takes it way;
The first four acts already past,
A fifth shall close the drama of the day;
Time's noblest offspring is the last."

HISTORIC SPOT IN EL DORADO COUNTY IS SUITABLY MARKED

Greenwood Cemetery, which lies north of Greenwood, El Dorado County, on the Georgetown road, was the scene December 28, 1946, of the dedication of a marker in memory of the early day song writer, John A. Stone, known as "Joe Bowers."

Graciously given by Clarence I. McGillard of Berkeley, owner of Golden Gate Memorials, the monument is of Minnesota granite and beautifully inscribed as follows:

JOHN A. STONE
Early Day Song Writer of California Known as
"JOE BOWERS"
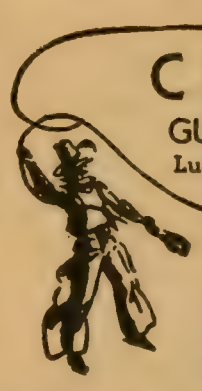
Author of Puts Golden Songster and Puts Original California Songster and Others.
Native of Pike County, Missouri.
Crossed the Plains by Wagon, 1849.
Died at Greenwood, California
January 23, 1864.
In Memorium.

Rev. John Winkley of Albany, whose column appears weekly in the Oakland Tribune dealing with some noted spot of historical interest in the Mother Lode, chanced to write some time ago of John A. Stone's grave and how it was only marked with a slate slab, which was in a crumbling condition. He pointed out the need for a suitable marker.

Reading the article, Clarence I. McGillard called on Joseph R. Knowland, publisher of the Oakland Tribune and Past Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West, who put him in touch with the columnist.



At the dedication ceremonies Rev. Winkley read John A. Stone's "Sweet Betsie of Pike," and also spoke of the many songs that he wrote.

Mr. McGillard, donor of the monument, told of its origin in Rockwell, Minn., and expressed his pleasure in being able to contribute to the marking of the historic spot.

Among those present were Louis Grover and Lester Hindel of Georgetown, representing the Native Sons; Beatrice Luce, Lena Claressee and Alta Douglas of Georgetown; Mabelle Timm of Kelsey and Georgia Gardner of Greenwood, all past presidents of El Dorado Parlor No. 168, Native Daughters, Georgetown; Florence Luce of Georgetown, Marie Marlin and Ida Manley of Greenwood, James P. Tallent and Clarence I. McGillard of Berkeley, and Rev. John Winkley of Albany

THE TOWN OF VOLCANO---

HOW GOLD MINERS WERE AMUSED AND ENTERTAINED

dancing received thunderous applause. As "mistress of a king," alleged bigamist, target for the finger of scandal, champion in notoriety, her career remains unmatched to this day. It was she who taught little Lotta Crabtree how to dance. Lotta reached new heights in popularity—"Like no one else in the world!" On the stage she became "Fortune's favorite," and the generosity of the miners knew no bounds. But great actors and musicians did not disdain to appear before the rough, bewhiskered, albeit appreciative gold diggers. There were the Booths, Thomas Maguire, Edwin Forrest; there were opera companies, Haverly's minstrels, the circus, gypsy troopers, and what not. Variety was there, as everywhere, the spice of life. And plenty of it!

Early California songs throw revealing sidelights upon the life of the miner. When a strolling singer made his appearance in a crowded saloon, he was sure to find approval and be given repeated encore. "Life in California" was sung to the air of "Used Up Man." Some of the songs seemed to have innumerable verses—here's a single stanza from "The Happy Miner":

No matter whether rich or poor, I'm happy as a clam,
I wish my friends at home could look and see me as I am,
With woolen shirt and rubber boots, in mud up to my knees,
And lice as large as Chili beans fighting with the fleas.

A stanza from "Sweet Betsy From Pike":

Oh, don't you remember sweet Betsy from Pike.
Who crossed the big mountains, with her lover Ike,
With two yokes of cattle, a large yellow dog,
A tall Shanghai rooster and one spotted hog?

Closing lines from "A California Ball":

The gambler all the money wins;
To bed the drunkest crawl:
The fighting then, of course, begins
With rowdies at the ball.

One stanza from "Hangtown Girls" runs thus:

To church they very seldom venture;
Hoops so large they cannot enter;
Go it, gals; you're young and tender;
Shun the pick-and-shovel gender.

Most popular of all was "O Susannah"; even native boatmen learned to sing it as accompaniment to poling their canoes on the Chagres River, down on the Isthmus. It has been called the official song of the '49ers. A favorite version of "The California Emigrant," set to the tune of "O! Susannah" begins:

I come from Salem City,
With my wash bowl on my knee;
I'm going to California
The gold dust for to see.
It rained all night, the day I left,
The weather it was dry,
The sun so hot I froze to death—
Oh, brothers, don't you cry!
O! California,
That's the land for me,
I'm going to Sacramento
With my wash bowl on my knee.

The town of Volcano can boast a number of interesting landmarks, some of them well preserved. The pride of the place was St. George Hotel, built in 1854. This three-story structure is pronounced one of the most picturesque of all the landmarks of the entire region. The old jail has walls made of heavy iron plates, "sandwiched between two layers of two-inch planks, defying the efforts of the most skillful jail breakers." Beside the old Adams Express Building is to be seen "Old Abe," a valued relic in the form of a cannon from Civil War days. And there's the little church on the lovely knoll.

"The Volcano" played a unique part in the drama of Mother Lode in California history. There were men of many nationalities; there was hard work a-plenty; but also there was excitement and lively entertainment. The town quickly rose to a place of importance: then faded rapidly away to become a phantom city.

Among the celebrities in whose lives Volcano had a part may be mentioned Angelo Rossi, former mayor of San Francisco, who was born there in 1878 and there received his grammar school education. His father was among the early settlers—he kept one of the stores. A. P. Giannini, head of the Bank of America, a native of San Jose, met Clorinda Agnes, daughter of Joseph Cuneo of Volcano, in San Francisco, and she later became his wife. It is said that she and her widowed mother were influential in Giannini's decision to enter the field of banking. The world knows the result of that decision.

Up there among the black boulders, the hills and the trees and the rocks have witnessed much that testified to the activities of an earlier day. Here and there are yet to be found the remnants of a once populous community, still cherishing many a hollowed memory.

LOS ANGELES PARLOR MARKS ROCHA ADOBE WITH PLAQUE

Mrs. Oscar S. Elvrum, California historian and women's club leader, outlined the life on early ranchos of this region when she delivered the principal address January 19 at the marking by Los Angeles Parlor No. 124, N.D.G.W., of the picturesque Rocha adobe, 2400 Shenandoah street, Los Angeles.
